They both were talking about the same thing—the German coastal batteries which were the biggest danger faced by the Canadian fleet that patrols English channel waters. Too, they were the last peril the sailors counted on when they moved into the channel, and are the last thing to be mentioned whenever the story of a channel run is told.

Things the sailors could see and combat with steel and explosives weren't nice, but they knew how to handle them. But the invisible pounding from shore was nerve-wracking, consistent and accurate.

"It's uncanny, that's what it is," said one sailor. He then told how it is to be steaming along the French coast and without any warning to see a huge tree of water grow into the air. Then another and another, each coming closer to the ship as the gunners ashore search for the range. The giant splashes creep closer as if something were walking through the channel toward the ship.

"There's nothing we can do but run like hell," he said.

By now, Canadians troops have helped their brothers afloat by clearing out these guns from the Dover Straits area. And don't think the men on the ships aren't grateful—it means the end of a six-month nightmare.

RESCUED RED DEVILS—Lieut. R. J. Kennedy of Dunrobbin, Ont., who planned the rescue of the British Red Devil paratroopers caught at Arnhem. Lieut. Kennedy, a member of the Royal Canadian Engineers, worked out the whole Canadian operation whereby 2,500 paratroopers were taken across the lower Rhine in small boats under heavy fire.

Salvage Paper Still Required

OTTAWA, Oct. 13.—(CP).—The War Services Department has requested voluntary salvage committees to continue their work, especially in the drive for waste paper, for which there is an "urgent" need.

The request was included in a statement Tuesday in which War Services Minister LaFleche announced Charles LaPerle of Toronto, salvage director, was returning to private business, and said that future needs for scrap metals, rubber, fats, rags, bottles and cullet could be looked after by normal trade channels.

He said, however, there was still "much useful work" to be done by the voluntary committees, who were requested to continue their activities.

New Mail System

RUMSON, N.J., Oct. 13—(AP).—Two cousins devised a unique system of fast mail only good for one delivery. Cpl. Harold A. Shay, a nose gunner on a heavy bomber, suffered leg wounds during a bombing raid over France and was sent to an Italian hospital, where he was visited by Cpl. Daniel Shea. When Cousin Dan spied the cast on Harold's leg, he immediately wrote on the cast to his parents and sister: "Hello Mom, Pop and Lillian. I will follow this leg home soon." Harold arrived a few days ago with the cast still intact.

Brush Rayon Burns Easily

TORONTO, Oct. 13 —(CP) — A campaign to warn people of the fire hazard in brush rayon, a new type of clothing material, was decided on Thursday at conference between W. J. Scott, Ontario fire marshal, and a number of safety officials. The campaign will be carried out by the Ontario Safety League.

Mr. Scott said there was nothing in provincial regulations to prevent the manufacture of the material. His department planned to ask research departments of manufacturing concerns to study the possibility of developing a method of fireproofing.

The conference was told several people have been burned about the arms and face when the garments ignited.

News Dispute Cancel Daily Papers

SYDNEY, Austrilia, Oct. 13 — (CP) — The Australian Federal and Local Governments were accused by the Newspaper Proprietors Association Thursday of encouraging dismissed newspapermen in the dispute which has left Sydney without any of its regular daily papers this week.

The four dailies are publishing a composite four-page paper and their former employees are putting out a 12-page tabloid.

The Proprietors Association said the journalists' tabloid was operating without a licence, was taking news off the air contrary to Government regulations, and was being issued by the Communist Party.

The Government was criticized for preventing reporters from the Proprietors' composite paper from entering the gallery in the houses of parliament Wednesday and Thursday.

The tabloid was receiving exclusive interstate services on police news and state and federal political coverage. Proprietors in other states, fearful fo becoming involved in the Sydney dispute, withheld wire services, while police and ministers of state of the labor Government refused to see newsmen from the Publishers' paper.

The tabloid was selling more than 100,000 copies a day while the proprietors' paper was selling 350,000 and predicting a circulation of 750,000.

The Publishers' Association called the journalists strikers. Newsmen said they were locked out.

The dispute started with the printers who have been ordered back to work by the New South Wales Industrial Commission. There was no indication they would return to work before Saturday, which would leave Sydney without any of its regular papers for a week.

Gets 15 Months

NEW TRAP CLOSES ON NAZIS — Latest move in the Allied trap closing in on the Nazis with a view to liberating Greece were the landings in Greece itself by British troops as well as on Greek islands, and seizing of airfields from which the R.A.F. can operate. In the map above black arrows indicate how the trap is closing in all directions, to encircle some 200,000 Germans. Red Army drives are shown to the east while Marshal Tito's troops threaten the German Balkan lifeline and vital escape routes.

Fall Wheat Crop Reported Good

Pastures revived by ample rains are a green variant in the autumnal tapestry of rural Ontario as reflected in the weeks report from the Department of Agriculture.

Durham County, for instance, says fall wheat is making good growth and practically all the new seeding appears very promising and away over in Bruce the same verdant note is sounded: "Excellent pastures are providing late feed for cows and steers. Fall wheat is excellent; new seedings have made a wonderful recovery."

And repetitiously, this comment is from Lincoln: "Pasture conditions are excellent; a large acreage of fall wheat is making excellent growth." That is the dominant tone of this week's crop report.

Peterborough: "The tomato pack is completed. The yield has been considerably above early expectation. The harvesting of McIntosh apples is about completed. Snows and Starks are now being picked. Canning factories have commenced processing pumpkins. To date, there has been no frost to do any damage."

Victoria: A large number of farm sales are being held. Buckwheat is yielding poorly. Potatoes and mangels are being harvested. Weevil in granaries is reported. Red clover and alfalfa are being harvested for seed; yield promises fair."

In Huron, Holstein cows sold "upwards of $150; the top being $162.50."

Bell's Colleague Passes At Age 75

GALT, Oct. 13 — (CP)—George Walters, 75, believed to be the last survivor of the group who witnessed Alexander Graham Bell make the first long distance call between Brantford, Ont., and Paris, Ont., on Aug. 10, 1876, died at his home here today.

Mr. Walters' parents lived on the farm adjoining that of the Bell's and often spoke over the telephone during tests of Bell's invention. He also helped string the first telephone wires to trees and posts down the river bank between the Bell home and Brantford.

Mr. Walters is survived by his widow, 10 children and 14 grandchildren.

Post War Plans Studied Further By Councillors

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 13 — (ENS) — Provincial authorities have made no decisions regarding Post War planning, according to word received, Clerk E. H. Northey informed the village council at the October meeting Tuesday night.

In answer to a query seeking information as to whether the village might set up a post war fund for a project, possibly water works, officials replied that the matter was chiefly in the Dominion Government's hands, but that many places were establishing Post War Funds and that it was a very worth-while idea. According to the letter, conferences between the Federal and Provincial Governments will apparently be held in the near future, along this line.

A copy of the bylaw which the Province requires if a fund of this sort is set up was forwarded and if the village were to take any action in this respect, the bylaw permitting the establishment of such a fund would have to be sanctioned by the province.

All of this arose out of a request by the Rev. S. A. R. Wood for action by the village in regard to obtaining water works for the town. Further action wil be taken.

An invitation was received by the Association of the Assessing Officers of Ontario to a convention at Belleville, October 17, for all the surrounding counties, asking all council members and assessing officers to be in attendance. The Reeve, several of the council and the Assessor plan to be present.

Notification that wood dealers production subsidy requests must be in before December 31 brought the decision that the village will purchase no wood this year. Clerk Northey stated that they had broken even on the wood purchased last year and that all had been sold with only a few accounts to be settled.

Arthur Clayton requested a light at the end of Nelson street and the council will investigate the spot along with several other dark places in the village.

Grant $10

The sum of $10 was voted to the Local Ration Board to be used as a Petty Cash Account, the loan to be recoverable when the Board ceases to function.

A brief discussion was held regarding the appointment of a Building Inspector, chiefly with the aim of remedying the fire trap hazards and buildings on the verge of being condemned.

Chief Samis reported court cases, including one failing to stop at Stop street; one speeding; one drunk driving; one L.C.A. and the recovery of the bicycle belonging to Maryalice Renwick. No charges were laid in the latter case due to lack of evidence. Three bicycles were impounded for riding double and on the sidewalk. The Chief also stated all bicycles must be equipped with lights by October 23.

Court of Revision will be held Wednesday night, October 25, at eight o'clock, and the council will meet next on November 1.

In attendance were Reeve Gordon Scriver, Councillors George Charlton, George Graham and Reg. Doubt and Clerk E. H. Northey.

Accounts Paid

Accounts were passed as follows: Agricultural Society grant $50; Chief Samis salary $102.40; William Watson, part salary, $25; Council session allowance $45; John Hampton, labor, $17.46; Percy Hockaday, grading $10; Street labor $5.60; Smillie Beattie Guide, advertising $25; Bell Telephone Co., hall $3.80, police $1.96; Roland Coons, cutting 10 cords Hall wood $12.50; E. H. Northey, clerk's salary $50; Thomas Chaplin, stamps $6; Mrs. Martin, park wash $15.40; Theo. Crawford police trousers $10.50; Clarence Duff, insurance on park cabins, $10; W. J. Charlton, coal for hall, street cement $217.84; Percy Hockaday grading $4.00; Street labor, $25.90; Lewis Sale, hall lawn $?.45; Clayton Hutt, hall lawn $2.45; Repath Garage, grader $17.20; Hydro Electric, hall, streets $137.17; D. B Millar park blankets, cleaning $1.00; Chief Samis, car expenses for September $11.50; Coyle's Garage, grader repairs $11; Ontario Hospital $46; Fire Dept. payroll and phone $39; Stan Richardsan, gravel and cement $23.80; Total $936.83.

Hiawatha Church To Mark Anniversary

The congregation of Hiawatha United Church will celebrate its 74th anniversary on Sunday, October 15, at 11 a.m. The guest speaker will be Rev. M. C. Macdonald, B. A., B.D., Toronto, asociate secretary of the Board of Home Missions. This church, situated on the north shore of beautiful Rice Lake, was built in the year 1870. It was erected to replace the old log church which stood near to where the present edifice stands. The records show the names of ministers prior to 1870 were: Rev. Mr Jeffreys, Rev. A B. Chaddon, Rev. John Carroll, Rev. Mr. Madden, Rev. J. Williams, and Rev. J. Reynolds. There are no records preserved of the construction work on the church, but there are those living who can recall that Rev. R. Brooring superintended the building and furnished details for its construction.

On either side of the pulpit are two Honor Rolls, one 1914-1918, the other with the names of all who are serving in the present conflict. Sgt. Elmer Paudash was reported missing two years ago. Cpl. George Cowie has been invalided home because of injuries sustained while serving overseas. Jackie Cowie is seriously wounded in a hospital.

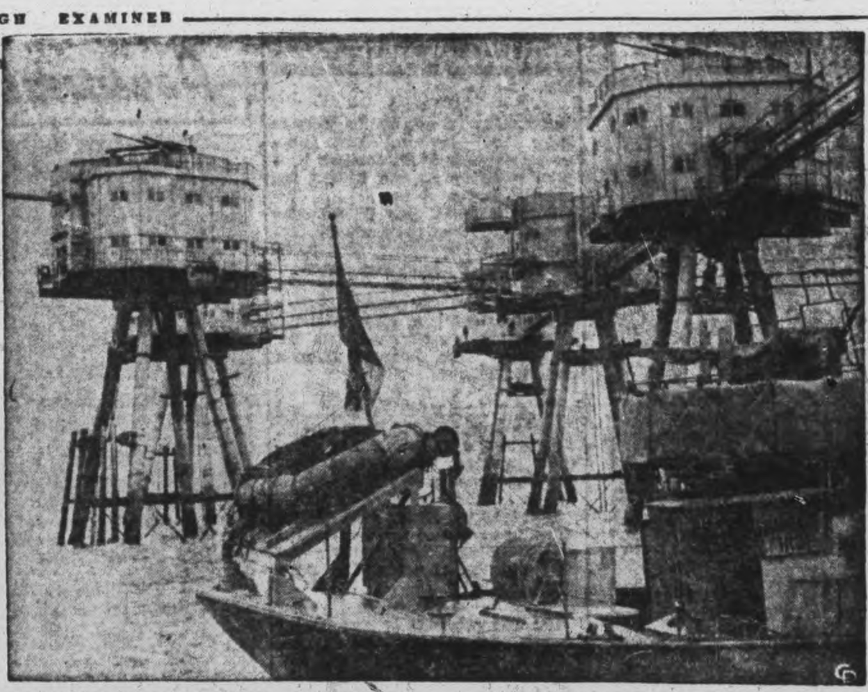
LONDON — (CP). — Since the war began London has had 1,141 air raid alerts, 407 caused by flying bombs.



BRITAIN'S FORTRESS ON STILTS GUARD HOME SHORES—Here are three of the "island fortresses" that have guarded British shores unsung during the hectic days when the war was on Britain's doorstep. It was revealed that such fortresses are guarding the Thames Estuary, they are manned by Royal Artillerymen and their functions include protection of east coast shipping. Note how the three are connected by catwalks. Each tower is heavily armed with anti-aircraft guns and machine-guns.

Germans Expect Raid On Narvik Hurry Defences

MONTREAL, Oct. 13 — (CP) — Nazis are feverishly building extensive defence works along the Swedish border in the Narvik area and one-third of the houses at Narvik have been vacated to accommodate retreating German troops from Finland, a Norwegian press attache release said here today, quoting reports from the Swedish border town of Kiruna.

Apparently fearing an Allied attack in the area which witnessed the furious battles of 1940, Germans have dug trenches, fortified positions for miles south of Narvik to the sea northwest of Bjoernefjell. Minebelts have been laid in all surrounding waters.

About 10,000 Nazi troops retreating from Finland were expected soon at Narvik where small trenches and fox holes were blasted out of the street or built.

November 11 Day IODE Tea Planned

Arrangements for the annual Remembrance Day tea, and sale, to be held November 11 in the Y.W.C.A., were completed at the regular meeting of the 57th Regiment Chapter I.O.D.E., Thursday afternoon. Plans were also made to attend the Remembrance Day seavice at the cenotaph.

Thirty-four visits to the hospital during the past month were reported by Mrs. J. Black. One hundred and fourteen knitted articles have been shipped overseas since the last meeting, and a total of 50 personal property bags have been sent to girls in the service overseas. It was also announced that the wedding outfit donated by three I.O.D.E. Chapters is ready to be sent to England. Mrs. A. W. Turner, regent of the Chapter, supervised the packing of 1,250 Christmas boxes for Army boys overseas, and 15 members of the Chapter were volunteers helping on the packing days.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, October 14

IT IS PROBABLE that the interest, funds and concentrated resources and energies will be devoted to the pursuit of pleasure, or to social, artistic, domestic and affectional affairs rather than to workaday objectives. In the latter there is need of caution in legal matters, in speculation as well as in any outlay of funds, even on business of personal extravagances. Popularity and prestige should be under auspices for success and happiness.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves enjoying a year in which the more pleasant and happier patterns of living engage their attention rather than prosaic or commonplace activities. The latter may have dangers through treachery, bad investments, extravagance or legal entanglements. Artistic, musical and literary ambitions are under encouraging rule, and there may be thrilling romantic, domestic or social pleasures and popularity.

A child born on this day may have many versatile creative skills and aspirations, enjoying more popularity and progress than financial returns.

Discuss Work In Cradle Roll

Mrs. K. Ferguson, Bethune street, was hostess for the thankoffering meeting of the Baby Band Mothers of Mark Street United Church. Mrs. H. Alton gave a talk on the place of Baby Band and Cradle Roll work in the church, and Mrs. H. Green, speaking on Christian Stewardship, said that as Christian stewards all should extend the kingdom of Christ in the community.

Others taking part in the program were Mrs. G. Newell for Christian citizenship, and Mrs. B. Harvey, who read, "Why Should All Christians Be Active." Mrs. G. Hopcroft spoke on stewardship, and Mrs. R. Hendren, pianist for the evening, read the "Romance of Stewardship." A musical interlude was presented by Miss Grace Newell who played a piano solo, and Jimmy Elliott, who played a violin solo.

Gifts for a bale to be sent to Hearst Hospital in the west, were received, and the treasurer reported $10 to the Presbytery treasurer. At the close of the meeting, the hostess served refrshments.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

With the cool fall nights at hand, we begin thinking of heavier meals. On a cool fall night, what is nicer than to go in to a piece warm house and a tasty supper. Some very tempting recipes for hot suppers are given below.

Apple Flapjacks

1 tablespoon shortening, 1 tablespoon sugar, 2 eggs, 1½ cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 cup apples chopped fine, cinnamon, milk.

Cream the shortening and sugar. Add the beaten eggs, the flour sifted with the baking powder and cinnamon, and the chopped apples. Then gradually add milk to make a medium batter. Bake on a griddle, as for ordinary pancakes, and serve in an overlapping row around a platter of pork chops or serve separately with roast pork, either hot or cold. Cooked apples or a dry apple sauce may be used with batter in the same way.

Northern Johnny Cake.

2 cups corn meal, 2 cups sour milk, 2 tablespoons shortening, 2 tablespoons sugar, either brown or white, 1½ teaspoons salt, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 tablespoon cold water.

Cook together the meat, milk, shortening, sugar and salt in a double boiler for about 20 minutes. Allow the mixture to cool, then add the well beaten eggs and the soda dissolved in the water. Bake in a shallow granite or iron pan for about half an hour at 400 degrees F. In case there is not time to cook and cool the meal, the following method of mixing may be used. Mix and sift together the corn meal, sugar, salt and soda. Add the sour milk gradually, then the well-beaten eggs and the melted fat. Bread made by this method does not have as good a texture as that made by the first method.

Dish Washing Irks Most Housewives

"Dishes! the bane of my existence," moans the housewife, as she surveys a stack of dirty plates, silverware, and pots, and pans, all that remains to show how hard she had worked preparing the meal. For some reason or other, just the thought of washing dishes takes the pleasure out of eating for some people, since they are worrying about washing the plate they are dirtying. However, this is generally not the case, but most women admit they find dishes the most tiring of their household tasks.

Granted, doing dishes is tedious sometimes. However, there is really no need for it to become a worry. If the homemaker finds the job too heavy, she should enlist the help of everyone in the house. It's a simple task for each member of the family to gather up his dishes and take them to the kitchen, and scrape and stack them, but it saves approximately one-half of the time it takes to do dishes. Relieving mother of the task of clearing the table, piling the plates ready for washing would certainly be anybody's good deed for the day, every day.

Pots and pans are always difficult to clean, but if the housewife prefers, she can do them first, and get them out of the way before tackling the remainde of the dishes. Try it, and see if reversing the procedure help to relieve that tiredness.

Hot, soapy water—but not too soapy—which makes grease disappear like magic, is a prime prerequisite for quick, sure washing. If hot water tends to redden and roughen hands, use a dish mop and protect them. As for drying, a rinse of clear hot water poured over plates and silverware makes them easy to dry, and gives a gloss, while crystal shines when dried after a dip in clear hot water. If the hot rinse is poured over the dishes, the need for a draining pan is eliminated, saving on space. Don't try to use a dish-towel too long; change it often so that it's always dry.

Another, often unrecognized, cause of worry and fatigue doing dishes, is insufficient light. In most new homes, designers have placed the sink conveniently under a window, but in older houses it is more often placed in a corner, or a dark end of the kitchen. If this is the case, get a lamp, a little wall lamp will do; put a good bright bulb in it; install it over the sink; and see the difference it makes! The job will seem twice as easy, since the unconscious strain will be relieved.

Negress Claims Baby Not Kidnapped

DETROIT, Oct. 13 — (AP). — Mrs. Eleanor Smith, 33-year-old negro nursemaid held in connection with the kidnapping of four-month-old Bobby King, denied yesterday that she made what Prosecutor William E. Dowling said was a "full confession" and insisted that the baby belonged to her.

Dowling said that to-day he would recommend a warrant charging Mrs. Smith with kidnapping and that a psychiatric examination of the woman would be sought as soon as the warrant was issued.

"I never said I took the King baby, and I didn't take him," she told reporters "The baby they took away and gave to the Kings is my own son."

The blue-eyed infant, taken from the Clarence King home the night of September 30 by a maid who gave her name as "Helen Rosman," has been identified by the Kings as their child. They also identified Mrs. Smith as the maid they had hired a week prior to the baby's disappearance.

The light-complexioned negress, who has refused to take food since her arrest on Wednesday, continued to maintain that she gave birth to the baby prematurely in Wesley Memorial Hospital at Chicago. The police said the hospital has no record of such a birth.

Withdraw Troops

LONDON, Oct. 13.—(CP).— The Moscow radio said to-day that withdrawal of Bulgarian troops and administrative officials from Greek territory, begun Oct. 10, has been completed in compliance with Allied demands preliminary to armistice negotiations.

There was no specific mention of evacuation of Yugoslav territory—another Allied stipulation.

Clayton Daniels Prisoner Of War

COE HILL, Oct. 13—(ENS)—Welcome news was received Thursday that L.-Cpl. Clayton Daniels, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Daniel, Coe Hill, was a prisoner of war at Dela Pitie Hospital, Paris, France, and for official purposes is presumed to have been taken back to Germany. Cpl. Daniels was previously reported missing in action on July 28.

Mrs. Daniels also received a letter from her son, written from a prison hospital in Paris, France, where he said he was a patient, on the second day of August, from which this letter was date. Cpl. Daniels said he was well and for her not to worry. They had enough to eat, and the only things he missed were strawberries and cream. He wished to be remembered to all his friends.

St. Andrew's WMA Will Not Pack Bale

MILLBROOK, Oct. 13—(ENS)—The Misses Augusta and Gertrude Clarry of New York city, who are at present at the family homestead, Park Roadway, and their sister, Mrs. H. A. Turner, were hostesses for the October meeting of the W.M.A. of St. Andrew's Church, Wednesday afternoon.

The theme for the year is "Advance" and the October section, "Our church women as citizens," gave the key-note for the devotional period. Miss M. E. Hetherington taking the story of "Martha," as told by Bishop Renison, for the scripture lesson. Miss Estella Hetherington offered prayer.

All W.M.S. members are asked to add 15 cents to every dollar usually given, and $7.54 had been received at the September meeting. The president announced that no bales will be packed in the Presbytery this fall, but presumably this will be a spring activitity as in former years. Miss Ethel Hatherly, Missionary Monthly secretary, read a letter urging all subsriptions to be in by the middle of November, and Mrs. F. J. Smith gave the Christian Stewardship message. The thankoffering will again be received at the November gathering, in charge of Miss Mary Widdis' group.

The new study book, "West of the Date Line" which was introduced last month by Mrs. Sisco, was continued with the second chapter, "The Church in the South Pacific," being covered by Mrs. Edmund Ball.

DOROTHY DIX . . . .

HONEYMOON ABUSE BODES ILL
One Trembles to Think What Will Come When Groom Beats Up Wife So Soon.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX — Six weeks ago I married a man with whom I was very much in love, and he took me to live with his parents. From the very first his mother treated me very cruelly. She found fault with everything I did and criticized me to my husband. This made him so mad with me that he struck me across the face twice, so I packed my things immediately and went back to Mother.

Now before I married this man I had been going with a very dear boy here at home. When I told him how badly I had been treated, he begged me to get a divorce and marry him. But my husband keeps insisting on my coming back to him. What do you thing I should do?

MRS. E. B.

ANSWER—I cannot take the responsibility of advising any wife about whether to divorce her husband or not. All I can say is that I think that a bride whose husband beats her up and curses her during the first weeks of their marriage must be a glutton for punishment if she goes back to him, with the practical certainty that that is the kind of treatment that she will receive the balance of her life.

Only worse, because during the honeymoon the bridegroom is on his good behavior and putting his best foot foremost, and what he will do and say to a wife when he lets himself go, one trembles to contemplate. He will probably make Bluebeard look like a chivalrous gentleman.

Your Number Two seems a good prospect. But why hurry to put your head in the noose again? Take time to think it over.

DEAR MISS DIX—I feel that I have solved two of the greatest problems of life. (a) How to get the right mate. (b) How to stay happy though married. I feel that I should give them to humanity, so here goes:

I am a married man of 20 odd years. In the main my life has been one great and continuous romance, NOT WITH MY WIFE, but WITH IDEALS, most of whom I have never seen in the flesh and with none of whom I have ever spoken. But, no matter how far my thoughts strayed from the conjugal path, I have always kept things on a strictly mental plane. My current torch might be a movie star, or a Powers model, or a glamour girl, but my wife has always been the one who gets the little gifts and attentions of a man who was head-over-heels in love.

This has kept her very happy, and for over 20 years I have managed to keep her from finding out what a theoretical, two-timing, double-crosser her husband really is. There is no reason why this method could not work in reverse. If more men and women would practice it, it would add to the happiness of an unhappy world.

ANSWER—It is a grand theory, and would certainly put a crimp in divorce if more men and women would confine their philandering to having make-believe love affairs, instead of real ones. But perhaps they do. Don't you think that the great appeal of the cinema is that it enables plain, prosaic people, who have plain, prosaic mates and who lead plain, prosaic lives, to step for an hour or so into a world of romance in which they are Clark Gables and Hedy Lamarrs who make passionate love to beautiful women, and are thrilled by the kisses of romantic lovers?

DEAR MISS DIX—I am 52 years old. My first husband passed away about eight years ago and within two years I married a man twenty years my junior. He is now in the Navy and I find myself in love with another man of 25. What must I do?

ELAINE.

ANSWER—Well, I think that any woman who makes a habit of falling in love with boys young enough to be her sons needs the mercy of God, for there is plenty of trouble ahead for her. You must have plenty of money. Have you ever known a man to marry a woman old enough to be his mother for anything except her money? Have you ever known the marriage of an old woman and a boy to turn out happily? Did you ever see an old woman trying to keep up with a young husband who wasn't a figure of fun?

How, then, can you ask what should you do, when you know the answer is that you should be your age and be done with all such foolishness as having love affairs with kids.

$400 Presented To Establish YMCA Alumni

Presentation of a cheque for $400 by Dr. Horace E. Ayers, of New York City, to John R. Marshall, president of the Peterborough Young Men's Christian Association, to aid in the establishment of a city Y.M.C.A. Alumni Association, was the featured highlight of the dinner and celebration commemorating the Y.M.C.A.'s hundredth birthday, held in the "Y" Building Thursday evening.

Dr. Ayers was physical director of the local Y.M.C.A. in 1902, but has since been connected with similar work in New York, and also with his medical profession.

Jackie Meikle, recently General Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. in London, was the guest speaker, and he unfolded a story of life in the British Isles in wartime for the members and guests. Holding the highest praise for the various service clubs and organizations doing work overseas, from where he recently returned, he said that if it was not for these clubs, he is not sure that there would be the same kind of fighting man in the field as we have today.

Mr. Meikle, who was overseas just before the buzz-bombing began as an official of the Auxiliary War Services, urged that more be done for servicemen overseas, and outlined some of the articles the boys like most to receive. Topping all others, he stated, is mail. He appealed to every person in the Y.M.C.A. room, to not let another night go by without writing some soldier overseas. Snapshots of friends, magazines and cigarettes are other articles that are always welcomed by men overseas.

Peace Move Difficult

Mr. Meikle spoke of the shrinking, changing world of today. The task, he emphasized, of winning the peace, is going to be many many times more difficult than winning the actual war. Our neighbours in the future, he said, will be Russia, China, and every other world nation. People, he said, must be more tolerant, and practice co-operation, instead of competition. And co-operation, the guest speaker reminded the audience, does not mean an act which will help only the one giving it!

A sketch of the meanings and hopes of the Y.M.C.A. was given by this "Y" worker. He informed the members present that the famed triangular room in which the association had had its beginnings one hundred years ago, was completely demolished in the air blitz on London, in 1940. Earlier in the evening, Dr. Ayers had urged everyone who has the opportunity to visit England, to visit this famed room. It is an inspiration in fellowship to any person, and news of its destruction came as a shock to many.

Mr. Meikle told of the night before he left England, how to went to visit this room, situated across the way from St. Paul's Cathedral, only to find it utterly wrecked, and now being used as a storing place for fire engines and equipment. Wishing to receive some inspiration despite the fact the room was gone, he asked the caretaker of the Cathedral if he might stand before the burial place of Sir George Williams, founder of the association. The caretaker granted the request, and Mr. Meikle said he received a real thrill from the moment beside Sir William's resting place.

"I challenge the young men of this organization to go forth and build more of those rooms", he said. "Be prepared to go out from this meeting, to carry on and extend the work and principles of the Y.M.C.A."

Done Good Job

In a brief address, previous to the donation of the cheque, Dr. Ayers told the members that today, 41 years after he left this city, the "Y" looks safer, and more secure, by reason the boys whom he knew then, now men, still have the reins in their hands.

Dr. Ayers related several incidents of late that have reminded him of Peterborough, and in a witty account, explained how Peterborough would always stay in his mind. He told members of the Y.M.C.A. he is convinced the organization will stand forever, and urged more emphasis on physical fitness. As an explanation of the generous donation, he passed it off with, "This is just to make sure no one else starts the association first". To the accompaniment of loud applause and laughter, Dr. Ayers explained the $400 amount as being $10 for each year, for the past forty years he has been away.

Ross Dobbin revealed some interesting facts about the first 30 years of the Peterborough "Y"'s existence, when he read from a record book, the minutes of some of the early meetings. George H. Roper, general secretary, Peterborough Y.M.C.A., introduced Mr. Meikle, and Dr. Ayers was introduced by William D. Campbell.

George A. Gillespie thanked the speakers on behalf of the Y.M.C.A., and said the talks heard at the centennial dinner brought a message that "will strengthen belief in the "Y".

150,000 Miners Ready To Quit

BARNSLEY, Yorkshire, England, Oct. 13 — (CP). — Maj. Gwylim Lloyd George, Fuel Minister, and Ernest Bevin, Labor Minister, are expected to intervene in the current Yorkshire coal mine dispute which means the loss of an estimated 800,000 tons weekly if 150,000 men and boys carry out their threat to quit work Nov. 4.

The dispute in this Yorkshire field—the largest in Britain — hinges on a demand for extra pay for working week-end shifts.

Notice of the strike within three weeks unless mine owners agree to the miners' ultimatum reached Maj. Lloyd George while he was discussing falling production with mine owners' representatives and urging efforts to reduce absenteeism.

A nine-day strike of 1,700 Barnborough, Yorkshire, miners based on the same dispute ended Thursday at the request of the Yorkshire Mine Workers Association Council meeting here. At that meeting delegates favored an immediate strike throughout Yorkshire but were persuaded by President Joe Hall to delay the move, pending further negotiations with the owners.

Meanwhile union leaders in the Scottish coal-fields say they are being defied by "rebel elements" in their branches, and added:

"We are rarely told what is happening or what it is all about."

They say the trouble in Scotland is caused by a small minority.

Mrs. Joseph Gallagher Is Hostess To WMS

COTTESLOE, Oct. 13—(ENS).—The October meeting of the W.M.S. was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Joseph Gallagher, with a good attendance. The theme "The law of the Kingdom: Love thy neighbor" was followed with Scripture reading by Mrs. Kidd, questions and answers by two members, and readings by Mrs. McDonald and Isobel Gallagher. The study book was given by Mrs. Forsyth, followed by all taking part in "A very ocean of love." Mrs. John Gallagher sang "The little lost sheep," and the meeting closed with prayer. Plans were made for the next meeting at the home of Mrs. Toms. The thankoffering service will be held on Sunday, October 29, with Rev. J. W. Wilkinson of Havelock the preacher. Mrs. Forsyth presented the society with all the material for starting a Mission Band, and a discussion followed. As yet no superintendent has been secured.

R. Birks and Mrs. R. A. Lockhart of Toronto, and Mrs. Robert Abbott, Peterborough, sister of Edmund Taylor of Toronto, in her 81st year. Funeral service will be held on Saturday, October 14 at 2.30 p.m., at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Robert Abbott, 754 Water St. Interment in Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. Dr. E. W. Young officiating.

IN MEMORIAM

FERGUSON—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Donald Ferguson, who passed away eight years ago to-day, Oct. 13, 1936.

When the Lord said, "You have finished,
Come up higher, father dear,
You have won a crown in Heaven
By your love and kindness here."
We remember well our sorrow,
As we stood beside your bed.
Our deep and heartfelt anguish
When we saw that you were dead.
We miss your kind and willing hand,
Your fond and earnest care;
Our home is dark without you dad,
We miss you everywhere.
—Sadly missed by his loving wife and family.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. H. O'Neil and family, wish to thank the many friends and neighbors for their kindness, also the many lovely floral tributes and the loan of cars, during the recent bereavement.

"QUIT OR DIE"—AACHEN ULTIMATUM — This map provides a close-up glance at the perilous plight of the German forces trapped in Aachen, Germany. U.S. First Army troops have sealed off the Siegfried Line city and, after an ultimatum of "surrender or die" have begun to draw the noose tighter. At the same time Lieut.-Gen. Hodges' men were starting to build a 25-mile front inside the Reich for a break through toward the Rhine.

OBITUARIES

MISS SARAH HALL

Following a prolonged illness, a lifetime resident of Peterborough, Miss Sarah Hall, 187 Rubidge street, died Thursday in her 77th year. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hall, and was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

The funeral will be held Saturday at 3:30 p.m. from the A. Comstock & Sons Funeral Home, 305 Water street. Rev. W. J. Newton of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, will officiate and interment will be in Little Lake Cemetery.

MRS. KATE TAYLOR ROBERTSON

Mrs. Kate Taylor Robertson died on Thursday, October 12, at 12.45 p.m. at Nicholls Hospital in her 81st year, after a short illness. She was the daughter of Thomas Taylor who with his brothers, John and George, founded the Don Paper Mills in Toronto. These paper mills were among the first to be operated in the province.

The Taylor family at one time held thousands of acres of land in York county, and owned large holdings along the Don River. Members of the family made the first shipment of beef cattle from Canada to England. They were also co-founders of the Bank of Commerce and were part owners of the old Toronto Globe.

Mrs. Robertson was born in Todmorden, near Toronto, and was one of a family of thirteen children, eight boys and five girls. She was educated at Mrs. Neville's school, Rolleston House, was married to the late Dr. Alexander J. Robertson, and came to Peterborough to live about thirty-five years ago. She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. R. M. Birks and Mrs. R. A. Lockhart, both of Toronto, and Mrs. Robert Abbott, Peterborough; and also by one brother, Edmund Taylor of Toronto.

Mrs. Robetrson was a devout churchwoman, and was a member of St. Andrew's United Church. The funeral service will take place at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Robert Abbott, 754 Water street, at 2.30 p.m. Saturday. Interment will be at Little Lake cemetery.

GARDEN BECOMES PARK

ODIHAM, England — (CP). — Miss Hilda Chamberlain, sister of the late prime minister, has offered part of her garden in this Hampshire town to the parish council for a public park and has offered money for a sports centre.

long before the pro hockey season will be starting along about Thanksgiving Day....Jim Colman says a lot when he warns the squabbling senior lacrosse clubs that "in these days when the hopes of the world are centred on matters of life and death no one really gives a damn what happens to a piffling lacrosse series"....York Brass girls are still in the running for the Sunnyside intermediate championship....They beat Simpsons 8 to 6 last night and tied up the series with Marg Schram, Mary Lawrence and Lill Goff each got two hits for the winners.

TIME TO MISTRUST THEM

WHEN YOU are vulnerable and your opponents are not, it is well to be on your guard against unorthodox practices by them. This is especially true if the first of them with a chance to bid had passed, and his partner later took some kind of positive action. Beware of that fellow. Don't place too much credence in what he said, if you can see how he might have gained through having a different kind of holding from what was betokened by his action.

West, perhaps to confuse the issue, did not make the standard K lead from his club honor combination, but the 8. South won that with the 9, scored the diamond K and A, and then decided to work on the spades. From the double, he felt sure West would have the Q, with probably two or three others of the suit. So he led the spade J, finessing when it was not covered. East won with the Q and returned his remaining club, four tricks there setting South.

All that South had to do to make his contract was play the spades the other way, finessing against East for the Q. That would have resulted in four spade tricks, four in diamonds, one in clubs and one in hearts, or his contract plus an extra trick.

But, if anybody asks what you would have done in the South, your best answer may be like that of the medical student who was told about a man with his carotid artery and jugular vein severed. "In such a case, what would you do?" asked the professor, and the student replied: "I'd die, too."

236 Children Examined by Dr. Nylks, School MOH

Dr. L. E. Mylks, the new medical officer of the Peterborough Board of Education made his first report to the Board on Thursday night. For the month of September, Dr. Mylks reported 236 complete physical examinations. The examinations now being done are much more complete than were every attempted in the schools of the city. The parents of 131 of the children were present when the examination was made. It was found that 57 children showed defects and these were classified as vision 10, eye 10, ear 5, malnultrition 1, heart 6 and tonsils 25. Eight children are under special observation and special examinations were given three.

Dr. Mylks also reported that the nurses did 2,089 classroom inspections, 57 children were excluded for various causes, 121 minor accidents and dressings were made, 163 were given the vision test and 188 home visits made.

Dental Report.

Dr. S. J. Graham, dental officer, reported completion of the survey at Queen Alexandra and King George schools and the survey underway at Central school. At the Queen Alexandra school 366 pupils were examined and it was found that 58.2 per cent needed treatment. One hundred and sixty pupils were found to require no dental work and there were 284 permanent cavities and 260 deciduous cavities. At the King George school 436 pupils were examined and 64.5 per cent required treatment with 155 needing no dental work. In permanent teeth 390 cavities were found and 432 in deciduous teeth.

Of the 239 pupils who wassed the entrance examinations in June 218 are at Collegiate, 5 left the city, 6 received employment certificates, 3 were granted home permits, 5 past 16 years of age had left school, one was given home instruction and one was attending a private secondary school. Inspector K. S. Wightman in commenting on the report said that with the exception of approximately six per cent all are continuing their schooling and this is a much better condition than existed last year.

Inspector Wightman also reported that six children were receiving home instruction and this occupies all the afternoon periods and three morning periods for the home instruction teacher. The remainder of the teacher's time is being spent in coaching backward pupils.

The attendance in the public schools was reported as 3,482 and the average attendance 3,276 or 94.63 per cent. The attendance is broken up as follows 516 at Central, 477 at King Edward, 447 at King George, 680 at Prince of Wales, 374 at Queen Alexandra, 503 at Queen Mary, 80 at Park Hill, 223 at Confederation and 182 at May's.

War Saving Stamps to the value of $802.25 were sold during month.

Nail In Chicken

STOUFFVILLE, Oct. 13—(CP).—Workmen plucking chickens on a nearby poultry farm were mystified when they found a two-inch wire nail embedded in the abdomen of a four-pound White Leghorn. The bird had been on the range for 4 months, and no one knows how it picked up the nail.

Red Cross Salvage Drive Nets $23.20 At Havelock

HAVELOCK, Oct. 13 — (ENS) — At the regular meeting of the Havelock-Belmont Red Cross Society, the remittance was received for the second curb salvage collection amounting to $23.20 and the treasurer was authorized to issue a cheque to the local Eastern Star Patriotic Association for half of this amount $11.60.

It was decided to serve tea at the next regular meeting on October 17, when Mrs. H. Roy of the Peterborough branch will be present to address the meeting in the interests of blood donor work.

The president requested members to assist in every way possible to make the salvage collection on Tuesday next, Oct. 17, a success.

A communication was received from the superintendent of Field Nurses of the Ontario Division Canadian Red Cross stating that the distribution of Cod Liver Oil to underprivileged and undernourished children has been a regular service of Red Cross Branches for many years and that a special preparation of Cod Liver Oil, of high concentration can be obtained through the divisional office.

A communication was also received from the commissioner of the Ontario Division authorizing the expenditure of branch funds for the supplying of immediate clothing requirements and for the care and maintenance of Canadian Repatriates arriving in Canada from the port of arrival to their point of destination and therefrom if necessary for a period not exceeding two weeks when the Immigration Branch will take over. The following account was authorized paid—Havelock Standard, dodgers for Salvage Drive October 17, $3.35.

A Free Airport

DUBLIN, Oct. 13—(CP).—The Eire Government is planning to make the Shannon airport at Rinneanna the first free port for air transport in the world as soon as wartime travel restrictions are relaxed, it was learned last night. In transit passengers, baggage and merchandise will be allowed to enter and leave without customs and immigration inspection.

Port Of Riga Captured By Russians

2 Powerful Armies Swing South Against Prussia

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Oct. 14 (AP) — Two powerful Red Armies were released today for a thrust southward against East Prussia by fall of Riga, Latvian capital and last city held by the Germans in the Baltic Republics.

Capture of the Baltic port was announced last night by Marshal Stalin. A city of 385,000, it fell to the troops of Gen. Andrei Yerenenko's 2nd Baltic Army and those of Gen. Ivan Caslennikov's Third Baltic Army.

Several distinguished visitors to Moscow heard the victory salute of 24 salvoes from 324 of the capital's guns—Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Britain, Field Marshal Sir Alan Francis Brooke, chief of the British Imperial Staff, and Premier Stanislaw Mikolajszyk of the Polish government in London.

(Although the Russian communique said nothing of a direct attack on German soil in East Prussia, Berlin reported massed Soviet tank assaults on the East Prussian garrison at the Port of Memel and a large-scale Red Army attack across the Narew river in Northern Poland on the lower side of East Prussia.)

While the Riga battle was in progress, the Germans attempted an amphibious blow at Palanga, on the Baltic coast in Western Lituania 14 miles north of Memel, but the Russian communique said Red Army planes and artillerymen sank four of 24 barges in which the enemy approached. The communique said hundreds of Germans were killed or drowned.

To Relieve Divisions

This appeared to be a German attempt to relieve between 10 and 15 Nazi divisions cut off in Western Latvia last Tuesday when the Russians drove a wedge to the Sea just north of Memel.

Meanwhile in Yugoslavia Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2nd Ukraine Army was almost a third of the way across that country in a drive south of Belgrade toward the Adriatic. Deduluzje, 28 miles south of Belgrade, was captured.

(A communique from Marshal Tito said his Partisan forces, now linked with the Russians, had "penetrated to the walls" of Belgrade).

Germans Yield Little Ground

By ROGER GREENE,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

WITH THE BRITISH 2ND ARMY ON THE MAAS RIVER FRONT, Oct. 14 —(AP) — Enemy troops, battling with wild and savage fanaticism to defend the doorstep to Germany, grudgingly yielded more ground southwest of the Dutch town of Overloon to-day.

The progress of British troops was slowed, however by thickly-planted mines and by the soggy terrain which greately impeded tank echelons.

After a night of sharp clashes the vanguards of Lt.-Gen. Dempsey's forces still were little more than one mile beyond Overloon.

This is grim, embittered fighting with every foot of ground hotly contested as the Germans struggles with suicidal fury to guard the last few miles before the Maas. The enemy is paying a heavy price in killed and wounded— cut down by Tommies with bayonets in the silt trenches.

While the main action centred on the Maas front the Germans threw in a determined counter-attack on the west flank of Dempsey's salient in Holland near Schijndel, southeast of 'S Hertogenbosch. The enemy thrust made but slight headway in its initial phase and was soon stopped.

A Hungry Man

HUNTSVILLE, Oct. 14 — (CP).—Police Chief Asgierson vouches for this one: A hungry prisoner removed the bars from the jail window, jumped out, had a meal at a restaurant and returned to jail. When his jail dinner was brought to him later he is said to have devoured it too. His name has not been divulged—but he's not been punished for his escapade.

Major Battle Flames In North Italy

By LYNN HEINZERLING
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, Oct. 14 (AP)—Allied troops supported by low-flying fighters and fighter - bombers hammered out small gains in furious fighting yesterday against a fanatical German defence of the Po valley.

Headquarters announced that Allied 5th Army troops seized some new hills in the central sector south of Bologna, while British 8th Army forces to the east pushed the Germans back along the entire battle line except in the Adriatic coastal sector.

Canadian troops reached the Scolo Rigossa Canal in the area adjacent to the highway, headquarters said. They pushed back strong enemy rearguards and reached a point within 17 miles of Forli.

Eighth Army troops also captured Casale, about two miles southwest of Montiano, the Allied communique said.

American troops fought their way up Hill 462, about nine miles southwest of Castel San Pietro, on the Bologna-Rimini highway. Farther west, Poggioli, about half a mile north of Monterenzio, was taken.

Along Highway 65 — main road north to Bologna from Florence— there was intense fighting as American units seized some high ground east of the road. The Germans fanatically defended a hill north of Lixergnano.

West of the highway American units pushed forward about two miles and captured Monte Bombiana.

Strong forces of escorted bombers yesterday struck at railway yards in Italy, Austria and Hungary and a synthetic oil refinery in Germany.

As the M.A.A.F. stepped up its day's activities to 2,500 sorties, 36 heavy bombers and 12 other aircraft were lost. Two enemy craft were shot down.

Bonds Boost Soldier Morale

TORONTO, Oct. 14 —(CP) — In 1940, when things looked darkest for the Allies, Churchill and his military staff were optimistically planning the invasion of Europe that did not take place until four years later, Maj.-Gen. Hugh Young, D. S. O., told the opening Victory Loan rally dinner here last night.

General Young, just returned from overseas after five years, paid tribute to the job done by Canadians in supporting the six previous loans.

"It boosted the morale of the Canadians preparing for the great D-Day operations, to see the material they were to use, made by Canadians and bought by Canadians," he said. "Canadian equipment was good and supplies came up marvellously well. That's the way we have to keep it."

Toronto's quota for the seventh Victory Loan was announced at $260,000,000—one-fifth of the total asked— it was announced by T. D'Arcy Leonard, Ontario chairman of the Victory Loan committee.

Murder Follows Beer Bout

9-Year-Old Son Finds Mother Dead

TORONTO, Oct. 14 (CP)—Stanislaw Augustyn, 42, a carpenter, was arrested here last night charged with the murder of Mrs. Nellie Casovan, 38, wife of a local foundry worker, who was found slashed to death by a sheaf knife in her Grange avenue home in downtown Toronto.

Her body was found by her nine-year-old son, Raymond, lying in a pool of blood on a bed in a room between the kitchen and living room. Augustyn was taken into custody in a nearby rooming house less than an hour afterward.

A struggle apparently had taken place in three rooms on the ground floor, police said, after an argument developed during the drinking of beer.

The son found the doors of his home locked and broke a kitchen window to climb in. His screams when he found his mother's body awakened a roomer who notified police. The father, William Casovan, came home from work after police arrived.

Police said they found a blood-stained suit in a clothes closet of Augustyn's room and a nine-inch knive on the bed. They said the telephone wires had been cut in the Casovan home and the doors were locked. Two gas jets of the kitchen stove were turned on. They added they believed the woman had been dead for some time before the body was discovered.

Corfu Island Surrenders To The British

Albanian Troops Report Steady Progress

ROME, Oct. 14 (AP) — Allied troops have captured the fertile Greek island of Corfu in the Ionian Sea after the German garrison of only 60 men surrendered without firing a shot, it was announced today.

At the same time Albanian Partisans on the mainland occupied Delvino, an inland road centre north of the Port of Sarande (Porto Edda) which previously was captured.

The fall of Corfu, Sarande and Delvino eliminated both the Albanian coastal road and coastal waters as avenues of German escape northward from Greece. The comparatively light opposition encountered in the area indicated the enemy no longer attached high value to these routes.

38 Miles Long

Earlier it had been reported the Germans had garrisoned Corfu with a regiment of troops. The island is approximately 38 miles long with a width varying from three to 20 miles. It has an area of 275 square miles and a population of 106,000.

Allied headquarters announced that at Sarande delayed action explosives left by the Germans blew up the centre of the town but there were no casualties.

Prior to the Allied landing, R.A.F. planes dropped leaflets urging surrender, and shortly afterward white crosses and flags began to blossom from the island.

The capture of Sarande, which the enemy had been using as a supply base, cut off the German garrison on Corfu.

Allied Headquarters once again was silent on the contending operations of British land forces and Partisans on the Greek mainland. The light column which marched across the Peloponnesus from Patras last was reported at Corinth.

There still was no official confirmation of yesterday's reports that the Germans had evacuated Athens and that the Greek flag was flying from the Acropolis.

Cruiser in Battle.

The bombardment of the Island of Aigina just off Athens in the Gulf of Saronikos October 12 by the British light cruiser Colombo was announced. The cruiser shelled an enemy battery on the island, but there was nothing to indicate whether the Germans still were manning defences there.

The communique announced that "the few remaining German troops" on Corfu surrendered but failed to specify the number found on the island. Earlier the enemy was reported to have garrisoned the island with a regiment of troops well supplied with coastal defence guns.

The capture of Corfu, Sarande and Delinvo eliminated both the Albanian coastal road and coastal waters as avenues of escape northward for the enemy, but the comparatively light opposition that has been encountered in that area indicated that the Germans no longer attached high value to them.

Proclamations by the Greek government, Gen. Wilson, Allied commander in the Mediterranean, and Lt.-Gen. Scobien, commander of the British troops which this week swept into Corinth, made it plain an Allied force was about to be landed to supplement the small units already ashore.

Proposed Bill Has Wide Powers

REGINA, Oct. 14—(CP).—The Regina Leader-Post said in a news-page story today that seizure of any premises of an employer if he persists in disobeying orders is one of the powers to be given the Saskatchewan Labor Relations Board in the proposed Saskatchewan Trade Union Act of the C.C.F. government.

The Leader-Post said it learned the bill will give the government power to appoint a controller to take over and operate until such time as the employer obeys the board's orders.

Premier T. C. Douglas denied the Trade Union Act contained such a provision when questioned today. He added he had no intimate knowledge of the proposed bill.

Labor Minister C. C. Williams, who will sponsor the bill when it is presented to the Legislature at the session which opens next Thursday, declined to make any comment.

However, he did not know what was in the parcels.

Formosa Raid Cuts Off Jap Supplies

PEARL HARBOR, Oct. 14.(AP).—Japan's army of 150,000 in the Philippines, harassed by guerillas, was believed cut off from its main source of reinforcement at bomb-ravaged Formosa which B-29's blasted to-day after two days of carrier plane attacks.

Vern Haugland, Associated Press war correspondent, said that view was taken here of official reports showing upwards of 1,000 U.S. carrier aircraft sank or damaged 63 ships, wiped out 396 planes and ripped Formosa's railway system in giant raids Wednesday and Thursday within 100 miles of the China coast.

Tokyo radio, while telling Japan of the raids, claimed six carriers and four warships were sunk, but Admiral Nimitz said last night the Japanese air force failed to damage the fleet units in their Wednesday night torpedo and bombing attack.

Pearl Harbor correspondents were permitted to speculate that the marauding carrier force, which in four days accounted for 140 ships, 87 smaller craft and from 525 to 530 planes at Formosa, the Ryukyus and the Philippines, still may be in action against Japan's inner defence arc.

Invasion Seen.

The newly-announced raid of Superfortresses on Formosa substantiated Tokyo radio's expressed fears that the base was in for attack by land and sea.

Not a Japanese plane took to the skies from Manila's many airdromes on Tuesday to oppose carrier planes which erased 10 to 15 grounded enemy aircraft on Luzon, the Navy disclosed last night.

Tokyo radio, quoting naval and diplomatic officials, told the Japanese that "American guerillas" are disrupting communications in the Philippines and that fuel and commodity shortages have arisen due to shipping difficulties.

Of the hundreds of American planes which swept over Formosa, 45 were shot down, Nimitz said, in-

Grim Battle For Aachen Intrigues Allied Nations

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Few battles for cities in this war have so intrigued the peoples of the western Allies as that for ancient Aachen, probably because they hope that from it they can learn the strength of Germany's determination and the extent of her ability to make a finish fight.

It's likely that this grim battle will indeed give us a fairly accurate answer to the problem — which is both military and psychological. Already it is clear that Hitler intends to make this a test case, as witness the manner in which he has flung crack armored troops into the conflict at the approaches to the town. Thus we have further confirmation that he is determined to hang on to the death, and still is capable of causing plenty of trouble.

On the other side of the ledger is proof that not all German soldiers or civilians are willing to die for him. His officers in Aachen have been shooting both civilians and soldiers who tried to surrender. However, that's not conclusive, and further evidence is needed to enable us to guage the dictor's control over his people.

Berlin Brags

Berlin brags that the Nazi commander who rejected the American ultimatum to surrender replied: "Even an American cannot ask a city like Aachen, where 37 German emperors were crowned, to surrender."

He would have been more accurate if he had said: "Germany cannot afford to surrender a famous old city like Aachen — the first important city to be attacked by land forces in the Fatherland proper since the days of Napoleon." Loss of Aachen will be a tremendous shock to German morale — so great that Hitler dare not risk it if he possibly can hang on. If by hook or by crook he could build out of it an epic German resistance, it would strengthen morale.

By the same token, the Allies need Aachen for the psychological effect on the Germans. But that's only half the story. Militarily this city is of great importance to both sides. For the Allies it's the gateway in the corridor leading from Belgium into Germany—a vital railway and highway centre. For the Germans it's a powerful defensive anchor in their Siegfried Line.

Premier King Announces Four Changes

Brooke Claxton Named First Health-Welfare Head

By JACK WILLIAMS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Oct. 14.—(CP).—Prime Minister Mackenzie King last night announced a cabinet expansion and re-organization designed to meet post-war needs.

Under this plan Munitions Minister Howe takes over the new post of Reconstruction Minister while still retaining his present portfolio. Pensions Minister Mackenzie heads the newly created pensions department and Hon. Brooke Claxton, Liberal member for the Montreal constituency of St. Lawrence-St. George, becomes Canada's first Minister of Health and Welfare. Mr. Claxton has been parliamentary assistant to the Prime Minister.

As part of the reconstruction program Dean C. J. Mackenzie, Acting President of the National Research Council, has been confirmed as head of that body and the resignation of Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton accepted. The Council will in future be under the Reconstruction Department instead of the Trade Department.

Coal Inquiry.

Mr. King also disclosed personnel has been selected for a Royal Commission to inquire into the Canadian coal industry as one phase of reconstruction.

The appointments were announced by Mr. King at a hurriedly-called press conference held in his office in the east block. A short time before the ministers had gone to Government House to take their oaths of office. Mr. Claxton and Mr. Mackenzie were with the Prime Minister.

Mr. King said the action the government had taken was in accordance with the general post-war policy laid down in the throne speech at the last session of parliament.

The domestic objective in this regard was maximum employment, maximum production and social security after the war.

"Post-war planning falls naturally into three broad divisions — preparation for the rehabilitation and re-establishment in civil life of the armed forces, reconversion of the economic life of the nation and its reconstruction so as to provide opportunities for useful employment for all who are willing to work and insurance against major economic and social hazards," Mr. King's formal statement said.

"Each of the new departments be-

U-Boat Threat Still Haunts Sea Lanes
35 Survivors Land At Halifax From Convoy

HALIFAX, Oct. 14—(CP).—Thirty-five merchant seamen, survivors of a U-boat attack, have been landed here by a British rescue ship.

The survivors' ship was sunk in a four-day running battle between the largest convoy ever to sail from the United Kingdom and a U-boat pack. The freighter's crew, three of whom were lost in the sinking, were the first survivors to be landed here in more than a year.

"The torpedo struck the after part of the ship and she went to the bottom like a rock," said one survivor.

The Canadian frigate Montreal picked up the freighter's men, some from crowded boats, others from the sea.

Royal 22nd Gains Laurels Sweep San Fortunato Ridge

By BILL BOSS—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS ON THE ADRIATIC, Oct. 14—(CP).—"It was butchery," said the Royal 22nd Regiment after the battle of San Fortunato Ridge, key to the plains of Lombardy. "Dead and wounded Germans filled every trench and dug-out, and prisoners taken were something terrific."

The battle was characteristic of the dash and vitality of the regiment's Three Rivers colonel. The "Van Doo" attack maintained its momentum until the objective was made secure, and the enemy either dead, prisoners or fleeing.

Boldness and speed the evening before had swept the battalion to objectives just short of the southwest crest of the ridge. Beside it was a Maritime battalion, and farther to its right, holding a similar position, short of the southeast crest, was the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment of Picton, Ont.

They were ready to push in on the Germans in the morning, and other battalions who could only fall back into their hands when that attack was launched.

It had been a long, steep climb for the Royal 22nd. The rise was a foot in every hour, and the distance was roughly 1,200 yards.

Dodged Shells.

Heavy shelling came as the assault began. But they didn't stop. Platoon commanders such as Lieut. J. B. Pelletier, Ottawa, and Lieut. P. P. E. Larochelle, Three Rivers, Que., led their men at the double ahead of the enemy's steadily advancing shells.

Between the beginning of the attack and the companies' arrival on their objective an hour later, Larochelle's men cleared three houses, took 40 prisoners and cleared an area of snipers.

Pelletier, who had run almost a mile just before the attack went in, brought up tanks to support it, and almost exhausted, led his men to their goal. He reached it first. On the way he took time out to drag 22 Germans, literally by the scruff of their necks, from dug-outs and trenches.

Though on the hilltop in 60 minutes, the regiment was not entirely on the dominating feature. This was the Chateau Belvedere, a large castle in the midst of a thick wood, strongly held. This took sharp fighting before it finally fell.

Huns Announce Blitz Fighters

LONDON, Oct. 14 — (CP). — Mosquito bombers carried out a raid last night on the German industrial city of Cologne, less than 40 miles from Aachen on a straight road to Berlin, preliminary to what looked like a crunching two-way air attack on Germany today.

Before noon the German radio reported Allied bombers over northwestern Germany and Austria.

At the same time it said a new type plane known as "blitz fighters" soon will be used against Allied air attacks and "will change the face of aerial warfare."

While the main force of Mosquitos was hitting Cologne, a key railroad centre, others were attacking unspecified targets elsewhere in western Germany. All aircraft returned.

Rocket-firing R.A.F. Typhoons yesterday smashed their second enemy field headquarters in three days. Both were located in Holland.

The second attack, on three large buildings in the centre of a country estate, was timed for 11 a.m. at which hour the German commander was said to hold a daily conference with his top officers.

"Yesterday that conference ended abruptly and violently," the air ministry said, "for the Typhoons put in an appearance at 11:05 precisely, taking 500-pound bombs and rockets to the party. Within a few minutes all three houses were razed."

R.A.F. fighter-bombers based in France and Belgium sank eight barges and damaged 21 others with which the Germans were trying to evacuate the Schelde Estuary.

A formation of fighter-bombers, flying through a heavy rainstorm late yesterday bombed loaded freight cars at Amersfoort and Utretcht, where the air ministry said the Germans were suspected of trying to make a getaway by rail.

The German transocean news agency later, reported from Berlin that Dusseldorf and Duisburg were attacked early to-day.

Strong forces of heavy bombers passed over the London area before noon. Coastal observers reported large fleets of bombers flying east for more than an hour.

Many squadrons of fighters also were in the sky.

Weather in the Dover Strait was the best in several days.

Poles Re-open Negotiations

MOSCOW, Oct. 14 (AP)—Leaders of the rival Polish regimes of London and Lublin were reported to be re-opening negotiations for a combined government today.

They have heard from Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Marshal Stalin of the importance attached by the Allies to a united Poland.

Premier Stanislaw Milkolajczyk of the Polish government in London conferred today for 2 and ½ hours with Mr. Churchill, Foreign Secretary Eden and British Ambassador Sir Archibald Clark Kerr. He had met last night with Messrs. Stalin and Churchill.

There was no announcement concerning the joint meeting, but it was expected Mikolajczyk's next move would be a second session, possibly to-day, with leaders of the Soviet-sponsored Lublin - Polish Committee of Liberation.

Fierce Fight Rages Near Schelde

Aachen Rubble Heap Americans Move In Deeper

LONDON, Oct. 14.—(CP).— American soldiers pressed farther into the rubble heap of Aachen today while to the northwest Canadian troops were subjected to fierce pressure in German efforts to defend the approaches to the Dutch islands, a Supreme Headquarters communique announced.

German counter-attacks were thrown against Canadian forces south of Bergen or Zoom, who still cut off the spit of land that runs to the German-held islands of South Beveland and Walcheren.

On the opposite side of Southern Holland, where Lt.-Gen. Dempsey's British 2nd Army troops are driving toward the German border south of Overloon, the communique reported a 1,500-yard advance against stiff opposition.

One front dispatch said German reinforcements attacking Canadian positions cutting the German escape route from the Dutch islands in the Schelde estuary had placed Lt.-Gen. Crerar's men on the defensive.

German armor was being rushed up, and assault guns were in action against the Canadians.

U.S. 1st Army troops, using flame-throwers, grenades and machine-guns were fighting their way slowly into Aachen. An attack from the northeast had narrowed the lane into the city.

Field artillery and Allied aircraft hit repeatedly at German reinforcements trying to advance from the east, and the enemy was unable to launch any major counter-attack to relieve the blazing city.

Eighty-four German tanks had been knocked out in 48 hours through Friday.

Germans in Aachen had to be squeezed from pill-boxes and dug from well and cellars of ruined houses.

Goering Warns Danger Great

LONDON, Oct. 14 (CP-Reuters)—Field Marshal Goering in a speech at a newly-constructed armaments factory in Germany, quoted today by the German radio, warned the German people they were fighting for their very existence.

Goering declared "we are facing the hardest test any country ever had to undergo. If we can pull through it will show for all time that Germany cannot be annihilated.

"Our present sufferings from air attacks, our heavy and grievous losses, the hardships and privations we undergo are as nothing compared to the fate that would engulf Germany if only one of our enemies overcame us.

"To avoid such a fate no hardship is too great. We must endure everything that must be endured but we must never capitulate. There can be only one slogan in Germany today: Work harder and harder again, fight fiercer and fiercer yet, for the defence of Germany is at stake.

"Stand firm and unshaken in fanatical allegiance to our Feuhrer."

Goering told the German people there were difficulties and quarrels among Britain, the United States and Russia but these should not be over-estimated.

One thing was clear. "Today they are united in the determination to annihilate Germany," Goering concluded.

Brazil Doubles Force In Italy

ROME, Oct. 14 (AP)—A further large contingent of the Brazilian Expeditionary Force has arrived in the Italian battle zone.

The first Brazilian air force contingent, made up of pilots, ground crew and ground troops, were included in the convoy.

The size of the reinforcements is a military secret, but it was learned the total Brazilian force in Italy is more than doubled.

The original Brazilian force has been in action and has been advancing on the western end of the line across Italy.

Brig.-Gen. Oswaldo Cordeiro De Farias was in command of the new force, made up mostly of veteran artillerymen and infantrymen.

Sought To Get Water From City 14 Years

A long struggle for water connections and proper drainage of his property is behind William O. Harvey, 4 Lansdowne Street, who raised the question first in 1932, and in the following years up to now, brought the subject before the appropriate authorities several times.

A survey made of other people living in the same district without the service of water, and some with poor drainage, reveals that some people are discouraged with the entire affair, while still under the impression the right to have water is part of their citizenship.

At the present time, those who have not the water connections are using wells and cisterns, and those without wells are borrowing the water from neighbors who do have them.

Will Be Coming Into City.

Several of the residents of this easterly portion of Lansdowne Street are now living in North Monaghan, but with the coming annexation of this district, they will be in the City of Peterborough.

One woman questioned recently, revealed that after a cistern went dry, the only water they could use was well water, hard, and unfit for washing purposes. Last winter, this woman was forced to go to neighbors, often at a distance, to carry water into her home. With a youngster in the house, this situation, the woman said, is almost unbearable. "But what can we do about it?" she asked. "The well water has been condemned now, and so far it doesnt look as if anything is going to be done to help us."

"Sure we want water, but just try and get it," said another woman. This remark was the essence of all replies, and while several of the more optimistic advanced opinions about what would happen when the annexation takes place, the general attitude was frankly glum.

Refutes City Engineer.

In a letter to the editor of the Examiner, published October 10, Mr. Harvey outlined the complete story of his fight for water. A complete file of all letters and other corespondence dating back to 1932, is in his possession. One of the more interesting notes is one received from J. W. Pierce, Ontario Surveyor of Lands. In it, Mr. Pierce writes that according to a comprehensive study of the areas in question, the ground level at Mr. Harveys residence at Lansdowne and Haggart Streets, is 3 feet 2½ inches higher than it is at the manhole at Sherbourne Street. This letter was shown by Mr. Harvey as a possible refute to City Engineer Parsons' report that "if the sewer was laid to the Harvey place, a section of it would be only 3 to 4 feet below the surface, exposed to frost penetration."

War Veteran.

A veteran of the First World War Mr. Harvey said he is sincere in his efforts to have this work done on his place. In the spri-, he said, there is often more than two feet of water in his cellar, and in addition, water for domestic purposes must be carried from buildings and taps on the Little Lake Cemetery, which means a trek across the railroad tracks and back. Using well water has had its consequences, Mr. Harvey pointed out, and several years back, the Harvey family all suffered from some skin infection, which was traced by medical authorities to originate directly with the well water'

Mrs. Harvey, who along with her husband, is patiently keeping up the struggle to have the conveniences of a supply of water in her home, has kept pace with all developments that have been enacted since that first application for a septic tank in 1932. Together, they hope that soon the struggle will be over.

St. Luke's Anglican Church, Ashburnham, will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Women's Auxiliary Missionary Society at a special service on Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. The special preacher will be Canon Leonard Dixon, of Toronto, general secretary of the Church of England Missionary Society in Canada. Mrs. G. R. Langley is president of the Women's Auxiliary.

Airtroops Saved 25,000 British

PARIS, Oct. 14 (Reuter) — Lt.-Gen. Dempsey, commander of the British 2nd Army, estimates that the 1st Allied Airborne Army's operation in Holland saved him a minimum of 25,000 casualties, Lt.-Gen. Frederick Browning, commander of the Airborne Forces, said today.

The airborne invasion of Holland, in spite of missing being a perfect success because of a little bad luck, he said, had still helped the allied military situation enormously by driving a 60-mile-deep wedge into a vital part of the German positions over flat and canal-broken terrain.

Gen. Browning frankly admitted to war correspondents that so many factors had tc be taken into consideration in planning such an operation that some were bound to go wrong. The weather preventing reinforcement was one factor which militated against complete success.

But he declared that he still had the greatest confidence in the value of airborne operations in modern war and quoted Gen. Dempsey's casualty figure in support of his belief.

The world's greatest airborne operation, he said, had brought the British and American armies even closer together than ever. Without a single United States staff officer, he had commanded two American divisions and a Polish brigade with British and American tanks and artillery intermingling like one army.

reinforced Germans threw in stronger pressure, but several counter-attacks were dispersed by Allied planes and artillery.

Southeast of Aachen, the Allied communique reported progress near Germeter, 12 miles from Aachen and one mile southwest of Hurtgen town, to regain ground lost earlier to a strong enemy counter-assault.

In Holland the Germans brought up assault guns and tanks south of Bergen Op Zoom in apparent all-out attempt to rescue forces trapped on the Schelde Estuary islands. Fighting rose in intensity and Canadians holding the spit of land running to the islands lost the initiative at least temporarily.

Canadian troops that landed on the south bank of the Schelde River meanwhile hit south another 2,000 yards, and now were only 4,000 yards from joining other Canadians holding a bridgehead over the Leopold Canal.

Nazis Hate Unions

TORONTO, Oct. 14.— (CP). — Gerhardt H. Seger, former deputy of the German Reichstag, who escaped from a Nazi concentration camp, yesterday told the 20th convention of the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphide and Paper Mill Workers (A.F.L.), that the labor movement the world over must be a strong supporter of democracy. A totalitarian regime is hostile and brutal to the labor movement, he said.

Premier Denies Power Meeting

QUEBEC, Oct. 14.—(CP).— Premier Duplessis told newspapermen here last night "there is no question at all of a meeting between representatives of Quebec and Ontario relative to a new agreement for the development of six power sites on the Ottawa river which would produce more than a million horsepower."

Mr. Duplessis said "the province of Ontario had taken no step to start negotiations with a view to cancelling exitsing agreements with Quebec relative to the power sites.

Temporary Plan

Reconstruction is the only one of the new departments that is to be of a temporary nature. The veterans and health departments are considered permanent.

The primary job of Mr. Howe's new department will be to assist in rapid reconversion of the counest possible peace-time employment. try's wartime economy to the fullest possible peace-time employment.

"The largest of its tasks will be to assist in the speedy reconversion of war industries so that there will be the least possible delay in the provision of employment opportunities," Mr. King said.

As minister of munitions Mr. Howe had directed the conversion from a peace to a war economy and it was thus appropriate that he should co-ordinate the two departments in the next step.

The disposal of war assets, now under the direction of the munitions department, will come under the reconstruction department as will housing, apart from financing which will continue to come under the jurisdiction of the finance department.

The reconstruction minister, in co-operation with other departments, will supervise the planning and co-ordination of public works and developments necessary to provide employment on a flexible basis to fill employment gaps in industry. This responsibility will include the co-ordination of federal programs with provincial and local activities.

"Housing is looked to as one of the most important sources of employment," Mr. King said. "Methods of co-operation will be worked out between the department of reconstruction, which will be particularly interested in community planning, research and promotional activity, and the department of finance, which is particularly concerned with the actual lending and other financing of house-building."

Dealing with the transfer of jurisdiction of the National Research Council from the department of trade to reconstruction, Mr. King said new impetus had been given research by the war, and it would inevitably play a large part in creating employment opportunities.

Fatigue Points To Collapse Of Hun Army

By ROSS MUNRO

WITH THE 1st CANADIAN ARMY, HOLLAND, Oct. 14.—(CP). —On this Western front the German Army, desperately defending the frontiers of the Reich, is a curious hodge-podge of formations, weak and strong, but all plagued with growing doubts and uncertainties.

Field Marshal von Rundstedt has not been able to fight his defensive battle on any co-ordinated army plan. He has been forced to fight a string of divisional actions up and down a vast front where his resources are strained to the limit to meet the varied Allied thrusts.

He has the world's most unenviable command today. He knows he cannot be strong everywhere; that he must gamble wildly. He mustered his strength at Arnhem, at Aachen, in the Schelde pocket and at key points in Southwest Holland. But the multitude of weaknesses in his plan inevitably will be revealed as the Allied armies turn on the pressure.

Devoid of Hope

This seems to be the present picture of the German Army in the west: It never recovered from the lacing it received in Normandy. On many sectors the troops fight extremely well and fight to the last. But the strain is telling more and more. You find good German soldiers now whose principal aim is to give themselves up after they have made a brief show of resistance to save face.

They give themselves up if they can elude their officers or escape being shot by comrades who have not yet been affected by the decay in German Army morale.

You frequently find Germans now who are devoid of any hope at all for Germany. North of Antwerp prisoners have been taken who shake their heads dolefully when asked if the German Army or the home population could stand a winter campaign. The army couldn't endure it, they say, and neither could civilians in the Reich.

Prisoners' stories are far from the final word, but are a definite indication of how their minds are working.

Take the situation among the German forces in Southwest Holland. They have been ordered to live off the land by pillaging and looting. They are doing this. Their own supply lines are in a state approaching chaos, hemmed as they are into this salient bordered by the British 2nd Army, the Canadian Army and the sea.

Splyit in Confusion

They are split up into a confusion of battle groups. Some divisions have regiments fighting on sectors hundreds of miles apart. There is little cohesion to the German plan. They struggle to rush troops to threatened sectors. So far they have had considerable success in this makeshift policy, but it cannot go on indefinitely.

Reorganization centres have been established in Holland where these battle groups can remuster after action and get straightened out to some degree for another spell in the line.

The most unorthodox military practices are being employed by the Germans in their frantic efforts to keep the Allies out of the Reich. Officers leading troops in this Battle of the Schelde have had to sign pledges that they would fight to the end. Few armies in history have had to resort to such measures to try to maintain discipline.

This is a typical pledge signed by a German captain: "I am pledged to hold this fortified sector to the last, even to sacrifice my own life. Even if the enemy should already have broken through on my right and left, I am not empowered to give up this sector or negotiate with the enemy. I am pledged to work tirelessly on the completion of preparations for defense; on defense installations and their concealments, and to repair all deficiencies."

The session with the senior statesmen was attended also by Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov, United States Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, and Tadeusz Romer, Foreign Minister of the London Polish group.

In separate talks earlier yesterday Mr. Mikolajczyk had conferred with representatives of the Lublin group and Messrs. Harriman and Molotov. The Polish Premier also appeared in good humor and hopeful when he was seen between his visits.

Although the belief grew that at least a tentative compromise might be reached no quick public announcement was expected because Mr. Mikolajczyk probably would have to return to London to confer with his cabinet.

Transylvania by Russian forces which crossed the Carpathian Mountains from Romanian Moldavia. Among them was Bistrita, 36 miles from the Transylvanian border.

By last report the Russians in Hungary were less than 50 miles from Budapest, the capital.

Announcement of the Red Army's entry into East Prussia in force from the frontier belt 12 miles northeast of Tilsit may be made to-night.

Riga was taken by storming the port area on the mouth of the Dvina after the Russians crossed supposedly impassable swamps on the northern part. Thus the Soviet forces blocked a German plan for a seaborne evacuation.

A correspondent of Red Star, Soviet army newspaper, said the enemy tried to burn Riga and had demolished centuries-old St. Peter's church. However, a swift Russian break-through prevented complete destruction of the city.

The German commander, Col.-Gen. Schernar, was reported to have ordered wholesale executions among the wavering troops. Eleven Nazi soldiers were removed from a movie house in Riga and shot in the street for being absent without leave, a Soviet dispatch said.

The Russian assault toward the Latvian capital breached a defence zone of more than 25 miles in depth. The sustained attack cracked, one after another, lines called by the enemy the Panther, the Blue, the Green and the Winter.

The Soviet newspaper Izvestia estimated that "several dozen" enemy divisions had been beaten in the area, and a considerable share of these were destroyed in the offensive against Riga itself. The newspaper also said 500 of 800 German tanks were knocked out when the Russians repelled a German counter-attack which the enemy hoped would save the Riga position throughout the winter.

Jesus' Understanding Of Man An Outstanding Feature

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for October 15 is Genesis 1:27; Psalm 8; Matthew 12:9-21, the Golden Text being John 2:25, "He needeth not that any one should bear witness concerning man; for He Himself knew what was in man.")

"SO GOD created man in His own image, in the image of God created He him; male and female created He them." So reads the first chapter of Genesis, the 27th verse.

Then our lesson continues to the eight psalm of David: "O Lord, our Lord, how excellent is Thy name in all the earth! who hast set Thy glory above the heavens.

"When I consider Thy heavens, the work of Thy fingers, the moon and the stars, which Thou hast ordained;

"What is man that Thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that Thou visiteth him?

"For Thou hast made him a little lower than the angels, and hast crowned him with glory and honor.

"Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of Thy hands; Thou hast put all things under his feet;

"O Lord, our Lord, how excellent is Thy name in all the earth;"

What Jesus Thought of Man

So the psalmist, King David thought of man. Now we go to the time of Jesus, and see what Christ has to say of the dignity of man, and His understanding of him.

Early in His ministry Jesus went into the synagogue on the Sabbath, as we read in many instances in the record of His life on earth. There was there a man with a withered hand—quite useless was his right hand.

The Pharisees, who were Jesus' enemies from the first, asked Him, in apparent innocence, but scheming to catch Him, "Is it lawful to heal on the Sabbath days?"

Jesus' answer was immediate and right to the point. "What man shall there be among you, that shall have one sheep, and if it fall into a pit on the Sabbath day, will he not lay hold on it, and lift it out?

"How much then is a man better than a sheep? Wherefore it is lawful to do well on the Sabbath days."

Then He told the man to stretch forth his hand, and the man, looking into Jesus' face, did so and it immediately became whole like the other hand.

We have told the story before in our Sabbath lessons, but it is a beautiful story and well worth telling over and over.

The Pharisees, knowing that they were beaten, went out and counseled together how they might destroy Him. He was setting at defiance their man-made laws, and further than that, they never could catch him off guard His answers were always ready and Right was on His side.

This man must be destroyed or their authority over the people would be lost. The multitudes would be following and probably imitating this Man with the wonderful personality, the beautiful voice and gracious manner who seemed to think that even common persons had dignity and rights and should be helped at all times when they were in trouble. They, the rulers of the synagogue, would be ignored.

Jesus Heals the Multitude

Jesus knew the Pharisees were plotting against Him, so He withdrew Himself from that place. Great multitudes followed Him and "He healed them all," that it might be fulfilled what was spoken by Isaiah.

"Behold My servant, whom I have chosen, My beloved, in whom My soul is well pleased, I will put My spirit upon Him, and He shall shew judgment to the Gentiles.

"He shall not strive, nor cry, neither shall any man hear His voice in the streets.

"A bruised reed shall He not break, and smoking flax shall He not quench, till He send forth judgment unto victory.

"And in His name shall the Gentiles trust."

The lamp wick, we read, was usually a strip of linen, when there was but little oil it would burn dimly and smoke. Instead of being a harsh conqueror, the Messiah was gentle and kind. He did not seek to overwhelm and destroy, but consoled and strengthened men. He understood man, who was made in the image of God.

74TH ANNIVERSARY — The United Church at Hiawatha is on Sunday marking the 74th anniversary of the present building. Rev. M. C. Macdonald, B.A., B.D., of Toronto, associate secretary of the Board of Home Missions of the United Church, will be the special preacher.

Army Leaders Visiting City

Visiting the Salvation Army Temple this week-end will be Lt.-Col. and Mrs. Rufus T. Spooner and Major and Mrs. Reginald Gage of Toronto. The former officer is the Divisional Commander for the Toronto Division with fifty corps, or centres of evangelistic work under his command Lt.-Col. Spooner is a survivor of the Empress of Ireland tragedy of May 29, 1914. For a number of years he was young people's secretary for the Dominion and was recently invested with the highest award attainable in the Scouting realm. The colonel served previously as provincial commander in Western Canada and is known as a forceful, interesting speaker.

Major and Mrs. Gage, who are in charge of all young people's activities in the Toronto Division, have had many unique experiences, having served for three years with the Canadian troops in England, and were in London during the entire period of the 1940 blitz.

The sound-film which is being shown on Saturday night in the Temple is the type of wholesome picture which will appeal to Christian people of Peterborough.

THIS TIME FOR KEEPS

INVERNESS, Scotland — (CP). — "It is absolute madness to think that the war is over," said Brig. Lord Lovat, Commando leader, at inspection of a cadet battalion of the Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders. Germany must be thoroughly beaten so it would be certain there would not be a third war.

Marmora

Mrs. George Barrons is visiting friends in Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. Carman Sanders have moved into the residence formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Philip Woodcock.

Messrs. W. J. Cottrell, J. Bailey and K. Deline attended the mission service at St. John's, Madoc, Thursday evening.

To Organize Classes

After an absence of four years, during which activities were halted by the war, the Workers' Educational Society is planning to begin classes again this season. Drummond Wren, general secretary of the W. E. A., is expected to attend an organization meeting to be held in the Chamber of Commerce Monday evening at 8 o'clock, and will address prospective members.

POST-WAR AIRLINES

CANBERRA — (CP). — The government is planning an airline scheme to bring any place in Australia within 24 hours' travel of any other place. It is hoped to establish 22 centres linking by trunk services, each serving a 300-mile radius by air or surface transport.

A Profound Disappointment

REV. E. R. JAMES

The Lord Jesus came unto His own and His own received Him not— St. John 1; 11.

In these words we read the greatest tragedy of the Jewish race. A white haired old man writes with deep pain and anguish. He is a Jew and a lover of his race, for he comes from Galilee, the home of intense patriotism. In his early manhood he had given up all and followed the new Teacher. In the spirit of great love he asked his Master to send down fire from Heaven to consume the Samaritans who refused Him hospitality. He lived to see fire and awful desolation come down upon his own people — the Holy City and Temple destroyed by the Romans because they "had not received Him".

Why did they not receive Him? The Jews were a deeply religious people who gave lavishously of their wealth for the support of their religion and gladly died for their faith whenever necessary. They knew they were God's chosen people and that for a thousand years He had been training them for a purpose. He sent unto them prophets; men of God who received a new beam of light upon the character of God. Most of these men were rejected by their own people. You should read with deep emotion God's message to his sensitive prophet, Jeremiah:— "The Kings of Judah, the princes thereof, the priests thereof and the people of the land shall fight against thee". Jer. 1; 18. It is not surprising to realise that in the fullness of time when the Son of God Himself came unto them in human flesh "they received Him not".

Moses taught that Jehovah was a "Holy God". The Hebrew word simply means "separation" Jehovah was separated from them. The priests and levites were holy also, that is, merely separated for their work. Then Isaiah, a devout layman, had a vision and received a higher revelation of the word "holy"; that God is Holy in His character. That is why the prophet cries:—"Woe is me, for I am a man of unclean lips." He needed inward cleansing and purification before he could truly worship the pure God. It was a new thought that Jehovah is a pure God in character and hates to look upon evil.

Years later a remnant of the people came back from exile hating idolatry. They believed they were a separated people and worshipped a separate God Who lived far above them because of His holiness. His Name was so holy they did not pronounce it but substituted another when reading Holy Scripture. They could not imagine God coming near to them. They worshipped a God Who was afar off.

Then in the fullness of time the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us. Jesus Christ came to reveal God to His race and to us. They refused to accept Him because He was so far above their ideals. He could not plainly proclaim Himself to be the Christ because they expected a warrior Messiah who would deliver them from the Roman yoke.

Above all His teaching of Jehovah being the Father of all men, both Jew and Gentile, aroused their hatred and abhorrance. It was an abomination to a people who believed themselves to be a separated race worshipping a separated God.

One day in the Temple His enemies asked Him the question full of dynamite:—"Is it lawful to give tribute unto Caesar or not?" Multitudes of the common people turned away from Him when He said:— "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and unto God the things that are God's." These men who had travelled from the uttermost part of the Empire to attend the Feast were the cream of the race, full of fanaticism for their national existence. They were truly nationalists and could not imagine that Jehovah would have anything to do with the Gentiles. The people heard St. Paul somewhat patiently during his long defence but when he told them that Jehovah told him to go unto the Gentiles their wrath overflowed:—"Away with such a fellow from the earth; for it is not fit that he should live". Act. 22; 22.

It is a lesson for our generation. Our children will have to face the question of German and Japanese missions.

Manse Wrecked

SARNIA, Oct. 14 — (CP). — Rev. J. S. Bell, pastor of nearby Point Edward Presbyterian Church, was seriously injured yesterday when an explosion of undetermined origin wrecked the manse. His son Ian, 14, was less seriously hurt. Mr. Bell said he went to the basement to close a gas valve, and the blast occurred as he walked upstairs.

Jesus' Understanding of Man

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Genesis 1:27; Psalm 8; Matthew 12:9-21

By Alfred J. Buescher

So God created man in His own image, in the image of God created He him; male and female created He them, states the book of Genesis.

When I consider Thy heavens, the work of Thy fingers, the moon and the stars, which Thou hast ordained; what is man that Thou are mindful of Him?

Is it lawful to heal on the Sabbath? asked Jesus' enemies. A man would save a sheep, said Jesus. How much then is man better than a sheep?

Jesus healed a man's withered hand and the Pharisees took counsel to destroy Him, but He continued to heal all. GOLDEN TEXT—John 2:25.

The Outcome Of Dumbarton Oaks

The plan which has been drawn up as a result of the conversations at Dumbarton Oaks is an impressive one, but it would be unwise for us to assume that it has taken its final form. It must be carefully considered by Churchill, Roosevelt and Stalin, and possibly also by Chiang Kai-shek; it must be considered by all the United Nations in a body; and finally it must be considered by the parliaments and legislative bodies of the United Nations including, of course, the Senate of the United States, the body which was so uncordial toward the League of Nations. The plan has merely begun on its journey, and no one is so optimistic as to suppose that it will reach the end in its present shape. Let us hope that the changes which it undergoes will strengthen it.

• • •

The great weakness of the plan as it stands is that it permits the great powers, Russia, Britain and the U.S.A., to veto action against themselves, although such action may be desired by the other United Nations. That is to say, the concept of national sovereignty is maintained intact, and the right of any great nation to behave exactly as it pleases is strongly asserted. No organization for world peace can be foolproof until our concept of national sovereignty is changed, and such changes are not made quickly. It appears that the representatives of the United States and Great Britain opposed the right of any power accused of aggression to forbid action by veto, but the Russian delegates stood firmly for it, and there the matter rests. Until this is settled, agreement on other phases of the plan means very little.

• • •

The organization of the United Nations, as outlined at Dumbarton Oaks, is comparatively simple. It provides for a General Assembly of all the nations, and for a Security Council of eleven nations, the four Big Powers and France having permanent seats and the other nations being elected to office for terms of two years, three retiring each year. An International Court of Justice and a Secretariat are also provided for.

• • •

This organization is strong, and much experience with the League of Nations is behind it. The Secretariat of that body did excellent work which is obscured by the League's more conspicuous failures. An International Court of Justice is not an impossible ideal; within the last century it has become accepted as a possibility, if not an actuality. Readers who are familiar with Bernard Shaw's play Geneva will recall the powerful argument of the Judge, who expounded the force of conscience and international morality; the body of opinion which demands that a country justify its actions to other countries on moral grounds is still small, but it is growing, and it is that growing strength which gives power to an International Court.

• • •

The dispute about the power of veto is serious, but it is not insuperable. For years Soviet Russia has been treated as the roughneck, the unspeakable villain of the international drama. Nobody trusted Russia and as a natural result Russia trusted nobody. Now we want Russia to put her most important right—that of national sovereignty in the sphere of war—into the hands of Great Britain and the U.S.A. Is it any wonder that Russia is dubious? Having learned to trust us in war she has still to learn to trust us in peace, and when we recall how great anti-Russian feeling is in the democracies still we cannot blame her. If Russia took a chance in this matter and were betrayed at some future time by her partners, an entirely new crop of bitter European grievances would come of it. Russia wants to be sure where she is going, and it is up to the democracies to remove her doubts.

The Dumbarton Oaks conversations have marked the beginning of our progress toward a new kind of international society. For a century and longer before 1914 our international society was based on the Balance of Power as a preventer of wars; upon the international gold standard and the world economy which it involved; upon the self-regulating market and the material welfare which it brought with it; and upon the 'liberal state', a political fiction which served as a target for actual states to shoot at. Those things went down in the war of 1914-18, and our attempts to revive them from 1918-39 were all failures. We must find a new ground for organization. It will not be easy to do so, and it will not happen in a few months, but it must be done. All the wisdom which the United Nations can command must be brought to the task.

Who Would Be An Author?

A few days ago we speculated on the curious fortune of Miss Gewthalyn Graham, a Canadian writer who has been paid approximately $150,000 from various sources for her novel Earth and High Heaven; unless she is able to get some special consideration because of the nature of her work the tax-gatherers will leave her about $29,000.

If she lived in England she would be worse off. We read that Elizabeth Goudge the English novelist recently won a prize of $120,000 for her book Green Dolphin Street, and she will receive another $50,000 in royalties. After the Income Tax authorities have finished with her, she will have $12,000 for herself.

Milton received £20, all told, for Paradise Lost. Miss Graham and Miss Goudge will doubtless envy him, for after his years of labour he was at least allowed to keep all he made by it. To modern governments authors are mere small fry, not worth bothering with and certainly not worth encouraging; but when one of these geese lays a golden egg the government is quick to snatch it, leaving the author approximately enough to live on while he writes another book, without any guarantee that it will be a success.

Two Aspects Of Autumn

This month everyone who can do so is going out into the country to enjoy the beauty of autumn, the most glorious of our Canadian seasons. Our winters are severe and once the charm of the snow has worn off, detestable: our spring, a season of slush and mud, can hardly be said to exist: our summers are often too hot and too dry for real enjoyment: but our autumns—has anyone ever heard a word of unfavourable criticism directed against a Canadian autumn? It is the perfection and maturity of the year.

What words can fittingly describe our autumn colours? Well, the Professor of Botany at the Ontario Agricultural College, Dr. D. J. MacLachlan, has described them in terms of chemical reaction. As winter comes on, he tells us, a small, cork-like layer forms at the base of every leaf, and this heals the wound which results when the leaf breaks away from the tree and falls to the ground. The presence of this cork buffer slows up the natural processes of the leaf, and starves it of chlorophyl, which made it green; consequently its yellow shades become more obvious. The sugar which forms in the leaf cannot escape from it because of the cork buffer, and it combines with cyanide in the leaf to form a red dye; the more sugar, the deeper the red, which accounts for the brilliant colour of the maple. The idea that frost turns the leaves, says Dr. MacLachlan, is an old wives' tale.

There you have autumn beauty as the botanist explains it, and it seems to us to be all the more wonderful because of its chemical complexity. To the poet, autumn shows another aspect of her many-sided nature, as this passage from a recent work by a Canadian poet shows:

Now gypsy Autumn lights her phantom fires,
Maple and sumac with new beauty blaze,
Till vesper splendour hallows middle-earth
And slowly to their sacremental pyres
The journeying days ascend—
The pensive, patient days
That measure lapse and flow, and death and birth,
World without end.

Look at it as you will, autumn is a miracle, and we have not long to enjoy it. Every hour that we can spend in the country now is precious, for the colours have already begun to fade.

Diary Of A Noisy Cougher

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: Huddled over the fire all day, coddling a cold. Tonight the news came over the air that Sir William Mulock was dead, and also that he had lost a year somewhere in the course of his long life, and was 101, and not a mere skimpy 100. The account of his achievements sounds like a record of three careers, and not of one. How did he do it? My belief is that he lived long and achieved much because he never permitted himself to be in a hurry, and never wasted any time fussing about efficiency. In my experience 'go-getters' and efficiency fiends are the world's worst time wasters. Sir William always had lots of time to sit and chat, and as he himself said, he never went to bed early unless he wanted to, and he was not an abstainer. He always had time for fun, which is an endearing characteristic. I have observed in university life that students who are always studying never head their classes; those who have lots of time for parties frequently do. Too much attention to work is a sure sign of a second-rate mind.

◊ ◊ ◊

MONDAY: When I was born good fairies clustered round my cradle, showering me with wit, beauty, grace, freedom from dandruff, natural piety and other great gifts but the Wicked Fairy Carabosse (who had not been invited to the party) crept to my side and screamed 'Let him be cursed with Inability To Do Little Jobs Round The House,' and so it has always been. I cannot drive a nail straight, or mend an electric iron, or make a door stop sticking, or change a fuse. I do not glory in my inefficiency; I suffer under it. Whenever anything goes wrong with my household arrangements I have to get a man in to mend it—no small task in these days—and I know that he despises me as he does the fiddling little job and takes away a dollar of my money. People who are good at odd jobs are blessed above common mortals; I have some trifling skill in swatting flies and shining shoes, but otherwise I am a nuisance in the home. If I were ever shipwrecked on a desert island with several thousand feet of lumber, a complete set of carpenter's tools, and 100 cases of assorted foods, I should die in a week of exposure and starvation.

◊ ◊ ◊

TUESDAY: Gave up fighting my cold today and stayed in bed. In intervals between frantic blowings of my nose, I read Professor Laski's views about communism as the future religion, life and love of the human race; it made me so mad that I had to keep kicking my hot water bottle to relieve my wrath. Why do economists know so little about people, and why do they blather so stupidly about the arts? Economists seem to think that if you give an artist social justice, $2,500 a year guaranteed, and plenty of sewage and plumbing, he will immediately produce masterpieces. But in actual fact a real artist is a fellow who doesn't care a fig for social justice, wants all the money he can get, and doesn't care much about dirt so long as he can have his own way. Most artists have no service-club spirit and are rarely conventional or respectable fellows; indeed, most artists are bums. But every now and then one of these geese lays a golden egg; he will do it under a tyranny as readily as under a democratic government. Emil Ludwig said this recently to a group of musicians, and they were offended. Obviously they were not musicians, but politicians who worked at music as some men work at garbage-collecting.

◊ ◊ ◊

WEDNESDAY: Attended a concert in the line of duty, and suffered [illegible] with my cough. There are coughers at every concert, but none like me; I am to ordinary coughers what the late Chaliapin was to a schoolgirl singing in her mother's drawing-room; I am a virtuoso cougher, and when I cough at a concert it is like the trumpets of Joshua outside the walls of Jericho. Artists have been known to stop in mid-song, and stare into the auditorium in horrified amazement; a circus man I once knew said it put him in mind of an elephant trumpeting. I cannot help it; it is my cross, and I must bear it as best I may. Hardly had the concert begun until I felt horrid ticklings and heavings in my throat, and I knew at once that I was a goner. I hastily ate a Smith Bros. cough drop, but it was powerless against the rising fury of my cough; I held in by sheer power of will until the first song was over, and then I allowed my cough to drown the generous applause. This went on until the interval, when I was able to get a drink of water. Every song, for me, was a struggle with a cough which raged to escape. I heard the artist telling the head usher to find that dog and put it out, and I trembled in fear. But later in the evening the demon within me relented, and I was able to enjoy the music, though exhausted by my struggle.

◊ ◊ ◊

THURSDAY: The admirers of Aimee Semple McPherson are still milling around in the Temple, wailing "Lord, make it not true." They want their peppy prophetess back. Really this seems an odd attitude. Sister Aimee spent her whole working life "selling" Heaven; she held forth for hours on the delights and advantages of being dead, and now she is dead herself and presumably is enjoying the best that Heaven can afford. But are her disciples happy? Do they rejoice that their sister has gone to glory? Not they! They want her back in this vale of tears, for their own edification and enjoyment. The selfishness of people is only equalled by their illogicality.

FRIDAY: It was my ill luck today to meet yet another imitator of Winston Churchill; I seem to be pursued by these pests. They look like quite ordinary, harmless people, but at the drop of a hat they will say "Like to hear me do Churchill?", and they begin "Let me first of all thank the very great numbers of people who have made kind inquiries about me during my recent illness...." without waiting for a reply. Often as soon as they have finished their Churchill piece, they want to do Roosevelt, and they are shouting "Mah friends...." before you can escape. The odd thing is, the better they are, the more embarrassing they are. I find imitators of great men very hard to endure. They remind me of Ivan Skovinsky Skovar, who, you recall, could

"....imitate Irving, play euchre and pool,
And perform on the Spanish guitar."

I greatly fear that my only defence will be to work up a boring imitation myself—probably of Joe Stalin.

◊ ◊ ◊

SATURDAY: Went for a long walk this afternoon, to see the autumn colours. It struck me that Canadian painters always seem to paint autumn on sunny days, when the colour is most brilliant. Why not paint a few pictures on grey days like this one, when red, and yellow, and purple are all dimmed and smudged by the mists?

"DIVIDED WE FALL!"

The Ship Columbus Sailed

IN early twilight we rounded a last turn and came on a straight stretch with high banks. There, at the far end, under the arch of an iron bridge, were the river walls of the town, and from the quay-side rose the "Tower of Gold"; and then, farther from the bank, the eye caught the late sunlight falling on the Giralda. The pilot tied us up at a little, private wooden landing just below the bridge. We had sailed our little ship to Seville, the heart of Andalusia.

Our thoughts, this passage, had been full of the early navigators, but we were hardly prepared to look across our deck and see a full-rigged galleon with high stem and poop moored to the green bank opposite us. Her name was the Santa Maria, and from her yards fluttered the gay banners of their most Catholic majesties, Ferdinand and Isabella....

There were some matters in the Seville Exposition, which was then running, that held a particular interest for us. They related to the history of the Spanish navigators.... In the official Spanish building there were exhibited the originals of Christopher Columbus's letters and some of his original charts and drawings. There were also great wall charts about the rooms, reconstructing the courses of the various voyages and showing how exploration was rapidly unrolling the plan of a vast new world, how the islands and the people were being raised out of the deep. One of the curious aspects of the story, as it unfolded here, was the time it took for the realization to get abroad that it really was a new world that had come into being. In a sense, Columbus under-estimated his own achievement. It seems that to the end he persisted in the belief that he had been simply skirting the edges of Japan and of Asia....

There were, of course, a great number of models of the early ships and of the little river ports that they fitted out in. No model could hold us long, with the replica of the Santa Maria itself lying opposite us across that narrow river. We spent hours going over the ship and talking as best we could with the officers and cadets aboard....

To the eye of the poet, looking at her from the shore, the caravel, with her ornamental woodwork, her castled stern, her lanterns and her gay banners, is, and always has been a ship of romance and of beauty; to the eye of the seaman she can appear only as a vicious and unwieldly horror.

A replica of the Admiral's cabin was on the deck above the steerage gallery. There was the box-like bunk of the great commander, complete with canopy and curtains. The bunk was set athwart ships and swung like a cradle. There was his chair, which could have been of service only on the calmest days; there was his writing-desk, and over it the reproductions of his fantastic charts and the crude navigating instruments that no modern seamen would trust and yet that carried him to such lands of romance as none of us, with our most refined instruments, will ever discover. — From "Atlantic Circle; Around the Ocean with the Winds and Tides," by Leonard Outhwaite.

More About Basic Income

By BERNARD SHAW in THE LONDON OBSERVER

MY recent article on this subject has brought on me a spate of statistics, at which I laugh, as when a cricketer bowls a wide, or an archer transfixes somebody's pet Pekinese instead of the target. I suppose I should not laugh; but I do.

Nobody knows what the national income is. I dramatized it at four shillings per head per week. This figure, picked up from one of the publications of an Equality Society (there is such a body), has no arithmetical validity: I used it because it is dramatically right. It represents an income at which fine art, classical literature, philosophy, law, learning, mathematics, and world politics are inconceivable, and machinery and organized trade and business impossible. In short, civilization costs more than four shillings a week; and a civilized nation rationed on that scale would collapse into tribal barbarism, as the Britons are said to have done when Britain was evacuated by the Romans.

Such a catastrophe, which according to Flinders Petrie has occurred five or six times to our knowledge, is averted so far only by giving the masses, say, two shillings, and dividing the other two gratuitously among ten per cent. of the population ("the upper ten"), so as to give them leisure enough to cultivate arts and letters and science, money enough to save capital without feeling any privation, and with this equipment to direct the labour and control the conduct of the ignorant masses. The four shillings means only a national income small enough to produce this situation: any other figure will do as well on that understanding. As the actual quota is unknown, the letter x would be better than any figure; but algebraic symbols are familiar only to mathematicians, and are not dramatically vivid enough for the mob.

But my correspondents are mostly persuaded that the real quota, far from being unknown, is known exactly to them, and that my symbolical four shillings is wrong because their pet figures vary from ten times that amount to half as much again.

I applaud their statistical industry and earnestness; but neither they nor I can possibly ascertain at present what the nation is actually producing every year and what is is capable of producing if put to it. Their main source of information as to money income is the assessments for Income Tax by the Exchequer. These are hopelessly vitiated by the omission of innumerable private productive transactions and incomes that are not taxed twice over, the taxation of capital values (by, for instance, death duties, royalties, and patent rights), which are for present purposes only Stock Exchange figments, and the folly exposed by Ruskin, of taking price as a measure of social value (a nation possessing a few tons of radium could buy up a continent or two), and the lack of classification of products in the order of their necessity. Bibles and bottles of brandy being counted with complete impartiality. The estimates of the statisticians are useful for comparison as long as they are all based on the same sources and make the same omissions, repetitions, and inclusions of disutilities; but, as they never quite do, they serve only as the best available indications of increases, and trends generally.

For those of my correspondents who have no doubts as to the validity and exactness of their estimates, a favourite figure for the national income is round about £4,000 millions. This is a very convenient figure because the population is always taken as round about 40 millions, which makes the arithmetic simple. Even I, the worst of mathematicians, can see at a glance that 40 goes into 4,000 exactly 100 times, and gives £100 a year per head, which is near enough to 40 shillings a week. This probably got misprinted as 4 shillings in the paper from which I lifted it. Why did I swallow it so easily?

Well, it was because the 40-shilling figure is incredible. If our proletariat could be persuaded that an equal division of the nation's assets would give every family £10 a week, it would rise as one married couple, and insist on having its share on the nail. As I do not believe that any such Golconda dividend exists, I dare not provoke a rising so ruinous as this would be. The 4-shilling figure, giving £1 a week per family, is not only dramatically true but can be made public safely because the proletarian breadwinners to whom a steady £1 a week is a fortune are too poor, ignorant, and overworked to be dangerous. But there are plenty of them still. Figures which represent their wages without deducting the rent they must pay or allowing for their spells of unemployment are good for nothing except building paper Utopias.

So let it stand at 4 shillings (or 4 pence if you prefer it). My point was and is (a) that a sane and civilized modern State must determine a basic income sufficient to produce a full social complement of civilized citizens, (b) that no family should be too poor for its gifted members (if any) to reach this level, (c) that from this point of view distribution of leisure is as important as distribution of money, and (d) that the basic income must have priority and the general level be worked up to it by increased production until culture is within everyone's reach.

I will now add (e) that when this level is attained, then and not until then can Liberty and Laissez-faire be safely allowed another turn.

Walking home I saw one of the most characteristic Canadian sights—a group of boys lounging outside a drug store, whistling at the girls as they passed. This seems foolish. If they want to court girls, why don't they take them into the country, which is within easy walking distance, instead of whistling ineffectually on the ugliest corners they can find? Why prefer what is poor-spirited, vulgar and unsatisfactory to what is beautiful and expansive? The trouble with Canadian youth, I think, is that it doesn't know how to enjoy itself. Blindness to the beauty of the countryside is blindness indeed.

A Bible Message

Seeing then that we have a great high priest, that is passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold fast our profession. For we have not an high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin. Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need....

For every high priest taken from among men is ordained for men in things pertaining to God, that he may offer both gifts and sacrifices for sins: who can have compassion on the ignorant, and on them that are out of the way; for that he himself also is compassed with infirmity. And by reason hereof he ought, as for the people, so also for himself, to offer for sins.

And no man taketh this honour unto himself, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron. So also Christ glorified not himself to be made an high priest; but he that said unto him. Thou art my Son, today have I begotten thee....

Though he were a Son, yet learned he obedience by the things which he suffered; and being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him. (Heb. 4: 14-16; 5, 1-5, 8, 9.)

IF POLITICS NEED CLEANSING

There are many people who decry politics as a "dirty" business who make no effort to take part and cleanse it if it is in that state. If there are people who think that improvements can be made in our political system, why don't they get in and take part?—Niagara Falls Review.

NO "FOOL-PROOF" HIGHWAYS

Two things which super highways cannot guard against are the personal equation and mechanical defects in the cars which are operated upon them. A moment's carelessness or travelling at a speed which brings a mechanical defect to light is almost as sure to result in disaster on the best highway as on a second-rate road. Perhaps the danger from these causes is greater on the better roads since they invite an unwarranted confidence and excessive speed. — Toronto Telegram.

World Will Need Food

While the end of the war will mean the immediate cutting back and subsequent discontinuance of a very large part of munition production and a certain inevitable dislocation and delay in the process of re-conversion to peace production, there will be no such break in the demand both foreign and domestic, for our agricultural products. As a matter of fact, we may expect a more insistent call for some time at least for everything we can get off the land. — Montreal Star.

Dated Words

There are fashions in words parading the soon-yellowed newspaper columns and jostling each other on airways crowded by the still more ephemeral news broadcasts. They are born when some writer or commentator, weary of overworked phrases, coins a new word, unearths — or perhaps misuses—one long buried in the dictionary, or seizes upon some military or technical term which gives a sense that he has "the inside track" in that particular field.

Immediately his less adventurous but equally word-hungry brethren pounce on the innovation like dogs on a bone. To use currently fashionable, Washington-flavoured terminology, we are now in a period in which editors have been "alerted" to information "stemming" from "forthright" statements, and "processed" by the "activated" staffs after being "cleared" by appropriate authorities and "implemented" by local application.—Christian Science Monitor.

FOR YOUTHFUL WARDROBES — A new season means much replenishing of small fry wardrobes, as even the optimistic parent who buys this year's togs in a size which her treasure can "grow to" next year, finds herself holding the bag, usually. The wise buyer admits that Nature can outwit any grow-to plot and generally contrives just that; moreover, even a doting mama can't think her darling looks best in clothes which are too large at first, definitely too small later on. Above are two little outfits nicely sized for primer days, and not too expensive. The plaid jumper dress permits easy upkeep with fresh blouses; the same applies to the boy suit.—By Prunella Wood.

Three Generations Perform McLauchlin-Wray Nuptials

Three generations of United Church ministers assisted at the marriage ceremony in Murray Street Baptist Church this afternoon, when Margaret Isabel Wray became the bride of CSM. William Arthur McLauchlin, Long Branch Small Arms School. The groom's father, Rev. Andrew McLauchlin, of Toronto, officiated, assisted by Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, and the groom's grandfather, Rev. J. W. Down, of Exeter, pronounced the benediction, while the groom's brother, Rev. Robert McLauchlin, of Bancroft, acted as best man.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Wray, Elcome Crescent, and the groom is the son of Rev. Andrew McLauchlin and Mrs. McLauchlin, Bathurst street, Toronto. The church was tastefully decorated with baby 'mums, and Stanley Northrop was at the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in floor-length white frosted marquisette, with a net yoke, Sweetheart neckline, long sleeves, and a full skirt. Her full-length veil fell from a matching Juliet cap, and she carried red roses.

Her attendants were Miss Kathryn Ellis, of Mount Clemens, Michigan, and Miss Ruth Ellis of Peterborough. Miss Kathryn Ellis was frocked in floor-length ivory rayon taffeta, trimmed wtih gold sequins. She wore a matching feather cap, and carried a bouquet of bronze 'mums. Miss Ruth Ellis was in a floor-length frock with taffeta bodice and floral organza over taffeta skirt, in pink and mauve. She wore a matching halo cap of taffeta and carried yellow 'mums.

At the reception, held at Hooper's Palm rooms, the bride's mother received the guests in a black crepe ensemble, trimmed with gold sequins, black hat and accessories, and a corsage of Talisman roses. The groom's mother, also receiving, wore dusty pink crepe, with black accessories, and a corsage of Talisman roses.

For her wedding trip, the bride donned a Suez red two-piece tailored wool suit, with matching hat, and black suede accessories.

Bethany Boy Is Wed At Brampton

BETHANY, October 14 — (ENS). — A wedding of local interest was solemnized at Brampton when Hilda Irene, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Maybee, became the bride of Robert Bruce Stevenson, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stevenson of Bethany. Rev. Edgar Barrett, Baptist Minister, officiated.

The ceremony was held at the home of the bride's parents, under a white wedding bell with white and pink streamers attached. The wedding music was played by Mrs. M. Wardlaw.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and wore a floor length gown of white chiffon and carrying a bouquet of red and white roses and fern. Her veil of white silk net was arranged in cap shape, caught with orange blossoms.

After the ceremony a reception was held, the bride's mother receiving, wearing a gown of black sheer with hat to match. Her corsage was of red roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother, attired in blue sheer with matching hat and a corsage of white and red roses.

Later the bride and groom left on a trip to Toronto, Welland, and Niagara Falls. On their return they will live in Bethany.

Beauty Of Canada Thrills War Bride From England

Colorful Canadian scenery on her trip across the Maritimes, Quebec, and Ontario to Peterborough, fascinated Mrs. Paul Meiklejohn, who recently arrived with 600 other war brides, to make her home with her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Meiklejohn, 51 McDonnel street. She is the wife of LAC. Paul Meiklejohn, R.C.A.F., who arrived in Canada about two months ago.

"The brilliant colors, so unlike anything we have in England" she said, "were a constant delight, and I never wearied of watching the changing countryside from the train window. It's strange, we really had typically English weather on the trip up, since it was raining most of the time," she laughed.

Explaining her wonder at the Canadian autumn, Mrs. Meiklejohn said that the leaves fall quickly in England, and the autumns are rainy and damp, so that the trees look bare and black. She also said that the leaves seemed to drop off before they had changed color, so that during the period of the year when our forests are most attractive, English trees are generally bare. "However," she stoutly maintains, "there's nothing as beautiful as the green and verdant English countryside in the summer time." Rather like you'll take the summertime and we'll take the autumntime.

Pretty and petite, Mrs. Meiklejohn is a typical English beauty, with blonde hair, wide smiling eyes, and the famous English "peaches and cream complexion." Accustomed to shopping condition in England, she is still amazed that Canadians do not need to "queue" up for food as they did at her home, Newcastle-on-Tyne. The lights were also a great treat, and she tells of an amusing incident which occurred when the train stopped at Truro, N.S. The army wives were given a special train, but, since there were so few airforce wives, they were travelling with the returning airforce personnel. Therefore, the Canadian boys, seeing the lights of home for the first time in many months, jumped off the train "like a bunch of children" and called to everyone to "look at the lights."

Met Peterborough War Bride

She was fortunate on the last lap of her journey to Peterborough to see Mrs. W. Armstrong, whom she had met on the boat, and who was also coming to Peterborough. Mrs. Armstrong, who had lived in Canada before the war, explained the country to her, and helped take away the strange and lonely feeling. Mrs. Meiklejohn, like Mrs. Armstrong, was filled with praise and gratitude for the splendid work of the Red Cross, and said that she didn't know what the women would have done without the help they received from Red Cross workers.

While in England, this little English girl worked as a switchboard operator for the National Fire Service in Newcastle. It was her duty to take all calls of reported fires, as well as keep the board open. In addition to legitimate calls during the blitz and at other times, the N.F.M. also had duties similar to Canadian fire departments, and were often called upon to rescue cats from precarious positions, and fish adventurous children out of the static water tanks which were set up around the city for use against fires, if the city water supply should fail. They had their share of pranksters too, as well as excited citizens who called in, and explained that they were just doing the washing, or ironing or bathing the baby, before getting down to the details of the fire, and its location.

Met At Dance

She met her husband, LAC. Paul Meiklejohn, now in Canada taking a special course, at a N.F.S. dance in Newcastle, while he was stationed just outside the city. They were married on December 31, 1943. When her husband was moved to another station, Mrs. Meiklejohn remained at her post, obtaining her release about a month before leaving for Canada. Speaking of post-war plans, she says that the English, like Canadians, are filled with wonderful plans for the future, and among the foremost is the idea of prefabricated houses. "All the newlyweds are talking about it," she explains, "and every girl I know is definite on one subject—she wants more kitchen space."

A pleasant surprise was waiting for her Friday morning, in the form of a letter from her mother. She had written it shortly after her daughter had left, knowing that the letter would travel almost as quickly as her daughter, coming to a strange country to be with her husband, and that little English bride was certainly glad to hear from home. She admits she is a little homesick, for her family especially, but is looking forward to making a home in Canada after the war, and is anxious to see more of her adopted country.

New Coach Gives Cotton Hints To Club Leaders

"Cotton accessories in the club girl's bedroom," always an interesting topic to the young girl, was the subject for discussion at the Leader Training School on Thursday and Friday, at the offices of the Department of Agriculture. Mrs. F. E. Walden, new Home Economics Coach for the Peterborough district, discussed and outlined the topic, "Cotton Accessories," with representatives of six clubs in the district.

The Home Making Club, organized by the Women's Institute branch of the Department of Agriculture, is planned for the younger girls, from 12 to 26, somewhat along the line of a junior W.I. Representatives to attend the school are chosen by the Women's Institute in their own community, and they return to their homes to organize clubs, and follow the course outlined in pamphlets distributed to them.

Mrs. Walden is in charge of four counties, with branch offices in Peterborough, Lindsay, Bowmanville and Uxbridge, and is always ready to help. She plans to visit the various clubs; see how they are organized and operating; and offer suggestions for improving or enlarging the scope of activites. In the summer, these girls' clubs have an "Achievement Day," when their best work is on display and judged with articles from other clubs, so that they can gauge their work, and often get new ideas.

Those attending the school this week were: Miss Eva Higgins, leader, and Miss Gertrude Dunford, assistant leader, from Lakefield; Mrs. Charles Davey, leader, and Mrs. W. Golloher, assistant leader, of Norwood; Miss Margaret Ackison, leader, from Lily Lake; Miss Marie Dafoe, leader, and Miss Wilma Ashby, of Belmont; Mrs. Mark Lonsberry, leader, and Mrs. Trevor Watts, assistant leader, from Warsaw.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, October 15

SUNDAY'S horoscope while fairly lively and interesting in the conventional vocations or avocations of the Sabbath day, is not encouraging for business or financial matters. Undercover or quiet treatment of any needful activities would succeed better than the open and above board. Mystical, spiritual, artistic studies or intrigues of any character should thrive.

Those whose birthday it is may find that affairs managed with quiet tactics with stratagen or intrigue rather than direct or tangible methods should meet greater success. Unusual faculties, insight, intuitions may be relied upon to promote success and accomplishment rather than prosaic methods. There might be activity with groups, fraternities, or in diplomatic or political associations. Creative talents of high order may be cultivated.

A child born on this day may be intuitive, original, and work from its inner urges or promptings rather than the objective, which latter hold anxieties.

For Monday, October 16

Monday's astrological forecast is for the sudden descent of an event or surprising visitation upsetting all plans, ambitions and established objectives. Such astonishing occurence may demand a radical rearrangement of the affairs, personal relations and future prospects, reaching far ahead, although the way may be beset with obstacles, postponements and limitations. But by exceptional skill, tact, originality and ingenuity, with aid from influental sources, there should be dramatic experiences and pleasant adventure, both in business and personal ties.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a thrilling and perhaps spectacular adventure, uprooting and transplanting, with revolutionary effect on the future, its destiny and good fortune. Many readjustments and reorganized plans and objectives must be successfully met, against obstacles and delays. But ingenuity, innovation and efforts toward the unusual, may eventually attain success and personal joys—with welcome change, fresh contacts and dramatic experiences. Romance is in the air.

A child born on this day should have exceptional talents and ingenuity, and should have an adventurous, dramatic and progressive life.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Below are some recipes for all-vegetable meals, that so many people enjoy. Vegetarian dishes make agreeable variations in any diet. People who are not accustomed to meatless meals may, for a time, have an unsatisfactory feeling but in time this feeling will entirely disappear and you will thoroughly enjoy a meatless meal.

Celery, Nut and Potato Loaf

2 large stalks of celery, ¾ cup chopped nuts, 3 cups mashed potatoes, 3 tablespoons fat, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon paprika, 2 teaspoons grated onion. Wash, cut in small pieces and cook the celery until tender in a small amount of boiling, salted water. Drain off liquid. (This may be used later for soup stock). Then add the other ingredients to the celery, in the order in which they are given. Combine them carefully, pack in a loaf in a greased bread pan and bake in a moderate oven 350 deg. to 400 degrees F. for half an hour. Serve with tomato sauce.

Carrot Loaf or Ring

2 cups grated carrot, 2 cups breadcrumbs, 2-3 cup chopped nuts, 3 eggs, 2 cups strained tobatoes, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 2 teaspoons minced onion.

Mix the ingredients in order given. Shape the mixture into a loaf and place in a greased baking pan. Steam the loaf for one hour, and then brown it in the oven (400 degrees F) or pour into greased ring mold, set in a pan of hot water, and bake in a moderate oven until firm. Unmold on a hot plate and fill centre with cooked peas.

Vegetable Loaf

½ cup cooked peas, ½ cup cooked string beans, ½ cup cooked carrots, 1½ cups milk, 1 cup soft breadcrumbs, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon paprika, 1 egg. Press peas through a sieve, cut beans in small pieces, then combine all vegetables. Add to them the milk slightly beaten egg, crumbs and seasoning. Turn into greased baking dish and bake in a moderate oven until firm.

WAR BRIDE'S PARENTS SUFFER

When Groom With Small Income Leaves Wife, Children to Be Cared For At Her Home.

THE prevalent marrying epidemic, which is as contagious as the measles, that is sweeping the country and making all of the little feminine cuties feel that have to have wedding rings because Mamie and Sadie and Susie and all the other girls are getting 'em, takes no note of those who are the real victims. They are the fathers and mothers of the brides.

They are the forgotten people of whom the boys and girls who have been caught up in this romantic orgy never stop to think, yet they are the ones who have to pay the price of their children's reckless and ill-advised marriages, and they are among the most pitiful casualties of war. For they are the innocent bystanders who have their homes wrecked and the peace and quiet of their old age shattered by the marriages of their children, just as much as if they had been blitzed by the enemy.

For in times of stress a married woman practically always goes back to her people. Seldom to her husband's. This is natural, of course, but often it works a terrible hardship on the old people who have barely enough to live on themselves, and who have to cut their bread thinner and smear their butter more scantily when daughter comes home to be supported.

Parents Relieved By Daughter's Success

For many years Father and Mother have toiled and pinched and denied themselves the little comforts they craved to put Mary through school and taught some way to make a living. And when Mary finally got a job and worked up to making a decent salary, they were not only so proud of her and so glad that she could have luxuries that they had never had, but they each drew a breath of relief. Now they could relax and take things easier. Mother could have a new hat every season. Father could afford the good cigars he had always wanted. And, above all, they could have the security and peace and quiet they longed for.

But Mary marries a soldier who has nothing but his soldier's pay and who will not have that, perhaps not even a job, when the war is over. Mary's plan to keep on working falls through when there is a baby coming and she has to go back to father and mother. Perhaps the war may leave Mary widowed, with 2 or 3 children to be cared for. Father and Mother will crowd them in somehow. Father will become an odd job man in the neighborhood to earn a few more dollars, and Mother in her old age will be turned into a children's nurse.

It is hard lines on Dad and Mom, but it is something that can happen in any poor household, and it is something that the romantically-minded boys and girls should bear in mind before they rush into a war marriage. Their parents should not be the forgotten people. They should be the ones that their children remember and consider before they take a step that will bring hardship on the old people.

Home, School Associations Plan Regional Conference

The annual Regional Conference of the Peterborough and Lindsay Home and School Associations is to be held in the Murray Street Baptist Church School on the afternoon and evening of October 17. The theme of the conference will be civic responsibility and the chairman will be Mrs. J. E. Richards of London, vice-president of the Ontario Federation.

The afternoon session opens at 2.15 with registration and this is to be followed by the opening exercises which will be in charge of Mrs. E. Chambers, president of the Peterborough Council. Mrs. V. R. Henry will be in charge of the literature table and the address of the afternoon will be given by Mrs. L. T. Boyd of Kingston, convener of the Ontario Federation.

Conference groups are planned and the leaders of these are to be Miss O. Armstrong on the staff of the Queen Alexandra school. F. H. Dearborn, principal of Central school. Mrs. R. K. Hall, president of the Ontario Federation, Mrs. Boyd and Mrs. Richards.

Mrs. Hall is scheduled to give the address at the dinner and the evening session will open with greetings from the Board of Education. C. S. Browne, Principal of the Collegiate and Vocational School will explain vocational guidance and Miss W. Ashplant, health councillor for the London secondary schools will speak. Inspector K. S. Wightman will move a vote of thanks to those taking part in the program. During the afternoon and evening solos will be heard from Mrs. R. L. Hale and Miss Helen Parkinson and Quirt McKinney will conduct group singing.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Twenty years ago tomorrow the Peterborough Lakeviews brought this city its second Ontario junior baseball championship in two years by defeating the strong Toronto McCormicks 7 to 4 in a sudden-death game at Oshawa. Incidentally this was the last time the junior title has been won here. Lakeviews had to be a fighting team to win that third game because the McCormicks started out strong by bunching hits, some of them scratchy to score three runs in the first three innings to go in front 3 to 0. Meanwhile Lefty Irish Reason on the hilltop for the Toronto kids started out in great fashion, allowing Lakeviews only one scratch blow in the first three frames. However Frank Whitehouse pitching for Peterborough, allowed McCormicks only three scattered hits and one run in the last seven innings while Reason weakened. Lakeviews scored two in the fourth and got their winning runs by chasing two across in the next frame. McCormicks scored their final tally in the sixth but Lew LeBarr's battling club registered twice in the seventh to make it safe. Whitehouse did not issue a base on balls, struck out 12 and wound up the game in Mort Cooper fashion by fanning three McCormicks in order in the final frame. Si Dell and Reg Fair of Oshawa were the umpires.

"According to a ruling adopted by the National Hockey League no player under sixteen years of age will be permitted to participate in league games. What a remarkable concession this is to the youngsters and to the amateur clubs developing them!" says Mike Rodden in the Kingston Whig-Standard. "It is extremely doubtful if any player under sixteen years of age ever played in the National League. At any rate if this happened I never heard about it. Hec Kilrea and George Boucher of Ottawa were two of the youngest stars who ever crashed into the "Big Time" but if either was under sixteen years of age at the time of signing the matter was kept a dark secret. So now the National steps forward with a bit of what might be aptly termed misleading legislation. The owners know that junior players must be under twenty years of age on a certain date. They should know that officials of clubs make no fortunes in providing opportunities for these youngsters to make good in hockey. They should also realize that the vast majority of players under the junior age limit lack the strength and the development necessary for National League campaigning. And they should be aware of the fact that if they raid and wreck the feeding grounds amateur clubs will suffer financially and many of them will be forced into idleness and disbandment. Then what would the harvest yield?"

An Unusual Play

When the Canadian Postal Corps club from Ottawa played the Military Training Centre at the camp diamond two weeks ago tomorrow a play came up that caused considerable discussion, especially on the part of the visitors. With an Ottawa player on first big Earl Revoir, Peterborough Soldier pitcher went to deliver a ball to the batter but the spheroid slipped out of his hand and rolled along the ground. It was fielded before it reached the plate. In the meanwhile the runner on first had broken for second and arrived at that station. The Ottawa players raised quite a protest when the umpires called the runner out for leaving first before the pitched ball had crossed the plate or left the playing field. Apparently the Ottawa complaint was justified for according to the softball rules, the ball is dead and not in play under such circumstances, although a ball is declared on the batter. The correct ruling, therefore would have been to send the base-runner back to first for the rule says that base-runners cannot advance unless forced to by reason of the batter being walked.

* * * * * *

We mention this particular play now because Alan Rose of the Brantford Expositor has been discussing the rule in his sport column as follows: "It is said by local softball officials that they'll have some amendments to offer when the annual meeting of the O.A.S.A. is held in Brantford, Good Friday, 1945. The boys have been glancing at the balk rule in the book. This peering was created by Harley Moyer's famous "walkie-balkie" used in the girls' softball games. This writer perused page 32 and felt that the balk and dead ball rulings should be revised. A similar situation to the "walkie-balkie" is seen in the "Dead Ball" rule. Rule 31, section 6 reads: "A ball is dead, not in play, when in the event it is delivered by the pitcher and does not pass the plate or leave the playing field. A ball will be called on the pitcher but base runners may not advance unless forced to by reason of the batter becoming a base runners on a fourth ball." That means a pitcher has only to drop the ball at his or her feet to make a ball. No base runner may move unless to make room for a batter on a fourth ball. Any pitcher can do that intentionally or otherwise. Who's going to tell the difference?"

Importation

"During the course of comment on the foldup of Regina Roughriders because of their inability to use service personnel for a Dominion championship challenge, a Canadian Army sports official suggests that some very useful athletic lessons will be learned from this war," comments Billy Westwick in the Ottawa Journal. "The officer also compliments the Regina team on turning its attention to high school teams with the observation that "it will bear fruit that will help win many championships in years to come." All will be in agreement with such comment, but one wonders if a word mightn't be in order about a following suggestion that "We have been concentrating on 'bringing in' high priced players to make up our teams far too often in the past, and as a result we forget about the home boys who want to play the game for the sport of it, but have no facilities offered them." No one with the interests of football will deny that the most laudable ambition in the world is to develop home talent and offer facilities for them to play. But too often you hear criticism of those who have imported football or hockey talent with no accompanying word of the benefits derived from the practice. There is a lot to be said for the importation of football players by different Canadian centres, and to argue that it did not serve a useful purpose is to mix a lot of nonsense with undoubtedly well-intended sportive utterances. One need look no farther than Ottawa to find convincing proof that importations revived interest in the game here."

The Maple Leafs have acquired Bill Ezinicki, the fiery wing star of last year's Oshawa Generals and by that transaction have added a lot of color to this season's Toronto club. Ezinicki is not only a fine hockey player, fast and clever, but he is the type that always adds a dash of spice to any game in which they appear and it is easy to predict that the former Oshawa forward will attract a lot of attention around the circuit. He was recently discharged from the R.C.A.F. Toronto secured Ezinicki from Eddie Shore's Buffalo Bisons in trade for George Boothman and Don Webster. Off hand we would say that the Leafs got the better of that swap.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

On Monday evening at 8 o'clock the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club, Ltd., will hold its annual meeting. These meetings are always interesting and are well attended, and this year should be no exception. Besides the election of a board of directors for the coming year, there is a vote to be taken on an amendment regarding the fees of non-shareholders, and no doubt this will be thoroughly explained at the meeting. The president will give a lengthy and interesting report as well as the chairmen of the different committees. All-in-all, it looks like a big night, and once again we are reminding all shareholders of the time—Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

The nominating committee is offering a slate of nine names, seven of whom are to be elected. Six of last year's board are seeking re-election: H. Beatty, B. Chesler, H. Freeman, P. Moore, R. Payne, and K. Sloane. James H. Matthews, a former member of the board, is also running, and Robert Hendry and Harold Coleman are trying for the first time.

2-Year-Olds Get Concession

TORONTO, Oct. 14 — (CP). — Col. K. R. Marshall, president of the Ontario Jockey Club, announced last night that Canadian-bred two-year-olds that raced in the United States in 1944 will be eligible for the 1945 running of the King's Plate.

Previously no two-year-olds which raced across the border could enter the event—the oldest continuously run race in North America.

The new ruling permits the Canadian-bred juvenile Uttermost, recent winner of the Canadian championship at the Long Branch Jockey Club meet here, and several other top Canadian-bred sprinters to enter the race.

The changed conditions also permits yearlings to be taken to the United States - for training. Estimated value for the race next year is $14,000. Weight for the major Canadian race also has been increased seven pounds over last year when the scale was 112.

The five-pound penalty imposed on the Plate trial winner in the King's Plate this year has been removed from the conditions.

Patent Laws Good

OTTAWA, Oct. 14 — (CP). — Gareth E. Maybee of Toronto, president of the Patent Institute of Canada, said at the 18th annual meeting of the Institute yesterday that Canada's patent laws, with other legislation, appeared adequate to prevent abuses by combines and cartels. Mr. Maybee was re-elected president and T. W. Smith of Montreal was re-elected vice-president. Other officers elected included F. C. Rutherford, St. Catharines, secretary-treasurer.

TORONTO, Oct. 14 — (CP). — All ready to get dolled up in their hockey duds, but with no one to play against—that's the sad fate of the R.C.A.F. Seahawks on the West Coast. Hawks, recruited from a flock of Pacific Coast air bases, have the makings of what they fondly hope might be an Allan Cup team, but they can't get into a league, Duke McLeod reports in the Vancouver Sun.

Service regulations prevent them from playing against civilian teams in any organized league, the Army just won't enter hockey this year because of a little matter of some players not being on general or active, service, and the Navy isn't a mite interested.

So the Airmen, boasting five former N.H.L. players and a flock of other good men, probably will wilt with the winter frosts and disappear without ever getting a crack at the honors. If a team can't play, it just doesn't amount to much of a team, and hasn't a sunbathing snowman's chance against teams used to regular competition.

Available for Hawk hockey purposes on the coast are Goalie Legs Fraser of the old Glace Bay Miners and Montreal Canadiens, Centre Johnny Quilty of Les Canadiens, Wingy Johnston of the Chihawks, Jack Adams, another Montrealer, and Joe Fisher of Detroit's forward lines.

Besides that, Bobby Kirk who performed with New York Rangers, also could turn in a creditable performance if need be. Then there are others, such as Hal McBride of Sydney Millionaires, Doug Norris, a former professional with Spokane Clippers, Stan King of Port Arthur Bearcats, Lou Lahovitch of Vancouver Lions, and numerous others.

Yes, they are all dressed up, and though they have some place to go they don't know how to get there.

Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson calls St. Louis Cardinals the "Canadiens of baseball," in that they are practically of pre-war potency—something very uncommon these days in either facts or spirits ....Artistic prodigies of the boxing and wrestling rings have to take a back seat to Scrapper Steve Belinki, now pastiming around London, Ont. Steve is quite the boy when it comes to plunking out the Ukrainian jam and jive on the piano, and is adept at the folk dances as well. What he is doing in the ring we wouldn't know..... Harry (Calgary Albertan) Scott thinks with some reason, that Canadian football should be opened up a bit with more daring lateral passing attacks instead of more conventional forms of attack. More onside kicking also could be an improvement and get a bit more surge into the spectacle these days.

Man o' War
"Big Red" as he was affectionately called, "Champion of Champions" lost only one race in his career — and then he was turned the wrong way at the start! Man o'War carried everything before him as a two-year old in 1919 and as a three-year old next year even under a handicap of 138 pounds. He sired War Admiral among other winners.

Popularity follows Performance

Man o'War so captivated the public imagination that on three occasions the odds on him were one to a hundred. His is one of the best beloved names in the Blue Grass country around Winchester, Kentucky, famous for outstanding horses — and tobacco. In Canada, the name Winchester stands for the finest in blended cigarettes. In them the best strains of the world's most famous cigarette tobaccos — Virginia, Turkish, Burley — are blended for the perfect balance of "body", flavour and aroma. Yes, they're winners! Their popularity is based on their unfailing performance.

Robinson Wins In Second Round

BOSTON, Oct. 14 —(AP) — The untitled Sugar Ray Robinson, considered the scourge of the world's welterweight and middleweight boxers previous to his induction into the U.S. Army, today proved that 14 months in the armed service had not dulled his oldtime skill.

For his first opponent since being discharged, Robinson drew Izzy Jannazzo and the Harlem flash made it three in a row by gaining a technical knockout verdict over that Brooklyn veteran in the second round of their scheduled 10-round main bout before a 7,347 crowd at the Boston Garden last night.

Robinson, apparently a bit rusty from his long layoff, took matters easy during the opening session and went to his corner with the honors even. But as soon as the second got underway, he climbed all over Izzy, gave him everything in his book and, after dropping him twice within 90 seconds with terrific lefts and rights to the head, persuaded Referee Tommy Rawson, Jr., to intervene to save Janazzo from needless punishment.

That brief but exciting clash was far from being a matter contested by strangers. Two years ago, before Robinson was inducted, he defeated Janazzo in Philadelphia and Cleveland within a matter of two months.

Robinson weighed 143½ against 153 for Janazzo.

Lacrosse Tiff Settled; Series Goes On Tonight

TORONTO, Oct. 14 — (CP). — All is quiet on the lacrosse front today following settlement of an almost week-long dispute over the playing of the fourth game of Mann Cup series for the Canadian championship.

The two contenders for the title — New Westminster Salmonbellies and St. Catharines Athletics will meet here tonight. Athletics hold a 2-1 edge in games in the best-of-five series.

If a fifth game is necessary, its venue will be announced later by E. E. Barnes of Vancouver, president of the Canadian Lacrosse Association. However, it will probably be at Hamilton.

The dispute was settled amiably at St. Catharines last night after Barnes and four other C.L.A. executives: W. G. Easterbrook, secretary-treasurer, and Lyle Barr, also of Vancouver; Jack McDonald, Mimico, Ont., and Gene Dopp, Toronto, immediate past-president, went to the Garden City to discuss the situation with the executive of the St. Catharines Lacrosse Association.

The fourth game had been set for St. Catharines for last Thursday night, but Salmonbellies refused to play there because the constitution provided that Mann Cup games be played in an enclosed rink.

Mr. Barnes told the executive — which voted 9-4 in favor of meeting New Westminster here tonight — that the C.L.A. assumed all responsibility for the mix-up.

"Salmonbellies," he said, "had not been notified in writing" that if a fourth game was necessary it would be played at St. Catharines and there was nothing the C.L.A. could do but cancel the game in the Garden City.

The C.L.A., however, he said, would assume all financial obligations incurred by the St. Catharines club in making their plans for a home game.

"I am gratilfed," Barnes said, "at the sportsmanship of the St. Catharines club." Their acceptance of the C.L.A. decision was "one of the finest acts of sportsmanship in my knowledge in lacrosse annals of Canada."

Detroit Trains Amateur Trio

By The Canadian Press.

There's a posibility Manager Jack Adams will have an all-amateur forward line on his Detroit Red Wings roster this season. The three, now at Wings' training camp in Windsor, are; Gerald Couture from Saskatoon, a right-winger; Steve Wochy of Port Arthur, centre; and Ted Lindsay from Kirkland Lake, Ont., a left-winger.

Adams so far has given the axe to 31 of 68 charges who reported for training and selected 11 holdovers from last year as regulars for the coming season. He'll probably sign 15 players to contracts although he can dress only 14 for a game.

In between workouts—two hours in the morning and two in the afternoon—the golf enthusiasts trying for berths with the Toronto Maple Leafs are getting in some conditioning on the Owen Sound golf course.

Bill Ezinicki, classy winger with last year's Memorial Cup champions, Oshawa Generals, has become the property of Maple Leafs. Coach Hap Day traded Don Webster and George Boothman for his services. Bill was the property of Eddie Shore, manager of Buffalo Gisons, American Hockey League champions, last year.

Lester Patrick announces again this year from his New York Rangers training camp at Winnipeg that he's "experimenting" with his defence. He's trying Ott Heller and Hank Goldup as one team and Kilby McDonald and Roy Ahlstrand as the other.

Ahlstrand is one of four Americans bidding or a berth with Rangers. The other U.S. citizens are Bob Dill, Alex Palazzari and Manny Cotlow. Dill and Cotlow are defencemen along with Lan Wharton and big Bucko Macdonald.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(AP).—A recent United States Lawn Tennis Association bulletin reviewing the amateur-professional or "tennis bum" situation pointed out that two years ago the United States Board of Tennis Appeals ruled the association is exempt from federal income taxes "because of the amateur character of our organization and the nature of our work." . . . This helps a lot to explain why the U.S. L.T.A. isn't interested in open tournaments or liberalizing its rules. . . . The New York Americans Soccer Club, which is losing Dr. Cesaer De Rostaing through an army transfer, has signed Dr. William Nesto of Boston to play fullback. Must be handy to have a patcher-up in the lineup. . . . Columbia's most experienced footballer, Otto Apel, has classes until 12:30 today—just two hours before the Lions face Yale at New Haven.

One-Minute Sports Page:

"Choo Choo" Charles Justice, 19-year-old back of the Bainbridge, Md., Naval Training Centre football team, has handled the ball seven times in two games and scored on runs of 83, 52, 50 and 35 yards. He doesn't count the other efforts, which averaged 22 yards. . . . The local fight mob is spending its spare time speculating about a successor to J. Walker Wear, who resigned yesterday as commissioner — and whether Gen. Phelan will continue as chairman after his term expires Dec. 31. . . . Judge W. G. Bramham, the minor league boss, is reported as recovering rapidly from his illness, but he'll be in hospital several weeks more.

2 Lady Bowlers Top 600 Triples

Games in the Ladies' Bowling League at the Y.M.C.A. this week were close but on the whole the trundling did not produce many outstanding scores.

Only two of the women bowlers managed to break the 600 mark, D. Prest being a mile out in front with 668 while Marion Timm had 606.

Best single scores were D. Prest 276, H. Davis 244, M. Hepburn 228, A. Clark 225 and Marion Timm 226.

Hill Joins Leafs

OWEN SOUND, Oct. 14 — Mel Hill, right wing player with last year's Maple Leafs until a broken ankle put him on the sideline, today joined the current Leaf hockey family preparing here for their N.H.L. opener with New York Rangers at Toronto, Saturday, Oct. 28.

Hill took part in both morning and afternoon practices. He hadn't been on skates since last December.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Three teams, representing the R.C.A.F., Army and Navy will operate in the Winnipeg Inter-Services Hockey League, it was announced last night following a meeting of service sports officers. R.C.A.F. and Army personnel will lend strength to the Navy club, which has few first-rate players. Several former N.H.L. players are available to the R.C.A.F. and Army aggregations.

Jack Dempsey last night met his old ring antagonist, Georges Carpentier, for the first time in more than a decade in the Champs Elysees night club of Paris where the retired French boxer, now 50, is manager. Dempsey, former heavyweight champion and now a United States Coast Guard physical instructor, was on an overnight trip from Britain where he is inspecting the athletic program. The two former fighters who met in a famous bout in 1921, had a joyous reunion. They laughingly struck a few pugilistic poses.

York Brass Team One Up In Finals

TORONTO, Oct. 14 — York Brass are one up on Simpson's in the Olympic League intermediate finals. They won last night's game, 10 to 1, and now lead the series three games to two, with the sixth game billed for tonight.

Seven big runs in the sixth frame broke up the ball game. Up to then, Brassers had been shut out without a hit by Gloria Miles. Seven safeties combined with three Simpson mishaps turned a close pitchers' battle into a rout. Simpson's had many opportunities to score, but Vera King pitched strongly in the pinches to leave 12 runners on the base paths. Simpson's left the bases loaded three times. In the third Simpson's banged out four singles, but failed to cross the plate. York Brass backed their hurler up in great style with Marg. Robertson, at short and Alice Whalley at third standing out. Lina Anderson and Vera King of the winners and Dot Walton and Nan Aspinwall of Simpson's each had two hits.

WAR'S WRATH BURSTS OVER ANGAUR—Close by a landing party of coastguard and marine invaders, an explosion sends ugly black smoke towering over the beachhead of Angaur Island in the Palaus. Jap guns, from hidden inland emplacements were trained upon the invaders as they moved from coast guard-manned landing barges.

French Newspapers Are Throttled By New Orders Of De Gaulle

By HAROLD KING
Reuter Staff Writer

PARIS, Oct. 14 — (CP Reuter)— There is much behind-the-scenes activity concerning relations between the government and the French press.

More than a week ago the government published ordinances concerning newspapers and journalists which aroused unanimous protest among Paris papers, and the National Federation of the French Press, representing clandestine journals, appealed to Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

The requested meeting between the federation and Gen. de Gaulle took place Wednesday and though no change in the ordinances has yet been announced, it is believed the press will obtain satisfaction on essential points.

The paper nearest to Gen. de Gaulle, "Combat," has reopened the question by stating that in no circumstances do Frenchmen want to see back pre-war papers, with the exception of those which took a definite part in the resistance movement like Populaire and Figaro, even if such papers actually ceased publication when the occupation began.

The paper added: "The new newspapers have their weaknesses but at any rate they live solely on the proceeds of their sales. France now has a press freed from the power of money. That is something which has not been seen in 100 years."

Seventeen dailies now are appearing in Paris. Each at the time of liberation received from the government 3,000,000 francs as a gift— without any strings attached. One million was provided in cash, the rest in stocks of paper. Some of these newspaper now are making money.

Governor Walter Rayfield Of Don Jail Describes Patrols Made At Murder Trial

TORONTO, Oct. 14 — (CP) — Governor Walter Rayfield of Don Jail here Friday described the patrols made by jail guards during the night at the trial of Allan Baldwin, 32, and William O'Sullivan, 22, jointly charged with murdering Robert Canning, a guard at the jail, on June 10.

The governor said a patrol started at 9:30 p.m. and punched the clocks every 45 minutes. He said the time clock outside the hospital annex, where the murder took place, was punched the first time at 9:45 p.m. and again at 10:15 p.m. on the night of June 10.

A guard outside patrolled the grounds and punched a clock every half-hour, he said.

Replying to a question by Crown Attorney William McFadden, the governor said that O'Sullivan, who had been sentenced to a penitentiary term on June 2, was still in the jail as it was customary for such prisoners to be held in jail for 30 days. During that period they could apply for an appeal or sign a waiver which would automatically result in their transfer to the penitentiary.

"O'Sullivan was asked if he would sign a waiver, but he refused," Mr. Rayfield said.

Regarding Baldwin, who had been convicted at Chatham, Ont., in December of 1943 and sentenced to a penitentiary term, Mr. Rayfield said the prisoner had been brought to Don Jail and was awaiting the outcome of his appeal. He did not sign a waiver.

He added that on June 9 Baldwin's appeal had been turned down by the Ontario Supreme Court.

"We had not had time to inform the Chatham sheriff before the escape," witness said. The sheriff would have removed Baldwin from Don Jail and been responsible for his transfer to the penitentiary.

Hen That Lays Oversize Eggs May Wind Up On Chopping Block

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Oct. 14 — (CP)— The Canadian hen that cackles pridefully when she lays an oversize egg has her head in the clouds for a moment but may find it on the chopping block soon afterwards.

Agriculture Department officials said Friday—in an age where the bigger and better usually is sought— that the problem of the oversize egg is becoming acute.

Oversize eggs are too large for standard trays and fillers and are lost through breakage. No market, export or domestic, has yet paid a premium for oversize eggs commensurate with their weight.

Some have suggested that eggs should be sold by weight rather than by number, but officials say this would lead to even greater complications by increasng the demand for larger eggs with the almost certain result that mortality among laying flocks would be increased. Eggs of unusual size often affect the health of the laying hen.

Strict grading standards are enforced in Canada and in this system the oversize egg has no place. And yet the tendency towards producing oversize eggs is increasing, say official reports.

"The two-ounce is the most economical to produce," the Agriculture Department said.

"The bigger the egg, the less the production. In supplying an export market, a large volume of a product of uniform size is more important than a similar volume in any sizes.

"Costs of handling are increased by having too many sizes of packages. In large manufacturing concerns, the standardization of packages has become an accepted method of reducing costs."

Breaks Glasses In Rough Channel

By JAMES McCOOK,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, Oct. 14 —(CP) — The politicians, not the reporters, are asking the questions these days.

Although it is between-session time in Ottawa there's a constant ebb and flow of members of parliament who visit the capital to see if they can find out what is brewing about the general election. By their own admission, they don't find out much of importance and they're willing to accept opinions where they can find them.

Ingenuity: The naval tradition of ingenuity has been handed down to the Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service. A woman reporter visiting a Wrens public relation officer at teatime was — according to hospitable custom— given tea and cookies. The tray was set on a table and the tea cups lifted— revealing an oil painting of a destroyer at full steam.

The office building boasted no teatray, so the Wren simply took a picture from her office wall for temporary duty. It went back on the wall after tea.

The rolling main: M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader, looking uncomfortable with a new pair of heavily framed spectacles, has his own vigorous opinion of the English Channel: When he visited France recently he was permitted to make the return trip to England aboard a landing barge carrying prisoners, many of the men of nations friendly to the Allies who had been forced to serve the Germans.

When the barge pulled out from shore the prisoners sang happily, although they were not sailing for England in the way the Germans had said they would.

Out a bit, the weather became choppy and the singing became less loud. In the tumultuous ride that followed the singing stopped entirely and prisoners discovered they were no sailors. Mr. Coldwell a good sailor, just broke his glasses as the barge lunged about.

$10,000 Estate Left By Aimee

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 14 — (AP) — The will of Evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson disposes of personal property valued at less than $10,000 to blood relatives and makes no provision for her son to succeed her as head of Angelus Temple, her attorney said Friday.

The will was scheduled to be filed later today.

At the same time the Canadian-born Evangelist's daughter, Mrs. Robert Salter, long at odds with her mother, announced that she would not contest the provisions of the will.

"I haven't even thought about Temple affairs," said Mrs. Salter, vice-president of the Four Square Gospel organization before the break with her mother seven years ago. "As far as my mother's will and her wishes are concerned — after all, she was my mother and although we had not seen each other for some time I would like to respect her wishes."

Joseph Fainer, attorney for Mrs. McPherson, said the will "mentions only blood relations; no strangers or others are mentioned."

He added it made no provision for Mrs. McPherson, who was born on a farm near Ingersoll, Ont., to be succeeded as head of her denomination by her son, Rev. Rolf McPherson. He had been so designated before her death in Oakland, Calif., Sept. 27.

Election of Rolf McPherson's wife, Lorne Dee McPherson as vice-president of the Four Square Gospel organization to succeed her husband was announced last night.

Rent—One Grain

ELIZABETHTOWN, Pa., Oct. 14 — (AP). — The congregation of the 200-year-old Christ Evangelical and Reformed Church has its annual rental fee ready — one grain of wheat. The payment will be made Sunday to descendants of Peter Blasser who gave the land for building a church but stipulated that a grain of wheat be paid as the yearly rental.

A.R.P. Workers To Get Scrolls

TORONTO, Oct. 14 — (AP) — About 100,000 A.R.P. workers in the province will be presented with scrolls by the Ontario Government in recognition of their war emergency duties, Premier Dew said today. The presentations will be made at a ceremony in the parliament buildings.

Mr. Drew said that the changed course of the war has made it unnecessary to maintain the civil defence organizations and many A.R.P. groups have already disbanded.

"It is desirable for the government to recognize in some appropriate way the tremendous amount of work and sacrifice of the thousands who have prepared themselves to meet the very real threat of air attack which existed in the early days of the war," the premier said. "The fact that this threat never materialized in no way lessens the value of the services rendered or diminishes the praise which they deserve."

Details of the ceremony are yet to be worked out.

Main Street Topics

AT MEETING

Those attending the meeting Friday night of the civic hospital committee were: Mrs. W. H. Morton, Dr. G. S. Cameron, Dr. J. Malcolm McCulloch, Dr. H. M. Yelland, Aldermen Glover, Ovens, Swanston, Sands, Mayor Hamilton, Deputy-reeve A. W. Archibald of North Monaghan council, John Hornal.

CADETS LEAVE SUNDAY

About 130 Peterborough air cadets and officers will leave Sunday for Toronto, to participate in a drumhead service at the De Haviland aircraft plant. The Peterborough boys will be under the command of Flight Lieutenant A. Ward Smith, and cadets from many Ontario centres will also be there to join in the proceedings.

FISHING OVER

After Sunday midnight, fishermen will have to content themselves with talking about the big ones they caught, until next summer, because the fishing season for bass, pickerel and muskies, closes October 15.

CHECKING ON LIGHTS.

Police department has announced that there will be a drive on motorists who persist in driving with only one headlight operating or with tail lights out. A check-up is being made these nights and offenders may expect police court action: Police say that there have been many "one-eyed" cars noticed recently.

NOT SO UNLUCKY.

Yesterday was Friday the 13th but that date did not prove to be unlucky for three veteran members of the police force. Chief John Thompson, Sergt. John Naples and Detective John Stevenson who have a combined police service for 64 years were all confirmed in those ranks by the police commission Friday.

OUT OF HOSPITAL.

Lieut. Philip Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Webber Turner, Gilmour Street, who was one of two Canadians to escape from the Arnhem trap, has been released from hospital following his return to England, according to a Canadian Press report. He was one of a group of Canadian officers loaned to the British Army.

ANOTHER ONE!

For the second time this week, some one has turned in a false alarm, bringing fire engines to the corner of Brock and George streets. The second dud came Friday afternoon close to four o'clock. Believed to be the work of some prankish children who do not realize the danger that lies in this childish act, it is just another false alarm to the growing list which bother firemen weekly, and which some time might cause serious damage.

A MYSTERY SPEAKER

Rotarians will have a mystery speaker at Monday's luncheon. He is to be a member of the Norwegian Air Force and for obvious reasons his name cannot be disclosed.

RADIO SPEAKER

Major General the Hon. L. R. LaFleche, Minister of National War Services, is scheduled to speak over CHEX at 1.54 p.m. on Sunday, Victory Loan Headquarters announced this morning.

WINS BEAUTY CONTEST

When it comes to beautiful girls the Canadian Women's Army Corps heads the list. L.-Cpl. Margaret Kelly, whose home is at 615 Chamberlain street, won the Beauty Contest at the Roseneath Fair, in which 31 girls participated. L.-Cpl. Kelly is stationed at the Training Centre in the pay office.

TOOLS STOLEN

A tool shack on the city dump on Rogers street was broken into during Friday night and a quantity of tools carried off.

WANTED ELSEWHERE

Provincial police from Huntsville were here Friday night to take Albert Marcoux, Gaspe, and Leopold Gingras, Montreal, to Huntsville to stand trial on a number of theft charges from the Bala district. Marcoux and Gingras had been convicted here on two charges of car theft and one of stealing clothing and had been sentenced to the reformatory. George Houde, also tried here on same offences, had already been removed to the reformatory and will be taken from there to Huntsville.

Traffic Officer Has Narrow Escape From Hun

Sgt Jack Price of Goodwood, Ontario, former Provincial Police Traffic Officer between Peterborough and Lindsay, several years ago, has made something of a name for himself in a lucky escape he had on the Dutch-Belgian border a few days ago, according to a story by Allan Kent, Telegram war correspondent. Writing from Belgium he says:

You can always count on someone quoting the phrase whenever you make such a remark as, "I haven't seen any of our soldiers for several miles now." Or "What's that puff of smoke over there?" Or "Wonder if we took the right turn just now?"

But of all famous last words, those most often encountered are probably, "This town doesn't seem to have any flags out yet," and that was the phrase spoken by Sgt. Price two days ago when he drove his motorcycle into a community on the Dutch-Belgian border.

Price, transport sergeant with Toronto's Royal Regiment of Canada, had hardly spoken them before he was hit on the foot by a German potato masher grenade thrown from the window of a house in the town.

The grenade bounced off his foot and struck the knee of Cpl. Bill Jelly, whose home was in Northern Ontario before he married a Scottish girl. Jelly, battalion mechanic, was following behind on another motorcycle.

"It fell in the gutter and went off with a hell of a bang," the imperturbable sergeant informed me. "Bill's bike leaped forward and hit mine, but neither of them was damaged. We weren't hurt either, although we sure didn't linger around to find out then."

Enemy Pours Out

As if the explosion of the ugly potato masher were a signal, the town was suddenly alive with enemy. In the sergeant's words, "The street was dancing with bullets; it looked like a heavy Toronto rainstorm."

They zig-zagged down the street at a terrific clip, and finally escaped from the town without the flags they had been told was liberated.

The Sergeant was still laughing about Bill Jelly. "He had a new bike and he'd just been telling me this time he was going to break it in properly and stick to thirty miles an hour," he said. "But that was no thirty miles an hour ride we took that day."

Sergeant Price is apparently the sort of person things happen to — or at least that things almost happen to.

"The last pinch I made was an army major who was doing sixty," he said. A week later I was in the army and I found he was my company commander. He remembered all right but it never made any difference to him."

One-Month Sentence Given For Fan Theft

Edward Hummell was sentenced to a month's imprisonment in the county jail after he had pleaded guilty in police court this morning to stealing an electric fan, the property of Percy Rutherford.

Giving evidence in the case, Constable Gordon Trennum said that the electric fan was among some other articles owned by Percy Rutherford that had been left in Miles' auction room for sale. As a result of a police investigation it was learned that Hummel had taken the fan and Constable Trennum said that he had found the stolen article in an old car behind the service station across the street where Hummell had put it. The officer said that when he was arrested Hummel had been drinking.

Edmund Quinlan and Ed. Garvey both of whom pleaded guilty as second offenders to a drunk charge were fined $50 and costs each.

Albert Evans, Lakefield, who pleaded guilty to a charge in Lakeal consumption of liquor in Lakefield was fined $15 and $4 costs. The charge was laid by Chief Garnet Samis of Lakefield who said Evans had been in possession of a "mickey mouse."

Police Commission Confirms John W. Thompson As Chief

John W. Thompson, acting chief constable since the retirement of Chief Sam Newhall last spring and a member of the local police department for almost 24 years was permanently appointed chief constable at a meeting of the board of police commissioners Friday afternoon.

The appointment dates from October 1 of this year and the initial salary will be $2,800 a year which includes the cost of living bonus. The commission decided that there will be a yearly increase of $100 a year in Chief Thompson's salary until $3,000 is reached.

Two other veteran members of the police department were also promoted at Friday's meeting.

Officer John Naples who has been acting sergeant for the past six months was promoted to the rank of first class sergeant at a salary of $1,979.40 a year, including cost of living bonus and Officer John Stephenson who has been on plain clothes duty for the past six months was promoted to the rank of detective with his salary fixed at $1,979.40, including the bonus.

Incidentally the commission decided that cost-of-living bonuses for all members of the department will be henceforth incorporated into the regular salaries, as has been done in the case of employees of other civic departments.

A Veteran Officer

Chief John W. Thompson, native of South Monaghan and resident of this district all his life became a member of the Peterborough police department on Nov. 4, 1920 and soon won a reputation as a zealous and fearless officer. Seven years ago after the death of Sergt. Arthur Thomas he was appointed sergeant and was serving in that capacity when he was named as acting chief constable by the police commission last April.

Sergt. John Naples joined the department in the same month as Chief Thompson in November 1920. Born in Scotland he has been a resident of Peterborough for over 30 years and served with the Canadian Navy in the first great war.

Detective John Stevenson, born in Ireland, joined the Peterborough police department on August 1, 1928 so that he has had over 16 years service as a police officer here.

His appointment and that of Sergt. Naples date back to the first of the present months.

When the appointments were discussed by the commission it was decided that it was time that a permanent chief constable should be chosen.

Popular With Public

"From what I have been able to learn from the general public we could not make a more popular appointment than to name Acting Chief Thompson for the position permanently" said Mayor James Hamilton.

"That is exactly my own view" remarked Judge Sheldon L. Smoke chairman of the commission and Magistrate E. A. Gee added that his opinion was the same as that of the other two commissioners.

A resolution appointing Chief Thompson was unanimously carried and after some discussion it was decided to make the initial salary $2,800 including the bonus.

"I think the salary should be on the basis of a yearly increase of $100" said Judge Smoke. "I would be willing to have it run up eventually to $3,500. I don't think there is a chief constable in any city the size of Peterborough under $3,000.

Mayor Hamilton suggested that the yearly increase run up to $3,000 and that amount was finally decided upon by the commission.

The commissioners also agreed upon the promotion of Officers Naples and Stevenson and named the salary at $1,979.40 in each case, provided the promotions were recommended by Chief Thompson.

Then the new Chief Constable was called into the meeting and Judge Smoke informed him that he had been appointed permanently.

"During the time you have been acting chief constable your work has been very satisfactory" the chairman told Chief Thompson.

"Thank you for the trust you have placed in me" said the new head of the police department, "I will endeavor to repay it with faithful service and give you a better police department."

Recommend Promotion

Chief Thompson said that he had no hesitation in recommending that Officers Naples and Stevenson should be confirmed in the positions which they have been filling during the past six months. "Both are excellent officers" he said "and they give their best at all times."

An application from Gordon K. Hardy, former member of the department for re-appointment to the local police force was received and no action taken.

Word was received from the Toronto Provincial and Municipal Police School that the application of Sergt. John Naples for enrolment in the next course to begin October 23 had been accepted.

Present were Judge S. L. Smoke chairman, Mayor James Hamilton and Magistrate E. A. Gee, Lindsay.

Sgt. C. Chapman Honored For Service

Sgt. C. Chapman, of the R.C.A.M.C., has received the second bar to the Long Service and Efficiency Medal, which is given for 24 years' service in the Canadian Army, it has been announced by National Defence Headquarters at Ottawa.

Sgt. Chapman served under Lt.-Col. James Turnbull for 19 years, when the latter was Officer Commanding of the fourth Canadian Machine Gun Corps. In June, 1940, he was attached to the C.M.S.C. as Recruiting Sergeant, with Capt. D. A. Loomis as Recruiting Officer, when they recruited the S.D. and G. Highlanders, the third Field Park Engineers, and personnel for other units. He was transferred to the R.C.A.M.C. at the local Training Centre, where he has been stationed since that time.

Memorial Centre Workers Praised

The men who have been associated in the Memorial Centre campaign with John E. Keyes, manager of the Bank of Commerce, will deeply sympathize with him in the death of his mother in Toronto.

Mr. Keyes is the head of the finance committee, and in that responsibility he spent three weeks, not just two of them, of the campaign in the Committee's office on Water street. Only those closely associated with him understand the fine contribution Mr. Keyes made to the success of the appeal for funds. His bank permitted him to take that stretch of time, most of every day during the period, from its affairs, but his assistants helped carry the extra burden during his absence. And in the meantime the critical illness of his mother was an anxiety.

Personal recognition of the efforts of the men who "put over" the Memorial Centre Fund is probably going to be overlooked, and their work accepted as a good deed bearing its own reward. The city council paid a compliment to Alderman Bradburn as a member of the Keyes office staff throughout the drive, but nobody else has been mentioned. The compliment to Alderman Bradburn was in the sentiment of appreciation that one member of the council had been so actively engaged in a community affair that had turned out so well.

Did Fine Work

Mr. Keyes himself remarked to the Examiner last Tuesday: "There is one man especially who did a high class job. I don't know how we would have got along without him, and that's Ian McRae.'

The other promoters who deserve mention and public thanks will have to be content,—and no doubt are—with the inner satisfaction that comes with any success.

Meanwhile, the Memorial Centre office which was made available to the comittee in the Crown building, Water street, north of Hunter, is being kept open indefinitely, and the committee is remaining intact, and getting ready for the next stage of its advance to Memorial actuality.

Group Of Girls Help Christmas Fund

Associations that boys or girls form in their school years may hold an important place in their minds in later years, particularly if they have good reason to look back with pleasant recollections to that formative time in their life, with a realization that these same associations really meant something to them in good character building that assisted to make them really what they have them become.

In a judicious way, school teachers can play an important role in this as well, and in this particular it may be that some such personality unconsciously lays behind the story of a small group of girls in the south-end of the city, some of whom it is known were recently attendants at King Edward School, who form the subject of a contribution to the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund, for the purpose of giving some cheer for Christmas to the boys and girls in Britain, who will by reason of the misfortunes of war, be unable to spend that day in their own homes.

When any group of young folk band themselves together in a club for some definite purpose, there is a very creditable display of earnestness and constructive ability evident, when they take themselves seriously enough to set up an organization that goes to the extent of creating a fund by which to take care of their needs in a financial way, which also displays how practical they are even at this stage of their lives.

Having reached the stage where more time must be given to their studies, this same group of girls realized that their associations together as a club had to be curtailed very largely if they were to succeed in their further progress towards their life's goal, so with an intelligence beyond their years, they decided to attend to this more serious aspect of their future advancement, and have taken the residue of their funds and given it this day to the fund.

In the years that lie ahead, the writer ventures to predict that this group of girls will make citizens of the finest type, who will be first of all a credit to themselves, which naturally then reflects on their people and their native hearth.

Penny boxes do play an important part in the activities of the fund, being superceded in the total amount they have produced to assist the objects its operates for by only one other source of revenue, which speaks well for the support given by the people of this city and district at large.

Another of these assists is recorded today with a collection of $4.75 made Service Station on Highway 28, from the box located at Whiddon's which was made up to the even five spot by Mrs. Whiddon, this being the second time that this nice amount has been able to be credited to it among the number of times it has appeared in this column.

Obituary

WILLIAM P. BENNETT.

Seized by a heart attack after an ordinary day at work, William P. (Wink) Bennett, 294 Wolfe street, passed away suddenly Thursday evening, at the family residence, in his 25th year.

Born and brought up in Peterborough, the son of Raymond Bennett and Mary Ellen Maxam, 'Wink' Bennett's death came as a great shock to everyone in his wide circle of friends. The young man was active in outdoor sports of all kinds, and he was a general favorite. During his younger days, he belonged to the Boy Scout Group, when his section was under the direction of Scoutmaster Ernie Wolffe.

Educated at St. Peter's School, and a member of St. Peter's Cathedral, Mr. Bennett was for more than seven years an employee of the Atlantic and Pacific Store. Thursday, after working as usual all day, he was taken suddenly ill.

He leaves to mourn his loss his parents; two sisters, Mrs. John (Ruth) Hesmond, Mrs. Wallace (Veronica) Coombes, and one brother, Raymond W. Bennett, all of Peterborough.

The funeral will be Monday morning at 8.40, from the family residence, 294 Wolfe street, to St. Peter's Cathedral, for requiem mass at nine o'clock. Interment will be in St. Peter's Cemetery.

APPLICATION GRANTED.

An application from Clifford A. White, 317 Burnham street, for a taxi driver's license was granted by the police commission at Friday's meeting. It had been approved by Chief Constable Thompson.

J. Sackville Heads Friday Night Club

Jack Sackville was elected president for the 1944-45 term, and Jim McBride was elected vice-president, at the second meeting of the autumn term, of the Friday Night Club, held at the Y.M.C.A. Friday evening. Other officers elected were George Blais, secretary-treasurer; Rod Blackwell, Don Forde, Norm Courtney, and Jim Shields, committee chairmen.

Although no special speaker was present at the meeting, there was a large attendance, and a delightful program of music was arranged by David Graham and Jim Shields. Norm Allen, president, welcomed to the meeting, an old club member, Joe Cooke, who has since enlisted in the navy, now home on leave.

About to leave for the navy, another member, Warren Trotter was given a hearty send-off, with good luck and best wishes expressed to him by the club.

President Allen said he hopes when boys now in the service come back to the city on leave, they will drop around at the club to renew acquaintances; new faces, too, he said, are always welcome at the Friday Night Club.

Last Plea For Names For Christmas Boxes

The Women's Auxiliary to the Navy will pack Christmas boxes for sailors, Wrens, and members of the Merchant Marine who are overseas, at St. John's Church on Tuesday next and is anxious to make sure that no Peterborough boy or girl serving in the Navy or the Merchant Marine is overlooked.

"We cannot send these Christmas parcels to anybody whose name and address we haven't got," one of the officers said. Let us have the information and we will see that no one is forgotten at Christmas. Please don't leave this for some one else to do and don't depend upon the fact that you sent in an address last year. Telephone 5591, 5592 and 4778 and give us the names and the latest address. And report this information at once, please, because the time is getting short."

Former Examiner Man Back From Overseas

A former member of the circulation department of The Examiner, and later circulation manager of the Timmins Press, Cpl. Dolph "Dode" McFadden, son of F. J. McFadden and the late Mrs. McFadden, 561 Homewood avenue, arrived home from overseas recently, where he served as a bomb-armorer with the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Cpl. McFadden, whose wife is an employee of the Timmins radio station, has been overseas since 1942, after enlisting in the air force the previous year. He was educated in St. Peter's High School here, and before enlisting had been in Timmins for several years with the newspaper.

Veteran Flier Sends $10 For New Centre

Stories keep popping up around Memorial Centre headquarters reflecting its deep and broad appeal to Peterborough sentiment near and far away.

For instance, a contribution of ten dollars has been received from Flight Sergeant Claire Sullivan of the R.C.A.F., who in the midst of battle duties against the enemy had time to think of the Memorial Centre for after the war and to have a "saw-buck" in the fund.

In his accompanying letter he wrote: "The project, as a memorial, should and will no doubt receive general approval by the citizens. The creation of a sports centre as proposed will serve to revive hockey, baseball, rugby and lacrosse and be a great boon to the youth of the city. I am glad of the opportunity of subscribing."

Flight Sergeant Sullivan has completed more than twenty operational flights over Germany. He is a son of Alderman and Mrs. J. E. Sullivan.

J. J. Dorris, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, remarked today that he had "picked up" twenty dollars, ten from one of the city's clergymen, and from supporters of the Memorial Centre who simply did not wish to be left out of the Fund. This spirit is still glowing and is an evidence of the growing impression that the house to house canvass, such as it was, must have missed a lot of folks.

Wasted No Time

One of the comic bits of the last day of the campaign was the account of a telephone call from George T. Sharpe, chiro-practor, Charlotte street, who was almost complaining that he had a cheque for fifty dollars for the Fund, and was somebody coming around to get it.

And during that telephone message, Vic Gallon walked into the office, but flashed out again as soon as he heard the name, address and amount.

Pte. Roy L. Mitchell Wounded 2nd Time

Word has been received by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mitchell, 6 Wallace street, that their son, Pte. Roy Leslie Mitchell, was wounded for the second time, early in September. He is serving in Italy with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

His first injury was received August 28 and he had shrapnel wounds in the face, upper lip and nose. A letter from the boy told his parents that he was lucky both times, in not having something more serious, but he failed to state the nature of his second injury. Pte. Mitchell has been overseas two years and was formerly employed at the C.G.E.

Children Told Danger Of Hiding In Leaves

Children—and their parents—are warned against the practice prevalent at this season of the year of playing in the piles of leaves on the side of city streets. Youngsters of course, love to conceal themselves in the leaves but it is decidedly dangerous with motor traffic as it is.

"I might have killed a little boy yesterday" a motorist told a reporter. "He was all buried in leaves at the corner of Dennistoun and Inverlea streets and I was just driving in to the curb when I happened to get a glimpse of the sweater he was wearing. If it had not been for that bright color I would have driven over the kid because I had not noticed him until then."

IN MEMORIAM

AUSTIN—In loving memory of our darling baby, Carole, age 7 months, who passed away Oct. 10th, 1936, and our dearest wee nephew, Gerry McCurrie, who died Oct. 14, 1943, age 2½ years.

Dear little babies, we miss you so.
Two of the sweetest flowers from birth,
Sent here for so short a time,
God marked them when He gave them birth,
And took them with a smile,
But memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps them near.

—Lovingly remembered by mother and dad, Aunt Edna and Uncle Bill and grandparents Starr.

McCURRIE—In loving memory of our dearest wee baby, Gerry, who passed away Oct. 14th, 1943, age 2½ years.

There's a little boy in heaven to-night,
An angel, with golden hair
And his eyes of lovely brown,
And his soul so pure and fair.
God lent him to us for a short sweet time
To us it seemed but a day,
But Heaven must have been very sad
The little while he was away.

—Too dearly loved to be forgotten by his mother and daddy and grandparents Starr, Aunt Edna and Uncle Bill.

McCURRIE—In loving memory of Gerald (Smokie) McCurrie, who died one year ago October 14th, 1943.

He was only a little white rose bud,
A sweet little flower from birth
God took him to Heaven
Before he could be soiled on earth.

—Lovingly remembered by grandma and grandpa from Ottawa.

McCURRIE—In loving memory of Gerald (Smokie) McCurrie, who passed away one year ago October 14th, 1943.

Far and 'oft our thoughts do wander,
To grave that is far away
Where we laid our darling baby
Just one year ago to-day.

—Sadly missed by mummy and daddy, Prince Edward Island.

DEAN—In loving memory of Mrs. Joseph Dean, who passed away one year ago, October 14, 1943.

"Love's greatest gift, Remembrance."

—Fondly remembered by her husband, son Robert, and daughter Margaret.

Respect Canucks

BIERVLIET, Holland, Oct. 14—(CP Cable).—The Germans, according to prisoners taken in this area by Ontario troops, have a new and high regard for the fighting qualities of the Canadians. Lieut. Pat Philips, Galt., Ont., said Friday: "I don't know if it's true or not, but they tell us the Germans are calling the Canadians 'the S.S. troops of the Allied armies'."

INDIA'S BIG ROLE

NEW DELHI — (CP). — For the first two and a half years of the war, India was almost wholly responsible for supplying the bulk of the war materials needed for the strategically vital Middle East.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

—By J. R. Scott

CANADIAN MORTAR FOR U.S. TANK—A presentation of the 50,000th 2-inch mortar M3, produced by Canadian Elevator Equipment Co., Ltd., small war plant in Toronto, is made in Washington, D.C., by Mrs. Elsie Freedman, to Maj.-Gen. Levin H. Campbell, Jr., chief of U.S. ordnance, on behalf of the plant's 300 workers. The mortars, made in the Canadian plant for use on U.S. tanks throw a two-inch smoke shell which builds an effective smoke screen in five to eight seconds.

Peterborough Nurse In France Enthusiastic About Blood Plasma

Keep up the good work at the Blood Donors Clinic—plasma is our best ally, writes Lieut. Jessie Deyell, former Peterborough school nurse, now with the R.C.A.M.C. in France. She points out that the effect of plasma on patients is almost unbelieveable.

"We haven't seem much of this section of France, in the first place because we are too busy and secondly, when you follow on the heels of the last tenant you have to go carefully. We don't wear blue uniforms anymore—just a suit of khaki battle dress like the men, with high leather boots and leather anklets. For dress up, we put on a shirt, and at all times wear a khaki beret. It is practical and the Canadian patients are just as glad to see us in unironed shirts, as they were when we wore starched uniforms."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

PRETTY NEARLY "NEVER"

YOU MAY find it hard to think of a case in which wou should not show a fit with your partner's four-card major suit. That comes pretty close to being one time when you can use the words "always" and "never." In fact, it is about as near as you will ever come in bridge. Of course, there are times when you should double the opponents instead of going on with your own bidding, and there are also those extremely rare ones when you are sure the side can make 7-No Trumps.

North: ♠ K Q 9 8; ♥ A Q J 5; ♦ J 5; ♣ 9 8 3

West: ♠ 6; ♥ 7 3 2; ♦ 10 8 7 4; ♣ A J 10 7 5

East: ♠ 7 4 3 2; ♥ 10 9 6; ♦ A 3 2; ♣ Q 6 2

South: ♠ A J 10 5; ♥ K 8 4; ♦ K Q 9 4; ♣ K 4

3 ♥	Pass	3 NT

And South got just what he deserved. West made the unorthodox lead of the diamond 6, and was lucky enough to find East holding the A. The Rule of Eleven told him that South had three higher cards than the 6, so that the suit was securely stopped. The only hope then, seemed to be that West was better fixed in clubs, with tenaces sitting over whatever South had. So he returned the club Q. That put the blocks to South, who was set two tricks.

There was hardly any excuse for South to fail to show a fit with his partner's spades at some stage. If he did not do it with 3-Spades on his first response and preferred a jump in No Trumps, because he thought he was a better player than his partner, then he certainly should have shifted to spades when the 3-Hearts bid reached him. Nobody could have failed to make a spade game on that hand, losing two tricks in clubs and one in diamonds.

Your Week-End Lesson

When is it sound to bid for a No Trump game even though you hold a singleton in the suit with which your partner responded to your opening bid of another suit?

Village Quiet Witch Pegged

By ALEX H. SINGLETON
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 14 (AP)—In an eerie end to one of England's weirdest witch tales, the villagers of a little Essex town of Scrapfaggot Green have driven a new stake through the grave of a woman burned at the stake and buried two centuries ago to peg the spirit they say disturbed their nights.

Over the telephone to London, Town Councillor Arthur Sykes told how he and seven of his neighbors yesterday rolled back the big boulder that marked the witch's last resting place and, he added, "we had the first quiet night's sleep in many a day."

This is Sykes' story—and, he added a bit petulantly: "I'm a practical man, but there's been a lot of queer things going on around here."

They started—"the queer things"—after a bulldozer, widening a road, pushed aside the boulder which generations of the townspeople believed marked the resting place of the "witch.'

What sort of "queer things?"

"All sorts," said Sykes. "Bells ringing at midnight. Clocks going wrong. Chickens disappearing. Things being moved and no sense to it."

Their sister, Wren Sally Cournyea (Right) is a photographer with the Wrens in Newfoundland. Prior to enlisting about 18 months ago, she worked at the C.G.E. LS. Cecil Cournyea (Outside Right) enlisted about four years ago and was serving on HMCS Nabob. He was also formerly employed at the C.G.E. Three of them, Steward Edward Cournyea, Wren Sally Cournyea and LS. Cecil Courpyea, are now home on leave.

$250,000 City Trust Surplus May Be Available For Hospital

The county council's unanimously voted contribution of $150,000 to Peterborough's General Hospital, which requires only the approval of the Ontario Municipal Board, was gratefully acknowledged at the meeting of the hospital committee last night as Alderman Sands, chairman, reported the substantial result of its deputation's conference with the county administrators this week.

As already published in progress news of the hospital project preliminaries, the Nicholls Hospital Trust has agreed to place their endowment fund, bequest of Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls, to the credit of the new institution. The amount was quoted at $242,000, but was counted in expected assets at the round number of $250,000 in the discussions with the county's representatives.

Another sum which may become available for the hospital building fund is $250,000 from the surplus of the City Trust Commission. It was mentioned last night by Alderman Sands and Ovens and Mayor Hamilton as the committee briefly looked over prospective sources before presenting their complete case to the ratepayers.

Possibility of obtaining financial aid from the Ontario Government was also mentioned by Alderman Sands. "We are hoping to get something from the provincial government for the provision we are making for chronic and psyhiatric patients. Harold Scott has invited Hon. Dr. Vivian to meet the committee and it is likely the Minister will be able to come on Saturday, October 21.

If all four of these sums materialize, the total would be $742,000, against the presently estimated complete cost of the Civic Hospital at $1,400,000.

Considering the letter received by the city council Tuesday from the St. Joseph's Hospital Board announcing its plans for a 52-bed extension, at a cost of $250,000, the committee decided that the suggestion of a proposed grant from the city "did not come within its province but was a matter between the council and the Board of St. Joseph's Hospital." The letter from the Board was to the effect that if the taxpayers voted in favor of a civic hospital, the Board felt that an equitable grant should be made by the city to St. Joseph's Hospital for reasons that were set forth.

For the detailed work of preparing its private bill to the Legislature pertaining to the change of administration, from the present trustees of Nicholls Hospital to the board of the Civic Hospital, the committee appointed Aldermen Sands and Ovens and Mayor Hamilton. R. A. Ford Sells Store Moving To Peterboro

MILLBROOK, Oct. 14.—(ENS).—A business change of importance took place recently when R. A. Ford sold his meat and grocery business, adjoining house and the building which includes the store and apartment above, to H. J. Tiffin, of Peterborough. Mr. Tiffin is to have possession by the first of November.

Mr. and Mrs. Ford, who have resided in the village for over ten years, and who have made many friends through their hospitality and their interest in community welfare, expect to move to Peterborough to make their home. M. W. Ball, who has been with Mr. Ford in business for some years, will be retained in his position under the new ownership, according to present arrangement.

Early History Of Trent River Reviewed To W.i. At October Meeting

TRENT RIVER, Oct. 14.—(ENS).—"Historical Research" was the theme emphasized at the October meeting of the Women's Institute Thursday afternoon in the War Workers' rooms, Mrs. T. Wight being hostess.

Mrs. H. Mann, convener for historical research, gave a paper on items of interest over sixty years ago. The first bridge was built in Trent River by William Sargent, who lived on the Doupe farm, now owned by T. Brown. The money to build it came from the Government, the townships of Seymour and Belmont and Peterborough and Northumberland counties, she explained.

George Laidley kept the first store, formerly known as the Waller property, later bought by A. V. Fuller, then by Mr. Waller again, sold next to H. H. Pollock, then to Frank Pollock, and now owned by the McLaughlin Bros.

Frank Lee had the first post office situated where Melville Wight now resides. Fire destroyed the building and the post office built on the Lee farm where Thomas Brown now lives. Later it was transferred to Brown's hotel, now the Sedgwick House. The mail came once a week from Campbellford, on Saturdays. Mrs. Lee was post-mistress and kept the store and post office where Lean's store is now situated.

In those days the minister was Rev. D. O. Crossley, who conducted services in the Episcopal Church, built on the corner lot of Fred Cook's property, she continued. A. M. Mann built the hotel now known as the Sedgwick House.

The "Isaacs Butts" took ore, which was brought by railroad from Blairton mines, to Harwood by boat, then the ore went by train to Cobourg and was then shipped to Sandusky, Ohio.

In these days Henry Pollock's father taught school at Polmont, his salary being from $300 to $400 a year. Wheat was then sold at $2 per bushel, and people lived principally on corn meal and fish. Wood was $2 a cord and 50c a cord for cutting it, and wages were 50c a day.

The first saw-mill was operated by Mr. Conners and Mr. Garratt near the residence now owned by Mathew Sedgwick. Another mill was operated by Mr. Waller on the back channel.

Some of the older residents recall that butter sold for 12c a lb., eggs 5c dozen, brown sugar at two lbs. for 25c, and wages in the shanty were $10 a month, and if they drank tea $1 a month was deducted from their wages.

The business was conducted by Mrs. W. Glenn, with Mrs. M. Wannamaker taking the war-prayer and Mrs. R. Scott the motto. The correspondence included two letters from overseas (Fred McLaughlin and Keith Lewis) in appreciation for cigarettes received.

Mrs. Ray Scott was appointed delegate to the central convention to be held November 14, 15 and 16, in the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, and Mrs. Francis Ruttan was named as alternative. The resolutions were discussed, giving the delegate the right to vote on same. It was decided to start the card parties. the first to be held in the War Workers' rooms Friday night, October 20, with Mrs. F. Ruttan and Mrs. F. Curtis as conveners.

Mrs. Melville Wight had charge of the following program: Reading by Mrs. R. Scott, "Song of the Lazy Farmer"; reading, Mrs. T. Brown, "Hallowe'en"; reading, Mrs. M. Wight, "Thanksgiving"; and a contest won by Mrs. W. Glenn.

Hungary Sues For Peace; Riots Flare

Germans Hustle To Stave Off General Debacle

By WADE WERNER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 16.—(AP).—Hungary has toppled into political chaos after Regent Nicholas Horthy's dramatic bid for peace.

Horthy's quick eclipse—at least on the Budapest radio—by Count Ferencz Szalasy's last-ditch group of Nazis only emphasized that Hungarians were fighting among themselves instead of against the invading Red army. Reports via Stockholm to-day said that in some places they were fighting the Germans too.

This all added up to a melting of the barrier between the Red army and a great drive past Budapest to Vienna and a possible final decision in the east.

The Germans took quick measures to stave off the debacle but admitted through the official German news agency that Horthy's petition for an armistice had "greatly damaged the waging of the war."

Tae Over Buildings.

Berlin dispatches to Stockholm newspapers said Nazi troops swiftly too over all strategic buildings in Budapest and that a new government shortly would "try to get Hungarian troops to continue battle on the German side." One report said Horthy had escaped arrest and was holding out in a strongly-fortified castle.

A transocean broadcast from Germany said a "detailed declaration" on the Hungarian developments would be fortcoming later. Meanwhile Berlin's morning papers refrained from mentioning Hungary.

That Hitler and his advisors should pause for some fast thinking before explaining the Hungarian collapse to the war-weary German people was only natural. It was far more than the defection of Hitler's last satellite—it must seem to any German like the crashing of GERMANY'S TURN HAS NOW COME—You have seen sights like this on Polish roads, French roads, Dutch roads, Belgian roads and in other countries over which the once all-powerful German juggernaut rolled. Now refugees are streaming along German roads, trying to get away from the Red tide of war that is engulfing their "sacred soil" despite the promises of their leaders that it could never happen to Germany. This group was photographed near Ubach. A German soldier carries a baby. The American First Army took Ubach in its drive north of Aachen.

Public Ownership Only Hope

QUEBEC, Oct. 16—(CP)).—Extension of the principle of public ownership, operation and control affords the only hope for a successful new social order after the war, A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor, said today. In his presidential address prepared for delivery at the fifth convention of the C.C.L., Mr. Mosher looked to labor's place in the post-war economy and said labor organization provided the only sound basis for a new social and economic order, which should be introduced before there was reversion to the pre-war economic system.

Reference was made to the action of the Congress at its 1943 convention in endorsing the C.C.F. and recommending to Congress unions that they affiliate with that party.

"We have no hesitation in making it clear to the people of Canada that we believe that the principles and policies of the C.C.F. represent more closely the views of Canadian workers than those of any other political party in Canada at the present time," he said.

Looking back at Canada's war effort, he said it had been shown production was a matter of the utilization of human skill applied to materials rather than of finance. Canada would emerge from the war with increased national wealth, technical skill and productive capacity.

State Control

"We have seen that the financing of the war effort is no barrier to production, but there is a second lesson which the world has taught, and that is the necessity of placing under the control of the state not only the conduct of the war, but the financing and operation and control of the entire economic system of the state.

"...When the safety and freedom and very existence of nation are at stake it does not turn over its defence to private enterprise.

"...If such methods are necessary to win the war against Germany and Japan, they are equally necessary to win the war against poverty, unemployment and the other evils which have in the past resulted from the operation of the so-called system of free enterprise..."

The competitive economic order had been severely shaken by the war and the transition to a new system now could be made with less difficulty if it were introduced before there was re-establishment along the former lines.

Eastern Ontario Regiment Seizes More Objectives

By BILL BOSS—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALY, Oct. 16—(CP Cable).—An Eastern Ontario regiment drove forward north of the Rimini-Bologna highway during the week-end, overcoming fierce German opposition to capture the village of Bulgaria, four miles east of the important base of Cesena and 13 miles west of Rimini.

An Eastern Ontario unit led the Canadian attack on the British 8th Army front, seizing new objectives beyond the Rigossa River, and there were continuing indications the Germans in this sector are withdrawing to the line of the Pisciatello River, which crosses the Rimini-Bologna highway two miles east of Cesena and flows northeast and east to enter the Adriatic three miles southeast of Cesenatico.

Major Fight Looms.

The next major battle may be fought on the line of this river.

Capt. Max Porritt of Belleville, Ont., led his company in a brisk two-hour battle for Bulgaria, 1,000 yards northeast of Route 9 — the Rimini-Bologna road. It ended with the capture of 78 prisoners, while at least an equal number of Germans were killed and an unestimated number wounded. Canadian casualties were slight.

When the muddy approaches to an engineer-built bridge over the Rigossa bogged down tanks attempting the crossing, Richards inspected the masonry of a bridge partially blown up by the retreating Germans, which had been condemned by the engineers. He asked

Allies Clamp Tight Grip On Antwerp

Americans Withdraw From Fort Driant Held For 10 Days

By ALEX H. SINGLETON
Associated Press War Correspondent

LONDON, Oct. 16 —(AP)—Allied forces today clamped a two-edged grip on the sea entrance to Antwerp, sent patrols across the Neder Rhine in Holland and fought to within 32 miles of the Rhine in the Vosges foothills.

Formations of the 1st Canadian Army were waging a crucial battle for the opening of Antwerp as a supply port before winter's gales, and the drive in the Vosges, on the south of the long Allied front, aimed at clearing the snowy range before winter. Supreme headquarters said the 6th Army Group, comprising the French 1st Army and the American 7th Army, had "gained momentum" in the advance north of the Belfort Gap.

British patrols crossing the Neder Rhine on probing expeditions, where British "Red Devil" parachutists failed three weeks ago to hold the bridgehead menacing Adolf Hitler's comparatively defenceless northern frontier, were a tentative threat to Nazis fighting fanaticaly in the western Netherlands.

But along the Moselle the bitter battle inside Fort Driant ended unsuccessfuly after 10 days of close-quarter combat. American forces withdrew there before dawn Friday. Installations the Americans had occupied were wrecked before the withdrawal.

Aachen Battle Rages

At Aachen, in the battle of the Siegfried Line, U.S. 1st Army troops fought off the third ferocious counter-smash in 24 hours and edged forward by blocks inside the city.

The Americans threw a German charge off Crucifix Ridge, northeast of Aachen, and in cold and bloody fighting turned back a counter-attack inside the city by Nazis crazily screaming "Heil Hitler" as they rushed the American lines.

Thirty enemy tanks had been knocked out yesterday and today by artillery and planes at Aachen, a staff officer estimated.

Swiftly capitalizing upon the link-up of Canadian troops along the western shore of Savojaargs inlet, the combined force slugged its way westward, capturing Woensdrecht,

Furious Battle With Jap Fleet Now In 3rd Day

PEARL HARBOR, Oct. 16 (AP)—A furious air-naval duel off Formosa, which began Friday, went into its third day today, Tokyo reported after officially announcing the Imperial fleet had joined the battle.

(It was announced from Washington that B-29 Superfortresses struck at Formosa today. Details of the latest raid were not announced immediately.)

Admiral Nimitz announced yesterday strong Japanese aerial attacks precipitated the engagement in mid-afternoon Friday and said "this fight is continuing." The Japanese counter-attack, third of the Formosan campaign, followed new American raids on that island and Luzon.

The Admiral issued a later communique but made no mention of tht Formosa engagement in "recounting routine aerial blows from the Kuriles to the Marshalls. This indicated radio silence prevented the U.S. 3rd Fleet from making further reports.

Formosa Hit

Nimitz had not confirmed the presence of Japanese surface units in the mounting battle. The Japanese Domei News Agency, however, quoted a Tokyo Imperial headquarters announcement last night as saying "The Imperial fleet has finally made its appearance off Formosa."

The blue network and NBC in San Francisco heard a Tokyo radio broadcast this morning which said a Japanese task force had intercepted an American task force east of the Philippines. The American unit, said the broadcast, was racing to the aid of another U.S. task force which was "fleeing" from Formosa before Japanese naval units.

American carrier aircraft attacked Formosa for the third consecutive day and Luzon for the sixth time at dawn Friday.

Gen. MacArthur Friday sent more thas 150 Southwest Pacific bombers against Ceram and Boeroe Islands, southwest guardians of approaches to the invasion-menaced Philippines. Airfields, installations and shipping were hit.

British Fleet In Athens Port

ROME, Oct. 16 — (AP). — A strong British Naval force has arrived at Piraeus, the port of Athens, and will begin disembarking troops immediately, Allied headquarter announced today.

The force consisted of the cruisers Orion, Ajax, Aurora and Black Prince, with Royal Navy and Royal Hellenic Navy destroyers and other units.

H.M.S. Orion was flying the flag of Rear Admiral J. M. Mansfield, R.N.

The communique said the fleet's arrival was delayed by an enemy minefield.

Liberation of Athens and nearby Piraeus was announced Saturday night, but there still were no details on this operation.

Field dispatches, meanwhile, reported that the comparatively few Germans remaining in Greece were heading for Yugoslavia in an effort to escape the trap which advancing Russian forces are closing in the north.

Air Raid Records Toppled Over Week-end With 7,000 Planes In Action

Severe Electrical Storms Fail To Stop Host Of Allied Fliers

Canadian Squadrons Are Prominent

LONDON, Oct. 16—(AP).—The tornadic Allied aerial offensive swept over the great German ports of Wilhelmshaven and Hamburg last night and even severe electrical storms failed to slow R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. bombers in the climax to an unparalleled week-end which broke almost every bombing record in the books.

The Air Ministry reported 11 planes — including four Canadian craft — were lost during the night.

Flashes of lightning silhouetted the brown and black bombers against the sky as they thundered across the North Sea to carry out the 14th and 15th major Allied raids on Germany within 40 hours. Hail and rain peppered them all the way home.

Halifaxes and Lancasters dumped the main load on Wilhelmshaven, while smaller, faster Mosquitos gave Hamburg a paralyzing blow.

Canadians in R.C.A.F. craft and others others flying with the R.A.F. participated in the Wilhelmshaven raid and reported large fires and huge explosions within the target area.

Hit Naval Base

Leading their units to the German naval base were Wing Cmdrs. Vaughan Ganderton, D.F.C., Edmonton, of the Lion Squadron, and A. G. Lewington, D.F.C., Oshawa, Ont., of the Porcupine Squadron.

Despite the weather crews said they found openings in the clouds and bombed visually at Wilhelmshaven, key water and rail link with the northern sectors of the Western front.

During the week-end more than 40,000 tons of bombs cascaded on Western Germany. More than 7,000 planes participated in the 15 principal attacks.

Bombing reached its greatest intensity at Cologne and Duisburg, where four nightmarish day-and-night assaults were carried out in rapid-fire succession.

Worst Yet

Other attacks were directed against industrial and rail targets at Saarbrucken, Haiserslautern, Berlin, Brunswick, Dusseldorf, Hamburg, Manheim, Reisholz, and the big Sorpe Dam, 20 miles southeast of Dortmund.

Never had any city—not even Berlin—been subjected to such saturation bombing as was done at Cologne and Duisburg. These two vital Ruhr centres, less than 40 miles behind the battlefront, were plastered with more than 17,000 tons of incendiaries and explosives which crews reported left them burning from one end to the other.

"The rule book days are over—this is the beginning of the third degree," said an Air Force officer commenting on the two punches.

"The same fate awaits other Nazi war capitals and cities standing in the way of our armies. One place after another will be destroyed so long as the Germans continue to resist."

The Allied air fleets co-ordinated with the U.S. 8th Air Force drawing Cologne and the R.A.F. taking Duisburg. While more than 2,200 American craft hammered Cologne twice in daylight, the British broke two records on Duisburg Saturday morning then returned with another 1,000 bombers—some of which were R.C.A.F. craft—that night.

The total cost for all the raids was 71 bombers—37 American, 30 British and four Canadian—and 12 fighters.

The R.A.F. lost nine aircraft of 1,500 in action Saturday night.

Canadian Units Cross Canal In North Italy

ROME, Oct. 16.—(CP).— Canadian formations with the British 8th Army drovt across the Scolla-Rigossa canal during the week-end and captured two points within five miles of the road junction of Cesena in their thrust westward along the Rimini-Bologna highway, it was disclosed to-day.

A field dispatch reported the fall of the village of Bulgaria, four miles east of Cesena and half a mile north of the highway, and today's Allied communique announced the capture of the town and Tambitolla, one mile east of Bulgaria.

American units of the Allied 5th Army seized the hotly-contested hill town of Livergnano on the main Florence-Bologna highway 11½ miles south of the city of Bologna.

The 8th Army has captured 11,300 prisoners since the battle for the Gothic Line started more than a month ago.

Livergnano fell to American infantry, tanks and tank-destroyers after four days' bitter fighting.

In the hills south of Cesena a general advance of about 1,000 yards was made by other 8th Army forces and a number of important terrain features were captured northwest of Carpineta with 140 prisoners.

Carpineta is 4 miles south and slightly east of Cesena.

Indian troops farther west advanced about a mile, capturing Dio la Guardia on a road leading north to Cesena and took up positions on Mount Delle Vacone, a commanding feature in that area.

West of fallen Livergnano, British and South African troops of the 5th Army cleared the villages of Veggio, Grizzana and Campiara.

Americans Cut Aachen Lifeline

By ALEX H. SINGLETON
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 16 — (AP). — The last thin lifeline of the Nazi garrison of Aachen was cut in the battle of the Siegfried Line today by American forces which battled to a junction from positions north and northeast of the city.

The junction was made at Surselen, three miles north of the city, by the U.S. 1st Army which crushed five frantic counter-attacks in three days and knocked out 50 to 60 of the enemy's tank. Wufselen was mopped up in the process.

With the city completely locked by encircling forces, the Germans were reduced to supply the garrison by parachute.

Superforts Rip Formosa Ports

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—(AP).—Superfortresses have attacked Formosa for the second time in 48 hours, striking installations at Okayama and Heito.

"The second mission was accomplished without loss of aircraft, the 20th Airforce said.

Of four B-29's previously unreported on the October 14 mission, the Airforce said, two are safe and 10 of the 11 members of the crew are safe from a third plane that crash-landed at a forward base. This leaves only one Superfortress lost on the two missions, both of which carried the heaviest bomb loads so far employed by the big planes.

"The weather over the target areas was good, and very good bombing results were observed by participating crews," a communique said. "The same targets that were attacked on October 14 were struck again at Okayama. Heito is an important Japanese airfield and air supply depot.

"Photo reconnaissance of the October 14 strike against Okayama reveals that the bombing results were excellent. Thirty-seven buildings were totally destroyed and 16 other heavily damaged, accounting for approximately two-thirds of the target."

Nazis Evacuate Units In Greece

LONDON, Oct. 16.—(CP).—Berlin radio indicated to-day that the Germans had decided to evacuate Greece.

The broadcast by the Transocean Agency said:

"Because of the German evacuation of Greece the Balkan front will assume a different aspect, said a German military spokesman this afternoon. Events there are still very fluid. The decision in this sector will fall later."

Transocean added that Bulgarian and Russian forces were attacking the Germans in "interference operations" designed to "slow down the German retreat and hinder building up a new German front."

"These 'interferences' may be possible but the German concentrations cannot be hindered," it said.

Reliable reports in Cairo indicated all of the Cyclades Islands in the Aegean sea southeast of Grece would be liberated in a matter of hours.

The R.A.F. said the garrison on Naxos surrendered yesterday.

Main enemy garrisons still are located on Crete, Rhodes and a few smaller islands used as staging points along the route the Germans are attempting to evacuate. A considerable force is believed trapped on them, for sea movement has become practically impossible and air evacuation is becoming increasingly more difficult.

Says Collective Bargaining Deserves Permanent Place

QUEBEC, Oct. 16—(CP)—Collective bargaining must be given a permanent place in Canadian labor legislation, Labor Minister Mitchell said today in an address to the fifth annual convention of the Canadian Congress of Labor.

Mr. Mitchell said the Federal Labor code, which brings the administration of labor relations in war and certain national industries under Dominion authority and leaves other industries to provincial control, had proved a milestone in Dominion Labor legislation.

"The future of this order will be governed, in my opinion, by the degree of co-operation and recognition of its basic principles by industry and labor," he continued. "While protesting the right of the individual to belong to a trade union, it can have no other purpose than to hold the sales evenly in the administration of industrial relations.

"Any person or organization, when they speak for employer or employee, who would attempt to challenge or thwart the code and its administration, cannot claim to be rendering a service to the country or to those for whom they speak.

"I am of the opinion that collective bargaining legislation must be maintained and strengthened where experience in administration shows the need.

"It may well be, in the light of this experience and in cooperation with the provinces, that there should be more uniformity in legislation affecting the right of labor. I refer not only to collective bargaining but also to minimum wages, hours of labor and holidays with pay."

Mr. Mitchell referred to the war-created National Selective Service organization and said that while the job permit regulations were strictly a wartime measure and would be lifted as soon as conditions permitted, the Selective Service organization would continue as country-wide employment service.

Extensive plans had been made to protect the interests of veterans in the post-war period.

"In the post-war period I am confident there should be work for almost everyone able and willing, and under proper organization of our economy and the co-operation of all interests this desirable condition should be realized," he said.

For "the unavoidable pockets of temporary unemployment during the transition period" the unemployment insurance fund would be of great help.

Warns Quebec May Baycott

Liberal Resents Drew Statements

QUEBEC, Oct. 16—(CP). — Wilfred Lacroix, Liberal member of Parliament for Quebec-Montmorency, said Saturday night at nearby St. Gregoire that "Quebec could boycott Ontario manufactured products in retaliation for Premier Drew's injurious statements."

Mr. Lacroix's address, made at a political rally, followed a statement by former Premier Godbout of Quebec at Quebec Thursday, attacking Premier Drew for his criticism of the Federal Family Allowance Bill. Col. Drew replied in a statement issued at Toronto Saturday.

"We should not forget in this province that we purchase a large quantity of manufactured products from Ontario and, if we so chose, we could boycott them in retaliation for Premier Drew's injurious statements."

Mr. Lacroix also said he wanted "to protest energetically against sending draftees overseas.

Rene Chaloult, Independent member of the Quebec Legislature for Quebec county, also spoke at the rally. He said that French-Canadians should aim "at national unity in French Canada."

He said that he would remain "altogether a nationalist. I will collaborate with the Duplessis government when they do the right thing and condemn them if they do wrong."

Urges Anglo-U.S. Teamwork

Says Imperialist Rule Misunderstood

BOSTON, Oct. 16 —(CP)—The people of Britain and of the United States should learn more about each other so that there may be "genuine understanding and co-operation" between the two countries after the war, Malcolm MacDonald, United Kingdom High Commissioner to Canada, said today.

"Anyone with a clear and honest vision can see that there are differences of character and temperament between the British and Americans, and certain prejudices on both sides, which may stand in the way of wholehearted co-operation between them when the desperate peril of battle has passed and unity between them may appear less essential," said Mr. MacDonald, speaking at a conference sponsored by the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

"The most serious apprehension that some Americans feel about Britain is on account of her imperialism. Some of you feel suspicious of the British government's policy in its empire and doubt seriously whether it can be reconciled with the great principles of government in which the Americans believe..."

Many Americans were under the impression that British imperial rule was the same today as it was in the 1770's. Such impressions were not well founded.

"The main purpose of British imperial rule today is that freedom shall be extended as fully as possible to all the peoples of the British colonies, Burma, India and the dominions, whatever their race, color or creed," said Mr. MacDonald.

Packer Chiefs Dispute Union Charges

TORONTO, Oct. 16.—Union accusations that the heads of the three big packing companies had "refused" to meet with the union here last Thursday to settle a threatened strike in the meat industry were denied here last night by J. S. McLean, president of Canada Packers Limited, and G. R. Castle, vice-president of Swift Canadian Company.

Mr. McLean and Mr. Castle said they had been in Winnipeg on Thursday attending a conference for which plans had been scheduled two weeks before the invitation for the management union conference was received from Fred Dowling, national director of the United Packinghouse Workers of America.

Mr. Dowling said on Saturday that he would be forced to tell the U.P.W.A. local unions that there "doesn't appear to be any hope of a settlement," and that he feared they would stage a walkout if their demands were not met.

The union is demanding a "master" agreement to cover the plants of each of the three large Canadian meat packing companies: Canada Packers, Swift Canadian and P. Burns & Co.

Charges Incitement To Strike.

Stating that Mr. Dowling's accusation that the meat company executives were unwilling to confer with him on Thursday was "entirely contrary to the facts," and that the accusations were "intended to incite the locals to strike action," Mr. McLean went on to say:

"None of the packer executives who were invited to Mr. Dowling's meeting refused to attend. On the day for which the meeting was proposed, the executive officers of all three companies were in Winnipeg, attending a conference with the Co-operative Livestock Producers."

Mr. McLean also denied the statement of Mr. Dowling that the invitation had said that if Mr. McLean were out of town that "someone else represent him."

He emphasized that Canada Packers "has never been unfriendly to the union," and that all union proposals have always been frankly discussed.

Says Demand Exorbitant.

"Recently the national officers of the union presented a master agreement containing many demands which the company cannot possibly concede. These include a clause that every employee, irrespective of his length of service, shall join the union within 30 days or be dismissed. Also, a minimum starting rate is demanded of 75 cents an hour," he said.

"This wage demands is obviously exorbitants and disregards the Government's wage control order, especially as wage advances since 1939 in Canada Packers' plants already average more than 40 per cent.

Mr. McLean hoped that "some means of clarifying the facts may be initiated," because the requirements of bacon and beef for overseas are still "extremely urgent."

A strike would also be betrayal of the farmers, who have done outstanding work since the war began, he said.

THEIR LIVES SAVED BY DUNKERQUE TRUCE — Two children, evacuated from Dunkerque during the truce negotiated between German and British officers before the final assault to take the port, guard their parents' belongings as they await removal to a shelter. Some 20,000 civilians were evacuated before the storming of Dunkerque.

Although the locality was being shelled and mortared at the time, he stood at the crossing and guided a Sherman tank across. Eight tanks followed and ultimately an entire squadron was over the Rigossa. The tanks, from a Manitoba armored regiment supporting the Ontario infantry, are commanded by Maj. Frank Braithwaite of Toronto.

The advance to Bulgaria flushed five Panther and Tiger tanks which supported German infantry, wavering between counter-attacks and withdrawals. Men under command of Porritt and Braithwaite sat tight, waiting. They had a perfect set-up and prayed for the enemy tanks to attack.

One did.

In less than two minutes the Panther was completely knocked out by five shells fired at 400 yards range. The other four enemy tanks turned and fled.

Mines Slow Advance.

Closing the gap between the Ontario regiment's front and New Zealand troops on their right was the job of Ontario, Quebec and Maritime units protecting the flank. A platoon under Lieut. Armand Desrosiers of Montreal advanced by night 1,200 yards over mined fields without casualties and seized their objective.

The advance along Route 9 towards Cesena during the last four days has been featured by the task of removing booby-traps from road blocks each charged with 300 pounds of explosive. Regimental pioneers worked with Lieut. R. J. Scott of Marmora, Ont., and Cpl. Ken. Gothell of Brighton, Ont., taking them apart piece by piece and watching for trip wires and detonators. Scott completed the job on a Panther tank the night of October 14, blowing it up lest the Germans attempt to salvage it.

Plowing Match Wednesday

The rural event of this week is the plowing match, on the Matchett property in Otonabee in the vicinity of Stewart's Hall.

Walter Thorne, president, telephoned the Examiner today in the possibility that farmers might forget the date, Wednesday, September 18. Several demonstrations have been arranged, a dynamometer,—you have to say that one slowly, accent on the "mom"—among them, to be displayed by Clark Young of Milliken.

Mr. Young is known to all the Peterborough plowmen by his activities as a director of the Ontario Plowmen's Association. This dynamometer is roughly a gadget for the measure of traction power. But, if you are interested in what it does and why, and your mind is receptive to new ideas, then you will turn out to the plowing match.

Three tillers will be in operation. The restrictions have been removed from the display of farm machinery, and in the forground of all are the classes comprising the plowing contest.

R. B. Munro Dies At Camp Borden

A. B. Munro, youngest of four brothers, and son of Mrs. Annie Munro, 580 George street, died this morning at Camp Borden from injuries received when a tractor, used for towing planes, ran over him.

The late Mr. Munro had been at Camp Borden almost four years in a civilian capacity. He was with the Department of Transport, meteorological division, and was apparently on loan to the military authorities.

Surviving are his mother, and three brothers, all of Peterborough, Dunald Munro, George Munro and N. C. Munro.

pivot town on the causeway linking Beveland with the mainland.

The move forced the Germans to withdraw their line within the Schelde trap with the Canadians established in one solid line.

Prior to the week-end, the Canadians had been advancing in three separate columns—one from the Schelde beachhead, one from the Leopold Canal and one from Antwerp—upon the trapped enemy troops.

Ross Munro of The Canadian Press said today the Canadians were continuing their drive with a series of dogged attacks, and now held an area four miles deep and six miles long between the Schelde and the Leopold Canal.

British Move Up

Northeast of the Canadian sector, the British 2nd Army rolled close to Venraij with its capture anticiated soon.

For three hours today the Germans gave furious battle with infantry and tank in a desperate counter-attack at Aachen, but a storm of American steel smashed the effort to knife through to the besieged garrison, field dispatches reported. Four enemy tanks were knocked out.

German accounts, and the headquarters communique itself indicated however, that the Germans had made some small gains in their determined counter-attacks. The headquarters communique said Allied planes had bombed Wurselen, three miles north of Aachen, a part of which at least had been previously held by American troops.

Berlin asserted Verlautenheide, two miles northeast of Aachen, which had been taken by the southern jaw of the American pincers about Aachen, had been recaptured, along with the village of Knopp.

Over the German radio came a report the Aachen Home Guard is engaged in "a desperate struggle to keep open a very narrow corridor leading into Aachen."

A field dispatch said American 3rd Army troops have withdrawn from their small foothold inside Fort Driant five miles southwest of Metz after blowing up enemy installations. Bitter fighting had raged for days for this stronghold guarding the City of Metz from across the Moselle River.

The Paris radio said German resistance east and southeast of the Schelde pocket west of Antwerp suddenly had collapsed and "the entrance to Antwerp harbor now is clear."

Pro-German elements, presumably aided by S. S. divisions rushed to Budapest from Vienna, apparently seized control of the country immediately after the petition for an armistice was broadcast early last evening in an order of the day signed by Regent Horthy.

With a few hours another broadcast from Budapest announced the Hungarian Nazi party headed by Ferenc Szalasi had "taken matters in hand to eliminate traitors at all costs" and promised "the most ruthless measures," including the death penalty, would be imposed on those who disobey orders.

Ankara radio said the Gestapo was making mass arrests and a report broadcast by the radio at Lille, France, said Horthy had been seized by the Gestapo and taken to Germany.

40 Divisions.

Effect of the peace move on the Hungarian army, an estimated 30 to 40 divisions, was not known immediately. Horthy's petition, as recorded in London, did not order Hungarian soldiers to lay down their arms. A later broadcast of a statement attributed to the chief of the general staff, Col.-Gen. Cites Voeroes, urged the troops to continue fighting "until the outcome of armistice negotiations is known," but the Lille radio quoted Swiss reports that large groups of Hungarian soldiers were quitting.

An official declaration reported by the German news agency D.N.B. said that since the spring of 1942 the Horthy government had made "a complete turn" and "tried by all means to weaken the alliance with Germany and made every possible move to sabotage the war effort."

Confirmation of Horthy's armistice request was expected hourly from Moscow, where Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin are in conference. Neutral sources said yesterday Hungarian armistice delegation are en route to Moscow.

The Ankara radio, quoting Horthy's order of the day, said Hungary had accepted Allied armistice terms. These were believe in Ankara to parallel those offered Romania, which would mean that Hungary would have to turn her armies against Germany. The terms also were said to include the disarming and interning of all German forces on Hungarian soil, restoring Transylvania to Romania, installing a Liberal All-Party government and eliminating anti-semitic laws and other Fascist dictates.

Rommel Dead Germans Report

LONDON, Oct. 16 — (CP). — The official German news agency announced that Field-Marshal Erwin Rommel had "died of wounds."

DNB said Rommel died from severe head wounds received in a car accident while serving as commander of a German army group on the Western front.

Rommel, aged 53, was "one of our most successful army leaders whose name will be linked forever with the heroic battle of our Africa Corps," DNB said.

"The Desert Fox" as Rommel became known in his retreat before the Allies from North Africa, was a field commander charged with the defence of Normandy when the Allies invaded France.

Rommel has been reported "dead" several times since D-Day and was believed to have been wounded when his staff car was strafed by Allied planes several months ago.

DNB's announcement did not say when Rommel was wounded nor when he died.

Birds Damage Mosquito Plane

LONDON, Oct. 16 — (CP). — Eight German aircraft were destroyed on the ground and five more damaged by a single R.C.A.F. Mosquito of Fighter Command on an offensive patrol to the German Baltic coast on Sunday.

Not a single shot was fired at the Mosquito during the whole trip, yet when it landed back at base the outside of the little plane was battered and torn and covered with blood. On the homeward trip it had run into a large flock of birds, "killing some and causing casualties to others."

FO. S. P. Seid of San Francisco, 23, piloted the plane and FO. Dave Mackintosh of Stanstead, Que., was navigator.

"We went off to the German Baltic coast and visited a few airfields to try to find some Jerry aircraft to shoot up" said Mackintosh. "After paying unsuccessful calls at a number of deserted airfields we came to Stargard. There were a number of aircraft dispersed about the field in tight little bunches and we made two runs across, firing our cannon as we went."

"An ME-110 and a JU-87 went up in flames and two ME-109's and an unidentified twin-engined aircraft were badly damaged.

"Then we came to Kolberg where a whole flock of JU-88's were dispersed around the place. We went in at them with our cannon and six of them went up with terrific internal explosions and sheets of flame. Another couple were pretty badly damaged before we left.

"Not a single shot was fired at us during all these attacks, but shortly after we left Kolberg we ran into a flock of big birds. The wing and tail of the aircraft got badly knocked about and the wind-screen was covered in blood and feathers."

Petsamo Falls To Red Army

By W. W. HERCHER

Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 16 (AP)—The German sea escape route from northern Finland has been cut with the capture of the Arctic port of Petsamo and advancing Red Army tanks were reported today to have won an important road junction close to the Norwegian border.

Pravda described the newly-won highway centre as the "key to Norway," without naming it further and said it had been captured after Russian forces beat off a counter-attack by a German armored column retreating toward Norway.

Pravda said the land and sea assault on Petsamo, capture of which was announced officially by Moscow last night, routed two picked enemy Alpine divisions in a three-hour battle.

Moscow did not report on progress of the Red Army in Hungary.

The battle for Belgrade was not mentioned in the official Soviet communique, but Berlin acknowledged that Russian troops and tanks and Marshal Tito's Yugoslav Partisans had fought their way into the city after reaching the outskirts Saturday.

Berlin implied also that other Soviet troops had crossed into German East Prussia on a 27-mile front in the Memel territory.

Moscow announced Red Army troops had advanced three miles west of the fallen Latvian capital, Riga, as they steadily herded the enemy into the narrow trap sprung when the Soviet 1st Baltic Army reached the Lithuanian coast north of Memel.

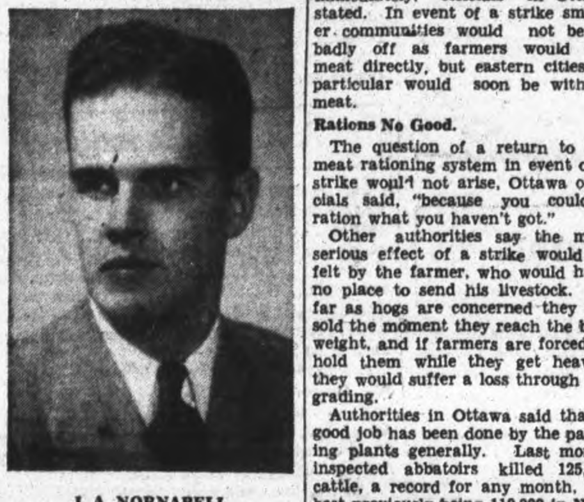
Mutual Life Representative



J. A. NORNABELL

The Mutual Life of Canada has announced that Mr. John A. Nornabell of this city will in the future devote his whole time to field work.

Mr. Nornabell has had wide experience both at the Company's Head Office and in Branch Offices throughout Ontario since joining The Mutual Life in 1933. For the past two and a half years he has been Branch Secretary at Peterborough.

He has successfully completed all the examinations leading to the awarding of the degree of Chartered Life Underwriter.

Strike Would Bring Meat Shortage

By The Canadian Press

Local unions of the United Packinghouse Workers (C.I.O.) are meeting this week to consider calling a strike in packing plants across the Dominion in their demand for a master agreement with the packing companies. Since the locals first authorized a strike in votes which started at the beginning of this month, a deadlock has existed between the workers and the companies.

At Quebec today, Labor Minister Mitchell announced that a commissioner would be appointed soon to investigate the dispute and attempt a settlement. The Minister was in Quebec to address the annual convention of the Canadian Congress of Labor and he said he expected to be able to name the commissioner shortly.

Union officials estimate that 15,000 workers at packing plants across Canada are effected. Employees at 11 big plants have already voted authorization of a strike. Fred Dowling, business agent of the union, says "there doesn't appear to be any hope of settlement; the next logical move will be a strike."

If a strike develops and livestock ceases to move through the plants Canadian cities will feel the pinch inside a week or 10 days, while meat exports to Britain and the armed forces overseas would stop immediately, officials in Ottawa stated. In event of a strike smaller communities would not be so badly off as farmers would sell meat directly, but eastern cities in particular would soon be without meat.

Rations No Good.

The question of a return to the meat rationing system in event of a strike would not arise, Ottawa officials said, "because you couldn't ration what you haven't got."

Other authorities say the most serious effect of a strike would be felt by the farmer, who would have no place to send his livestock. As far as hogs are concerned they are sold the moment they reach the best weight, and if farmers are forced to hold them while they get heavier they would suffer a loss through regrading.

Authorities in Ottawa said that a good job has been done by the packing plants generally. Last month inspected abbatoirs killed 125,000 cattle, a record for any month, the best previously being 119,000 in November of 1942. Even so, some plants have been working at less than capacity.

Nothing official has been said about the prospects of Federal intervention to end the deadlock. The union, however, says there are indications the Government has taken some action. "There is no doubt the Department of Labor has requested a meeting between its representatives and company and union officials," Dowling said.

Captain Allan Platt Wounded In Italy

COBOURG, Oct. 16—(ENS)—Word has been received here that Captain Allan Platt, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Platt, has been wounded in Italy. He received a piece of shrapnel in his left shoulder and is recovering in hospital. Formerly with the 22nd Medium Battery, militia, he went active shortly after the war started and went overseas in 1941 with the rank of lieutenant, with the 347th Battery, later the 88th. He was promoted to captain last year.

His parents reside here and he has three brothers, Donald, Robert and Kenneth and one sister, Mrs. W. Brett.

Memorial Service

Members of the local Legion paraded to the Baptist Church on Sunday for a memorial service in memory of Able Seaman Fred Lonsberry of Coboug. The sermon was preached by Rev. S. D. France. AB Lonsberry went down with the Valleyfield.

Blood Donors Clinic

The date of the blood donor clinic here has been changed from October 18 to Oct. 27. Due to the fact that the district medical association is meeting here on October 18, it was necessary to postpone the clinic as the doctors' services are used during the clinic.

50 Quilts Completed By Cobourg Road Unit

HASTINGS, Oct. 16 (ENS)—The Cobourg Road Red Cross held their October meeting at the home of Mrs. Dickey with 12 members present. Two quilts were completed during the afternoon, this making a total of 50 quilts since the beginning of the year. The receipt of the bingo held in the Town Hall amounted to $60.35 and these are being used for the Christmas parcels for the eight boys overseas.

A letter was read from Harry Porter acknowledging the cigarettes and parcel he had received.

A committee in charge of buying the articles for the Christmas parcels were appointed as follows: Mrs. G. Dickey, Mrs. J. Powers and Miss C. Williamson. The Christmas cakes are being made by members with the fruit and raisins being donated.

The boxes will be packed on October 20 at Miss Clara Williamson's home.

The sewing convener handed in three children's coats which had been made during the past month.

The November meeting will be at Mrs. Arthur Beamish's home.

P.O. Stanley Gay Evades Nazis; Home On Leave

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 16.—(ENS).—Home from overseas on a thirty-day furlough, Pilot Officer Stanley F. Gay, R.C.A.F., reports that Canadian boys are doing a swell job. It was on the 17th operational sortie over Western Europe that his aircraft was damaged so badly that the crew of seven had to bail out in enemy territory and for seven weeks he evaded capture until liberated by advancing Allied troops.

Although showing marks of petrol burns, 'Happy' is feeling fine. He was born in Campbellford and educated in the Public and High schools here. He enlisted on November 27, 1942, trained at Manning Depot and Trenton and went overseas in September, 1943, where he continued his training with the heavy bombers as an air gunner.

Pilot Officer Gay is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gay of town. His father is a veteran of the last war and is now serving with the Veterans' Guard at Port Arthur.

Fire Destroy Barn Entire Crop Lost

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 16.—Fire of an unknown origin completely destroyed the large frame barn and entire season's crop owned by Raymond McConnell, five miles west of Stirling on the Campbellford road Friday evening. The fire started approximately at 7.30 and quickly got beyond control, although neighbors saved other nearby buildings by forming a bucket brigade.

The entire season's crop from the 100-acre farm went up in flames as did a milking machine and other stable equipment. The barn and stable had only been recently improved with modern equipment installed. What livestock was in the barn was saved. Loss, estimated at over $5,000, was partially covered by insurance.

To Aid Science

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (AP) — Thomas Franklyn Manville, much married heir to the Asbestos millions, plans to leave the bulk of his estate to medical science. Manville's provision for medicine in his will was made public Saturday when papers were filed in Supreme Court in connection with his efforts to regain limited powers over a trust fund of $2,000,000 set up for him by his father.

Cruiser Sunk

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Oct. 16 (CP-Aneta) — The Netherlands cruiser Sumatra, 7,000 tons, was among the ships scuttled by the Allies to form breakwaters along the invasion coast of France in the first days after D-Day, June 6. Supreme Headquarters announced last night.

What causes NEURITIS?
Like many other complaints, the cause may be simply lack of vitamins in the daily diet.

Many ailments, according to modern science, are not due to organic trouble, but to shortage of vitamins. At first, it was thought that lack of vitamin B1 was the cause of neuritis suffering. Now we know that all 5 vitamins are necessary, because each aids the other to function. You can now get them combined in "ALL-in-ONE" Vitamin Tablets (with valuable minerals and yeast added). Take daily for a month. See how much better you feel. Only $2.15 for a month's supply. At most drug stores.

Introducing The Victory Loan Salesmen

This is the first in a series of six advertisements to introduce to you the Victory Loan salesmen for the City and County of Peterborough, and to give a brief biography of each.

Rufus Payne

Mr. Rufus Payne, 592 Water Street, will again be a canvasser on the Seventh Victory Loan, this being six drives on which he has canvassed.

Mr. Payne is quite well known in this vicinity, having had a general store in Warsaw, Ontario, for some time, and before being in that business was a farmer in Dummer Township. In 1932 he sold his interest in the store and came to Peterborough to associate himself with the London Life Insurance Company, and at the present time is still with this firm as a top-ranking salesman.

He saw active service overseas during World War No. 1, having served in the Sixth Canadian Reserve Battalion.

Louis M. Brooks

Louis (Lou) M. Brooks, 199 Dalhousie Street, is again a salesman on the Seventh Victory Loan, starting on his fifth campaign. Mr. Brooks was formerly a business man in the city, and for many years operated the Brooks Grill, Hunter and George Streets, which he sold approximately two years ago. The Brooks family have been citizens of Peterborough since 1900.

During the last World War, Mr. Brooks was connected with the Imperial Munition Board as Chief Inspector of Steel, and was discharged owing to the cessation of activities in 1919. During this World War he has had to content himself with being a regular blood donor at the Red Cross Clinic.

Mrs. Mary C. Shortread, a daughter, is Dietitian at the Ferry Transport Command at Dorval, Que. Her husband, Major J. W. K. Shortread, is attached to the Royal Regiment of Canada, Headquarters staff in France.

Woodrow Roberts

Mr. Woodrow (Woodie) Roberts, 304 Frederick Avenue, who has been in Peterborough about seven years, is again canvassing on behalf of the 7th Victory Loan. Mr. Roberts, for a time was employed by J. K. Hughes, and also at Grafton's, and at present is associated with the London Life Insurance Company. He is a member of the Y's Men's Club.

Signalman Ed. Spurway, who is stationed on the Pacific Coast, is a brother-in-law.

J. S. Curtis

J. S. Curtis, or Jack Curtis, as he is known in business circles, is a charter member on the roster of Victory Loan salesmen. This will be the Seventh Loan as canvasser for Jack. When not working on Victory Loan and Red Cross-Community Chest drives he is associated with Davis-Thompson Company, General Insurance office, with which firm he has been connected for twenty-six years. He is also a representative of the Imperial Life Assurance Company.

Marvin W. White

Mr. Marvin H. White, 527 Gilmour Street, Branch Manager of the Manufacturers' Life Insurance Company, is again back on the sales staff of the local Victory Loan drive. This makes a total of six drives on which Mr. White has canvassed.

He is very conversant with war requirements, having been overseas in the last World War, at which time he was in the Heavy Artillery with Fourth Heavy Siege Battery from Saint John, New Brunswick.

Mr. White, who is an ex-banker, came here from Windsor, and has been Branch Manager of the local branch of the "Manufacturers" for over four years. He is a member of the Kiwanis Club, the Curling Club, and a member of the Executive of the Life Underwriters' Association.

James Skinner

Mr. James Skinner, 273 Monaghan Road, is practically a charter member as far as Victory Loans are concerned. Due to illness in his family, Mr. Skinner had to withdraw from the canvass during the Sixth Loan, but this time Headquarters is pleased to announce that he again will be back in his groove.

Mr. Skinner, who is a charter and an honorary member of the Kiwanis Club, is always a willing worker on the Red Cross, Community Chest, and other civic drives. His only son, Fraser Skinner, saw active service in the last War, and at the present time he is with the C.P.R., residing in Kingston.

Walt. E. Metheral

Mr. Walter E. Metheral, 301 Boswell Avenue, is another charter member as far as Victory Loans are concerned, having served on the past six Loan campaigns—and he will again be canvassing on the Seventh Victory Loan.

Mr. Metheral is a familiar figure to the Peterborough citizens, having been connected with Thomas Mark & Sons, who are in the General Insurance business, for approximately twelve years. Prior to this connection he was in the knitted textile field for twenty years as a commercial traveller.

He was born in Peterborough, and at all times has the interests of the city at heart, and is always a voluntary and active canvasser during the annual Community Chest drives.

T. J. Lawlor

T. J. Lawlor, 457 Gordon Avenue, the congenial proprietor of the South Beach Hotel, is not entering a new field of endeavor by canvassing in this, the 7th Victory Loan. Mr. Lawlor for many years was in the salesman's category while residing in Detroit. However, being very partial to this part of Ontario and taking an interest in local affairs, he has taken over the South Beach Hotel, and has made it a most enjoyable spot on Clear Lake for the past two summers.

Mr. Lawlor knows the value of Victory Loans, having seen service overseas during World War No. 1, at which time he was a Lieutenant in the 8th Canadian Railway Troops. He will be canvassing in District "B" along with Jack Curtis and Marvin White, and should be an estimable addition to this group.

The New Chief Of Police

The people of Peterborough are well pleased with the action which the Police Commission has taken in appointing John W. Thompson as head of the local force, and this feeling extends also to the promotions of John Naples and John Stevenson. These men have all had long service on the force, they know Peterborough intimately and they know what it needs in the matter of police service. They have all distinguished themselves by personal bravery, excellent character and by a refusal to allow anything or anyone to influence them in the proper discharge of their duties; this last fact, we are sure, weighed heavily with the Police Commission when it considered their promotions. The Examiner expresses special congratulations to Chief Thompson, who has done first-rate work during his period as acting Chief; he told the Commission that he would give the city a better police department and we believe him; his promotion was well-earned and thoroughly deserved.

It was Herbert Spencer who said that policemen are soldiers who act alone. For weeks at a time their work may be dull routine and then, at a moment's notice, they are called upon to display bravery and resource equal to that of men on the battle-field. It may truly be said of policemen that "he who hesitates is lost". If the morale of a police force is not high the long days of routine work deaden the intelligence, and when the time for rapid action comes the constable finds himself at a loss. One of the most important duties of a Chief of Police is to keep his men alert even when there is little for them to do which demands alertness. The police force is the foundation upon which municipal order is built, and it is the particular job of the Chief to see that the foundation is not sand, but enduring rock.

Resistance At Aachen

When it was apparent that the city of Aachen would fall into our hands the Allied commander offered the German garrison there an opportunity for honourable surrender. White flags were run up in various parts of the city, and it was clear that the civil population wanted to bring the battle to an end. But the German commander refused the offer brusquely, and during the four hours' grace which he was allowed for thought, he received substantial reinforcements from outside. So now the Allied troops have no alternative but to level Aachen with the ground, killing civilian and soldier alike in a needless slaughter.

Is this what is going to happen every time a German city comes under our guns? It may be. Hitler has called for "a fanatical will to resist", and his Gestapo is busy everywhere seeing that fanaticism is inspired, or at least successfully simulated. The officers of Himmler's SS are in Aachen, and they shoot any man who shows signs of weakening. Of course Aachen will be taken, and very few who are in it now will escape injury and loss, but the Nazis do not care. They have sworn to pull everything down with them if they fall, and they mean to do it.

Viewed thus, the battle of Germany seems to stretch before us endlessly. If every city must be reduced to dust, and every garrison wiped out, the slaughter will be as long as it is horrible and unnecessary. The resistance, it is clear from the evidence of prisoners at Aachen, does not come from the people, or even from the ordinary troops; it comes from the Nazi party, and is enforced by its armed killers.

The resistance of Aachen has been given the widest publicity everywhere in Germany, and has been described as a glorious emanation of the true German spirit. The blood of the German people will run cold as they hear this news, but what can they do about it? Be killed by the enemy or be killed by the SS—that is their choice. Their despair cannot be imagined. Meanwhile, if they choose to make every German city an Aachen, there is little that we can do but fall in with their plan.

Advice On War Marriages

This war, like all wars, has caused many marriages, and as always there are people who shake their heads and deplore the fact. But wars, marriages and babies are all inseparable; the emotional tension which results from the first inevitably brings the other two into being. Nature insists that the world be populated, and cares little for the groans of sociologists.

The general director of the American Institute of Family Relations, Dr. Paul Popenoe, takes what we regard as a very gloomy view of war marriages. He claims that at least a million couples have married recently in the U.S.A. who would not have done so if there had been no war; as a result, 'personal adjustments' will have to be made. When a sociologist talks about 'personal adjustments' we know that he means something unpleasant.

In most war marriages, says Dr. Popenoe, the bride is the aggressor; she wants to nail her man before he gets away. And therefore, this gentleman says—

> "Her principal job in life must be to make herself into the ideal her husband expects. Men coming home from the war will be in no mood to adjust themselves to the whims of a woman".

Those are hard words. No woman can possibly become the ideal that some men cherish—that is to say, a combination of movie vamp, unpaid domestic servant, nursemaid, Perfect Lady and courtesan. A marriage in which the adjustment is all on one side will never be a success.

But Dr. Popenoe is determined to be hard on women. He goes on:

> "War brides must comprehend that no girl was ever born with the talent to be a perfect wife for a specific man. Happiness in marriage is an achievement, an accomplishment resulting from earnest effort. So the bride must study her husband, and the best teacher is his mother.
> "A soldier husband's letters are another index to his true self. In them, sometimes between the lines, the bride may discern what he expects to find when he comes home. She'd better be prepared to deliver it".

That is a tall order. Suppose the absent husband has not been happy with his mother, and wants a change of treatment from his wife? And suppose the mother does not know much about him; few mothers know their grown-up sons as well as they imagine they do.

Expert though he apparently is, we think that Dr. Popenoe is barking up the wrong tree. No marriage is going to be a success in which the wife makes herself a doormat for her husband. And we do not like the idea that a girl who marries in haste and has forfeited all right to a personality of her own. Probably the war has resulted in some foolish marriages, but they will not be improved by these foolish remedies.

Socialism And The Labour Movement

Socialism at present is very hard to define. Classical socialism, as defined in dictionaries, has frequently little connection with the programs of parties which describe themselves as socialist, and some agencies which would ordinarily be expected to support socialist movements are in actual fact strongly opposed to them. Thus it happens in Britain that some of the strongest opposition to socialist proposals comes from leaders of the Labour Party and from men who are prominent in the trades union organizations. This is also observable in the United States, and in a recently published biography the president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, Mr. David Dubinsky, wrote thus:

> "As you know, I was a socialist for many years. When I resigned from the Socialist party in 1936, it was for purely political reasons. We believed in the New Deal and wanted Roosevelt re-elected. But since that time I have come to the conclusion that socialism, certainly the orthodox variety, will never work. Trade unionism needs capitalism like a fish needs water. Democracy is possible only in a society of free enterprise, and trade unionism can live only in a democracy. Look what's happened to trade unionism in the totalitarian countries".

Dubinsky's record as a union leader is exceptionally good; he has brought his followers a long way from the bad working conditions and the miserable wages which they once endured. And apparently Dubinsky is convinced that further progress is possible under a democratic capitalist system, but not under socialism. Dubinsky has seen the problem from the inside, and his conclusion is one which may give other union leaders, particularly in Canada, food for thought.

NOTE AND COMMENT

An Omaha boy has swallowed a cuff-link and is none the worse. Except, of course, that his family now refer to him as the Missing Link.

"Italy Bankrupt Morally and Physically" says a headline. And without seeming money-mad, may we say also — financially?

Farming News and Views

By HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

THERE has seldom been a year in which we have been served with rain, both East and West, when we most needed it. There have been dry spots, one of which is around Hawkesbury, in Ontario, and across the Ottawa River around Grenville, Quebec. Hay is selling at $20 per ton around that district, and in Quebec, where it is the principal crop it has been a very short one. It looks as though hay will be in good demand all over these two central provinces. Cattle feeders are putting in a few extra head and the result of the Manitoulin auction sale of stockers would indicate that good prices will be paid for cattle to go on winter feed.

There is every promise of beef prices staying strong. The people of Europe have been starved for meat and they must get nourishing food as soon as it can be distributed without fear of German looting.

The Argentine is getting into great difficulty with the United States, and if that South American country persists in its pro-German performances, there will be nothing for the Allied Nations to do but stop trading with her. We learned the fatal results of failing to be firm enough, previous to this war, with Nations that were out to rob the world by an armed effort. No matter what happens with the Argentine, our beef will all be wanted, and there is a probability that the shortage might be very acute.

IT is interesting to note that Great Britain and Northern Ireland since 1939, have increased their arable, or cultivated land from 13,000,000 acres to 19,200,000 acres, and have reduced their area in permanent grass from 1,900,000 acres to 12,000,000 acres. There are water meadows and other grazing lands in Britain that are not fit for cultivation at any time but a good deal of their grass will be in the form of short leys, being seeded for three or four years to grass and then broken again for crops of grain. Wheat has been increased from 1,800,000 acres to 3,200,000 acres, but when the war is over, the chances are that much less wheat will be grown as on a good deal of this land other more satisfactory crops can be produced.

IT has been proposed in England that farmers should pass on to the tenants, following them, soil records of their fields and reports on any soil analysis made recently. Exact knowledge of the condition of land you begin to make a living on is regarded as very important.

A RECENT census shows that there are some six million head of cattle and about the same number of sheep and goats in Tanganyika, which until 1918 was German East Africa, but has been a British colony since. We won't get much competition at that distance, but they ought to feed some countries as they have only about half the number of people there, as they have cattle. They are probably Brahman cattle, but there is quite a demand in Texas and Mexico for these cattle to cross with Herefords, Angus and Shorthorns, and the product gives a very high killing and percentage, often from two to five per cent greater than that of these three beef breeds on the range.

NOT only has Ontario a banner crop of apples this year, but Wm. Wilson, of Alberta, just returned from the Annapolis Valley, in Nova Scotia, told me that the oldest apple growers in that famous valley say this the best crop ever produced there. Mr. Wilson has been buying Shorthorns in Ontario for George Chase, the apple king of this great orchard country. Billy Wilson said to me, "And it isn't scratched yet." He is going to Alberta this week to pick up a few cars of horses to ship to Nova Scotia. More power is needed on the farms there and the people are not as keen on tractors as those further West. Wilson says Alberta farmers are so busy running tractors that they haven't time to break their horses, and he wants teams ready to hitch.

VERY drastic culling of poultry is taking place in the United States this autumn. Last year poultrymen and farmers in the republic were urged by the government to increase their flocks and they responded quite promptly, but to some extent at the expense of quality for high egg production. Now, because of a shortage of feed for all livestock, the American Government is calling for a substantial reduction, but for it to be made through careful culling. There will be a shortage of poultry and eggs in Britain this fall and reductions have had to be made there on account of feed. The lesson to be learned from the United States is that efforts to increase meat animals or poultry without careful regard to quality is always dangerous. Canada can find a demand for more poultry and eggs if the breeding stock is kept well up to a high standard of excellence.

IF at all possible to save grass fields, intended for either hay or pasture next year, they should not be grazed off closely before winter sets in. Grass and clover roots go through winter weather much better if they have a fairly good covering. This not only protects them in winter, but it will form a mulch in the spring and summer which will serve nourishment to the plants and also conserve moisture. Dead grass covering the soil will keep water in the land from evaporating. If you stir this covering after a dry spell, you will find the earth quite damp, showing that the moisture is being held for its most useful purpose.

QUESTIONS AT WESTMINSTER

Sir Ian Fraser had asked the Postmaster-General whether he would include, in the series of coded cable messages that can be sent as a number instead of in words (e.g., No. 30, signifying "Happy Christmas. All well at home," or whatever it may be), the message "I am going to have a baby."

Much tittering ensued, together with a number of not very serious supplementary questions. The Postmaster-General gave the assurance that he would include such a message when the list came to be revised.

The moment was beautifully timed for Captain Cobb, of Preston, to add: "Mr. Speaker, will the Honourable gentleman also ensure that he includes the equally important message: 'I am not going to have a baby'?" — London Dispatch.

Town-Planning for Everyman

(BY CHARLES DAVY IN THE LONDON OBSERVER)

THE Plymouth Plan has come to London. It will be on view until October 7 at the Institution of Civil Engineers, Great George-street, S.W.1. Here, with the aid of maps, coloured diagrams, photographs and models, is shown the picture of what Plymouth can become, if the bold vision of the plan's two chief authors, the City Engineer and Surveyor, Mr. J. Paton Watson, and Professor Patrick Abercrombie, is one day translated into fact.

What has this exhibition to say to the ordinary man? He may be hazy about the technicalities of town-planning, but he has a pretty clear idea that the cities he knows are shabby and muddled, smoky and congested; and he may have thought it would be a good thing if whole districts could be blown up and rebuilt.

Much of Plymouth has been blown up. Most of the German bombs missed the dockyard and the historic old town, but they scorched and flattened the centre and the main shopping streets. Plymouth therefore shares with a few other heavily blitzed cities the dearly-bought advantage of having valuable sites cleared for reconstruction. As a seaport and a naval base it has to take account of special conditions not found inland. But many fo its planning problems are common to all cities. The exhibition shows the ordinary man what these problems are and how—if he wants it enough—they can be solved.

A CITY is many things. It is a place of local government, a place of work and wealth-production and a market for the countryside, a place of education and recreation, a transport centre, a place of homes. From its village origin it has gradually become all these things and more, usually by a haphazard process of sprawling growth. So its various functions are tangled up and none of them has the place or space it needs.

The first task of town-planning is to sort out these functions and to relate them to the city's future needs, judged by population trends. Since all modern cities are overcrowded, people must be got out of the centre so that they and the city can breathe. This has to be done by some method other than that of merely enlarging the city so that more and more farmland and green spaces disappear under bricks and the countryside become harder to reach.

A good city plan, therefore, must usually be a plan for the city region, meaning an organic district, determined as far as possible by natural geography, with the city as its heart. The Plymouth Plan covers 140 square miles and extends into the areas of neighbouring rural and county councils. To the ordinary man, walking round the exhibition with an open eye and mind, the advantages of making the Plymouth Plan a regional plan are clear enough.

The plan provides for the housing of an "overspill" of more than 30,000 persons in adjoining towns, villages, and hamlets. Here are community centres ready-made, far better to use them than to fringe the city with dormitory suburbs which would have no living tradition of their own. Common sense calls for the amalgamation of some of these vilages with the parent city. Plymouth, moreover, is unusually fortunate in having stretches of valuable farmland within its boundaries; by zoning the whole region these can be preserved, so that town-dwellers and country-dwellers meet and mix and do not look on one another as aliens.

A FURTHER urgent task is to protect the whole region against the spoliations of the speculative builder and the bungaloid fungus which creeps along the coasts. Small authorities cannot give this protection; they have neither the money nor, usually, the will. Plymouth City could give it; the plan would ensure free access to the coast-line throughout the region; it traces green ways for walkers up over the hills and moors and along the cliffs. Zoning a region is simply a method of laying it out to cater for diverse human needs; for manufacture and farming, for work and play, for sociability and solitude.

Within the city the plan shows the zoning principle taking the miniature form of precincts. Ancient Plymouth—the 'Sutone' of Domesday Book—would be enclosed by a town wall; its historic features would be preserved while living conditions were improved. The blitzed area would be rebuilt to include a civic centre, a shopping centre, and a hotel and residential precinct fronting the Hoe. The shopping centre would not, of course, replace district shops, but it would bring the city's main shopping facilities together in a block adjoining the railways and bus station, with a car park adjoining and wheeled traffic kept out. The housewife would be able to stroll at ease along the shopping streets without having to murmur, in a profane paraphrase:

> ....at my back I always hear
> The horrid klaxon hastening near.

The whole road system is designed to make heavy traffic flow round the precincts rather than surge through them; long distance and local traffic are segregated; provision is made for safe intersections, including a two-storey roundabout on the proposed ring road.

THE visitor, arriving at the main railway station to the north, would have before him this harmonious lay-out of precincts, with a broad avenue running right down through the midst of it and guiding his eye to a noble view of the Sound and the sea.

There is much else in the plan; but for the ordinary man the broad perspectives and working principles are the things that matter. The prime value of the exhibition is that it shows him in simple outline what town-planning means, its exciting chances—and its problems, too. Many of its ideas he can apply to his own city, as he surely will if once his imagination catches fire. The spacious cities of tomorrow, planned to give freedom and serenity of living, can be built; but they may easily be strangled by vested interests and parochialism unless a demand for them comes insistently from ordinary citizens who, in the mind's eager eye, have seen them afar off.

The Honourable Way

This is a (seed grain) debt fairly incurred by the farmers of Saskatchewan and properly assumed by the municipalities. The province endorsed the notes, with the Dominion only entering the transaction as a final guarantor. Premier Douglas has now dishonored the province's prior obligation; has instructed the municipalities to stop paying the banks and has assured them that he will protect them against any action the banks may take.

If the individual farmers of Saskatchewan who owe this seed debt and the individual municipalities which accepted and consolidated the notes of the farmers are content to escape their obligation in this irregular way; if Premier Douglas is really performing this act of repudiation at their instigation and with their approval, there is nothing much that can be done about it except for the province to hang its head in shame. But if Premier Douglas and Provincial Treasurer Fines and the rest of the C.C.F. administration have taken this upon themselves to do, in what they regard as a crafty political manoeuvre, then the sooner the farmers and the municipalities and all the honest people of Saskatchewan make known their views to the government, the better it will be for the honour and credit of Saskatchewan.—Regina Leader-Post.

The Mentally Ill

The Trustees of the Ottawa Civic Hospital, following a comprehensive presentation of the situation by Trustee W. L. Best, have passed a resolution urging the Ontario Government to erect another hospital for mental cases in Eastern Ontario and set up an additional mental examination unit in Ottawa. Mr. Best had prepared from official figures a brief showing that mental illness continues to increase alarmingly in Canada; he suggested this might be partly attributed to war reactions.

Some years ago the Ontario Government announced its intention of establishing a new mental hospital in the Smiths Falls neighbourhood, but nothing came of it. The institution at Brockvile is continuously overcrowded with the result that the number of patients in the Ottawa area awaiting transfer has become unmanageable. The Ottawa Civic has a pitifully inadequate mental unit of nine beds but only for examination; it is not equipped to treat such patients. The Ontario Government has hitherto failed to establish an additional examination unit here despite urgent representations, and there are a number of distressing cases in private homes.

Mr. Best has done good service in calling public attention to a pressing need and Ottawa City Council might well co-operate with the Civic Hospital in bringing pressure to bear on the Provincial Government for relief.—Ottawa Journal.

A Bible Message

For the love of God constraineth us; because we thus judge, that if one died for all, then were all dead: and that he died for all, that they which live should not henceforth live unto themselves, but unto him which died for them, and rose again. Wherefore henceforth know we no man after the flesh: yea, though we have known Christ after the flesh, yet now henceforth know we him no more.

Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new. And all things are of God, who hath reconciled us to himself by Jesus Christ, and hath given to us the ministry of reconciliation; to wit, that God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them; and hath committed unto us the word of reconciliation.

Now then we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us: we pray you in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God. For he hath made him to be sin for us, who knew no sin; that we might be made the righteousness of God in him. (II Cor. 5: 14-21.)

HATED BY EVERYBODY

The Germans are today in that unique position of hating everybody except themselves, and perhaps Japan — although I do not think that there is any real love lost between these two partners in crime.

At the same time the Germans are in the unique situation that their present regime and all it implies is hated by everybody — even if some of us who are more civilized are not such good haters as the brown-shirted valhallists.

By the way, in my estimation, perhaps the most deadly sin Hitler committed was radiating and causing more hating than any man in history—if not in the world, surely in Europe.—Jan Masaryk, in the London Chronicle.

BRITAIN DANCES AGAIN

Dances, which for the past five years have had to end before midnight, will probably continue into the early hours—with the approval of the majority of the police chiefs and licensing magistrates.

Police chiefs welcome the opportunity of allowing a little more gaiety to come back into the lives of millions of people for whom dancing was the principal peace-time pleasure.

The first move was made by Darwen (Lancashire) magistrates, who granted an extension for a works dance until 2 a.m.

This is the first time in the war that the young people of this cotton town, with a population of 37,000, have been able to go on dancing after midnight.—London Daily Mail.

Respect For Uniform

It would be a thousand pities in this land if for any reason whatever the natural respect due to the King's uniform were weakened. In the process of preparing a nation for war not everyone can be placed in the front line simultaneously. Under modern conditions of fighting, long periods of intensive training must come first and this training is often accomplished at home. For that reason, leaving the political aspects of Canada's manpower policy out of the picture, it is not given to the public to judge whether one man should be overseas and another home, or vice versa. Viewed in that light, feeling against the home defence man is not often justified, and always it is dangerous.

No useful purpose, political or otherwise, is to be served by the type of bickering that has broken out in some places in this province, and elsewhere at other points in Canada. All men who wear the King's uniform are doing what they have been told to do, and in the place they have been put. Moreover, the uniform itself is entitled to a just and time-honoured respect. It is the nation's livery. If individuals disgrace it the majority uphold its traditions ably and well. It is for the public to see that in a broad light and to lend no fuel to fires of contention which are ill-timed and entirely out of place.

The people of this country have their own remedy with any dissatisfaction they may have over the manpower policies of the Mackenzie King Administration. The time and place will come when the public may speak its mind, and freely. Meanwhile, there is a war to be fought and won, and no time for useless bickering by the wayside. Every man in uniform has surrendered his private life, is under orders, and can do only what he is told to do for the good of the nation as a whole. In that respect all service is alike.—Victoria Colonist.

Premier Drew Challenges Godbout To Visit France

TORONTO. Oct. 16 — Premier George A. Drew last night challenged ex-premier Adelard Godbout of Quebec to visit units from Quebec now in France and "find out what they say," before he charges Mr. Drew with creating "disunity."

"If the rest of Canada is to bear a disproportionate share in winning the war, then at least the voice of the rest of Canada should be heard when Canadian units locked in mortal combat on the field of battle are without reinforcements because 80,000 trained men are held here in Canada by the will of one Province," declared Premier Drew.

Text of Statement

Mr. Godbout's statement is surely one of the most remarkable ever issued by a man of supposed responsibility in this country. It divides itself into two parts. First he charges me with creating disunity, and second, he implies that there are negotiations under way between myself and Mr. Duplessis in regard to the Ottawa River power development which would be contrary to the interests of Quebec.

When Mr. Godbout charges me with creating disunity, he ignores the fact that my remarks referred to the challenge to national unity by Mr. Godbout himself and the Quebec Legislature. It was he who raised the threat of civil war last May if the Canadian Government followed the will of the great majority of the people of Canada as expressed in the plebiscite.

It was he who said that "if the Canadian Government backed up our men overseas by sending the draftees who were needed as reinforcements, there would have been fighting in th streets."

Friendship With Mr. King

It was he who boasted that even after the plebiscite the draftees were kept at home because of his friendship for the Prime Minister of Canada. It was he who assumed the responsibility of assuring military deserters in his own Province that they would be exempted from any military service if they followed his instructions.

But more provocative than any of those statements was the resolution passed on April 26 last which was supported by Mr. Godbout and all but four members of the Quebec Legislature. That resolution contained these words: "That this House reaffirms its unyielding disapproval of sending recruits overseas."

That resolution was a stab in the back for every unit from Quebec already in action in France. They were desperately short of reinforcements even then. That resolution was a denial of support for every man fighting in the Canadian Army overseas, because if Mr. Godbout's statement is correct it was because of the official opposition of Quebec that the Government of Canada has failed to support its fighting men.

Loan Symbol Shows Originality

The symbol or emblem — from which the 7th Victory Loan insignia has been adapted — is of shoulder-sleeve type issued to the personnel attached to the Supreme Headquarters Invasion Staff. The significance of its design is as follows:

"Upon a field of heraldic sable (black), which represents the darkness of Nazi Oppression, is shown the sword of liberation ,the flames arising from the hilt and leaping up the blade. This represents avenging justice by which the enemy's power will be broken. Above the sword is a rainbow, emblematic of hope, containing all the colours of which the national flags of the United Nations are composed.

The heraldic chief of azure above the rainbow is emblematic of a state of peace and tranquility, the restoration of which to the enslaved peoples is the objective of the United Nations."

Bracken Demands Draftee Action

ALLISTON, Ont., Oct. 16 — (CP). — The government should say whether soldiers drafted under the National Resources Mobilization Act will be sent overseas, demobilized to "take the jobs the fighting men deserve" or maintained at home at a cost of $150,000,000 yearly, Progressive Conservative leader John Bracken said in an address here Saturday.

Speaking after Premier George Drew had said it was the responsibility of people at home to see that "their men get every support necessary, including adequately trained reinforcements," Mr. Bracken declared:

"It has been said in many places, and Col. Drew just now reasserted it, that untrained or insufficiently trained men have been sent into the front line of battle while large numbers of well-trained men remain behind in Canada's conscript army. In the interest of the public, as well as the men overseas, the government should give a full and frank statement."

Mr. Bracken proposed a permanent plan of guaranteed farm prices to replace the government's floor for farm prices during the transition period.

Has Farm Plan

Terming the floor prices plan the government introduced at the last session of parliament "inadequate, impractical and clumsy," Mr. Bracken said the scheme he proposed would increase present farm prices about 20 per cent and give farmers a fair share of the national income.

"This will mean that a pemanent policy of forward contract prices will be guaranteed to farmers by law — prices that will be based on their proportionate share of the national income," he explained.

"It will not mean the setting up of multiple bureaucracies and boards, because it is our intention that these products will constantly flow in the regular channels for what the consumers here and abroad will pay.

"Any difference between the prices thus received and the prices thus guaranteed to the farmer will be an obligation to be met by the state under this plan to secure the farmers their proportionate share of the national income.

"The plan will, at the beginning, be applied to the more important farm products and will be extended as rapidly as possible to cover the whole field of production in agriculture and other food products, including fish."

Guaranteed prices would be calculated in advance of the production period by a non-political economic council composed of statisticians, economists and consumers and would be based on the farmers' share of the national income.

Welland Upsets London 5-0

By The Canadian Press

Welland won the "real" Senior 'A' baseball championship of Ontario at London Saturday night by defeating London Majors 5-0 in the fifth and deciding game of the best-of-five series. Sal Maglie had too much on the ball for the London crew as he set them down with only five scattere blows and struck out 10.

In softball For Erie scored a double victory over Sault Ste. Marie in the best-of-five Ontario intermediate championships, winning the first game Saturday 4-0 and the second on Sunday 8-6.

In softball Fort Erie scored a double Hamilton Beavers evened their series with Toronto Peoples by taking a 2-0 victory. The visitors were able to gain only one solid safety and one scratch hit in the game while Hamilton racked up seven safe blows.

By FRED D. CRAIG

Cosea football came back into its own in Peterborough Saturday after a lapse of several years and in spite of disagreeable weather conditions the revival was a distinct success. Threatening skies did not keep the fans away and there was a big crowd, with the student body out in full force, with plenty of ribbons flying, organized cheering and all the other color associated with Collegiate rugby. To make the thing a complete success the home team won both ends of a double-header, the juniors nosing out Cobourg Collegiate 1 to 0 and the seniors triumphing over a strong Bowmanville High squad 8 to 6. Both were hard-fought battles and while both might just as easily on the play gone the other way the Peterborough teams played good football and they will improve offensively and defensively with a few more games under their belts. The win pulled off by the seniors put them out in front of their interscholastic group with two victories in as many starts and this auspicious opening to the campaign should be distinctly encouraging. The seniors play in Oshawa on Saturday of this week but will be back at Riverside Park a week from then when Lindsay will supply the opposition. There will be another double-header on that occasion for the juniors are billed for a battle the same afternoon.

* * * * * *

Rich Jackson's Peterborough juniors will supply the football fare for Peterborough fans this week, clashing with the Toronto Vikings at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon in an exhibition game that should supply plenty of entertaining football. Vikings are in the same Toronto group as the Westsides who defeated the Peterborough youngsters here on Thanksgiving Day and they rate as highly as that well-balanced outfit. The homesters gave Westsides a real battle in the opening game of the season, leading them until well into the third period and they feel that with the experience they gained in that encounter coupled with the hard drills they have been going through since they will be able to make things decidedly interesting for Vikings in Saturday's game. The Toronto youngsters are coached by Les Booth and also by Elwyn Morris, the Toronto Maple Leafs defence star and they will undoubtedly show the effects of the training they have received. However the Peterborough team is confident that the Queen City lads will know that they have been in a rugby game. A real crowd should be on hand for this fixture for the juniors deserve all kinds of support for the battle they have been making to keep football alive in Peterborough.

They Guessed Wrong

This column imagines that two young athletes got an earful after Saturday's double-header at Riverside Park. The reference is to the quarterbacks of the Cobourg Collegiate juniors and the Bowmanville High seniors who undoubtedly had a memorable session with their respective coaches as to their failure to cash in on sure scoring opportunities. Quarterbacks are supposed to direct the play and so the two field generals of Saturday's losing teams would have a lot of explaining to do. Cobourg were only beaten 1 to 0 and they had half a dozen chances to kick for single points. Just before the end of the third period they had the ball on Peterborough's quarter line and any kind of a decent punt there would have tied up the game. But they tried a placement instead and foozled it. And they did a lot worse than that in the final period when they had the ball inside Peterborough's territory nearly the whole time and got so engrossed trying to get over the line for a touchdown that they failed to cash in on the sure thing singles that were there to be taken. Two punts in that final period would have won the argument for the Lakeshore twelve but fortunately for P.C.V.S. kicking apparently was never mentioned in the huddles.

* * * * * *

Bowmanville made the same mistake in the senior battle. Starting in the second half they were down 7 to 5 but had the benefit of a strong north wind that suddenly sprang up. One tremendous kick by Sturrock drove the play deep into Peterborough territory at the beginning of the period and the home twelve could not get the ball out of their own end. Bowmanville had possession most of the time and it would have been an easy matter to kick over the Peterborough line two or three times. Instead of punting the invaders chose to try forward passes or running plays and the result was they were still behind when the period ended. The gamble for a major score never came off. Incidentally P.C.V.S. were guilty of the same bad judgment at the end of the second period. On the final play before half time they had the ball only 25 yards out and with only one play possible they could have booted over for a single. Instead they tossed a long forward that failed to click and as a result they lost a sure point that they might have needed badly. The temptation to go after a bunch of points instead of cashing on the certain singles has wrecked a lot of teams with more experience than the school squads who performed here Saturday.

'Ware The Bammies

Outstanding feature of Ontario rugby Saturday was the wallop Balmy Beach handed the Ottawa Trojans, beating them right in Ottawa to the tune of 33 points to 0. It is a long time since an Ottawa team was trimmed by any such margin at Lansdowne Park and the one-sided nature of the Balmy Beach victory carries a signficance that will not be lost sight of in the lair of the Hamilton Wildcats. The Bammies in other words by that crushing defeat of the Trojans served notice on all and sundry that it is premature to wrap up the O.R.F.U. title now and hand it to Joe Krol and his Hamilton teammates. Ottawa is not a bad club and any outfit that can walk into Canada's capital and polish off the Trojans 33 to 0 deserves more than a passing glance and certainly has more than a set of uniforms. As a matter of fact the Bammies are strong in every department, with a powerful forward wall of experienced battlers and a backfield that is well-balanced, fast and clever. They are likely to give the Wildcats plenty of opposition before the season is over. Peterborough fans are especially interested in the Bammies because Leo Deadey who played with the local Orfuns several seasons is starring at end for the Toronto team. He got one of their touchdowns Saturday by spearing a low pass inches off the ground in a style that even Marty Marion of the Cards would have difficulty in duplicating.

Boston's Bill Cowley will be getting in wrong with the hockey powers-that-be if he continues to talk as frankly as he did the other night at a baseball banquet at Smiths Falls. Cowley, as guest speaker, told the folk around the banquet table that last season's champion Canadiens would have been no better than a fifth place club in the National Hockey League of four seasons ago. Cowley, in the opinion of those who really know, was telling the truth in that estimation of last season's champs but the moguls at the head of professional hockey will not thank him for enlightening the public to the fact that the cash-and-carry game of today is only a shadow of the pre-war article, despite the fact that it is still played up as the fastest game in the world and the run-of the-mine crop of kids and old-timers are all painted as stars for the benefit of a credulous public. The simple truth is that some of those alleged cracks in the monied ranks would have had a lot of trouble catching a place on a senior amateur team a few years ago. Cowley was talking by the book when he spoke at Smiths Falls but he'll get no embossed vote of thanks from the N.H.L. for giving a true picture of the situation.

Collegiate Opens Rugby Season With Two Wins At Riverside Park

Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School football squads opened their home season auspiciously Saturday when they won two hard-fought battles on a rain-drenched gridiron at Riverside Park. P.C.V.S. seniors defeated Bowmanville High 8 to 6 and the junior Collegiate twelve won from Cobourg Collegiate by the narrowest possible margin, 1 point to 0.

In spite of the fact that the elements made conditions disagreeable for both players and fans a big crowd saw the two games which were played for the most part in rain, varying from a drizzle to a regular downpour.

Both teams encountered valiant opposition and on the run of the play the results might easily have been reversed in both cases. In fact seniors and juniors were alike fortunate in the fact that their opposition gambled for major scores when sounder football would have seen them cashing in on single points that might have saved the day for them.

In the senior battle there was not much to choose between the two teams. Both showed some classy performers and both suffered at times from fumbles, most of them perhaps excusable because the field was greasy and the ball wet and slippery.

P.C.V.S. got the only point in the first quarter on a rouge, both scored a touchdown in the second with Peterborough getting the extra point on a convert, and in the second half scoring honors were even, Bowmanville registering a single in the third stanza and P.C.V.S. getting that point back in the final 15 minutes.

A Long Gallop

For the winners Bob Rooke did some fine kicking and he also had the distinction of running half the length of the field for the winners' major score. Jack Sisson, who starred by his brilliant broken field running, put Rooke in the clear on that touchdown scoring play with a pass after taking a Bowmanville punt. Jack Matthews gave a good account of himself on runs and plunges and "Red" Outram hit the line hard and for good gains.

Mac McIlveen was outstanding for Bowmanville in his successful plunging and his hard-hitting defence work on the secondary. Sturrock kicked effectively and threw some accurate forward passes while Jake Brown also shone through his ball-carrying. He is fast and shifty and gave P.C.V.S. tacklers plenty of trouble.

Bowmanville blew their chances in the third period when with a strong wind behind them they held play in P.C.V.S. territory for nearly 15 minutes and kept working for a touchdown, instead of cashing in on singles. They were only two points down at that stage but they missed the boat by refusing to take advantage of the wind.

A 25-yard run by Jack Sisson, a good gain by Jack Matthews and a

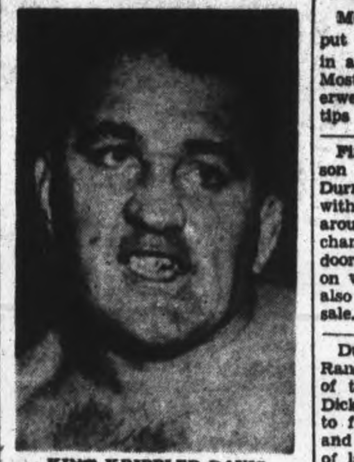
Expect The Whipper To Smash Davis



KING KRIPPLER DAVIS

Peterborough wrestling fans are looking forward to Tuesday night's Tunney card in the Brock Street Arena because they are hoping that Whipper Billy Watson will give the big Texan a wrestling lesson. Davis has been so ruthless in recent battles and contemptuous about Canadian wrestling that the crowd want to see him stopped cold. The bout should be a sizzler. Dr. Len Hall, another back alley gladiator, battles popular Irish Jack Kennedy in the semi-final and Don Evans and Jack Wentworth, two fast boys, open the show.

Training Camp Gossip

By The Canadian Press

Montreal Canadiens are being put through some stiff workouts in an effort to slice off excess fat. Most noticeable offender of the overweights is Mike McMahon, who tips the scales at 231.

First training casualty of the season for Les Canadiens was Bill Durnan, star goalie, who collided with Butch Stahan in a scramble around the net. This week the champions will drill behind closed doors because of work being carried on within the Montreal Forum and also because of the season ticket sale.

Dutch Hiller, former New York Rangers sniper, plans a hard week of training with Canadiens. Coach Dick Irvin is trying to find a man to fit in with Murph Chamberlain and Ray Getliffe. Roland Rossignól of last year's Quebec Aces may be the player.

Exhibition Tilt.

Jack Adams' Detroit Red Wings returned to their camp at Windsor during the week-end after trimming Al Sutphin's Cleveland Barons of the A.H.L. 7-3 in an exhibition game Saturday.

Adams, who already has given the "axe" to 31 candidates for a spot with his wings, still isn't quite satisfied with the squad's scoring punch. He's looking for a couple of young forwards. It's possible he may convert a couple of his 12 defencemen.

Sweeney Schriner checked in at Toronto Maple Leafs training camp at Owen Sound at 188 pounds—the lightest since joining the Leafs.

Reports have it that Paul Bibeault will return to Leafs as head goalie this year. Up to now Frank McColl, Calgary, Pat Boehmer, Kitchener and Leo Sargent of St. Catharines, have been taking whirls between the posts.

TORONTO, Oct. 16.—(CP). — There has been some talk recently that hockey should have a high commissioner like Judge Landis to look after its best interests and keep things straight, but it looks as though there is a more pressing and urgent need for some one with a little authority in the lacrosse field.

For a sport that is presumably Canada's national game, so characterized by the Confederation fathers, lacrossse has made a sorry showing this year with the wild and weird bickering that arose over the Dominion finals. The game needs somebody to spank the erring children and put them to bed without their supper, even though both sides had some right in their claims.

Jim (Toronto Globe and Mail) Coleman sums it up neatly in his column when he says:

"The players, smugly righteous in their arguments, should realize that in these days when the hopes of the world are centred on matters of life and death no one really gives a damn what happens to a piffling lacrosse series."

Of This and That:

When Les Canadiens started training last week, the only ones in good shape were veteran Toe Blake and slim Elmer Lach. The others, despite their softball training during the summer had put on quite a bit of weight....There's talk on the west coast that a racing commission will be set up next years to look after the sport, Johnny Park resports in the Vancouver Province....Still on horse talk, Jim Coleman says he hears King's Plate regulations will be broadened to allow the entry of horses which have been raced in the United States. At present they are barred— which automatically excludes Uttermost and Ferry Pilot, two of the best two-year olds....Al (Brantford Expositor) Rose suggested Eastern Canada should adopt St. Catharines lacrosse team and call them Restigouches or something to match the Salmonbellies label of New Westminster.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—(AP)—Overseas sports roundup:

Dead Game

Tony Cardaro, a soldier from Des Moines, ventures a prediction from England that the United States may be deluged with British boxers and other Athletics after the war unless a tax ruling is revised . . . by some quaint mental process the tax arbiters decided that boxers, football players, etc., came under the category of "non-living" performers like those moving figures on the screen, as distinguished from "living" performers such as actors music hall jugglers and comedians . . . the importance of the distinction is that living performers pay only 25 per cent entertainment tax, non-living 47 per cent . . . on top of that the British Boxing Board of Control takes five per cent of all shows drawing more than $8,000 . . . That doesn't leave much for the boys who get their noses mashed, and Tony figures most of them will be thinking about Jacobs Beach and the fabulous American purses they've heard about.

Western Team Evens Lacrosse Series

By ERIC SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Oct. 16—(CP)—The 1944 Canadian lacrosse championship will be decided at Hamilton tonight when St. Catharines Athletics, perennial eastern representatives, clash with New Westminster Salmonbellies, present titleholders, in the final game of the best-of-five series.

New Westminster, seven times winner of the prized $2,500 Sir Donald Mann Cup and Canadian finalists for 16 of the last 25 years, evened the series at 2-2 Saturday night when they scored an 11-8 overtime victory over Athletics here.

St. Catharines won the first game 17-10, lost the next 13-4 and took the third 11-10.

Also to be decided tonight will be the winner of the Mike Kelly Memorial trophy, awarded to the most valuable man to his team in the national finals. Last year, Bill Wilkes, captain and coach of the Salmonbellies, won the trophy.

Among those mentioned as possible winners of the prize are Walt Lee, star goalie with Vancouver Burrards, runners-up to Salmonbellies for the British Columbia title, who was taken on by the Fishmen before their journey east.

Saturday night's tilt was regarded one of the best play-off games in history with both teams battling closely from start to finish. Lee rose to great heights on a number of occasions as he turned back the hard drives of the St. Catharines' snipers.

Wild shooting by Athletics was their downfall, although their defence and the work of Goalie Bill Whitaker proved a hard combination for the champions to beat.

Beaches Trounce Ottawa; Navy Loses 12-8

By The Canadian Press

Two Ontario football teams continued their unbeaten records in Saturday's four-game program, Hamilton Wildcats and Toronto Balmy Beach scoring one-sided victories over Toronto Indians and Ottawa Trojans in the Ontario Rugby Football Union, but the hitherton unbeaten Toronto Navy squad was scuttled, 12-8, by the Hagersville R.C.A.F. Bombers at Hamilton.

The Hamilton and Beach victories served to focus public attention on the first meeting of the season between the two teams in Toronto next Saturday. Hamilton has won all four of its games to lead Beaches, who have played and won three, by two points in the Union standing. Wildcats defeated Indians 36-2 Saturday and Beaches won from Ottawa 33-0.

The Hagersville victory earned the Bombers a first-place tie with Navy in the Services League standing, each team having three victories and one defeat. The other Services League game was at Camp Borden where the third-place Camp Borden R.C.A.F. Hurricanes crushed the last-place St. Thomas R.C.A.F. Hornets, 20-1.

Mr. Krol Again

The play of triple-threat Joe Krol highlighted the meeting between Hamilton and the cellar-dwelling Indians in Toronto. The starry halfback, leading point-getter in the O.R.F.U., scored only seven points himself but he paved the way for at leat four other touchdowns.

The six Hamilton touchdowns were scored by Krol, Joe Soyka, Red Wheeler, Eddie Remigis, Mel Lawson and Tony Marasco. Krol also had a single and a convert, Paul Miocinovich had two converts, Jimmy Simpson had one and Jack Brown kicked a single.

Az Callow kicked singles for the two Indian points. He took over the kicking duties when Jim Cumming suffered torn ankle ligaments at the start of the game.

Gains 40 Yards

The performances of quarterback Frank Stukus and halfback Sam Sward featured the Beach victory over the Trojans at Ottawa. Stukus scored one touchdown and set up another when he ran 40 yards from a fake kick formation to take the ball to the six-yard line. Sward got two touchdowns and the other three were scored by Leo Deadey, Earl Selkirk and Al Cole. Stukus and Ross (Red) McKelvey each scored single points on converts and Selkirk kicked a single.

Sgt. Joe Richman, LAC. Doug Smylie and Cpl. Bill Summerville featured a last-half drive to victory by Hagersville at Hamilton. Navy built up a first-half lead of eight points on a field goal by leading Seaman Annis Stukus and a touchdown by OS. Royal Copeland.

Smylie and Richman each had touchdowns and Summerville kicked two singles in the Hagersville offensive in the last half.

Sgt. Doug Pyzer and LAC. Bobby Porter were the big scorers for Hurricanes at Camp Borden. The stocky Pyzer scored three touchdowns for 15 points and the veteran Porter accounted for five with two converts and three singles. LAC. Ray (Moon) Mullins kicked the single for the only St. Thomas point.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

By The Canadian Press

In the opinion of Bill Cowley, Boston Bruins' great centre, the Montreal Canadiens who outclassed the National Hockey League field last winter would have been just another hockey club in peacetime. "No better than fourth or fifth," said Bill, speaking Saturday at a baseball banquet at Smiths Falls.

Francisco (Pancho) Segura of Ecuador, who failed in his last two attempts for the United States National Tennis singles title, Saturday vanquished his conqueror in the U.S. Tourney and captured the Pan-American singles title at Mexico City for the third time. He defeated Bill Talbert of Indianapolis by 1-6, 6-3, 6-2, 1-6, 6-1.

The Nova Scotia Amateur Baseball Association disqualified Dominion Hawks as provincial junior champions Saturday and replaced them with Springhill Commandos. G. H. Haystead, secretary of the association announced Hawks were disqualified from "further participation in organized amateur baseball" for failure to conform to an N.S.A. B.A. ruling. His announcement came as Hawks won a series with Saint John scheduled as for the Maritime title.

Upsets Plan

It was a great idea to the slightly berserk baseball public of Baltimore, but the proposed game between the Little World Champions and the St. Louis Cardinals, the Big World champions, won't come off. Mayor Theodore McKeldin challenged the Cardinals to play the Orioles at huge Baltimore Municipal Stadium, guaranteeing "a larger attendance than any world series game this year." Manager Billy Southworth of the Cards put the kibosh on the idea by saying "our team is now disbanded."

A post-war "world series" for amateur baseball clubs will be held in New York, it was announced Sunday by Ray Dumont, president of the National Baseball Congress. Dumont added that the series, sponsored by his organization, will become an annual event and will be held the week following the world's professional series. Besides eight teams from various sections of the United States, he expects entries from Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Puerto Rico, Hawaii and both Central and South America.

Remember When—

Connie Mack, shrewd Philadelphia Athletic manager, bought Bob (Lefty) Grove, ace Baltimore Oriole pitcher, for $100,000 cash 20 years ago today. The southpaw was with the Athletics until the end of the 1933 season when he was traded to the Boston Red Sox and stayed with them until his retirement.

St. Mike's Wins At Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, Oct. 16—(CP)—St. Michael's College of Toronto came through with a last period rally here Saturday to beat St. Paul's College of Winnipeg 11-6 in the opening game of an East-West high school football series, the first time Canadian high school teams have met in such a hook-up.

The series, sponsored by a group of Winnipeg sportsmen, concludes tonight when St. Mike's meet St. John's College of Winnipeg here. This contest, like Saturday's will be played under Western rules which permit blocking up to 10 yards.

Four thousand fans saw St. Mike's give a slow exhibition in the opening stages of Saturday's game, then liven up to prove unstoppable. St. Paul's led 6-0 in the third frame following a second quarter touchdown and convert.

SWIMMER AT 70

TORQUAY, England — (CP). — To celebrate his 70th birthday, J. W. Hobbs attempted to swim across Torquay's 1,600-yard inner harbor. Cold forced him to give up after 750 yards but he intends to try again when the weather is warmer.

Why VICKS VapoRub Is So Good
For Relieving Miseries of Childrens Colds

More than two generations ago—in grandmother's day—mothers first discovered Vicks VapoRub. Today it is the most widely used home-remedy for relieving miseries of children's colds. And here is the reason . . .

The moment you rub VapoRub on the throat, chest and back at bedtime it starts to work two ways at once—and keeps on working for hours—to ease coughing spasms, help clear congestion in cold-clogged upper breathing passages, relieve muscular soreness or tightness. It promotes restful sleep. Often most of the misery of the cold is gone by morning! That's why VapoRub is so good to use when colds strike. Try it!

Major F. Southby Dies Of Wounds

PORT HOPE, Oct. 16.—Reported in despatches as severely wounded when leading his company in an attack on Coriano on October 3, Major Francis Edward Southby, 30, of the Irish Regiment, died in Italy of wounds on October 7. Word to this effect has been received by his widow, Elizabeth Liane Fongie Southby, formerly of Toronto, now in Port Hope. His father, Richard E. Southby, and Major Southby's two children, Susan and Jimmy, also reside in Port Hope.

Recent despatches tell how Major Southby, after being wounded fell into a slit trench, heaving fire making rescue difficult. He had gone overseas 18 months ago and was posted soon afterward to Italy.

Born and educated in Port Hope, he was associated with the Nicholson File Co. He enlisted in 1939 with the Midland Regiment and trained in various parts of Canada. He went to England with the rank of lieutenant and was promoted to captain and later major on the field. He was transferred overseas to the Irish Regiment. He was a member of Port Hope Golf Club.

Flin Flon Miner Gets News Award

WINNIPEG, Oct. 16 — (CP) — Flin Flon Miner, published by J. H. Miles, won the best newspaper award for Manitoba weeklies with a circulation exceeding 750, it was announced last night at the closing session of the 25th annual meeting of the Manitoba division, Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association.

Runners-up was the Dauphin Herald and Express, published by W. S. Marsh.

For weeklies with less than 750 circulation, the Pilot Mound Sentinel was adjudged the best newspaper. R. W. Tuckewell is the publisher.

Plan Children's Day At St. Paul's Church

MARMORA, Oct. 16 — (ENS). — Children's day is being observed at St Paul's next Sunday. There will be Corporate Communion for confirmed members of the Sunday School and other communicants at 10 a.m.

The Sunday School proper will open at 10.30 a.m., and will merge with the morning service. Postponement of its observance for one week was necessitated through the recent arrival of the new rector, Rev. J. M. Brownlie.

BARREL OF BREAD

One barrel of flour is considered sufficient to make an average 270 one-pound loaves of bread.

WHAT NEXT IN PACIFIC AIR TARGETS?—Now that the U.S. Pacific fleet task forces can put 1,000 planes into the air simultaneously, speculation is rife as to which will be the next air targets in that war area. One thousand planes have just attacked Formosa (B) according to a Jap report. Invasion of Mindanao (A) is believed imminent. Japanese supply lines (C) in the South China Sea and on the Chinese mainland now seem to be well within range of Allied air attacks.

War Service Club Sponsors Euchre

The War Service Club sponsored the weekly card party at the Apsley House. Prize winners were: Ladies' first, Mrs. Herb Tucker; gents' first, Don Newberry. The consolation prizes went to Mrs. John McColl and Gerald Watson. Proceeds of party amounted to $8.15 to swell the Christmas Cheer fund. Members of the club met on Friday night to pack the boxes for the boys in Italy.

The regular monthly meeting of the W.I. was held in the home of Mrs. Rol. Tucker, when plans were made to re-open the public library for the winter months.

The W.A. of Trinity United church held the October meeting at the home of Mrs. John Tucker. Included in the business was plans for scrap books for Navy League. Some of these books were distributed.

Mrs. A. Harris is visiting friends in Peterborough.

Mrs. Eric Whitmore is spending the week-end in Detroit, Mich. Recent visitors include:

Mr. and Mrs. John McColl, Jr., and Marie of Peterborough, with Mr. and Mrs. J. McColl, Sr.

Mrs. Rose of Warsaw, with her sister, Mrs. John Selkirk.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Newell and Muriel, of Peterborough, with Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Tucker.

Mr. Chas. Harriss of Haliburton, with relatives and friends.

"RIDING" JAPS — T.-Sergt. Morris Weisman, Chicago, Ill, jockey who earned fame from coast to coast, is "riding" against the Japs these days, somewhere in Dutch New Guinea. Sergt. Weisman, who now tips the scales at 121 pounds, says he can trim himself down to the regulation 112 pounds in less than a week, and be ready for the track.

Paper Strike Still Unsettled

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 16 (CP-Reuter)—Discussion of proposals to settle the eight-day strike by newspaper employees was adjourned today after an hour's conference between Sydney newspaper owners and the Trades Hall Disputes Committee.

There will be another meeting tomorrow.

The State Industrial Commission adjourned until Wednesday consideration of the employees' union's request for an order against the newspaper companies, except the Sydney Evening Sun, to resume normal publication.

The strike began following a demand by printing employees of the Sun for a 40-hour week and four weeks' annual holiday. It spread when the Sydney newspapers combined to publish a composite four-page morning paper.

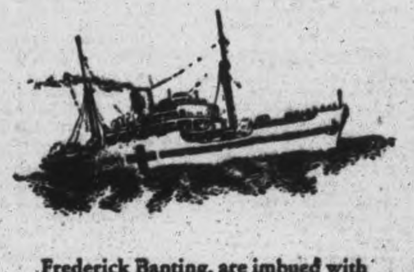
What's in a Name?
A Tribute To A Famous Corps Of The Canadian Army

The Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps

What's in the name of the RCAMC? Undying devotion to duty . . . utter selflessness . . . courage . . . these are only a few of the laurels that have been won for this glorious corps of doctors, nurses, stretcher-bearers and orderlies, whose duty it is to combat suffering and pain.

The laurels that surround the name of the RCAMC can be traced through all our wars . . . earned by the many thousands of brave men and women, who, like Florence Nightingale, Edith Cavell and Frederick Banting, are imbued with the spirit of honour, the deep sense of integrity, the will to render unparallelled service . . . which make a name famous.



To-day the RCAMC carries on in the traditions of the past . . . fighting not with shells, bullets and bayonets, but with plasma, penicillin, the wonderful sulfa drugs and sheer stark courage.

Theirs is an honoured name, ranking with every name that has become a priceless heritage through the years. Long may it continue a priceless heritage, like all honoured names . . . an emblem made more brilliant by those who strive to-day to keep it so!

MORE FROST TOLL

Coleus plants and morning glories were victims of the week-end frost. However, the beds of salvias were still aflame like the burning bush, and the bloom of the petunias, marigolds, zinnias, cosmos had weathered the nipping winds.

WOMAN IS INJURED

In collision between cars driven by William A. Hinds, 677 Aylmer street, and Arthur Tighe, 100 London street, at the corner of McDonnel and Stewart streets, Mrs. J. Hunter, 295 Murray street, a passenger in Tighe's automobile, had her shoulder injured. Tighe was driving west on McDonnel street.

OVER THE TOP.

The Boy Scouts' Apple Day held Saturday, raised the gross sum of $1,136, of which between $800 and $900 will be profits, in one of the most successful Apple Days in several years. More than 220 Scouts were out on the streets, and peppy salesmanship disposed of 41 barrels fo big, red apples. Last year, a gross sum of $990 was realized.

CHATHAM ORGANIZES

Seventy Chatham men and women have been appointed a permanent committee to organize for a War Memorial Community Recreational Centre, patterned after Peterborough's plan of appealing for public support and funds. This is one of the Ontario cities which were recently reported interested in the Peterborough campaign. Apparently Chatham is making a special bid for the assistance of women in the final details of a community canvass.

SERVING OVERSEAS

Sgt. J. O'Leary, son of Mrs. Margaret O'Leary, 475 Mark street, is serving overseas with the R.C.A.F., as a mechanic. Prior to enlisting five years ago, he was employed at the Western Clock Company.

SCOUTS IN RAIN

Chill and intermittent rain Saturday dampened the green jerseys of the "little Scouts" in their sale of apples. The weather was just as unfavorable as a year ago, and the youngsters had to sell their McIntosh stock the hard way.

DURHAM MATCH

Durham county's plowing match Thursday, October 26 will be held on the farms of Earl Dorrell and Ivan Thompson at Taylor's Corner, on 7-A Highway, one mile north of Blackstock in Cartwright township. Wm. Hooton of Ida is president of the Durham Plowmen's Association.

CYCLIST HITS TRUCK

John Brennan, 12, of 38 Hunter street east, suffered shoulder injuries as the result of a traffic accident on Hunter street. J. P. Leveck, driver for the Fitzgerald Coal Company, reported to the police that when he turned his truck into the company's coal yard he saw a number of boys on bicycles approaching and stopped the machine. Leveck said that young Brennan put on his brakes on his bicycle and was thrown off against the front of the truck. He did not seem to be hurt at the time, but later had to be taken to St. Joseph's Hospital for an X-ray examination.

Family Flees Burning Home

BANCROFT, Oct. 16 — (ENS) — Three adults and seven children were forced to flee from their home at Hermon, 16 miles east of Bancroft, Sunday at midnight, when fire of unknown origin completely destroyed their dwelling.

The house was a two-storey log dwelling in which Mr. and Mrs. George McEathern, his father, Burnett McEathern and seven children were slooping. About 11 o'clock, the dog who was in the woodshed, began howling steadily, and Mr. McEathern got dressed and went out to the barn to see if anything was wrong there. Finding everything in good shape, he returned to the house and examined the stove to make certain the fire was out.

About an hour later he was awakened by the smell of smoke and saw the room was lit up by the reflection of fire coming from the woodshed roof. He roused his wife, father and children from 2 to 13 years old and got them outside, only to discover that his two-year-old daughter was still inside. He raced back upstairs through the fire now shooting out the door of a front room and brought the baby down.

Calvin White, who was returning from Carlo, noticed the blaze and went to help the family, later taking them to the home of Mackey Burtenn, a neighbor. He took Mr. McEathern, Sr., to his son's home at Detlor.

All the contents of the home were lost, including 50 bags of potatoes and all their winter fruit. The family was not able to rescue any clothing.

WOUNDS HEALED—Gnr. Ray Mundell, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Mundell, R.R. 4, Peterborough, is fighting again with the R.C.A. in Italy, having recovered from shrapnel wounds in the forehead.

Gnr. R. A. Mundell Returns To Front

Spending a short time in a hospital in Italy after suffering shrapnel wounds in the forehead while serving with the Royal Canadian Artillery, Gnr. Raymond Arnold Mundell, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Mundell, R.R. 4, Peterborough, is now back in action and none the worse for his mishap, according to his parents. He was wounded in September.

Twenty-one years of age, Gnr. Mundell left Genelco to enlist in early 1943, and arrived overseas at Christmas last year. His parents believe he is now with an anti-tank corps, of the R.C.A.

Wasted Effort

TOWANDA, Pa., Oct. 16—(AP)—Noble Detts, Jr., of the Naiadlinta Fire Company was standing in front of the home of Harry R. Wenck when an alarm sounded. He drove three-quarters of a mile to the firehouse, jumped on a truck and rode back to the burning Wenck home.

OBITUARIES

HARRY RISHEA

After working an ordinary day in the George street F. and G. store on Friday, Harry Rishea died suddenly Saturday at his residence, 495 Romaine street, in his 64th year.

Mr. Rishea was by trade, a butcher, and for the greater part of his business life, was connected with the Canada Packers, working there when the firm went under the name of the Matthews and Blackwell packing plant. During the past 13 years, he has been employed with the F. and G. Markets.

Born in Peterborough, the son of the late Harry Rishea and Delina Barrett, Mr. Rishea lived here, all his life. He received his education at local schools, and was devoted member of Sacred Heart Church from the time it was dedicated. Along with membership in the Catholic Order of Foresters, he was also a member of the Holy Name Society.

He leaves to mourn his loss, a sorrowing wife, formerly Alexina Gosselin, two sons, Rev. Leo Rishea, parish priest of Wooler, Vincent Rishea of Montreal, and one daughter, Marie, a registered nurse, of Peterborough. Also surviving are two brothers, Amie, of Peterborough, Frederick, of Rochester, N.Y., and two sisters, Mrs. Louise Jones, and Mrs. Joseph Ranger, both of Peterborough.

The funeral will be Tuesday morning at 9.40 o'clock, from the family residence to the Church of the Sacred Heart for Solemn Requiem High Mass at 10 o'clock. His son, Rev. Rishea will be celebrant of the Mass, and interment will be in St. Peter's Cemetery.

JAMES DUNDAS

FENELON FALLS, Oct. 16. — The funeral was held Saturday of James Dundas, 53, who died suddenly on Thursday morning at his Fenelon Falls residence after suffering a heart seizure. The service was under the auspices of the Canadian Legion, and interment was made in Fenelon Falls Cemetery.

A toolmaker by trade, Mr. Dundas was well liked by all who knew him, and his employment at the C.G.E. and Genelco had earned for him a wide circle of friends in Peterborough. Born in Fenelon Falls, son of the late Noble Dundas and Mrs. Dundas, he served with the armed forces in the First World War.

He leaves to mourn his passing his wife, formerly Eva Barnes, of Toronto, and two brothers, Robert of Peterborough and Arthur of Fenelon Falls. Another brother, George, of Peterborough, predeceased him in June of this year.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, October 17

ACCORDING to the lunar transits this may be a day of rather routine affairs with things moving along in customary grooves. There may besome upsets or breaking away from old ties or conditions, but in an inconsequential manner. In difficulties or problems the assistance or advice of elders, employers or those in influential places may be depended upon. But in all adhere to the codes and be prudent with funds. There may be relaxations of a social or sentimental character.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a year of rather easy or routine experiences, with some minor or insignificant upsets or estrangements In trying or uncertain predicaments confer wtih elders, superiors or employers whose advice is trustworthy. Be wise with funds and careful in making changes. In social, domestic or affectional associations there may be happy and profitable diversion.

A child born on this day may have some erratic or exceptional inclinations, although generally affable, easy to get along with, finding approbation from elders or superiors.

Warsaw Gives $60 To Centre In Peterborough

A cheque for $60 has been received from a Warsaw group who wished to make some contribution to Peterborough's Memorial Centre, Alderman Herb Bradburn informed the Examiner today. The money was the proceeds of a dance Friday night in the Warsaw community hall. The committee who conceived the neighborly idea was composed of Frank Sidey, Wilbert Wright, Hilliard Darling and Mark Lonsberry. And as evidence of general support of the social affair it was said that the orchestra gave its services without charge, and equally interested women provided refreshments, assuming the expense themselves.

Members of the Memorial Centre committee were delighted with the voluntary gift of $60 from the Warsaw people. The fact that the dance was undertaken on their own initiative added a pleasant note of genuine rural support to the city's project which when completed is bound to be a place of attraction for large numbers of the country's residents, especially its young people. One of the suggested possibilities of the Memorial Centre is a livestock show during the winter or other seasons. Obviously the more substantial sentiment for the Memorial Centre from district friends, the more claim they would have on its facilities.

CASUALTY IN FRANCE — Pte. Raymond Donald Foster, whose wife and three-year-old son Barry live at 291 Louis street, has been reported wounded in France, while serving with the Royal Canadian Engineers.

Pte. Raymond Foster Wounded In France

Recently announced as a winner of the Military Medal, Pte. Raymond Donald Foster, whose wife and three-year-old son Barry live at 291 Louis street, has been officially reported wounded in France, October 8. One of twin brothers serving with the armed forces in France, Pte. Foster has been overseas more than three years.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Foster, Jackson Park Road, the young soldier enlisted in the Royal Canadian Engineers in August, 1940, leaving a position at the Canadian General Electric Company. He went overseas in June of 1941, where he has been since, up to the time of the Normandy invasion.

In the brief telegram disclosing that he had been wounded, no details as to how he received the wound, or to what extent he has been hurt, were given.

Pte. Foster's twin brother, Pte. Ralston Douglas Foster, is serving overseas in France, with the same unit. Another brother, Albert, is also serving with the armed forces.

Four Soldiers Appear In Casualty List

Four men from the Peterborough district have been reported casualties, according to an announcement to-day. Pte. John Alvin Stoneburgh, son of Mrs. Margaret Stoneburgh, of Stirling, has been reported killed overseas.

While fighting with an Eastern Ontario regiment overseas, Pte. William F. Heasman, son of Frederick Heasman, of R.R. 4, Stirling, was reported missing in action. Two men have been listed as slightly wounded. They are Pte. Francis N. Gordon, serving with the Canadian Provost Corps, and whose wife, Mrs. Lillian E. Gordon, lives at Cobourg, and Sgt. Herbert E. Mathison, whose wife, Mrs. Vivian A. Mathison, lives at 67 Brown street, Port Hope.

NEEDS MUCH BLOOD

It may take as many as 12 bottles of dried blood serum to keep a fighting man alive when he has been gravely wounded.

War—4 Years Ago

By The Canadian Press

Oct. 16, 1940—R.A.F. attacked Kiel, Hamburg and Cuxhaven naval bases, synthetic oil plants at Leuna and power station in Saxony; Highflying planes attacked Gibraltar. Brig. E. W. Sansom promoted to rank of Major-General to command 3rd Division, C.A.S.F.

ESCAPES FROM HUNS — Pilot Officer Stanley Gay of Campbellford is home on furlough, after his liberation from German occupied territory. He evaded capture for several weeks and was freed by Allied troops.

Can't Evade Issue Of Christ

The Centre Theatre was filled to capacity Sunday evening to listen to a Gospel message from Rev. John MacLeod of Stratford and Gospel singing by the Wigden colored trio of Maples, New York.

The speaker took as his text the words of Pilate, "What then shall I do with Jesus which is called Christ." The speaker pointed out how Pilate attempted to evade the issue. First he suggested that the priests take him and try him according to their laws, then he suggested that as Jesus was a Galilean that he be sent to Herod, who happened to be in Jerusalem at that time. This evasion of the issue is still true, as men and women refuse to make a decision. They avoid the question, "Choose ye this day whom ye shall serve," until it is too late.

During the trial of Jesus He remained silent, refusing to answer the questions that Pilate put to Him. What an example that is for christians of to-day. To meet abuse and scoffing with silence, refusing to let the criticism of friends or the abuse of enemies turn them from their determination to be true to the teachings of their Master, Mr. MacLeod said.

The speaker also pointed out that it was Pilate's fear that kept him from giving a just verdict and allow Jesus to go free. He was afraid that his career as a Roman official would be ruined if he antagonized this mob of Jewish priests and people and so he released unto them a murderer named Barabbas and allowed the innocent Jesus to be crucified. All the washing of his hands in a bowl of water will never take away from Pilate the all-time disgrace of having sent an innocent man to a cruel death, he continued. Often christians have to face what they think is a choice between Christ and a career and too often, like Pilate, they choose the career and reject the Saviour. Christians have the chance now to face Him and accept Him as a Saviour. If they do not they will face Him some day as a judge.

During the service the Wigden colored trio sang and Robert Wigden led the audience in Gospel hymn singing. Next Sunday J. H. Hunter, traveller, author and editor, of Toronto, will be the speaker and Harold Wardell of Toronto, will be the soloist.

Toronto S.A. Officers Take Temple Services

At the Salvation Army Temple on Saturday night, Major Reg. Gage, divisional young people's secretary of Toronto, showed the films, "Behind the Red Shield" and "The Power of God." The formre was a graphic and enlightening presentation of the manifold activities of Red Shield workers among the forces in battle zones and in camps. "The Power of God" revealed the benefits of applying Christian principles in business and professional life and showed that the application of these principles brings harmony into homes wrecked by sin.

Lt.-Colonel and Mrs. Spooner led the services on Sunday, the Colonel's address in the morning meeting having as its basis the Scripture text: "O worship the Lord in the beauty of Holiness." "Holiness," said the speaker, "has a three-fold definition: separation, kindness and helpfulness." The afternoon meeting, which took the form of a musical program, was the occasion also of the commissioning of the members of the Songster brigade, Sunday School teachers, Junior singing company girls, Junior band lads and John Smith received a commission as band sergeant.

Lt.-Colonel Spooner's address at the night service was on the incident in the life of Jesus of the rich young ruler who asked for guidance in attaining eternal life. In his sermon the Colonel drew a sharp distinction between the "social needs" of mankind and their spiritual needs." While material things are necessary to life and social standards should unquestionably be improved, there is great danger, the speaker felt, in neglecting the spiritual aspect of life as the young ruler unfortunately did, and which can only be supplied in full measure by Christ. Major and Mrs. Gage and Mrs. Spooner took part in all services.

Boy's Hip Broken In Car Accident 4 Persons Hurt

Ten-year-old David Bedore, Havelock, had his hip fractured and four other persons were cut and bruised in a collision between a truck and a passenger automobile at Park and Lansdowne streets Saturday afternoon.

Leslie Leal, River Road, was driving his car west on Lansdowne street and Charles D. Ferguson, R.R. 1, Baltimore, was travelling south on Park street in a two-ton truck when the vehicles collided at the intersection and the whole right hand side of the Leal car was smashed.

Leal and his wife, along with Mrs. Clayton Bedore, Havelock, and her two children, David and Mary, were passengers in the car and all five were injured. They were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital where it was ascertained that David had sustained a fracture of his hip. The others were less seriously hurt.

SERVING OVERSEAS — PO. Grant Smedmor, son of Mrs. D. Smedmor, 148 Murray street, is serving with the RCAF overseas. He enlisted with Major Harstone's Battery and went overseas in 1941, returning to Canada last year to train with the RCAF.

PRISONER OF WAR — Cpl. Clayton Daniels was reported missing July 28, but further information from Ottawa lists him as a prisoner of war. His home is in Coe Hill.

524 Fire Alarms Been Turned In

An estimated loss of $25,000 was suffered by Peterborough as a result of fires in the period between January and September 30 of this year, according to a report recently completed by Fire Chief George Gimblett. A total of 524 alarms turned in, materialized into 43 fires during that span, and from those 43 fires came the somewhat staggering $25,000 loss.

Last year, however, 578 alarms, 42 of which signified a blaze, caused no less than $51,458.93, indicating a decrease this year in damage losses of approximately $26,458. Included in 1943's fires was the disastrous Canadian Oil Company blaze in October, which alone resulted in more than $17,000 worth of damage.

In 1937 the smallest fire loss in the history of Peterborough came to light, when out of 502 alarms, 38 fires caused only $3,347.05 damage.

Fires which caused more than $10,000 damage in the past have been relatively few, and the Parker's blaze in 1939, Bridgeway building and Charlabond fire of February, 1941, together with the oil fire, are the only ones listed.

The record year for the number of alarms turned in was 1941 when fire engines were called out 651 times to fight only 47 fires. Smallest number of alarms was turned in during 1942 when 460 calls meant 35 fires.

Taken Prisoner

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—(CP)—The German communique broadcast by Berlin today claimed "one Canadian brigadier was taken prisoner when the Germans counter-attacked at the Isthmus leading toward south Beveland."

OFFICER MISSING — Lieut. Alvin J. Greenly was reported missing, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Greenly, Warkworth, have been notified. His wife, Sgt. Marion Greenly, is with the CWAC serving in England.

Careless Driver Given Minimum

Giving judgment in police court this morning Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., found Elmer G. Godfrey guilty of careless driving in connection with a traffic accident at Aylmer and Charlotte streets in July in which Benjamin Swarts was knocked down.

The case was re-opened to allow the defence to recall Godfrey in connection with the position of the stop sign at the intersection. The witness said that a sketch of the scene and measurements taken there by Constable Gordon Trennum were correct.

In giving judgment Magistrate Langley pointed out that there was a greater need of care at such an intersection. The evidence, he said, was diametrically opposite but while he was not satisfied that the accused had not stopped at the stop sign he felt that even if he had he had been guilty of carelessness in his approach to the pedestrian strip.

"However the carelessness," said His Worship, "was not of a very gross nature and I am satisfied that this is a case for a minimum fine."

Godfrey was fined $5 and $7.50 costs.

Five Men Fined

Evidence of a rather thirsty weekend was furnished in police court when five men appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to answer to drunk charges.

Two of them, Manson Lindsay and Albert Raciot were second offenders and on their pleas of guilty were fined $50 and $2.50 costs or a month in jail. Lindsay had been convicted only on Friday as a first offender and Saturday he fell into the hands of the police again.

Oliver Kelly and Clifford Hunt, who pleaded guilty as first offenders, were fined $10 and $2.50 costs and the same penalty was meted out to D. Jobart who entered a guilty plea to having been drunk on Highway 7 in the township of Smith.

Pte. Norman Thorne Wounded In Italy

Serving with the first battalion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in the heavy fighting around the Rimini sector, Pte. Norman N. Thorne, son of Major William J. Thorne and Mrs. Thorne, of R.R. 3 Omemee, has been officially reported wounded in action this month. Other details were not given.

Enlisting in Peterborough in April, 1942, the young soldier received his training here, and at Niagara-On-The-Lake, and Prince George, B.C., before going overseas in January, 1943. Previous to his enlistment, he was employed on his father's farm near Omemee.

Pte. Thorne's father, who served three years in the First Great War, commanded the 45th Regiment Victoria and Haliburton. He retired as a major, but prior to this, held the rank of captain. Although Major Thorne signed for overseas duty, he was retained in Canada as a recruiting officer.

Belleville Division Asked For $283,000

Employees of the Belleville division of Canadian National Railways are being asked to subscribe $283,000 of the new Victory Loan. Peterborough is included in this division. It extends from Toronto to Belleville and northerly to Midland, Coboconk, Haliburton and Maynooth. The 2,300 employees of the Belleville division, the largest of the company's Central Region, will be canvassed in the campaign.

The Central Region, from the Maritimes to the head of the Great Lakes, is being asked to contribute $5,500,000.

A New Idea

EDMONTON, Oct. 16 (CP) — A resolution urging that Canadian servicemen who have served three years overseas be returned home and that the present home army replace them as active service troops in any theatre of war where necessary, was passed yesterday at a meeting of the Edmonton Branch, Canadian Legion.

Good Neighbors Assist Christmas Fund

At no season of the year is the act of good neighborliness more evident or prevalent than at Christmas, so much so that most people who delight in the finer sentiments as between various members of the human family, have a feeling and wish that this could prevail to a larger degree throughout the whole of the calendar year

In a sense the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund operating locally, may be said to exemplify this spirit to a good degree, for it operates and has operated day in and day out for close to four years, to relieve the sufferings that air warfare has caused to large numbers of the civilian population of Great Britain.

Coming closer to this same spirit in an individual sense, the group known as the Good Neighbors, operating chiefly in the south-end of the city for the same purpose, may also be said to come within the same category, for their acts of good neighborship for these same people thousands of miles away, have continued on a similar steady basis throughout the weeks and months of the time they have been in operation as a group.

Raise a Total of $1,075

Perhaps the best evidence of just how steady and consistent a labor of love for far distant neighbors that this group has performed, is best offered in stating that they have now raised the large sum of $1,075, to assist the needs of those made homeless in Britain, when one counts their latest contribution of $41.95 credited to them today.

Considering that this has principally all been raised in holding euchre parties in the homes of the various members on a weekly basis, it may readily be seen what a credit they have in sponsoring such an effort, for it takes a very large number of fees at 25 cents a time to make up such a large sum of money.

This latest contribution comes as a result of parties held in the homes of Mrs. R. McCabe on Crescent street, Mrs. O'Connell on Perry street, Mrs. Clifford on Perry street, Mrs. G. Reader on Gladstone avenue, and Mrs. C. Watson of Ware street, to which were added the proceeds from a small draw among themselves for a pair of towels donated by Mrs. I. Sabin.

This is their first contribution towards the special donation now being gathered together for Christmas of this year, which undoubtedly will be followed by others, for their next party is to be held at the home of Mrs. Head on Olive avenue this Wednesday afternoon, to be followed by others which will in the aggregate give them a nice share in this special gift to carry good cheer for Christmas to the boys and girls in Britain, to be sent at that time.

Personals Next Thursday

Another nice list of personal contributions is on the way, the 14th list of such having already some seven donations of this kind on hand for that purpose, to which it is hoped further assistance will be given, and all such received at headquarters up to the close of business on Wednesday evening will find a place in this particular list.

Robertson—Trumble

MARMORA, Oct. 16 —(ENS)—A quiet wedding took place Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orval Trumble, when Sylvia Irene Trumble became the bride of Clayton Robertson, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. William Robertson of Campbellford. Rev. E. M. Cadigan officiated.

The bride, given in mariage by her father, was attired in white satin and wore a shoulder-length veil. She carried a bouquet of pink roses. She was attended by Helen Regan of the R.C.A.F. (WD) Aylmer. Kenneth Trumble, brother of the bride, was best man.

Following the wedding dinner, the happy young couple left on a honeymoon trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls. Upon their return, they will reside in Campbellford.

LCW Holds Tea To Raise Money For New Centre

Disagreeable rain squalls put an unexpected damper on the afternoon tea on Saturday, sponsored by the Local Council of Women, to raise a donation for the Memorial Community Centre. But in spite of it, a large number of guests attended. Men were invited, and several were in attendance.

Centring the graceful tea table, set with a lace cloth, was a model of the proposed Centre, surrounded by a floral square of autumn flowers. The table was set with silver, and silver tea services were placed at either end. Mrs. W. Addyman was in charge of decorations. Pouring tea were Mrs. F. M. Somerville, Mrs. J. M. McCulloch, Mrs. C. M. Scott and Mrs. J. K. Hughes. Receiving the guests were Mrs. W. H. Morton, president of the Local Council and Mrs. E. Wand and Mrs. G. K. Fraser. Hostesses were Mrs. H. Tremaine and Mrs. B. F. McNeely.

Vice-presidents of the Council, Mrs. D. A. Loomis, Mrs. F. Merrett, Mrs. M. H. Drysdale, and Miss M. Ferguson, were the committee in charge of the tea, with Mrs. Merrett and Mrs. Drysdale in charge of replenishing. Serving the guests during the afternoon were: Mrs. A. Mann, frs. A. E. Barrie, Mrs. H. T. Rehill, Mrs. J. Low, Mrs. W. T. Fanjoy, Mrs. A. G. Gray, Miss M. Patterson, Mrs. J. A. Robinson, Mrs. W. Addyman, Mrs. C. Collins. Mrs. Karl Simpson was treasurer, and Mrs. T. W. H. Young and Miss M. Ferguson were in charge of registration.

Mrs. Morton extended an invitation for everyone to attend the next meeting of the Council, Thursday in the Y.W.C.A., when Miss Stella Cuffe, of St. Catharines will be guest speaker. She explained that Miss Cuffe was a public-spirited woman, and gave a brief outline of her work, which included acting on the Board of Education, being an alderman for six years, running for mayor, and being president of the Zonta Club, as well a being interested in the Y.W.C.A. "Mrs. Luffman, of Toronto, president of the Women's Electorate Association will also be a guest speaker," Mrs. Morton continued, "and should have an interesting message."

Nurses Group Elects 1945 Officers

Mrs. E. Breckenridge of Peterborough, was elected chairman of District Number Six of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario at the annual meeting Saturday afternoon and evening, and her executive is as follows: First vice-chairman, Miss M. Ross, Peterborough; second vice-chairman, Miss Janet Graham, Cobourg; third vice-chairman, Miss Aileen Flett, Lindsay; secretary-treasurer, Miss Anna Lynch, Peterborough.

Conveners of the various committee are as follows: Hospital and School of Nursing section, Sister M. Benedicta, of Peterborough; Public Health, Miss Helen Furlong, Peterborough; Membership, Miss Maribelle Mackenzie, Lindsay; General Duty, Miss May Stone, Peterborough; Finance, Miss Lois Stewart, Peterborough; Canadian Nurse, Mrs. Cole, Peterborough; Convener of Nominations, Miss H. Talbot, Peterborough; representatives, Miss Porter, Cobourg, and Miss H. Strath, Lindsay.

Following a business meeting at the Y.W.C.A., when reports from various sections of the organization as well as accounts of Chapter meetings, business and social, were presented, the group adjourned to the Empress Hotel for a banquet, and reconvened at the Y.W. later in the evening, when Miss Gladys Sharpe, Reg. N., a graduate of Toronto General Hospital, was guest speaker. She has recently returned from South Africa, where she served a a nursing sister for three years. Describing her trip, Miss Sharpe told of the departure from New York in December 1940, when she was in charge of 80 Canadian nurses. She related interesting points about the trip, a stop-over at Trinidad and Cape Town, and the customs and amusements of the people of different countries.

Open Hospital

She told of the opening of a new hospital in Johannesburg, with 48 wards, and 36 beds in each ward. Nurses were in charge of the wards, with voluntary aid workers to assist. The first patients, she said, were a convoy of 257 stretcher cases, and they were in their beds two hours after their arrival. She said that she was very glad to be home, because the work was strenuous and circumstances were difficult. Miss Sharpe was introduced by Miss E. Young, and Miss M. Hurtubise moved the vote of thanks.

At the banquet, Miss Sharpe, introduced by Mrs. E. Breckenridge, expressed her pleasure at being asked to come to Peterborough and address the nurses. She was presented with a book by Miss M. McKenzie of Lindsay, as an expression of the Chapter's gratitude for her presence. The evening meeting was open to the public, and Mrs. Breckenridge reviewed some points of interest which had been presented at the business meeting. Miss Joy Walker of Peterborough, supplied music until the meeting opened.

District six of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario is composed of the counties of Victoria, Peterborough, Durham, Northumberland, Prince Edward, Hastings and Haliburton, and is divided into three chapters: Chapter A, Belleville and surrounding district; Chapter B, Cobourg and Port Hope and district; and Chapter C, Peterborough, Lindsay and surrounding district. Mrs. E. Breckenridge, third vice-chairman, presided at the meetings, because of the resignation of Rev. Sister M. Gonzaga of St. Joseph's Hospital, who has been transferred to Estevan, Sask.

Stuart Family Celebrates Golden Jubilee

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Stuart, 584 Division street, are today observing the 50th anniversary of their wedding. Sunday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Jack R. Stuart entertained at a family dinner. The table was beautifully decorated in gold and white. Major Claire H. Stuart was toastmaster and proposed the toast to the King. The senior member of the family, Major Lloyd J. Stuart, proposed the toast to the bride and groom of fifty years ago which was suitably acknowledged by the groom. The junior member of the family, Mrs. George Kiff, proposed a toast tc the family and later a gift of money was presented by the youngest grandchild, Master Peter Stuart.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. John W. Stuart; Major and Mrs. Lloyd J. Stuart and Peter, Kingston; Major and Mrs. Claire H. Stuart, Barbara and Robert; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Laing and Mary; Mr. and Mrs. Jack R. Stuart, Jane and Katherine; Mr. and Mrs. George Kiff and David. Unable to be present were Mr. and Mrs. W. Alex Stuart, Joanne and Kathryn, Grosse Pointe, Mich., and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Stuart and Tom, Jr., of Flat Rock Mich.

50th Anniversary Of Auxiliary Observed Sunday

Members of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Luke's Anglican Church, Ashburnham, attended Sunday morning in a body, a special service commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the W.A. Guest preacher was Canon Leonard Dixon of Toronto, general secretary of the Church of England Missionary Society in Canada.

Canon Dixon told of his recent trip to the Arctic this summer, with the Bishop of the Arctic, and the evidences and incidents he had seen, showing the excellent work the W.A.'s were doing. The Women's Auxiliaries of the Anglican churches throughout Canada support the women missionaries and look after women's and children's work in Canada, as well as in foreign fields. Canon Dixon said that he had been on "the receiving and sending end" since he had been on hand when the bales and the money and gifts from W.A.'s had been received, and had also been visiting other points where these articles were collected and sent. He also visited the Peace River district.

Rev. A. J. Arthur of St. Luke's celebrated the corporate communion, and splendid attendance of the congregation as well as members of the Women's Auxiliary marked this special occasion.

An anniversary program will be presented on Wednesday evening, St. Luke's day, in the parish hall. Mrs. Britton Osler, of Toronto, a member of the Diocesan Board of the Women's Auxiliary, will be among the guest speakers. Other items of the program will include a history of the parish, and a meeting along similar lines to the first meeting of the W.A. conducted by women dressed in the costumes of that day.

SWIFT'S WEEKLY FOOD HINTS

Martha Logan

Martha Logan, Swift's famed home economist, introduces you to Don McNeill, the big jovial master of ceremonies of "The Breakfast Club," this continent's most popular daytime radio show.

"Wake up with a Smile"

A Happy Start Makes for a Happy Day is "Breakfast Club" philosophy

This column today is by way of introduction to Don McNeill, the 6-foot-two master of ceremonies on "The Breakfast Club." The continent's most popular daytime radio show is to be sponsored by Swift's over the Trans-Canada network beginning with November. Don, who is 36, weighs 200 pounds, is married and has three children. He has been "father" to "The Breakfast Club" for 11 years. He'll start your day right with his happy-go-lucky antics each morning Monday through Friday. See my accompanying panel for time and radio stations in your locality which carry the program.

During his em-cee-ing of this happy show, Don has won just about all the entertainment awards going. In one day a solid ton of mail is delivered to his Chicago studio. All of which goes to prove that people like to be told if they sing before breakfast, their whole day is off to a better start.

And from time to time, I'll be on "The Breakfast Club," to discuss your wartime food problems. In the meantime, do remember that food is a weapon of war. Buy it wisely; cook it properly; use it up.

Of Course You Can Have Cake!

● Birthday party coming up! Cake? Of course there must be cake . . . light, tender, digestible, the kind that makes a party and leaves no unpleasant aftermath! And despite less sugar . . . eggs . . . shortening . . . you can serve the youngsters' favorites at their wholesome best, if you follow a reliable recipe, and use good dependable ingredients!

LOOK HOW SWANS DOWN SAVES RATIONED INGREDIENTS!

Sweetener a Problem?

Don't let that stand in your way! Remember . . . the superb fineness and tender gluten of Swans Down can make your low-sugar cakes tender, moist — delicious as your heart desires! Try this Swans Down beauty, with your favorite fluffy frosting. Orange segments and birthday candles, for decoration.

Mace Orange Cake

2 cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
2 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
1½ tablespoons grated orange rind
⅓ cup butter or other shortening
¾ cup light brown sugar, firmly packed
¼ teaspoon salt
1 egg, unbeaten
⅓ teaspoon mace
¾ cup milk

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt and mace and sift three times. Cream butter, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat well. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add orange rind. Bake in two greased 8-inch layer pans in moderate oven (375°F.) about 25 minutes, until done.

Only 1 Egg in the House!

Then how about this Chocolate Layer Cake? You'll scarcely believe a one-egg cake could be so light, tender, fluffy! The secret? Swans Down, of course! Chocolate Frosting between and on top —and birthday candles, if it's for a party!

Chocolate Layer Cake

2 cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
2 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
⅓ cup butter or other shortening
1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 egg, unbeaten
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat very thoroughly. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in two greased 8-inch layer pans, in moderate oven (375°F.) for 20 to 25 minutes. Cover with Sugarless Chocolate Frosting—you'll find the recipe on the Baker's Chocolate package—or with your own favorite Chocolate Frosting.

Low on Butter?

How about a modified sponge cake, that calls for only 1½ tablespoons butter, and just 2 eggs? Light and digestible enough for even the youngest . . . grand enough for really important guests! But remember — you must use Swans Down! No ordinary flour could give such results, from such simple ingredients!

Lemon Sponge Cake

1 cup sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
1 teaspoon Calumet Baking Powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
1½ tablespoons butter
2 eggs
6 tablespoons hot milk
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Beat eggs until very thick and light. Add sugar gradually, beating constantly. Quickly fold in half of flour; then fold in remaining flour. Melt butter in hot milk; add to batter, mixing quickly until smooth and well-blended. Add lemon juice and vanilla. Turn at once into 8 x 8 x 2-inch pan, greased lightly and lined with greased paper to within ½ inch of edge. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.), about 40 minutes. When cold, split and fill with lemon filling.

For Consistently Good Cakes . . .

Good cooks everywhere use Swans Down, the flour made especially for making better cakes. Milled from selected soft Canadian winter wheat, Swans Down is sifted again and again through silk, until 27 times as fine as ordinary flour. Makes cakes with delicate, moist, velvety crumb . . . thin, even crust — the kind of cakes you dream of! Nine tested recipes on every Swans Down package.

DOROTHY DIX

YOUTH NEEDS ITS PLAYTIME

Law of Life That Those Who Miss It By Marriage in Teens Never Happy, Satisfied.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a young mother 23 years old. Have a loving and tender husband and two wonderful children, but they get on my nerves terribly sometimes. I was married when I was 18, just out of high school, and had never been anywhere or had any pleasure as my parents were very strict.

My husband's sole interest is in his work. He never wants to go out of an evening. I am tired of this dull life of slavery. If my husband would only take me out occasionally and let me see a little life and gaiety, perhaps I would soon tire of it and be a home-loving body. What shall I do?

ONE WHO LIVES IN HOPE.

Tragedy of Early Marriage

ANSWER—Yours is the inevitable tragedy of those who marry too early. It seems to be a law of life that we must have our playtime, and if we miss it, we are never happy nor satisfied. The girl who has never had any beaux but the man she married, who has never flirted nor had admiration from men, makes the middle-aged woman who is man-crazy and who gets into compromising affairs with men she picks up at dances and cabarets. However, in your case, it is too late for regrets. The fact remains that you married at 18 before you had had your girl time, and now, if your husband is wise, he will try to make up to you for it as far as he can by giving you pleasure in broken doses. He will let you buy as many pretty frocks as he can afford, and he will take you once or twice a week to some place where you can see the bright lights.

In this way he can prevent your craving for amusement from precipitating a tragedy, as it does in so many homes. For the devil stands leering over the shoulder of every pretty, restless, discontented young wife, and he will get her if her husband doesn't watch out.

DEAR MISS DIX — I know a poor young couple who got married. Their union was truly a partnership. The husband worked at his business; the wife slaved and saved at home. The wife did without everything everything she possibly could so that every cent might go into the business and they prospered mightily.

At middle age they are rich. Another woman has set her greedy eyes upon the husband. The husband spends his time and money on the Other Woman and his wife gets very little of either. The moral of which is that it doesn't pay to make your husband so prosperous that he becomes a prize for the vamps.

Wise Woman Does Not Sacrifice Too Much

ANSWER—Right you are, Mrs. K. T. W. It is only the poor men who are safe from gold-diggers, there is nothing that makes for virtue in a man like lacking the price.

The instance you cite illustrates anew how difficult it is to be a good wife, for very often when a woman is trying hardest to help her husband she is doing the thing that ruins him. She slaves and saves and denies herself in order to help him get a start. As long as she does this and they work shoulder to shoulder, her husband is faithful and devoted. But once the fortune is achieved, how sadly often the man becomes the prey of Other Women!

The lesson of which is that a wife who is wise does not sacrifice too much. She takes her pleasures and indulgences in moderation as she goes along, and keeps her husband at that state where he has enough money on which to be comfortable, but not enough to make him a shining mark for the sirens.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am 40 years old. Have been married 15 years and have a little girl 8 years old. My wife is ill a great deal and is very quarrelsome. I treat her like a baby and have given her a comfortable home, but she is continually fussing and I have gotten so I dread to go home. Please advise me what to do, as I am

MISERABLE.

ANSWER—There is nothing that you can in honor do, poor, unhappy husband, except to go on bearing your burden as bravely as you can. There are few lots of life that are harder than those of the men and women who are married to invalids because ill people are nearly always irritable and selfish, but when you married you swore to cherish the woman you took in sickness and in health, and the more you are of a man, the less you can go back on that.

Also, you have your child to consider. Your duty to her. Find what comfort you can in her love and in developing her into a splendid woman.

Dorothy Ann Payne Wed In Warsaw

WARSAW, Oct. 16 — (ENS). — A very pretty wedding took place at the Manse on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when Ann, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Payne was united in marriage to Arnold Alfred Fife, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fife, Norwood.

Rev. E. D. Snelgrove performed the ceremony.

The bride was charming in a floor-length dress of white brocaded satin, with finger tip veil of white net caught in a cornet of white rosebuds. Her bouquet was sweet peas and bouvardia.

Miss Dora Payne was her sisters bridesmaid gowned in white satin with lace inserts. She carried a bouquet of sweet peas and baby's breath.

Mr. Harold Fife, brother of the groom was best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of groom's parents in Norwood. The groom's mother received, wearing a dress of floral jersey and corsage of pansies. The bride's mother also received wearing a dress of blue crepe and she also wore a bouquet of pansies.

For a motor trip to the east the bride wore a green herringbone suit with brown hat, fox fur and accessories to match.

On their return they will live at 16 New Romaine street, Peterborough.

The groom's gift to the bride and bridesmaid were gold necklaces.

Prior to their marriage they were presented with many beautiful gifts, among them an electric lamp from the staff of Nicholls Hospital, where the bride has worked for three years and a cigarette stand from the employees of the Canadian General Electric, where the groom is employed.

Collegiate Opens

long punt by Bob Rooke drove Bowmanville back on the defensive early in the first period and during the opening moments P.C.V.S. were on the attack. However the Bowmanville defence tightened in their own territory and Rooke was finally compelled to kick, booting a long one over for a rouge. Play was even for the rest of the period and neither team had a good scoring chance.

The Scoring Session

Most of the scoring was done in the second session. Bowmanville changed to a plunging game and with McIlveen and Brown carrying the ball, ripped through the P.C.V.S. lines for big gains. A fumble beat them once and Rooke kicked to midfield, but they came back with another march, this time going all the way. Brown put the finishing touches on the parade by skirting Peterborough's left end for a touchdown which was not converted. That made it 6 to 1 for the invaders but P.C.V.S. took over the leadership again a few minutes later on the most spectacular play of the day. Sisson gathered in a Sturrock punt on his own 35 yard line and after a 20 yard dash passed a lateral to Rooke as he was being tackled and the P.C.V.S. flying wing ran 55 yards for a touchdown.

Outram converted with a goal from placement and the Peterborough students were in front 7 to 5, the score remaining at that figure at half time.

Miss a Chance

There was a strong wind blowing from the north and when the second half opened P.C.V.S. kicked off against the wind and on the first play Sturrock boomed a long punt that went over the head of Sisson and carried the play deep into P.C.V.S. territory. It remained there for most of the period. Fortunately for the winners, however, Bowmanville failed to take advantage of the wind and the fact that they were in good position to garner single points. They preferred to gamble for a major score and it failed to come, although they made it very close. When they finally had to kick Sturrock hoisted a long one over the Peterborough line for a rouge to make it 7 to 6.

It was even going in the last period with frequent fumbles preventing either team from getting a sustained going. It looked as if the score might remain unchanged but near the end of the period P.C.V.S. aided by a Bowmanville penalty worked the ball down the field close enough for Rooke to kick over the Bowmanville line for another single to make the final count 8 to 6.

The teams:

Bowmanville High—Flying wing, Strike; halves, Brown, McIlveen, Simpkin; quarter, Sturrock; snap, Stutt; inside wings, Jackman, M. Tighe; middles, Nelles, Cowle; outsides, Rundle, Wilcox; alternates, Forsey, Passant, Penfound, Grant, Cattran, Hoar G. Tighe.

Peterborough C.V.S.—Flying wing, Rooke; halves, Outram, Robinson, De La Plante; quarter, Sisson; snap, Scott; inside wings, Brown, Patterson; middle wings, Lech, Graham; outsides, Davis, Smith; alternates, Matthews Estlick, Hinton, Loftus.

Referee—Gordon Young; Umpire, Don Duncan.

The Junior Battle

Cobourg and P.C.V.S. juniors had a real dogfight in the opening game on the double bill with P.C.V.S. finally winning out 1 to 0 on the strength of a rouge from a good kick by Menzies in the first half. That proved to be the only score of a hard-fought game.

Cobourg had several opportunities later in the battle to tie up the score but they elected to try for major scores and the result was that one point proved enough to defeat them.

The teams were evenly matched but Cobourg had the edge in territorial play and with better judgment might have left the field victorious.

Play was even and most between the quarterline stripes in the first half with Menzies' kick over the Cobourg line for a rouge, the only score. Fumbles hurt both teams when they were in scoring position.

Cobourg had a chance in the third period to tie up the game when they were in possession at the P.C.V.S. 25-yard-line. However, instead of kicking over for a sure point they elected to try a field goal and Anderson's attempt failed.

In the final period the visitors started a parade that took place well into P.C.V.S. territory and they held it there most of the time. There were plenty of opportunities to punt over a single to sew up the game but Cobourg took a chance on scoring a touchdown They came decidedly close, in fact they carried the ball to Peterborough's five-yard line before they finally had to hand it over. P.C.V.S. managed to work it out of danger and the visitors' big chance was gone.

Cobourg — Flying wing, Ivey; halves, Anderson, Jamieson, Quigley; quarter, Charles; snap, Shorey; inside wings, Harvey, Free; middles, Baker, Moore; outsides, J. Hosetton, Junior Hosetton; alternates, Grieves, Moore, Richardson, Lees.

Peterborough—Flying wing, McKee; halves, Doughty, Menzies, B. Thompson; quarter, Green; snap, Clark; inside wings, Addyman, Frise; middles, Rush, N. Thompson; outsides, McDougall, Martin; alternates, G. Braund, McIntyre, B. Braund, Moyles, Masters, Beavis, Bond.

Referee—Gordie Young; Umpire, Don Duncan.

Wm. Carew Weds Selwyn Girl

Bethany Gospel Tabernacle, decorated with autumn flowers and ferns, was the setting for a pretty wedding on Saturday, when Winnifred A. Northey, daughter of Mrs. Garnet Northey and the late Garnet northey of Selwyn, became the bride of William B. M. Carew, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Carew of Omemee. Rev. Walter S. Crone officiated, and Mrs. Warren Payne of Lakefield provided the wedding music, and played "Because" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her uncle, George McIlmoyle, the bride was becomingly gowned in floor-length white sheer, with full skirt, and long full sleeves. Her finger-tip veil of white net, with the scalloped edge embroidered in silk, fell from a matching halo, and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

Miss Lola Gawley of Peterborough was her only attendant, in floor-length gown of white silk jersey. She wore a finger-tip veil of blue net falling from a matching halo, and carried a nosegay of red roses. Neil Millen, brother-in-law of the groom, was best man, and ushers were John Willock, brother-in-law of the groom, and Herb McIlmoyle, uncle of the bride.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the bride's home in Selwyn, where her mother received in a gown of violet sheer crepe, with black hat and accessories, and a corsage of yellow roses. The groom's mother, also receiving, wore black crepe, with matching accessories, and a corsage of pink roses.

For a wedding trip to Toronto and other points, the bride wore a gray English wool tailored suit, and black accessories. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Carew will make their home in Peterborough.

HOW TO FIRE YOUR FURNACE ECONOMICALLY and Save 1 Shovelful in 5 . . .

Your furnace burns a mixture of gas and oxygen. The gas is released from your coal by heat—the oxygen comes from the air which YOU feed into the furnace through the drafts.

To fire economically—to save coal and get the most heat from the fuel you burn—study and adjust your furnace drafts. It will pay you real dividends in increased heat and fuel-saving.

Here are FIVE important rules for ALL furnaces and fuels

1. Avoid overheating. Do not wait until house is thoroughly warm before checking fire. 2. Keep the ash pit clean. 3. Replace warped or worn-out grates. 4. Keep a fair depth of ashes above the grates. 5. Keep furnace thoroughly clean.

IF YOU HAVE A HOT AIR FURNACE

1
Keep all Registers Clear. See that Furniture, Rugs, etc., do not interfere with the circulation of air by blocking either the hot or cold air registers.

2
Control your Heat distribution. The heat can be distributed as desired to every room by adjusting the dampers in the hot-air pipes leading to the registers.

3
Keep waterpan well filled to humidify the air in your home.

4
Keep all registers, whether intake or output, clean and free of dust.

KNOW YOUR DRAFT CONTROLS

Your furnace is no better than the draft. An excessive draft will waste heat up the chimney and should be cut down by damper. Insufficient draft does not supply enough air to support combustion at the required rate of heat output. Poor draft is caused by a faulty or clogged flue pipe or chimney.

Don't keep the fire door open. Leaving the fire door open sends a strong draft of cold air over the fire and against the heating surfaces, thus wasting heat.

IF YOU HAVE A HOT WATER FURNACE

1
Pipes carry the heat. Cold rooms are sometimes caused by faulty piping and incorrect pipe pitch. These can be adjusted and former cold rooms made warm.

2
Check radiators. If any radiators do not heat up after letting the air out of them, check with your steam fitter or plumber.

3
Insulating saves fuel. Insulate boiler and hot water pipes. If these are now insulated, check for any breaks or faults.

4
Keep plates scraped and constantly free of soot.

Here is one Fuel-Saving Tip for ALL types of Furnaces

Leave a bright spot. Just as any automobile engine needs a spark to ignite its mixture of gas and air, so does your furnace. Rake the glowing coals to the front of the firepot, and shovel new coal in to the back. This method of firing gives you maximum combustion of the fuel you are using.

IN MEMORIAM

MILLER—In loving memory of a dear mother, Florence A. Miller, who passed away Oct. 14, 1935.

I cannot say, and I will not say
That she is dead, she is just away!
With a cheery smile, a wave of the hand
She has wandered into an unknown land,
And she left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be since she lingers there,
And you — oh you, who the wildest yearn
For the old-time step and glad return,
Think of her faring on, as dear,
In the love of there, as the love of here.
Think of her still as the same, I say—
She is not dead — she is just away.

—Lovingly remembered by Evelyn, Kenneth and R. J.

BROWN—In proud and loving memory of our dear son, Flight Lieutenant Percy Llewellyn Brown, R.A.F. (formerly of the Bank of Nova Scotia), who died October 16, 1918, from injuries received in an aeroplane accident while instructing in England.

Warm summer sun shine kindly there,
Warm summer wind blow softly there,
Green sod above lie light, lie light,
Good night brave heart, good night.

Mother and Lynn.

SAYERS—In loving memory of my father, J. Walker Sayers, who passed away July 3, 1938, also my mother, who passed away Oct. 15, 1940.

If all the world was mine to give,
I'd give it yes, and more
To see the ones I loved so well,
Come smiling through the door.

—Ever remembered by their daughter Ila.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

With the coming of autumn and winter, fashion has recaptured its glitter and glamor. For five years now, war has all but blacked out that fascinating feminine thing called fashion. But with the going on of the lights, once more the elegant lady, with her lovely clothes, sparkling jewels, beautiful furs, and, above all, with the hat that is a hat again, has come into the spotlight. Milady has timed her return to elegance, cleverly for now she can shine in the brilliant light of fashion, either afternoon or evening. Entertainments, that have been a thing of the past for five years, are now starting; once more.

The black satin suit has been quite the smartest mode for many a season. In New York, many of the best-dressed women are wearing these sleek, trim suits to teas and cocktail parties, restaurant dinners, concerts and the theatre.

The junior miss, who has long wanted a fur coat, will see them in unusual styles for this season. For example, there is the fitted coat, with small collar, the officer's coat, the straight-line "toss-on" coat, and the tuxedo coat. The dyed beaver, and seal (dyed ... bit), make a charming coat f... younger set. With these co... worn the small feather h... bright shades of fuchsia, ... green, pink, and army blue ... med with feather flowers o... trasting shades.

Dresses are shown in ... shades, trimmed in sequins, ... ing the shade of the dress, o... sequins on black.

AMENDING A PRINCIPLE

IT MAY be that one principle of sound bidding or play applies to a particular situation in a particular hand. Some other principle also may fit the case. That other one may have the effect of amending the first one, causing you to go strictly counter to it, or at least seeming to.

North: ♠ 9 ♥ K J 10 3 ♦ K J 9 6 3 ♣ Q 4 2

West: ♠ A 6 5 3 ♥ A 5 4 ♦ 8 7 5 ♣ 9 7 5

East: ♠ 7 4 2 ♥ 9 6 2 ♦ A 10 4 2 ♣ A 8 3

South: ♠ K Q J 10 8 ♥ Q 8 7 ♦ Q ♣ K J 10 6

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♦	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♥

South was sound enough on his second turn, when he rebid his spades instead of showing his second suit of clubs. The latter suit could not have been called except by taking the bidding into the three level, and South felt he was not strong enough to do that. And he did not like to bid No Trump, after his partner's diamond bid, as he had only a singleton in that suit and remembered being taught that this might make it hard to bring in whatever tricks were latent in that suit.

Absolutely wrong, however, was South's pass on his third turn, for two reasons. First, the danger of being unable to get at the trick winners in North's diamond suit was whittled away down by the fact that South held three cards of North's second suit, hearts, for entries. Second, North's "reverse" bid of a higher ranking suit at the three level indicated appreciable strength in his hand in general.

With those two principles applying, South should have forgotten his fear of No Trumps with a singleton in his partner's first suit, and should have bid a No Trump game. It would have been impossible to beat, as the defenders could have scored nothing but their four aces.

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

If West opens this deal with 1-Club, North bids 1-No Trump, South 2-Spades and West doubles, what is the accepted meaning of his action?

Dr. F. Peacock Heads Educators

TORONTO, Oct. 16—(CP)—Dr. Fletcher Peacock of Fredericton was named president of the Canada and Newfoundland Education Association, succeeding Dr. V. K. Greer of Toronto, as delegates to the association's 22nd annual convention concluded their three-day session Friday.

The association endorsed a resolution calling on the Government to give provincial departments of education first call after the war, and at no charge, on surplus mechanical equipment needed for vocational schools.

In another resolution it urged the establishment of an international office of education as part of the plan for world peace. The executive was instructed to consider a resolution for a survey on extension of religious training in the schools of Canada and Newfoundland.

Delegates urged that higher salaries be provided for teachers, that national radio educational broadcast be extended to provincial or regional networks; that service personnel be given more information on teachers' training courses; that the Dominion Government increase per capita educational grants to provinces, and that priorities be instituted for the manufacture of school text books.

Norwegians Man Isolated Post

LONDON, Oct. 16—(CP-Reuter)—For nearly four years a handful of Norwegian soldiers on lonely, inhospitable Jan Mayen island 400 miles north of the Arctic Circle between Norway and Greenland flashed daily weather reports to Britain to aid in the long drawn-out battle of the Atlantic, it was disclosed today.

They lived through blizzards, fog and bitter cold on the island of rock, ice and snow, 550 miles west of Tromsoe and 450 miles north of Iceland—an island which British officers once declared uninhabitable.

After the fall of Norway in 1940 a German ship with radio equipment approached the Norwegian-owned island but was met by a British destroyer and the German commander drove his ship ashore and surrendered with his men.

German planes flew over the Arctic island at intervals, dropping bombs or machine-gunning but the garrison stuck there. The original party was relieved in 1942 and since then every summer a new garrison has been sent to the isloated outpost.

"Hello, is that Frank Smith? This is Bob Thompson of The Imperial Life Assurance Company calling. I am introducing myself over the telephone because I know you are a very busy person. I should like to meet you and have fifteen minutes with you. Will Thursday at three o'clock be convenient?"

Because of gasoline rationing and other travel difficulties, every life insurance man is becoming increasingly dependent on calls "by appointment". By telephoning he shows that he knows your time is valuable. So is his.

He is calling because he has something of practical interest to tell you. It may be an item of service in connection with your present insurance he wishes to discuss. He may have a timely idea to present to you. Whatever it is, it will be worth your while to say "Okay—see you Thursday at 3:00", or to arrange some other time mutually convenient.

GREAT RED DRIVE REACHES PRUSSIA

Tito Surrounded by Nazi Paratroopers Rescued by Red Plane

CAPTAIN RANDOLPH CHURCHILL, SON OF BRITISH PRIME MINISTER, ALSO NARROWLY ESCAPED CAPTURE DURING THE SAME RAID ON TITO'S HEADQUARTERS

LONDON, Oct. 17—(CP-Reuter)—Marshal Tito was rescued by a Soviet Army plane during a surprise German paratroop swoop on the Yugoslav Partisan leader's headquarters in southwestern Serbia five months ago, Moscow radio said today, giving the first detailed account of the escape.

Here is the story of Tito's rescue as told by the Soviet pilot—Capt. Kalinkin in an interview with Red Star:

"We took off at night from a base in Italy, heading for a secret base in Yugoslavia. The flight across the mountains was hazardous. Landing was a problem... We nearly came to grief when we narrowly missed a cliff we had not noticed in the darkness.

"Tito boarded the plane. With him were his closest collaborators.

"We set off, swerving sharply at the end of the short runway to avoid crashing into a hill. We made another trip to rescue Marshal Tito's remaining collaborators.

"Our mission completed, we were introduced to Marshal Tito who thanked us and asked us to share his meal. He toasted the Soviet air forces and decorated us with the Yugoslav 'Order of the People's Hero'."

More than 1,000 German paratroops took part in the attack on Tito's headquarters. During a fierce encounter with the Partisans the paratroops were surrounded and more than half were annihilated.

Capt. Randolph Churchill, son of Prime Minister Churchill, narrowly escaped capture.

Glengarrians In Schelde Beachhead

Face Suicide Units Of Nazi Troops Who Fight To Death

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY, Oct. 17 — (CP, Cable). — Here in the Schelde beachhead Canadian infantry are fighting a vest-pocket war all of their own but as bitter as anything on any front.

"These Germans almost never quit, most of them would sooner die by their guns," said a lieut.-colonel from Ottawa commanding eastern Ontario infantry which came on to these beaches south of the Schelde Estuary a week ago (possibly the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders of Cornwall, Ont.).

The Germans are not quite the S.S. (Elite troops) type met in Normandy. These men are from the Nazified 64th Division, tough nuts every one of them, who have been so propagandized that they figure only two courses are open to them — victory through fighting or death in battle.

"They have been told there will be reprisals on their families if they surrender," said the lieut.-colonel, whose men took the now shell-torn town of Hoofdplaat on the Estuary.

"They are considered deserters if they surrender so there is nothing for them to do but fight and die.

These tactics are costing the Germans dearly and this battalion has killed a number of Germans greatly exceeding the number of its own men lost.

During one 36-hour period, this battalion repulsed 20 counter-attacks. After that the lieut.-colonel stopped counting.

"They employed virtual suicide tactics," he said. "They kept rolling in platoon after platoon and we just ate them up. You can say we killed more than at any time since we were fighting the S.S. around Caen —we had to kill them."

These bitter encounters reduced some German companies from 150 men to 20 put they still reformed and counter-attacked anew.

D.F.C. WINNER — Flt.-Lieut. Kenneth E. Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Johnston, 66 Lee street, has been awarded the D.F.C. according to an announcement made today. He is nearing completion of his second tour of operations overseas with the "Bison" Squadron. Prior to enlisting he worked at the Whittington Service Station at the corner of Hunter and Aylmer streets.

Major G. Clark Leads Drive On Concrete Fort

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE FIRST CANADIAN ARMY IN HOLLAND, Oct. 17 — (CP Cable)—You should really see the concrete forts the Germans built on the dikes that grid the southern shores of the Schelde Estuary to appreciate Corporal Roy Boyd and his lone-hand work with eight pounds of gun cotton.

You should see the bald approaches to the bastion guarding the Netherlands town of Hoofdplaat, on the Estuary shore, offering no cover whatever. You should see the fort's deep communicating trenches, the great thickness of the concrete walls and its double-shutter doors of inches-thick iron.

Then if you should be with a lieutenant-colonel from Ottawa and hear him say: "What a guy!" you could maybe have a proper appreciation of Cpl. Boyd from Winnipeg and Windsor, Ont.

There are really two forts to this position and a company under Maj. Gordon Clark of Peterborough, Ont., had taken out one. Then the German officer in the second fort called down what the lieutenant-colonel described as "murderous" artillery fire on the whole position and he and the men in the fort sealed themselves up, closing all the iron doors and shutters.

It looked as if there were no way to get them out—that is until Boyd decided to handle it himself.

He got machine-gunners to cover the close gun port at the entrance to the fort in case it opened up on him, got his gun—cotton and crept up to the fort and down five steps leading to a locked iron door. There

British 2nd Army Smashes Into Venray In Holland

LONDON, Oct. 17 (CP)—British 2nd Army troops today drove into the Netherlands highway town of Venray, 25 miles south of Nijmegen and eight miles from the German frontier while the Canadian advance in the shrinking German pocket south of the Schelde estuary gained momentum.

The Germans, proclaiming a budding United States offensive, strove to hold American troops in the Aachen sector with a wall of artillery fire.

British-American pressure increased along a 56-mile front from Venray southeast to Aachen. An Allied tactical authority likened the situation to that which preceded the Normandy break-through in August.

Tommies fought house-to-house for Venray, a few miles west of the Maas (Meuse) river, and other columns approached from the north and east.

Canadians Gain

Canadian forces gained more than half a mile in a drive northward from the Leopold canal and Ross Munro, Canadian Press War Correspondent, in a field dispatch reported the Germans were withdrawing in this Schelde pocket sector to a new defence line formed under pressure of a mounting dawn-to-dusk attack.

Berlin radio acknowledged "two small breaches" were opened by Canadian troops, supported by tanks and flame-throwers, south of Breskens.

American forces continued slowly digging Germans out of surrounded Aachen, and repulsed all German counter-blows east and northeast of the Siegfried line city.

German broadcasts told of strong reinforcements moving up behind American lines, and spoke of a coming "battle of Geilenkirchen." This town is 10 miles north of Aachen in Germany.

The German radio asserted the British 2nd Army, backed by 1,500 tanks, was "at the ready" in the Nijmegen-Arnhem area of Eastern Holland, waiting until it can be sure of a supply port.

Canadian troops continued their battle to clear the Germans from the 50-mile Schelde River estuary so the Allies can use the great Belgian port of Antwerp, 75 miles west of Geilkenkirchen.

By joining three bridgeheads across the Leopold Canal in the Watervliet area, the 1st Canadian Army had a solid holding zone four miles deep and more than six miles long south of the Schelde. This gave a firm base for an assault on the German pocket around Brekens at the mouth of the estuary.

North of Antwerp other Canadians won control of Woensdrecht, com-

2,100 Planes Batter Cologne In Day Raid

LONDON, Oct. 17—(CP). — More than 1,300 American heavy bombers escorted by 800 fighters bombed the western front communications and industrial centre of Cologne today for the sixth time in six days.

The raid followed an overnight assault on Cologne by an undisclosed number of speedy Mosquitos of the R.A.F. bomber command.

Cologne (pop. 568,426) has vast rail yards which funnel supplies to the wetsern front and it is the home of the Henschell tank works and the Bettenhausen ordnance works. Arms, chemicals and machines are other important manufactures in the city.

The huge armada before 10 a.m. flew over the Ruhr city; a great part of which now lies in ruins. It was one of the earliest major daylight attacks on Germany. Clouds obscured most of the city and bombing was by instruments. Early reports made no mention of enemy opposition.

The Mosquito mission over Cologne was without loss.

Cologne, less than 40 miles inside the West Wall from Aachen, was ripped by more than 2,000 American heavy bombers during the week-end in the most concentrated raid ever staged by the 8th Air Force. Reconnaissance photographs showed some of the fires still burning Monday.

Huns To Get Little Aid In Hungary

Leader Of Army Goes Over To Soviet Ranks

LONDON, Oct. 17 (CP)—The official German news agency D.N.B. reported today that the commander-in-chief of the 1st Hungarian Army, Maj.-Gen. Bela Miklos Con Dalnok, had "gone over to the Soviets," with his chief of staff, a Maj. Keri.

Conditions remained chaotic in Hungary, where invading Russian troops fought within 50 miles of Budapest, and it was questionable whether the Germans could expect any further effective military assistance from this last remaining ally.

Previously, Dalnok was reported relieved of his post, as was Maj.-Gen. Ludwig Veress, commander of the 2nd Hungarian Army.

Berlin asserted that Dalnok "as well as several ladies belonging to the female staff of his headquarters joined the Soviets, taking with them all the money of the Hungarian 1st Army." The Germans accused the general of stealing the army's money for months.

A communique issued in Budapest said Prime Minister Ferenc Szalksi had appointed Lt.-Gen. Dezsoe Laszlo, formerly deputy chief of staff of the army, to command the 1st Army. Lt.-Gen. Eugen Major was named new commander of the 2nd Army.

It was not clear whether the deposed commander-in-chief of the 2nd Army also had "gone over to the Russians."

Formal announcement of Dalnok's removal, however, was seen here as at least partial confirmation of Paris radio reports that the Hungarian 1st Army of 10 divisions was marching on Budapest to oust Szalksi and the

Gains Measured In Yards By 8th Army

ROME, Oct. 17.—(AP).—Advances on a broad front north of the Bologna highway have brought New Zealand troops of the British 8th Army to the approaches of the Pisciatello river, Allied Headquarters announced to-day.

South of the Rimini-Bologna road British and Inian troops also made good progress.

Monte Romano, three miles south of the road junction of Cesena, fell to the 8th Army.

Allied 5th Army troops are pushing toward the Savio river at several points, the communique reported.

Allied aircraft from the Mediterranean ranged over Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia yesterday, attacking military targets.

British light coastal craft, operating in the Adriatic, attacked enemy shipping and sank at least three lighters.

The 5th Army made gains of up to 1,000 yards in the mountains before the famed university city and northern Italy communications centre of Bologna. Fierce fighting continued south of Bologna.

Field Marshal Kesselring apparently has decided to fight for Bologna and German troops have been shipped into position for a bitter battle for the ancient city, it was announced.

The German resistance south of Bologna has changed in character from delaying tactics to an all-out defensive effort with heavy concentrations of artillery fire and frequent counter-attacks.

Fire 1,000 Shells

In one 12-hour period approximately 1,000 German artillery shells fell on the forward lines of the 5th Army in the vicinity of Highway 65, the main road leading from Florence to Bologna.

Nevertheless, the American units which captured Livergnano on the highway have cleared that town and advanced past La Mina and Casa di Bortignano east of the highway, putting leading troops within nine miles of Bologna's outskirts.

Still farther east American troops have reached points north of the bulge in the Castel Del Rio-Castel

Canadian Ships Reach Athens

ROME, Oct. 17—(AP)—British troops, landed from more than 150 warships, patrolled the streets of Athens today after breaking up clashes between rival Greek factions.

The fleet of warships included units of the Royal Navy, and Canadian, South Africa, Greek, French and Polish naval craft.

The Canadian Navy was represented by the liners Prince David and Prince Henry.

The first units of British troops disembarked at the Port of Piraeus yesterday and paraded through the Athens between lanes of cheering, palm-waving Greeks.

The arrival of the British broke up armed clashes between rival Greek factions in the civil square. Order was restored within a few hours.

The huge fleet was under command of Commodore Geoffrey Oliver and the landing force under the naval command of Rear-Admiral J. M. Mansfield of the Royal Navy.

The landing was comletely bloodless. But dispatches from Greece said the Germans during their last week of occupation had machine-gunned more than 500 Athenians and burned scores of houses.

Russians Storming Border With Huge Tank Force Dominate 25-Mile Sector

Tilsit Threatened, All Memel Overrun
1,000 Russian Tanks Ready
To Deal Knockout At Warsaw City

LONDON, Oct. 17—(CP).—A great new Russian offensive has opened and has reached the East Prussian border northeast of the Lithunian town of Vilkaviskis, the German communique acknowledged today. The drive was on a 25-mile front on both sides of the town by masses of Russian infantry, tanks and fighter-bombers, striking after a drumfire barrage lasting several hours. The Germans asserted 145 tanks were destroyed in the opening phases of the battle.

"Large-scale troop concentrations had been observed for days past," the enemy broadcast said. "They now have started their storm against the German defence lines.

"Strong artillery fire and severe bombing preceded the attack of tanks and infantry.

Vilkaviskis lies 12 miles from the central section of the East Prussian border, along which Russian troops have been deployed since August 17.

Other Russian troops besieging Memel are threatening the rail city of Tilsit in East Prussia and already have invaded the 1,099 square miles of Memel territory which Hitler annexed to East Prussia six months before the outbreak of the war.

Still others are menacing East Prussia from the south from two bridgeheads which Berlin said were established across the Narew river.

Belgrade Totters

Far to the south, Russian and Yugoslav Partisans were fighting the last phase of the battle of Belgrade in the streets of that 2,000 year old capital. The whole German position in Yugoslavia was placed in the greatest jeopardy by the capture of the rail centre of Nis and 175 miles of the Trans-Balkan railway south of the Yugoslav capital.

Berlin said, moreover, that 1,000 Russian tanks had been massed for an imminent assault on the Polish capital of Warsaw, where in the eastern industrial suburb of Praga, the Russian armies are bivouacked.

The Germans said the great tank battle on the flat Hungarian plain within 50 miles of Budapest had "increased in fury" and that the outcome was uncertain.

In the south, the united armies were thrusting toward Skoplje, at the head of the Vardar valley and last big rail junction point from which any Germans remaining in Greece could swing north-westward over secondary lines.

It appeared questionable, however, that any large numbers of Germans remained either in Greec or Southern Yugoslavia. Berlin has indicated that enemy forces have fled or are fleeing. Speed of the Russian - Bulgarian-Yugoslav west-

828 Jap Planes Shot Down Near Formosa

By C. H. McMURTRY
Associated Press War Correspondent

PEARL HARBOR, Oct. 17—(AP)—Units of the Japanese fleet approached the Formosa area where the United States 3rd Fleet wreaked heavy damage on enemy aircraft, shipping and ground installations, but turned tail and fled when it discovered the power of the American Armada, it was announced to-day.

Admiral Nimitz announced withdrawal to safety of Japanese warships in a communique which related tersely:

"On discovering our fighting strength unimpaired, they avoided action and have withdrawn toward their bases."

Refusal to engage the mighty task force belies radio Tokyo's broadcast boast that Imperial warships not only engaged the American fleet but claimed sinking up to 52 ships, including 11 carriers.

Nimitz also disclosed that carrier pilots destroyed 164 enemy aircraft in the October 13-14-15 bombings of Formosa and in defending the carrier force against torpedo attacks.

2 Ships Damaged.

"During the fighting between our carrier task forces and the enemy air forces based on shore in the Ruykyus, Formosa and Luzon Island in the Philippines from October 10 until the time of this communique," Nimitz elaborated, "there has been no damage of consequence to our battleships or carriers. However, two medium-sized ships were hit by aircraft torpedoes and are retiring from the area."

Nimitz reported 191 enemy planes attacked one of the U.S. task groups

Third Raid Fires Formosa

By JOHN GROVER
Associated Press War Correspondent

SOMEWHERE IN WEST CHINA, Oct. 17 — (AP). — B-29 Superfortresses today hurled their massed might against Formosa for the third time in 72 hours, blasting the Einansho air base installations at Tainan.

A medium sized force of "Formosa commuters" smashed the major Japanese air force installations of Formosa on the same schedule as the two previous raids. Bombing was visual and simultaneous by the formations.

Maj. Gen. Curtis Lemay, chief of the 20th Bomber Command, in evaluating the strikes, said:

"We knocked hell out of them this trip. We spent a mighty profitable week-end. The B-29s really paid dividends."

Kiel Canal Blocked Bridge Wrecked

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 17 —(CP)—Danish shippers here said today their German agents informed them that the critically-needed Kiel Canal between the Baltic and North Seas had been blocked since Oct. 16 when a railroad bridge collapsed into the waterway. The canal will be useless for three or four months, the shippers were told.

"The greater part of the bridge is lying at the bottom of the canal but there is no accurate information of what happened," the shippers said. "It is believed that the time bombs dropped by Allies in the water during a daylight raid on Kiel blew up the bridge supports."

German Subs Out In Force

HALIFAX, Oct. 17 (CP)—German submarines are "out in force again" in the North Atlantic, a news story published by a Halifax paper today.

The story quoted an Allied captain who crossed the Atlantic with a recent convoy as estimating that the U-boat fleet numbers "at least 200." The captain said that his convoy was attacked by several of the raiders and a Canadian vessel was hit but was able to limp to port with a number of casualties.

The Halifax Herald today carried a newspage story that two freighters were sunk recently within a few days off Sable Island and Yarmouth, N.S. The story said that many of the crew in the Sable Island sinking were lost.

Suez Ownership A Mystery

Bulk Of Shares Scattered Over Globe

PARIS, Oct. 17 — (AP). — One of the financial world's most intricate and fascinating games, the game of Suez Canal shares, has returned to France's security marts. The "score" at the moment is — nobody knows who owns the Suez Canal.

The 100-mile lockless ditch connecting the Red Sea with the Mediterranean is so important militarily and economically that it is operated as an international project. But financially it is a semi-private corporation.

There was a report during the occupation of France that the Germans, by manipulating the securities of France, had cornered a working majority of Suez shares. This would be a financial coup of no mean proportions.

However, of the effective 800,000 shares, 353,024 by latest report are in the hands of the British Government. The other 446,796 shares are scattered over the globe, potentially holding the secret of who really "owns" the Canal.

The Canal management does not know because there has been no stockholders' meeting since June 3, 1940, just before the fall of France. The profits since then have been impounded in Egypt.

The company's Paris offices say they will not be in a position even to guess at the situation for probably at least another six months.

Salonika Trap Closes On Huns

CAIRO, Oct. 17 — (CP-Reuter). —The Germans are evacuating Salonika preparatory to an all-out bid to smash their way out northwards, according to reliable reports reaching here to-day.

They have received instructions, possibly from Hitler himself, to get every man and gun to the Hungarian battlefield in an effort to stop the Russian progress.

There is a possibility of large-scale fighting in Northern Greece during the next few days as Allied forces and Partisans concentrate on preventing the Germans from escaping from the Salonika trap.

The Germans are said to have told the Greek population in the countryside that they are taking along with them a number of Greek women and children and that every time Germans are ambushed 10 of these hostages will be shot.

Sharp Debate Features Congress Strike Policy

By JACK WILLIAMS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC, Oct. 17—(CP)—The Canadian Congress of Labor to-day voted unamious support to the United Packing House Workers of America in their demand for master agreements in the packing industry.

The vote, which President A. R. Mosher announced as unanimous, came after a sharp debate on the Congress strike policy.

H. A. Chappel, resolution committee chairman, introduced the resolution which said the union's demand was "just and reasonable." In addition to pledging support to the Union, the resolution welcomed the appointment of a commissioner announced yesterday by Labor Minister Mitchell.

(The U.P.W.A. recently conducted a vote which favored strike action if necessary to obtain master agreements in plants operated by Swift Canadian Limited, Canada Packers, and Burns & Co.).

Ben Lavert, U.P.W.A. delegate, from Montreal, supporting the resolution said the Union's action was intended to eliminate unfair wage scales. "A certain province must elevate itself," he added.

Regardless of Results.

Pat Conroy, C.C.L., secretary-treasurer, said he supported the resoltion, "regardless of what it may mean in the future." Every constructive means had been followed to effect a settlement and appointment of a commissioner, announced yesterday by Labor Minister Mitchell, was the result of pressure by the Congress. The packing house industry was a "dirty and bloody" industry in which conditions would have to be improved.

Referring to opposition expressed by some delegates to strike action he said no union should take a position of "grand isolation" on strikes.

"For God's sake don't let labor become so timid that it is willing to place all its weapons in the hands of those who oppose it," he said.

A. R. Mosher, Congress president, said the Congress was opposed to strikes but was not pledged against them.

C. H. Millard, United Steel Workers of America, Toronto, supported the resolution. The packing house industry had been "skinning" the workers, the public and the war effort. One corporation had made almost $10,000,000 last year.

He was opposed to "conditional support" of the union and was opposed to a "no strike" policy. Strikes would be avoided and used as only the last avenue.

The convention to-day started dealing with the more than 600 resolutions covering a wide range of subjects. More than 100 deal with government policy. These and other groups dealing with the same subject will be consolidated into a few composite resolutions.

Air War Casualties Heavy

Hun Refugees Tell Of Great Losses

SCHAFFHAUSEN, Switzerland, Oct. 17 (CP-Reuter)—Stories told by people arriving here from recently-bombed German cities are naturally neither comprehensive nor coherent, yet it is possible to estimate the catastrophe which concentrated R.A.F attack means to a German city.

Casualty figures for some of the recent raids, circulated by the victims, probably are no more than guesses.

Darmstadt refugees talk of 25,000 dead in the last raid on the city, and add that the entire place is in ruins except the big chemical factory, which remains untouched.

Whether this figure is right or not one cannot say. What is important is that probably every evacuee from Darmstadt believes it to be true and that the news will spread.

People from Karlsruhe say more than 10,000 were killed in the last raid there. What the Duisberg evacuees will have to report cannot even be imagined.

There can be little doubt that the casualty rate in these R.A.F. attacks reach proportions such as the Germans were never able to inflict on any English city.

Some 10,000,000 Germans in western Germany by now are involved in the consequences of the Allied assault.

Farm Auctions Planned To Aid 7th Loan

Farm auctions which were so successful in publicizing the Sixth Victory Loan in Peterborough county are again being planned for the Seventh Loan with the first auction set for Keene this coming Friday night to be followed with one at Norwood on Saturday night in Lakefield on October 23 and in Peterborough on October 24. These auctions are sponsored by the Peterborough War Finance Committee and made possible by the generous response of industries and merchants of Peterborough. The articles to be auctioned off are similar to those of the last loan only there is more of them and in addition draws will be held for purchasers of $50 bonds. Gordon Hancock well known auctioneer will conduct the bidding and music for a dance and also a singer will be provided at each sale.

These are strictly farmers' auctions and both the entertainment and the articles to be auctioned off have been selected with this dominant thought in mind.

Finns Cross Arctic Circle

STOCKHOLM, Oct 17—(AP)—Finnish troops have crossed the Arctic circle at several points in their drive to clear the Germans from Lapland, a Helsinki communique announced today.

In the environs of Rovaniemi, Germans defending fortified positions offered strong resistance to Finnish attacks.

(A Finnish broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission said Rovaniemi had been captured.)

Heavy battles were reported in the Tourneajv Valley where the enemy used tanks and heavy artillery. Severe losses were inflicted on the Germans who were driven from positions at Turtola and the pursuing Finns captured Kuokenski, the communique said.

Rectal Soreness and

PILE TORTURE

QUICKLY RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from McDermid & Jury or any I.D.A. or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended, and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.—(Advt.)

Asthma Mucus Loosened First Day

If choking, gasping, wheezing, coughing Bronchial Asthma attacks rob you of sleep and sap your vitality, accept this liberal trial offer: Get the prescription Mendaco from your druggist and see how quickly it loosens and removes thick strangling mucus, thus giving free easy breathing and restful sleep. Under the liberal trial offer, unless Mendaco frees you from the suffering of Asthma ... you simply return the empty ... get all your money back. You ... to gain—nothing to lose ... suffer another day without asking your druggist for Mendaco.

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite remedy. 103

82-Year-Old Hunter Still Missing In Bush

BANCROFT, Oct. 17—(ENS)—An eighty-two-year-old man, named McInroy, is still missing somewhere in the vicinity of Highland Grove, after extensive searching. The elderly man started out with a gun for the bush last Wednesday afternoon and when he did not return that evening a search was started and finally the provincial police from Haliburton called on Provincial Officer S. Germans.

Installation of a new puppet government, dismissal of top-ranking generals, and impositions of a drastic curfew in Budapest were announced last night by the Nazi-controlled Hungarian radio.

The broadcast declared Admiral Nicholas Horthy had issued a proclamation "revoking" the plea for an armistice he addressed Sunday to the Allies as Hungarian regent. It added Count Ferenc Szalasi had formed a new government after Horthy's "retirement".

The Berlin radio promptly hailed the pro-Nazi coup as a "full victory which marks the end of all negotiations with the Allies or the Russians and assures close collaboration with Germany."

(Moscow meanwhile employed events in Budapest in an attempt to get the people of Austria also to "make a contribution to their own liberation.")

(A Moscow broadcast by the Federal Communications Commission urged Austrians to "let events in Hungary be a warning and a signal that the hour of decision has come for Austria.")

The Germans contended that the armistice broadcast was delivered "against Horthy's will" and that the Admiral was the victim of "a traitorous clique who have now been eliminated so that a similar attempt cannot happen again."

A suggestion as to how seriously the Germans regarded the attempted Hungarian desertion was given in a Berlin broadcast saying that "now divisions which have been held back in Budapest are being brought to the Debrecen Plain where Hungary's fate is being decided in the battle with the Russians" some 50 miles away.

Horthy's where abouts meanwhile remained uncertain. He has variously been reported assassinated, held by the Gestapo in Germany, and holding out in a Hungarian castle with 1,000 faithful troops.

Six Injured In Car Smash-up

HAVELOCK, Oct. 17 (ENS)—Six persons were injured Monday afternoon on No. 7 Highway, three miles east of here, when a car driven by Mrs. Reta Minaker of 26 Colborne street, Lindsay, who was travelling east, turned to enter a private driveway. The handle of the door of the car caught in the side of the trailer of a Smith transport which had pulled out to pass.

The driver of the transport, Thomas Morris Johnson of Ottawa, jack-knifed his tractor and was thrown from the cab landing over the fence in a rock pile, breaking the middle finger of his right hand and badly bruising both legs. Mrs. Minaker received a bruised left leg and the third and fourth fingers of her left hand were cut. Bonnie Minaker, age 3, received right eye cheek bruises and facial scratches. Larry Minaker, age 5, had his third and fourth fingers of left hand badly cut. Mrs. Willard Drury of 32 St. Catharine street, Lindsay, is suffering from nerves and shock. Willard Drury received a bruised left shoulder. All received medical attention by Dr. D. J. Holdcroft of Havelock with the exception of the latter.

Damage to both car and transport is estimated at $2,000.

The Moscow communique announced the joint forces had occupied the key highway and rail junction of Nis, 125 miles southeast of Belgrade, a development the Bulgarians first disclosed Saturday.

Fanning out southward along the spur of the railway leading to Greece, this combined drive now has reached as far as Vranje, 52 miles south of Nis—more than halfway to Skoplje. Lebane, 13 miles west of Nis, also has fallen.

Moscow gave no new details of the fighting for Belgrade beyond announcing 1,500 prisoners were taken in the suburbs. The Germans however, said Russian tanks had thrust into the inner defences of the capital. The Algiers raido said two-thirds of the city had been freed.

News Blackout.

Moscow remained silent— for the fifth consecutive day — about the operations of Marshal Rodion Mailinovsky's 2nd Ukrainian Army, sweeping into Hungary from the south-east, but by German account an armored battle was raging some 50 miles from Budapest.

Russian and Romanian troops swept sharply forward in Northern Transylvania, overrunning more than 100 communities, including Borsa, 11 miles from the pre-war Polish fronter.

The two Russian armies which captured Riga, Latvian capital pushed southeast aaginst large German forces reported caught in a Red Army vise in that area. The newest Soviet advance overran at least 16 communities.

The Berlin radio said to-day the Russians had begun a strong offensive north of Warsaw with "the entire weight" of the Red Armies in that region combining in one gigantic attack. An earlier German broadcast declared a Soviet autumn offensive was "in full swing" on the entire eastern front.

The Germans also said that in Northern Finland where Russian troops have occupied the big port of Petsamo, the bulk of the Germans had withdrawn to the Norwegian frontier.

Resents Tax Plan

TORONTO, Oct. 17—(CP).—G. S. Thorvaldson, president of the Income Tax Payers' Association and Conservative member of the Manitoba Legislative Assembly for Winnipeg, said here last night that Federal exemption from income tax of co-operatives, mutual insurance companies and state business enterprises was transforming Canada from a free enterprise to a "state-owned socialistic economy."

Harvey Sewer Impractical Experts Agree

"I spoke to City Engineer Parsons and John W. Pierce (Ontario Land Surveyor), and they agreed that it is not practical to have a sewer laid to William Harvey's house," Mayor Hamilton told the Council on Monday night, answering Alderman Glover's question whether the Council could do anything to meet Mr. Harvey's needs.

The Harvey house is No. 4 Lansdowne Street, on the north side, at Haggart Street where it turns easterly at the south-west corner of Little Lake Cemetery. The owner broadcast his complaint of alleged neglect in a statement published in the Examiner on Saturday.

"One part of it got under my skin," Mr. Parsons said, after asking the Council for permission to make the statement. "We have levels of the street and Mr. Pierce also took them, and I wish to tell the Council that our levels and profiles are identical. So, there is no difference between them."

At Mr. Harvey's house the depth of a sewer would be 5½ to 6 feet, but westerly at Whittington's service station, the depth from the street level to the bottom of the sewer would be only 3½ feet. In severe winter weather water would likely freeze at that depth, and especially with only an intermittent flow in that stretch. At Whittington's the sewer "would be practically at the surface of the road."

Eight hundred feet of sewer would have to be laid between Sherbourne and Haggart Streets, on Lansdowne, and the shallowest part would be at Whittington's where the pipe would be only slightly below the road surface.

"If we can't lay a sewer, why not let him put in a septic tank," Alderman Bradburn suggested, and his idea was embodied in a recommendation to the Board of Health.

"What's the use of a septic tank if he hasn't city water?" Alderman Sands objected.

"Let him go to the Utilities Commission," Alderman Bradburn answered.

"Mr. Harvey should never have bought that house," Mayor Hamilton commented. If he has kept a scrapbook of the discussions of his repeated request to the Council he might find it one drastic proposal that the city pay him what the house cost him, as the easiest solution of the Harvey problem."

City Engineer Parsons has told the Examiner that a small pumping station would eventually have to be installed at the corner of Albertus and Sherbourne Streets for the accommodation of houses likely to be built on the vacant properties south of Lansdowne Street and east of Sherbourne as the only way to pump sewage toward the sewer on Lock Street.

off Formosa by day and night in the October 13-15 period. This constituted one of the enemy's strongest assaults on fleet units in many months.

Of the 191 Japanese planes, 95 were shot down by American fighters and anti-aircraft fire, while "we lost five planes," Nimitz reported.

Fighters from two U.S. carriers shot down an additional 50 Japanese aircraft of approximately 60 which attempted to attack the two damaged, retiring ships. On the same day 15 more enemy planes were destroyed by search and patrol flights from American carriers.

37 Probables

This brought total Japanese planes destroyed by forces in the Ryukyu-Formosa-Luzon operations to an estimated 828 to 843. In addition 37 enemy planes were estimated probably destroyed.

(Washington announced that 20th Air Force Superfortresses struck today at Formosa for the third time in four days, but gave no details in the preliminary communique.)

Gen. MacArthur announced today that his land-based planes, joining in the destruction encircling the invasion-threatened Philippines, netted the greatest bag of enemy aircraft ever brought down in any single Southwest Pacific raid. They bagged between 49 and 60 in the fourth mass raid in two weeks on Balikpapan, Borneo, Japan's richest oil possession.

Admiral Nimitz made it clear last night that fast carrier forces of Admiral Halsey's 3rd Fleet were still raiding waters from which Tokyo said the Americans had fled.

"Carrier aircraft of the Pacific," Nimitz said, "are continuing to attack targets on Luzon island in the Philippines."

The Pacific fleet commander said the carrier Formosan raids centred on Okayama and Heito, also twice hit by China-based B29s, and Tainan and Takao, the two largest cities on the fortress island.

South of the Philippines, fighter-escorted bombers turned the Balikpapan oil refineries into a mass of smoke and flames. In the four big-scale raids since Sept. 30 the oil centre, producing 15 per cent of Japan's aviation gasoline, has been blasted by 390 tons of explosives. A total of 179 Japanese Interceptors have been shot down at a cost of 19 U.S. bombers and six fighters.

Small Number Applying For Ration Books

A disappointingly small number of people turned out Monday at the central ration book distribution office in Market Hall, where more than a hundred workers and supervisors, under the direction of Mrs. W. E. Fanning, distribution chief, have volunteered to aid Peterborough citizens in receiving the new ration books in a minimum of time.

Every year since a central point has been in operation for distribution the books, 5,000 or more people have taken advantage of the opportunity on the first day, but Monday, only 3,978 people, were served. This morning, business in the Market Hall held a suggestion of a step-up, but the facilities arranged can take care of more people than are now coming.

On an average, more than 18,000 persons are usually issued new books during the three-day period of the central office. If that number again is served, this year, the balance will come Wednesday. But the officials are prepared for the flood of "last minute-ers," and the volunteers are girding themselves for a busy day Wednesday.

New Centre

This is the first year that Market Hall has been used for the purpose. Other years, the Lyceum, now known as Elim Tabernacle was used. The Market Hall has the advantage of more space, workers said, and is a satisfactory setting for the work.

Under Mrs. Fanning's supervision, three shifts of workers are ready between the hours of 9:30 in the morning and 5:30 in the evening, to take care of people wishing new ration folders. Books are examined at the door, to see if all the necessary information is enclosed. If not, the applicant is directed to a special table, where he may fill out the cards accordingly. The recorders, seated at long rows of tables, formed in a "U" shape, actually complete the work. For each five recorders, there is a supervisor well versed in the problems of rationing, who is ready to give aid and information immediately, should some situation arise with which the recorders are unable to cope. The supervisors also keep the recorders supplied with cards and other essentials, and do a check-up every time 25 books have been completed.

The women who are doing this work, are partly members of the Women's Voluntary Services, who organize and staff the job, and ordinary housewives volunteering their time.

"It is quite disappointing when you think of these women giving up their time to come here to work, and then have so few people turn out that there is little for them to do," Mrs. Fanning said. "The attitude the women have taken to the work is simply wonderful, and every one of them is doing a marvellous job."

Do Without

Peterborough is reminded that if ration books are not received either from the central office, or through the industries, they will be unable to get them until November 6, from the Ration Administration office. If sugar for instance is right up-to-date now, people refraining from getting books immediately will have to go without sugar probably, until November 6.

Mrs. Fanning said that this year, the elimination of tea and coffee from the rationed list has made the process much easier and less complicated. However, if anyone does become confused, there is a large blackboard in the office, with the essential details clearly marked on it. It was previous used to instruct recorders and supervisors, and was moved into the office for the convenience to everyone.

Why has there been such a small number of people availing themselves of these conveniences? Perhaps many more are getting books through the industries, Mrs. Fanning said. Also, it has been brought to the attention of the workers that through listening to Toronto radio stations, the wrong information has been given about when to get the book. While Toronto offices are open weekly or even longer, there is merely a three-day period, in Peterborough.

ROBERT BERTRAM MUNRO

A meteorology expert at Camp Borden, on loan to the Royal Canadian Air Force by the Department of Transport, Robert Bertram Munro, B.A., son of Mrs. Annie E. Munro, 560 George street, and the late M. D. Nihill Munro, passed away early Monday morning at Camp Borden in his 31st year. His death came as a great shock to his many friends, both at Camp Borden and in this city.

Mr. Munro was born and brought up in Peterborough, receiving his education at Peterborough schools. He was an honor graduate of Queen's University in mathematics and physics. For three years Mr. Munro taught school in these districts, but left this work to study lay at Osgood Hall. In 1939, when war broke out, he became interested in meteorology, and after studying this work extensively, he became meteorology expert at the Camp Borden centre, a post he has held for the past three years.

He was a member of George Street United church, and for many years belonged to the Sunday School orchestra.

He leaves to mourn his passing his sorrowing mother, and three brothers, Donald, George and Cookson all of Peterborough.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 2 o'clock from the family residence, 560 George street, to interment in Little Lake cemetery. Flight Lieutenant D. R. L. Clarke, Padre of No. 1 S.F.T.S., R.C.A.F. Camp Borden, and the Rev. J. R. R. Cooper, of George Street United church, will officiate.

MRS. LOUISA JANE EDMISON.

A resident of Smith Township all her life, except for the last four years when she lived in North Monaghan, Mrs. Louisa Jane Edmison (formerly Louisa Jane Fowler) died on Monday evening after a short illness at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. H. Shield, Lot 10, Concession 13, North Monaghan, in her 72nd year.

Her husband, George A. Edmison, predeceased her 10 years ago. Mrs. Edmison was born in Smith Township, Lot 1, Concession 3, daughter of the late John B. Fowler and Sarah Ivison.

A member of St. Andrew's United Church, she leaves to mourn hre loss a son Allan of Bridgenorth, a daughter Mrs. J. H. Shield of North Monaghan, a brother Harry Fowler of Best Station, two sisters Mrs. M. Waram of Peterborough, and Mrs. M. Deyell of Omemee. Also surviving are two grandchildren Douglas and Keith Shield, both of North Monaghan.

The funeral will be on Thursday, at 3 o'clock, from the residence of Mrs. Shield to interment in Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. Dr. E. W. Young will be in charge of the services.

A Church Group At Lakehurst Gives Fund $21

In all things coming within the sphere of moral and spiritual values, sincerity of practice must find a prominent place, for in an enlightened age it is well nigh impossible to proclaim adherence to certain good principles, without one also practices them to a marked degree, otherwise the cause for which they stand must surely fall.

To all adherents of the Christian faith, Christmas marks the foundation on which their faith has been built, the utmost in gifts ever made to the whole of the human family at that time being an example which has found a far greater response in the hearts of peoples as between one another, and more nearly in deeds approaches in practice that spirit of goodwill which the Babe of Bethlehem came to proclaim and teach.

To be true to the tenets of their own teachings, all Christian bodies must practice these principles of goodwill on earth to all men, for in so doing they put into practice the teachings of Him whom they proclaim themselves to be followers of. In a world at the moment beset with so many evils diametrically opposed to the doctrine of goodwill, the practice of this same goodwill to others must surely renew their own belief in the faith to which they adhere.

At Christmastime many church organizations find infinite satisfaction in expressing this same goodwill for others, by doing acts of a practical nature for their benefit, among which the giving of assistance to the sufferers from air raid and robot bomb attacks by the enemy over Britain through the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund has found a place in former years, and has already commenced for the coming celebration of this great event, which is still some two months distant.

For the second time within ten days, this column on behalf of the fund is able to report a gift towards the special donations for Christmas from a church group situated in the sparsely populated district of Lakehurst, this time the contribution coming from the United church Ladies' Aid, which gave the proceeds of a cold meat supper amounting to $21.51 for this purpose. There was some assistance given in the entertainment by the Sunday School Institute.

In this manner they sustain the beliefs to which they adhere, and the inward satisfaction that must surely be theirs, cannot help but be a forerunner of the added joy that should be theirs in their own celebration of the greatest event in all Christendom.

Belmont School Helps

Young boys and girls too find a lot of pleasure in helping others specially for Christmas, and this in effect is what the pupils of S.S. No. 2 Belmont should feel. Their teacher, Miss Althea E. Smith, forwarded $3 in their name to the fund, which will go towards the gift now being gathered together, to give the boys and girls in Britain some good cheer for Christmas, when they won't be able to enjoy the day in their own homes. The fund would welcome many others following their example.

Cobourg Voters To Pass On Park Transfer

COBOURG, Oct. 17— (ENS).—Cobourg town council last night passed on to the electors of the town the responsibility of conveying to the Kiwanis Club on a long term title, the horse show park which the club propcses to convert into a memorial park to the late T. H. McClelland, who did so much for Cobourg sport. At a previous meeting of the Kiwanis club and the council, the council referred the matter to the town solicitor to give a ruling on the legality of the council leasing town property it was announced at the opening of the meeting that the solicitor had given the green light on the legality of the matter and had also informed council that the matter could be referred to a vote of the people.

Mayor Jack Burnet told the Kiwanis deputation last night that the council had felt that the lease should have a safety clause whereby the town could recover the property in the event it was required for some special municipal purpose. The club was within its rights in wanting to be sure that the town not take the property away with the stroke of a pen, the mayor said. His Worship also suggested that the town would reimburse the club for all monies spent on the property in the event that it was recalled for municipal purposes.

President William McGuire of the club said that he would think twice before he would want a memorial park created for a man who had given his life for the sporting welfare of the young people and then have the town take it away for some manufacturing enterprise which might not last a year. At this point Councillor Judd Kennedy asked if the Kiwanis club would permit baseball on Suunday in the park and Mr. McGuire emphatically said there would be no organized baseball on Sunday. If the youngsters wanted to play a little ball on their own after Sunday school there would be no objection. Councillor Kennedy expressed agreement on that point. Further discussion between council and the deputation agreed that there was little likelihood of the park ever being taken back by the town.

Council then passed a resolution that the question be put to a vote of the people. Members of the deputation expressed regret at the delay but agreed to the matter's disposition in that manner prior to the close of the meeting.

The mayor announced that the owners of the rink agreed to accept $500 from the town for the building, which was ratified by a resolution of council.

A meeting is being held to-night to discuss financing through public subscription the cost of repairing the rink.

Port Hope Major Leads Company In Attack

PORT HOPE, Oct. 17.—Word has been receieved that Major Lyall Carr has been leading his company in attacks on enemy positions at Rigossa, Italy. The attacks, which are reported to be against moderate resistance, have improved the postiions of an Ontario regiment.

Major Carr, 31, is the son of Mrs. John Carr and the late Mr. Carr of Port Hope. Born in Toronto, Carr spent most of his life in Port Hope. He is married to the former Winnifred Lingard, also of Port Hope.

Enlisting here in May, 1940, with the Midland Regiment, Carr was given the rank of lieutenant. He went overseas in September, 1942, and was promoted to captain in December, 1943. He took part in the Sicilian invasion with the rank of major and is known to be the first Canadian soldier to set foot in Italy.

He has two sisters, Mrs. W. Vick, Port Hope, and Mrs. J. C. Brackenbury of Kapuskasing, and a brother Eric who also lives in Port Hope.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Tuck, Misses Jean, Marjorie and Phyllis Thackeray of Peterborough, were guests of Mr and Mrs. Cecil Thackeray.

Mrs. R. J. Meggs left on Monday for a week's visit in Toronto, attending executive meetings of the O.E.A.

The school children have collected about 800 bags of milkweed pods which is thought to be a record for the Province from the efforts of 30 children.

Fairview W.A. Plans Chicken Pie Supper

FAIRVIEW, Oct. 17.— (ENS).—The October meeting of the Fairview Women's Association was held at the home of Mrs. Harold Lewis. A short meeting was in charge of Mrs. Cephas Heard, leader of group three. Mrs. W. A. Rosborough read the Scripture and Mrs. Fred Bell led in prayer.

The women decided to hold a chicken pie supper in the near future. Announcement was also made that the Fairview B. W. V. group are to be in charge of the market stall on Saturday, November 4 when the community will be asked for donations for this sale.

Fraserville News

The Ladies' Aid group will meet this week Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Willard Waterman of Fraserville, when there will be quilting. Mrs. Ray Findlay and Mrs. Austin Moore will be in charge of the program for this meeting.

Mrs. J. A. Carl of Coboconk is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Moore and also Mr and Mrs. Clifton Carl of Fraserville.

Miss Amy Bowles of Peterborough visited this week with her mother, Mrs. T. Bowles, and her brother Norman.

Miss Mary Eagelson of Millbrook is spending a few days the guest of her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Finlay, of Fraserville.

Mrs. Findlay Clarke and son Jimmy of Fraserville have been spending the past month with friends in Peterborough.

Miss Mabel Clayton of Peterborough spent the week-end the guest of her father, Mr. Jack Clayton, of Fraserville.

Sunday school this Sunday will be at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. It will be Rally Day service, followed by church service at 3 o'clock.

75th Anniversary Observed At Alderville Church

ALDERVILLE, Oct. 17—(ENS)—The 75th anniversary of Alderville United Church was observed Sunday afternoon and evening when the guest speaker was Rev. M. C. Macdonald, B.A., B.D. of Toronto, secretary of the Board of Home Missions of the United Church of Canada.

During his address in the afternoon Mr. Macdonald said this anniversary is the occasion to look backward with gratitude and forward with courage. He brought greetings from the home missions board and related its share in keeping open three thousand congregations in Canada.

At the evening service Mr. Macdonald spoke from John 12:32 on the subject, "The Magnetism of Jesus." He attributed this magnetism to four qualities possessed by Jesus: purity, love, forgiveness and humility. His address was a challenge to youth to lift Jesus up before the world by demonstrating through example Jesus' qualities, thus proving that only then would life reach its highest level.

Mr. H. Lander was in charge of both services. Messrs. E. A. Hircock and Milton Harper of Cobourg left the musical service, Mr. Hircock singing "There's A Voice in the Wilderness Crying" as a solo, and he and Mr. Harper sang a duet, "Have Thine Own Way Lord." Mrs. Robert Marsden of Christian Island presided at the organ, in the absence of Mrs. N. Marsden.

Roseneath United Church choir had charge of the evening's music, singing two anthems, "Enter Into His Gates with Thanksgiving" and "Fear Not O Land." Miss Betty Atkinson sang a solo, "One Thing I Of the Lord Desire."

Personals

Following afternoon service in Alderville United Church on Sunday, a baptismal service was held for Dennis John, infant son of John Beaver, R.C.A.F. and Mrs. Beaver. Bandsman Amos Marsden assisted the mother, who is his daughter, because the baby's father is serving on the continent. Mr. H. Lander officiated.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Marsden, son and daughter of Christian Island, Mr. Jones of Cape Croker, and Daniel Maracle of Deseronto were week-end visitors with Mr. Marsden's brother, Chief Norman Marsden and Mrs. Marsden.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brant of Deseronto were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Simpson.

Bandsman Amos Marsden of Kingston visited Mrs. Marsden and family during the week-end.

Thomas Marsden of Toronto spent the week-end with Mrs. Marsden and Velma.

HELLCAT CRASH-LANDS DURING ATTACK—A hellcat noses up on deck after a crash landing during the U.S. navy carrier task force attack against Manila on September 21, carrying the war back to Bataan after more than two years. Carrier pilots from Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's famed task force 58 shot 110 Jap planes out of the air. Another plane can be seen at upper right waiting until the damaged plane is towed away.

Legion Forming Cribbage Group

Branch 52 Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., held their October meeting Monday night with a large turnout of members, President George Gimbiett presiding.

Committee chairmen made their reports with Harold Yelland stating that five ailing members had been visited since the last meeting.

Peter Wallace advised that Tuesday November 14 will be the next open evening for members and their wives with a program now being arranged. He also asked that cribbage players leave their names for the club that is being formed within the Legion for the winter months, and there will be a meeting this Thursday night for the purpose of organization.

Robert Hotrum in his bingo report showed that this activity is still progressing, bringing out the fact that a considerable amount of the revenue goes to the British War Victims' Fund and for cigarettes for the armed forces overseas.

Harry Kelsey had six new members to bring before the meeting, and seven were initiated. The Branch had a welcome guest in the person of Captain J. L. Hodgson, Branch 16, Ottawa, who is now in the city as temporary minister of Trinity Church. He is one of those who came out of Dieppe, and he made a short speech.

L.-Cpl. Albert Corbett Missing In Italy

PORT HOPE, Oct. 17.— L.-Cpl. Albert E. Corbett has been reported missing in action on September 28th, in Italy. He is the son of Mrs. Grace E. Corbett and the late Mr. Harry Corbett, and was born in Port Hope.

He was a member of the Royal Bank staff before enlisting with the Midland Regiment, later joining the Irish Regt. of Canada. He has been in Italy a year.

A brother, Lloyd, has been wounded twice in Italy. Another brother was with the R.C.A.F. and a sister Edith is attached to the C.W.A.C. His father was a veteran of World War 1.

Introducing The Victory Loan Salesmen

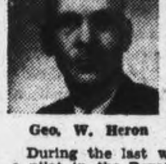
This is the second in a series of six advertisements to introduce to you the Victory Loan salesmen for the City and County of Peterborough, and to give a brief biography of each.

W. S. Rose

Mr. W. S. Rose, 265 Rubidge Street, is a charter member on the roster of Victory Loan salesmen, and is again starting out on his seventh campaign. Sales supervisor along with Vic Gallon and Lionel Browne. Mr. Rose being a very jovial individual, is very well known in Peterborough, being a native of this city, and is always interested in the various civic enterprises and is a regular canvasser on the Red Cross, Community Chest drives.

He is active in the business world as a Life Insurance salesman, being associated with the Sun Life Assurance Company.



Geo. W. Heron

George W. Heron, R. R. No. 7, Peterborough, Ontario, who has been a representative of the Imperial Life Assurance Company of Canada since August 1st, 1943, is again a canvasser on behalf of the Seventh Victory Loan.

During the last war, Mr. Heron was a pilot in the Royal Flying Corps, and had the reputation of being the youngest pilot in this service. When World War No. 2 broke, he immediately enlisted and was posted to Brantford and Hagersville, where as a Flying Officer he was an instructor in the R.C.A.F. Because of medical reasons he has since been retired.

At present he is a member of the local Y.M.C.A. and of the Canadian Legion.

Cecil A. Gallagher

Cecil A. Gallagher, 571 Park Street, will again assist on the Seventh Victory Loan drive, this being three Loans on which he has canvassed.

Mr. Gallagher, who has been in Peterborough for 27 years, came here from Toronto. He has been a representative of the Confederation Life Association for the past twelve years.

He is also quite well known in musical circles, being an accomplished and versatile musician. He has been a member of the Prince of Wales Rangers (R) for nineteen years, and at the present time holds the rank of Sergeant.

C. A. McFadgen

Mr. C. A. McFadgen, 475 George Street, is another charter member on the roster of Victory Loan salesmen. Mr. McFadgen has been a faithful canvasser since the inception of Victory Loans.

This gentleman, who came to Peterborough from Stratford, Ontario, opened the local office of the Canadian Government Annuities about nine years ago. He is now the Special Representative for the Canadian Government Annuities.

J. D. Anderson

Mr. J. D. (Doug) Anderson, 20 Victoria Avenue, who succeeded Mr. Geo. McCague as Manager of the local branch of the Imperial Life Assurance Company about two years ago, has been asked to again canvass on behalf of the Seventh Victory Loan. This will be only the third drive on which Doug has worked in Peterborough, but fortunately, for the National War Finance Committee, he has had considerable experience along this line.

Before coming to Peterborough, he was a salesman on four campaigns for Oxford County, and was Chairman of General Sales for South Oxford County on War Savings Stamp drives.

Petty Officer W. A. Anderson, R.C.N.V.R., of Tillsonburg, is a brother, and he is now stationed at Edmonton, Alberta, where he is training the Royal Canadian Navy Sea Cadets.

Maurice B. Pringle

Mr. Maurice B. Pringle, 467a Water Street, who has again joined the roster of Victory Loan salesmen, after being unable to canvass for the past few Loans, will be grouped with C. A. McFadgen and C. A. Gallagher covering District D, and will make up a team worth watching in the present Victory Loan drive.

Mr. Pringle, who saw service overseas in the last War, brings with him a wealth of experience in the selling line, having been associated with the Confederation Life Association for 12 years as Manager and Divisional representative. Prior to this appointment, he was a popular fruit merchant for many years.

He is very well known in business circles in Peterborough, is married, and has two daughters, and is always interested in the many worthwhile drives sponsored by the Red Cross and Community Chest officials.

Victor Tully

When the Victory Loan time rolls around again, Victor Tully is always in demand, as he is an old reliable on the roster of Victory Loan salesmen. He has earned for himself quite a reputation for selling Victory Bonds, and along with his co-workers, Walter Metheral and Jim Skinner, form a very strong team to beat.

When not selling Victory Bonds, Mr. Tully is associated with Messrs. Hill, Weddell & Hills and the North-Western Mutual Fire Association. He is very well known in Peterborough, having been born here and has lived in this city practically all his life.

He is always interested in civic enterprises, and when the A.R.P. was active, was a District Warden, and only recently he was a voluntary canvasser on behalf of the Peterborough Community Memorial Centre. He also canvasses for the annual Red Cross, Community Chest drives. In his spare time enjoys lawn bowling as a member of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club, and also enjoys the odd bit of hunting and fishing.

Roy Irwin

Roy K. Irwin, 136 Lansdowne Avenue, who is a salesman for the Great West Life Assurance Company, having been with that company since December, 1941, will again be a canvasser on the Seventh Victory Loan. Mr. Irwin was more or less just initiated in the art of selling Victory Bonds during the last Loan drive, but gained for himself quite an enviable reputation through his very worth-while efforts. He was one of the first salesman to obtain his quota.

He came to Peterborough from Keene about sixteen years ago, and has been a resident of this County practically all his life. Before going with the above firm, he was Assistant Supervisor of routes for Campbell's Dairy.

He has three brothers-in-law who are in the Armed Forces, namely Sapper John Dunford, R.C.E., of Mount Julian, who has been overseas for three years; Able Seaman Robert Lacey, R.C.N.V.R., on active service on the Eastern Coast; and Cpl. Aleck Lacey, R.C.A.F., on active duty on the West Coast.

Post-War Employment

Several gentlemen who are prominent in the political and industrial life of this country have been very free recently with their assurances that there will be jobs for everybody in the post-war world. This shows lack of realism, or lack of sincerity, or lack of a knowledge of history, or perhaps all these combined, for it is quite impossible for anyone to foresee what the employment situation will be after the war. We hope that it will be good; we shall do all we can to see that it is good: but we cannot guarantee that it will be good.

This important fact was stressed by the Governor of the Bank of Canada, Mr. Graham Towers, in a Victory Loan speech which he made recently in Galt. He referred to the optimistic forecasts of full employment as 'glib talk', and he summed up the situation thus:

"All-out war production, under a program directed by the Government, assures jobs for all (at present). In peace we have a number of different objectives. The initiative in creating demand for goods is divided between governments, business and the general public. The unity we have achieved in war gives high hopes for the future. But it remains to be seen whether we can achieve the same unity of purpose in tackling the problems of peace".

The necessities of war have provided jobs for all except the hopelessly unemployable; that situation will not exist after the war, however great the demand for workers may be. Inevitably a proportion of the less skillful and less accommodating workers will lose their jobs, because in time of peace they are more trouble than they are worth. It will be necessary for people who have worked on munitions to find other work, perhaps very different in character, and their chances of getting jobs will depend on their adaptability. There will probably be plenty of jobs after the war, but certainly there will not be jobs for everybody and anybody.

We must remember that when the war is over the nations of Europe, which have been reduced to bankruptcy by German tyranny, will begin manufacturing and exporting, and we shall have to compete with them to some extent. We shall send them what we make, and in return we must take their products, if world trade is to emerge from chaos. We cannot foresee now just how that competition will affect Canada, but in some respects the results may be drastic. Canada's post-war reconstruction will depend on what happens elsewhere in the world, and that is an influence which we cannot foresee or control.

• • •

No one can promise miracles of post-war employment now. If, as Mr. Towers says, we are ready to stick as closely together in peace as we have done in war we may manage very well. But that is a very big 'if'. At present it looks as though Canada were merely waiting for peace to break into a Babel of sectional rows and racial rows, working off the spleen and petty resentment which have been held in during the war years. If that is our attitude, post-war employment and all our other post-war plans will suffer.

A City To Be Proud Of

An enviable record of good citizenship has been established in Peterborough in recent years and more especially since the outbreak of war. The citizens' support of the Victory Loans, of the Red Cross, of British War Victims' Fund, of the Blood Donors' Clinic, of the Community Chest and finally, but by no means the least, the recent Community Memorial Centre drive has put Peterborough in a place unique in this province.

Peterborough is not a city where men of wealth abound, but she is a city where her citizens unite to support every worthwhile project. A city of diversified industry, these industries have given the lead that men of wealth often give in other cities. And the men who are at the heads of these industries have taken a prominent part in everything that is for the good of Peterborough. These men along with businessmen and hundreds of other citizens are always ready to give of their time and effort in backing every civic endeavour.

In the six Victory Loans Peterborough City and County has lent to the government of Canada $19,156,600. In every loan the objective has been passed, and as loan followed loan, the objectives have been increased. Now with the seventh loan a larger objective than ever faces the people. But meeting objectives in Victory Loans has become just part of the war effort of every citizen. With more than $82,000 subscribed to the British War Victims' Fund, this is but another example of how this city and district have joined together in this war charity.

The Community Chest Drive inaugurated four years ago has demonstrated, that with everyone helping a little, no great hardship has been placed on any one and our public institutions have been able to carry on without deficits. Support of the Red Cross Society has been generous, and the women have taken their place in the work rooms, considering it only a part of their patriotic duty.

The Community Memorial Centre canvass was watched closely by many towns and cities and already several are planning a similar memorial. We broke new ground and made a reputation for leadership of which we can be proud. Over $100,000 from the industries of this city and a similar amount from the citizens is no mean achievement for a city the size of Peterborough. It was a tremendous task and final results reveal that again Peterborough has demonstrated her civic spirit. We have always been classed as a conservative city but once sold on the idea the citizens have always rallied to full support of the project. A debt of gratitude is owed the men who spent hours organizing this campaign and also to the men who conducted the canvass. All in all Peterborough is a great city.

Smarty Prepared a Party

Whatever you say about the Germans it must be admitted that they are thorough; if they can possibly avoid it, they never allow themselves to be caught unawares, and as a result they occasionally plan things which do not come off. For instance, when the Russians recaptured Lublin this summer they found elaborate plans for the celebration of the fall of Moscow. The Germans were proud of their other victories, but Warsaw, the Hague, and even Paris were small game compared with Moscow; when the Russian capital fell they really intended to let themselves go.

Writing in the Soviet Information Bulletin, Ilya Ehrenburg says that the Germans began their preparations for the big party as early as July, 1941. The German governor of Poland, on that date, sent this message to all heads of occupation forces:

"Strictly confidential. Re: Fall of Moscow. The day the capture of the Soviet Russian capital is reported, celebrations are to be held in all towns where German troops are stationed, in order that the brilliant successes of the German army may be specially marked. Celebrations wherever possible should be held in the open air. It goes without saying that all Germans must take part in them.

"It is extremely desirable that as large a number of Poles as possible attend the celebrations as spectators. The precise date of the celebrations will be duly communicated to you. In Cracow the governor-general will deliver an address on the occasion. In the evening a fireworks display will be given on the banks of the Vistula opposite the castle. You must at once proceed to make preliminary arrangements for celebrations. In particular, orators chosen at your discretion should be invited. Local orators should be engaged immediately, as for technical reasons only brief notice will be given of the date of the celebrations. (Signed) Ohlenbusch".

The propaganda chief at Lublin decided to go in heavily for fireworks, and ordered 10,000 zlotys' worth at once, as well as posters and Nazi banners. How long was it before he realized that they would not be needed, and hid them in a back room? When he himself had to run away from Lublin, did he think regretfully of the show which never came off?

This incident reminds us of the childhood verse about Smarty, who had a Party, to which nobody came; but this time Smarty outsmarted himself so disastrously that there was no party at all. Except, of course, the perpetual Nazi Party.

NOTE AND COMMENT

How to win friends: refrain from trying to influence people.

The Rev. Hugh Cuthbertson, vicar of Tilty in Essex, England, held a harvest festival with free beer for all those in his parish who helped to bring in the harvest. Recalling, no doubt, Isaiah's words: "I will fetch wine and we will fill ourselves with strong drink: and tomorrow shall be as this day, and much more abundant".

The U.S. Seeks Itself

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

IN this presidential election the United States is groping for something which it has never been able to find before—its true place in the modern world. In the only other wartime election in the nation's history, the victory of Abraham Lincoln then decided that there could be no secession from the American Union. This election may decide that there can be no secession from the wartime union of the peace-loving peoples. Perhaps in an almost unconscious fashion it will so decide. Perhaps this paramount issue has been decided already in the heart and mind of this nation. But the election itself, the act of choosing a president, will not represent a visible decision on which the world can build its hopes for security.

The issue is too blurred, too many sided with too many imponderables for that and under the constitutional system of the United States no real decision can be made until the next president, who ever he is, can persuade the Congress to follow not merely the general aspirations of this time but the binding legal commitments of the peace settlement. Therefore, the election is but one stage in the great choice which must largely dominate the shape of the whole world in our generation and no election has been more confusing, more filled with general promises, more lacking in real policies.

THUS across the vast and teeming spaces of the nation the people are groping darkly. This colossal organism, this inchoate and amorphous thing, the American political system, seeks in the mighty symbol of the presidency for a common denominator, a compromise between the incalculable economic forces, races, traditions and hatreds which make up the United States and the hope of the democratic world. On the garish friendly streets of a thousand towns and cities, in New York, reeling and dropsical with wartime prosperity, around the cracker barrels of New England country stores, in the lonely places of the desert, in Negro towns down south, in the deep coastal woods, throughout a nation which is itself a world of races and conflicts the people are trying to understand this election but more than that their future in a new kind of world.

THE election mood, therefore, is strangely amazingly quiet. The peace time circus, the sport event which is the ordinary presidential election has gone. The fire, the passion, the human stuff of the Republican party died out with its greatest figure, Wendell Willkie. The Democratic party is tired with twelves years of office, its organization worn thin, the wild impossible hopes of 1932 gone in bitter disillusionment. No excitement, no spectacle, no theatre apart from Roosevelt, himself, the greatest of all showmen, can be expected from a party defending twelve years of office.

On the other side, Mr. Dewey obviously has not caught the public imagination as Willkie caught it and Roosevelt before him. Dewey is an able candidate, but he is not box-office. His pedestrian pace and his reliance on mechanical organization, his earnest and studied efforts to please suffer by comparison with the intuitive, unrehearsed and inimitable performance of the old impressario who plays by ear. Dewey has proved an abler man than most outsiders had supposed and might make a highly successful president.

But is is clear to anyone who approaches this election afresh from a foreign country that Dewey will not beat Roosevelt. If the Republican party wins it will be hatred of him and the New Deal that beats Roosevelt. The Republican vote will be a protest vote, not in the main a desire to see Dewey in the White House, whereas Willkie had millions of followers besides the haters of Roosevelt.

AS always, the last days of the election increase the confusion about its result. As always the experts are measuring eleventh hour trends and upsets. As always, little attention should be paid to them. The election probably was decided months ago by a hundred and thirty million people whose very numbers and sprawling geography make them inarticulate. No one, not even the most careful poll takers, knows that decision and, indeed, the professional prophets whose living depends on their accuracy grow more anxious and uncertain as the polling day approaches.

This reporter will take a look at some of the figures and calculations in another dispatch, but, meanwhile, it is possible to say this much; not even the most rabid republicans, aflame with a fury such as never has been known in Canada, will say that they are confident of victory. With a frustration moving to the foreigner they say that That Man in the White Mouse has a good chance to do it again. The professional gamblers in this town are betting three to one against Dewey, though the public opinion polls only give the president an edge of anything from two to six percentage points. The Democrats are utterly confident, provided they can get the vote out for its size as will be explained later may be the determining factor in the result.

BUT even if you knew the result of the election to the last vote, you could not know where the United States is going, the shape of its post-war society, the structure of its economy and above all its foreign policy. This is inevitable in a nation which has produced the economic industrial physical miracle of the ages but still struggles and writhes in this modern age of power under an inflexible constitution invented before the first days of steam. Thus with the real issues deliberately blurred by both parties, with the candidates denouncing each other and yet apparently advocating the same policies, the American people, this great gallant and friendly people, who want to do the right thing go to the polls in greater doubt and confusion than ever and in deeper agony of spirit also, for day by day their sons are dying for their past mistakes.

THE STRAIGHT RECORD

The Republican and Democratic National Committees have accepted an invitation from Mayor LaGuardia to use WNYC, the municipal broadcasting station, in New York, as a medium for correcting inaccurate or misleading statements by the opposition in the Presidential campaign.

"Of course I don't know much about elections —I have been in a few—but very often things are said the day before which are not exactly quite true," the Mayor said. "Then you correct that and you are given a little tiny bit of a correction some place in a third or fourth page of the newspapers. The purpose of this program is to keep the record straight."

The order of speaking on the first program will be set by flipping a coin, it was said yesterday, and would alternate with subsequent broadcasts. —New York Times.

THANKS FOR SOME NEWS, MR. CHURCHILL —By Thomas

Private Thomas Atkins—Hero

(BRITISH INFORMATION)

ALL the world knows the British soldier as "Tommy"—short for Thomas Atkins. But how many people know who Thomas Atkins was, and how his name came to be applied to the British soldier? Thomas Atkins is no hero of fiction, but a real soldier—a hero of former days, who died in battle at Boxtel, a few miles northwest of Eindhoven, where just lately the Second Army fought so bravely to relieve the heroes of the Airborne Division at Arnhem.

In September 1794, General Abercrombie's brigade, which included the Thirty-third Foot under Arthur Wellesly (later to become the Duke of Wellington) was retiring under pressure from the French, and had just repelled an especially savage attack, when Thomas Atkins, a soldier of twenty years' service, and the right hand man of the Grenadier Company, was left lying on the battlefield with a bayonet wound in his chest and a bullet in his lungs. His course was almost run; so he asked that the bearers shouldn't move him but that they should allow him to die in peace. Colonel Arthur Wellesly, moved to the side of the dying soldier, but Thomas Atkins, seeing the grief in his young Colonel's face, gasped out: "It's all right Sir. It is all in the day's work."

Half a century later, the now aged Duke of Wellington stood on the ramparts of Walmer Castle with an Officer who had come down from Whitehall with papers for the signature of the Commander-in-Chief. One of these was a pro forma document relating to soldiers' pay, which as a matter of courtesy was being referred to the Duke with the request that some name, typical of the common soldier, should be inserted as a specimen signature. "Could His Grace suggest a name?" the Officer enquired. The Duke moved forward to the edge of the ramparts, and stood for some time in silence gazing out to sea. What a panorama must have passed before those dimming eyes as he looked back beyond the blood-drenched slopes of Waterloo, the broken mountains of the Pyrenees, the tawny plains of Spain, the olive groves and cork woods of Portugal, and the torrid flat lands of India! But it was on none of these things that his memory lingered. As so often happens with old soldiers, the mind of the aged Duke went back to his early days of campaigning. After a long pause, he turned to his interlocutor and replied, "Private Thomas Atkins."

Post-War Craftsmanship

(By ANTHONY GARDNER IN THE LONDON SUNDAY TIMES)

IF we look back over the last 200 years we see that one of the changes which differentiate our era from the immediate past is that the making of things has passed from the workshop to the factory: from the man to the "manufacturer"; from the craftsman to the technician. This was one of the changes brought about by the "industrial revolution." The genius of handcraft was transferred to mechanical invention, and the break up of the small workshop followed.

This was, and still remains, a hindrance to the fullness of our national life, which we have so far failed to arrest; and, notwithstanding the various revivals, starting with William Morris and continuing in the Arts and Crafts movement, the small workshop, with master craftsman, men and apprentices, has faded into insignificance and is even in danger of being obliterated; for it cannot be hoped that the art and design schools, however excellent in themselves, will be a potent factor in arresting the decline. Inevitably they deal with the individual artist and not the workshop group, and can do little to stimulate demand or make craftsmanship a profession.

THAT mass production has come to stay is a truism; and certain it is that the vast material needs of our war-ruined world make its continuance more than ever imperative for the present. But there are certain things which will not fit into the framework of complete mechanization. You cannot fashion a jewelled setting, an ivory Madonna, a truly bound book, or a Stalingrad Sword by automatic means. (Was it not significant that when one nation of great industrialists wanted to pay homage to another, at one of the bravest moments of the latter's history, it was the craftsman who had to be called in to give the act of homage tangible expression?) The reason is clear. In the crafts, no less than in the poetry of verse and song, something of the soul of man is implicit.

If true and beautiful things are to find a greater place in human life we must see to it at the earliest moment that the workshop and all it stands for is not allowed to become moribund. But how is this to be done? It is fashionable now to appeal to the Government on behalf of any waning cause, and it is conceivable that the Government might help considerably in the present instance if, in addition to its excellent educational activities in stimulating the production of craftsmen through the schools, it were to extend the market for craftsmen's wares by the use of its own vast purchasing power, and thus in some measure relieve the craftsman of his main difficulty—that of finding a steady market for his productions. At present the craftsman has to conduct his own propaganda, thus wasting time and energy which could be spent in production. Moreover, he has very little opportunity of reaching the valuable market for British craft work which undoubtedly exists overseas, although the British Council has done invaluable work by its exhibitions abroad.

BUT even if the Government intervened, this would not go to the root of the subject. The crafts need revitalizing from within—they need a new spirit and a new organization.

Fortunately for both there is an excellent precedent in the history of the crafts themselves. Time was when craftsmen, stone and wood carvers, metal workers, scribes and illuminators, and a host of others, formed themselves into associations for the furtherance of their crafts and for mutual aid and protection; and these associations or guilds manifested the true spirit of fraternal co-operation and, at one time, formal Christian brotherhood. Wardens were elected by the Brethren to supervise the quality of the work, the terms of labour, admission asd apprenticeship. There were payments to a common fund, religious observances, festivities and pageants, and, of course, arguments. The whole business was fully alive, and the evidence of things which remain as a witness today tells the tale of wonderful achievement—our cathedrals, illuminated manuscripts, our church plate, tapestries and embroideries. And what would the world be to us without them?

Can we return to the guilds? Can we revitalize the nuclei of us craftsmen still in being and build up a system which will foster and develop the making and selling of those things which need the human touch and in which something of the soul of man is enshrined? The hallmark of quality might be placed on many things and not only on the precious metals. The bookbinders might have their bona fide marks, like the old stationers and binders of Oxford and Cambridge; the touch plate of the pewterer's could become likely with emblems; the clockmakers could once again sign their sweet and simple mechanisms.

Another vital duty of the guilds would be the devising and supervision of apprenticeship schemes, to ensure a continued flow of fresh talent into the craft and the maintenance of true standards, both technical and spiritual.

THESE new-formed guilds would need to be stern and practical institutions specifically constituted to further, develop and revitalise the cardinal crafts, and to be free from those miscellaneous, and, perforce, somewhat artificial tendencies which typify the lesser arts and crafts of today. Their raison d'etre must be the workshop and not the studio. And the guilds themselves might be co-ordinated by a Master Society which could form the link between the craftsmen and that section of the public which constitutes their patrons.

In this way marketing and publicity organisations could be built up and one of the craftsmen's chief difficulties surmounted, for a potent factor in the elimination of the crafts has been the inability of the present-day craftsman to offer a service comparable with commercial organizations. Research into the quality of materials and tools might also be conducted, and another useful activity would be the drawing up of standard forms of contract, particularly for the architectural crafts, which involve co-operation with builder and architect.

This is no Utopian idyll, but a proposal which could verily be started and developed within the framework of our civilization on sound and lasting lines. It is, moreover, a call to the craftsmen themselves to reconsider the position and to seek to co-operate and organize, with as much pertinacity as business men, to deliver the goods.

A Bible Message

Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, to an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you, who are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation ready to be revealed in the last time. (I Pet. 1: 3-5.)

Know ye not that so many of us as were baptised into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death?....

Now if ye be dead with Christ, we believe that we shall also live with him: knowing that Christ being raised from the dead dieth no more; death hath no more dominion over him. For in that he died, he died unto sin once: but in that he liveth, he liveth unto God. (Rom. 6: 3, 8-10.).

SEA SERPENTS ARE REAL

There is nothing surprising or unlikely about the report of a sea serpent off the coast of Brazil. It fits in with several others.

The mouth of the Parahiba river, in Brazil somewhat to the southeast, was the scene of the best authenticated instance in modern times that of the creature seen from the Earl of Crawford's yacht, Valhalla, in December, 1905.

It had an eel-like neck rising several feet above the water and supporting a turtle-shaped head, while glimpses of a large submerged body were occasionally seen.

A little to the northward off Cape San Roque Brazil, a very similar but larger creature was seen in July, 1875, by the crew of the British barque Pauline, while near the St. Paul Rocks one was encountered in April, 1920, by the S.S. Tyne. It passed her some 400 yards off, swimming 12 knots. Its neck was estimated at full 25 feet long and its body at 50 feet or more.

In the very month of August, too, H.M.S. Daedalus, while on passage from the Cape to St. Helena in 1848, was passed at close range by a huge creature with a serpent-like head and long slender neck swimming at great speed southwest —heading, that is, straight for the Brazilian coast.

All experience goes to show—and I have notes of more than 100 cases—that these creatures while formidable in appearance, are perfectly harmless, although inquisitive. There are many instances of their following small boats and letting ships approach them. In May, 1917, H.M.S. Hilary passed within 30 yards of one basking on the surface, which she afterwards killed by gunfire—but there is no case on record of their having ever attacked or molested human beings.—Lt. Cmdr. Rupert Gould, R.N., in the London Express.

Partisan Hitler

As the classical tag reminds us, it is right to take lessons from an enemy; what has worked with him may be used against him. The Germans have always been quick followers of this truth, as when they borrowed from us the basic ideas of the tank and dive-bomber. In this war there have been many other lessons to be learned and more will follow, though it is unlikely that the Germans will be given time to apply them. In particular one may doubt the practical value of a story from Stockholm which declares that the Nazis have been so much impressed by the possibilities of partisan warfare that they are preparing to introduce that type of resistance into the Fatherland when disaster is well on the doorstep of the Third Reich. Hitler and his chiefs with suitable SS units, will, it is stated, take to the hill country round Salzburg and Berchtesgaden, where they hope to hold out for years while a sort of peace is signed and maintained by the puppets they have left behind them. The mere idea is, no doubt, a real compliment to the partisans of Russia and Yugoslavia and the men of the Maquis, but it overlooks the point that the Germans have never been able to give anything like undistracted attention to the suppression of activities which have won their unwilling attention. One would not care to be in the shoes of the Robin Hood of Berchtesgaden when the whole strength of the United Nations' air arm has nothing more important to do than to make it hot for Hitler in his Berchtesgaden fastness.—Manchester Guardian.

Australian Group Fights Aluminum Cartel

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 17—(CP Cable)—The News, composite newspaper published by Sydney newspapermen and the Printers Union, said Monday it was stated officially that the Commonwealth Government is determined to continue with establishment of an aluminum industry in Tasmania, despite opposition of an international aluminum cartel.

A federal government bill to establish this industry at a cost of £3,000,000 (about $9,750,000) was passed in parliament recently.

The news article said the cartel has begun underground moves to prevent establishment of the industry in Tasmania. It added that the Commonwealth government had official estimates from Canada that aluminum can be produced at six cents a pound but that the cartel had just added another four cents a pound to its price of from 15 to 17 cents per pound.

The paper charged that the headquarters of the "world alliance" of aluminum interests has been "transferred to Arvida, Canada, in order to evade United States anti-trust laws." It added: "The cartel has been charging the Canadian, British and Australian governments 15 to 17 cents but it understood that a special clause under which a premium may be fixed on the costs of production is being used to force Australia to pay 21 cents. Threats already have been made that the validity of the Commonwealth engaging in industry will be challenged in the high court.

United Church Holds Anniversary Service

NORWOOD, Oct. 17.—(ENS). — Anniversary services were held in the United church on Sunday, Rev. Dr. Fletcher of Bowmanville, being guest speaker. He told of the work service clubs and brotherhoods have done to lift the loads of others and to help bear their burdens. The church is a much greater help to people he pointed out, and also spoke of the work done on Sunday in the apple orchards near Bowmanville.

The choir sang "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," Mrs. R. K. Tedford sang "The Lord's Prayer" and the quartette of W. Stares, R. Webster, O. Edgeley and A. Findlay sang "That Beautiful Land."

In the evening Miss Helen Bailey and Mrs. R. H. Gartner took the solo parts of the anthem, "Hark, Hark My Soul" and the quartette sang "Lead Kindly Light." Mrs. Rev. J. E. Glover of Hastings, sang 'I'm Sure I Shall Not Pass Again This Way."

Dieppe Veteran Wants Smooth Rehabilitation

The fact that Peterborough has no airport prevented Rotarians from hearing the speaker advertised for Monday's luncheon. He was to have been Lieut. "X" of the Royal Norwegian Air Force, who started out yesterday morning by plane from London, found out that there was no landing field here and put his machine down in Oshawa too late to motor to Peterborough for the luncheon.

Substituting as a last minute pinch-hitter, Capt. the Rev. John L. Hodgson, who is acting as pastor of Trinity church during the leave-of-absence of Rev. Dr. George Easton, addressed the club on some of his experiences as a padre with the Canadian army overseas and urged Rotarians as leaders in the community to help set up the proper atmosphere so that the legislation on the statute books for the rehabilitation of Canada's fighting men might be made to work satisfactorily. Without that atmosphere legislation by itself can accomplish nothing" said the speaker.

Capt. Hodgson was introduced by Rotarian R. F. Downey. In beginning his address he said he had been overseas, first as an adjutant in the army service corps and just before the Dieppe raid he had been made padre of the Royal Regiment of Canada.

Capt. Hodgson told of meeting a Peterborough boy in that unit, Pte. L. D. McIntosh, who had acted as his driver. "If all the boys you have sent overseas measure up to him in fine qualities then you have indeed made a valuable contribution

Praises British

The speaker paid a tribute to the people of the British Isles. They were vexatious at times, he said, but after seeing the spirit of the British people he had never had any doubt as to the final outcome of the war. "They never knew when they were licked and you can't beat a people like that" said Capt. Hodgson, in relating a few of his personal experiences while in the army overseas.

As to the Canadian army the speaker discussed the forces overseas under three heads "What do the British think of them," "What do they think of themselves" and "What do I think of them." As to the first he quoted the opinion of a British Guards' officer who said that he rated the Canadians as right next to the Guards.

Capt. Hodgson stressed the fact that the Canadian army had to spend years in England without any action against the enemy. It was not so bad when you were going places in a plane or in a ship, he pointed out, but it was difficult to keep up the morale after three or four years of no fighting and constant training. In spite of that handicap the Canadians had kept their chins up and British officers had expressed surprise at the fact that there was so little crime in the Canadian army under the circumstances.

Rehabilitation Is Here

As to rehabilitation Canadians at home who knew nothing about war privations as they knew them overseas failed to realize, the speaker said, that rehabilitation was not something that was going to take place in the future. It was here now. In this connection Capt. Hodgson remarked that the supplying of a sufficient supply of blood plasma was one way in which Canadians could help. Especially he urged the setting up of the proper atmosphere so that the machinery provided by the government might be able to function efficiently, warning that the boys now overseas were not going to walk the ties looking for work as veterans of the First Great War had done.

Rotarian Hubert Eastwood expressed the thanks of Rotarians to the speaker.

James Thompson, manager of the Bank of Toronto, was welcomed as a new member of Rotary. He was introduced by Rotarian C. S. Cummer, who said that the new Rotarian had for years been a member of the Preston Rotary Club and served for a year as president.

Rotarian Ian McRae, reporting for the Air Cadet committee, said that the visit of the 164th Squadron Air Cadets to the drum-head service at the De Haviland plant Sunday had been a great success. The Peterborough squadron had been given the honor of leading the march past of between 4,000 and 5,000 cadets from all over the province and they had worthily represented their home city.

Thanks was extended to Lieut. Col. James Turnbull for the cooperation given by him to the Cadets and President G. S. Matthews announced that next week's luncheon will be held at the Military Training Centre, and that after the luncheon there would be an address given to both Rotarians and troops.

St. Andrew's Has Sixty-Second Anniversary

MILLBROOK, Oct. 17—(ENS)—St. Andrew's United church observed its sixty-second anniversary with special services Sunday, the guest speaker being Rev. Dr. Ridout, F.R.G.S., of Toronto, and the guest soloist, Jack Nicholson, who is a member of "Ye Old Tyme Village Quartette" and bass soloist of St. Clair United Church, Toronto.

Large congregations were present for both services, which were in charge of the minister, Rev. A. L. Sisco, B.D., and in the evening Grace Presbyterian church withdrew its service to worship with St. Andrew's on its annivresary occasion, the pastor, Rev. Walter Patterson offering the prayers.

Appropriate to the morning sermon theme, "The Consecrated Life," Mr. Nicholson's first solo was "Take My Life," and during the offertory the male quartette sang "Shall You, Shall I?" Dr. Ridout was paying his first visit to Millbrook, using Jesus' prayer in John 17 as the basis of his remarks, explained that consecrated means to be set apart as sacred, and to be dedicated to the service of God. "And this is what God expects of His children, that they may have a radiant personality, having experience the love and power of the eternal Father."

The evening sermon on "Harmony of Living," completed the morning theme, the thought stressed being that within the circle of love to God with all our being, comes loving our neighbour as ourselves.

Love Enemies

Dr. Ridout has lost a son in this war, and the matter of loving one's enemies had been a personal struggle in his own life, he said. "Unless we can bring the Poles to love the Germans, and the Chinese to love the Japanese, your grandchildren and mine will be going through this hell again, and it is all so senseless." His closing appeal was for such a yielding to Christ that the world will know "we have been with Jesus."

Mr. Nicholson's solo, following the sermon, was a Negro spiritual, "Coming Home". The thankoffering of $500 asked by the church officials was exceeded by the amount placed on the plates, and there are several enviopes yet to come in.

CANADIANS GAIN IN SCHELDE BATTLE—Increasingly important becomes the Canadian army struggle to wrest from the Germans the approaches to Antwerp which would shorten the Allied supply line by 500 miles. Some 20,000 Nazis are dug in to hold these approaches, and the fighting is heavy in the Schelde River area and along the Leopold Canal, held by the Canadians. In a spectacular move to gain footholds on Nazi-held beaches, Canadian amphibious forces jumped from Ter-Neuzen to land behind the German lines at Hoofdplatt (indicated by arrow) and established bridgeheads near there in the face of terrific enemy fire from Walcheren. It was at Walcheren that R.A.F. bombers knocked out the sea wall.

2 Cars Collide Head-on At Havelock

HAVELOCK, Oct. 17 (ENS) — A car accident occurred on Sunday night at the corner of Concession street and No. 7 Highway, when Elwood Dowdall of Havelock, proceeding south on Concession street and entering on No. 7 Highway to proceed east, collided head-on with a car driven by Winola Snell of R.R. 3, Port Hope.

Louise Snell, sister of Winola Snell, suffered head injuries when her head struck and broke the windshield. Both cars were damaged to the extent of $200. Provincial Constable A. F. Grayling is investigating.

Her Aching Joints and Depression are things of the past

How are Britain's middle-aged women standing up under the strain of four years of "front-line" war? Here is a letter that supplies one typical answer:—

"Although I am nearly 60 years of age, I work very hard. But for months recently, I have been getting rheumatic pains, combined with a feeling that life was not worth living. So I obtained a bottle of Kruschen, and in a short time the effect was remarkable. The aching joints, the depressed feeling, the sleeplessness and constipation were all relieved. I felt rejuvenated and so bright . . . just as if the war was over!"—(Mrs.) E. B.

There is no law that compels people to look after themselves. That's up to them. A most important step is to keep the bowels regular and the kidneys active. Kruschen helps do that in a simple dependable way, because it has a two-fold action — laxative and diuretic as well.

Harmful acids and poisons that can give rise to rheumatic pains and other complaints are cleared away through the kidneys. The bowels are also gently encouraged to work naturally and regularly. The result is definite relief from constipation and depression.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable of all Drug Stores. 25c and 75c.

CANADA'S VETERANS

Their Post-War Opportunities

This is the fourth of a series of advertisements to inform the people of Canada of plans to re-establish men and women of the armed forces. To get the full details save and read every advertisement.

For complete information write for the booklet, "Back to Civil Life."

Training and Education— Doorways to Opportunity

BOTH ARE AVAILABLE AFTER DISCHARGE

In planning Canada's re-establishment program, its makers worked with one principal idea in mind. This was that the only answer to the problem of permanent re-establishment is a job—and that the surest way to get and hold that job is by the skill and ability necessary for it. In Canada's armed services there are many who enlisted so young they have no peacetime skill. There are many who have been away from their peacetime occupation so long they will need brush-up courses. There are others whose outlook has changed in the months and years they have worn the uniform. They, too, will want assistance. Recognizing this, Canada has given wide opportunity for training to all who have served. The test is the desire to help themselves and the ability to benefit.

THE VOCATIONAL TRAINING PROGRAM

Every ex-service man or woman, who will be assisted in re-establishment by a course in training is eligible for it. To help choose the training most likely to result in security, occupational counsellors will be available while there will be guidance in the services before discharge. Skills learned while in uniform may be found a valuable foundation for a peace-time career.

If being trained in a school or technical institute, fees will be paid, and in addition the ex-service man or woman may receive up to:

In addition, there are allowances for children and other dependents.

Many, however, will be trained right on the job, in industry. In these cases, the Government, if necessary, will add to the wages earned while training.

Training is available for the period of service, to a maximum of one year, but it can be extended beyond that time if necessary, and if service is more than a year. Disability pensioners get special consideration, their right to training is continuous.

EDUCATIONAL TRAINING

This is available to all who are admitted to university within fifteen months of discharge, although this period of time may be extended under certain exceptional circumstances.

As in the case of vocational training, fees are paid, and there are maintenance allowances up to $60.00 monthly for a single man or single woman, and $80.00 monthly for a man and his wife, together with allowances for dependent children.

These allowances will be continued on a month for month basis of the veteran's time in the services, providing no year is failed and providing no supplementals are carried from one year into the next.

In the case of outstanding students, the assistance may be continued to completion of the course, and in exceptional cases, where it is in the national interest, on into post-graduate studies.

POST-GRADUATE STUDIES

Opportunity is available to all who had started post-graduate work, or were about to start it at the time of their enlistment. These studies must be commenced within one year of discharge.

VETERANS' WELFARE OFFICERS ARE STATIONED IN KEY CENTRES THROUGHOUT CANADA. THEY ARE THE FRIENDS OF EX-SERVICE MEN AND WOMEN. IT IS THEIR DUTY TO ADVISE AND ASSIST ALL EX-SERVICE PERSONNEL WITH THEIR RE-ESTABLISHMENT PROBLEMS. IF THERE IS ANYTHING ABOUT THE REHABILITATION PROGRAMME WHICH YOU DO NOT UNDERSTAND CONSULT YOUR NEAREST WELFARE OFFICER.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Peterborough juniors, tutored by Rich Jackson, are hard at work this week polishing off a set of plays for use at Riverside Park this Saturday when the fast Toronto Vikings will be down for an exhibition game that should provide the fans with an interesting battle. Vikings won their league game in Toronto on Saturday by the shutout route and according to the reports from the Queen City they rate about as strong as the Westsides who have already appeared here and who came from behind in the second half of their battle with the Peterborough kids to take the game by a final count of 16 to 5. The Petes made some mistakes in that struggle that were costly but they claim that they learned their lesson on that occasion and will not be guilty of the same errors again. In addition they contend that steady practice has smoothed out some of the rough spots in the Petes' offensive moves and they will be ready Saturday to give the Vikings an argument all the way down the line. The Peterborough team won a lot of friends in its initial appearance here and the fans will be out in droves on Saturday to encourage the local youngsters in their second test of the season.

Dave Thompson, local boxer, was down in Belleville the other night and according to the Ontario Intelligencer helped to steal the show from the head-liners. Here is the Belleville scribe's description of the bout: "Boxing in Belleville again drew a capacity crowd at the Hume Arena Friday night when upwards to 1,700 exuberant fans placed their approval upon the manly art of self-defence in the second show presented by the Reliance Boxing Club. When it came to ring orchids, however, the Doug Day-Dave Thompson bout stole the show over the top of the main attraction, that Referee Fred Parry had to call after Howard "Dynamite" Wheeler, the pride of Oshawa, had cut Jerry Downes' eye open early in the second round of the main go. Stepping out strongly Day, a local comer, and Thompson, of Peterborough, refrained from wild ring antics and sparred strongly for position punching from the outset. Both boxers moved in fast and at close range exchanged hard lefts and rights early in the bout. However, the Peterborough boy gained a slight edge in the second round with his inside fighting Day elected to shoot his hard left with effectiveness. About even going into the final round again Day endeavored to measure his opponent with the old "one-two," but Thompson moved inside with his experience and after tying Day up won a narrow-margin decision in the best bout on the program."

Basketball Reports

The changing seasons bring corresponding changes in the sport picture and thus today comes the first bulletin from basketball headquarters in the form of an announcement that there will be an organization meeting of the Ladies' Basketball League, one of the most successful of all local sports bodies, in the Y.W.C.A. tonight. Officers will be elected and plans completed for the 1944-45 season which is expected to get away around the end of next month. All clubs wishing to enter the loop this season are asked to have representatives present at tonight's meeting which is called for 7 o'clock sharp. Prospects are bright for another good season according to league officials who recall the fact that last winter's campaign was one of the most interesting in the history of the league and predict that the coming season should be every bit as exciting and colorful. There is plenty of enthusiasm among the players and with several new teams in line there will be fresh interest in the cage game and the result should be good competition and keen races for the league titles.

* * * * * *

Incidentally a change in the setup has been arranged and it is probable that the loop will operate this season in two divisions, senior and junior. In the former bracket will be Transports, last season's powerful champions, the St. John's team who gave them such a memorable battle in the final series and the C.G.E. girls who were strong opposition all season for all and sundry. With the three senior teams in a group by themselves there should be a winter of close games and plenty of excitement right through to the last game of the finals. Grouped in the intermediate division will be the Normal School team, two teams from the Y.W. C.A. and new clubs representing the Quakers and Peterborough Lock Company and made up for the most part of girls who made their debut in softball during the past season. There may be other junior teams in line, too, but at least the entrance of the five named seems to be assured and they should have a lot of fun getting a winner out of that good group. Some of the girls on the new teams will be making their first appearance in organized basketball but they should come on rapidly during the season. The outlook generally is bright and cage fans can count on a lot of good basketball from the girls' loop during the coming season.

Suggests A Battle

Says Ken Colling in his Belleville sport column: "Over at Batawa last night there was revelry by night, the occasion being a banquet and social evening to honor the Bata "Bombers," 1944 Intermediate "C" champions of the O.A.S.A. (No, the local Marines and Squires won't be in on any such celebrations this year.) 'Tis rumored, and we mean rumor in every sense of the word, that the Bata "Bombers" feel they are just about the best softball nine in Eastern Ontario today. And that includes the SACO "Marines," Intermediate "A" finalist. Quite frequently October gives over to bright, warm sunshiny afternoons and with Wednesday still being a civic half holiday in our town there is little or no reason why the "Bombers" should not have an opportunity to cross bats with the "Marines," say here next Wednesday afternoon. The Fair Grounds diamond is available and played for sweet charity such a grudge softball game would prove even more than interesting, that is if the Intermediate "A" finalists have recovered from their Fort Erie shock."

St. Catharines Athletics for the fourth time in seven years are Mann Cup champions. They won the 1944 title last night at Hamilton when they defeated the New Westminster Salmonbellies 11 to 9 in the fifth and deciding game. It has been a close, exciting season, with play worthy of a Dominion final and while the St. Catharines' margin of victory was not large, the Athletics apparently have been a shade better team. In last night's game the new champs won the argument in the first period when they opened at top speed and outscored the team from the Pacific Coast 4 goals to 1. After that it was a desperate battle on the part of the Salmonbellies to pull the game out of the fire but St. Catharines team hung on grimly and remained out in front. They were only 7 to 6 when the last quarter opened but they had enough drive left to outscore the Salmonbellies in that hectic session.

Default Deposits

QUEBEC, Oct. 17—(CP)—The provincial treasury now is richer by $28,000, paid into it by 144 candidates who lost their deposits in the Aug. 8 provincial general elections, it was announced last night. A record number of 330 candidates sought seats.

Patrick Growls At Canadiens

WINNIPEG, Oct. 17. — (CP).—Manager Lester Patrick of New York Rangers, in a statement yesterday, said Phil Watson is ineligible to play for any National Hockey League club under a ruling made by N.H.L. governors at thir meeting last May.

He was commenting on a Montreal despatch carried by The Canadian Press Sunday night, which said Montreal Canadiens wer "a bit chagrined" with prospects of losing Watson when Patrick decided he wanted the player back with Rangers.

"It's just subtle propaganda for Montreal consumption. How can you lose a player that does not not belong to your organization

"Last year we were told that Watson was not available to our club, as he was "frozen" in his job, but he would be permitted to play for Canadiens. We made a one-year deal whereby we secured several players from Canadiens who were able to enter the United States in exchange for Watson.

"This year Watson is ineligible to play for any N.H.L. club under a ruling made by the league governors at their meeting last May. The rule states that a player cannot play for any club if he is deferred for other than physical reasons.

"We know nothing of a triple deal involving Toronto and Goalie Paul Bibeault. We do know that Watson was, is and always has been a Ranger property."

Patrick concluded that the Canadiens front office was "embarrassing the N.H.L. structure and misleading their own hockey public with erroneous information."

Fireworks Sure At Tunney Show

IRISH JACK KENNEDY

With Karl Krippler Davis meeting Whipper Watson in a main bout battle with the time limit removed and the California buzz bomb, Dr. Len Hall, attempting to batter the popular Irish Jack Kennedy into submission in the semi-final there is bound to be action galore at the Tunney wrestling show in the Brock St. Rink tonight. Both of those battles should be riots. There will be nothing tame about the opener either for it brings the flashy Don Evans into action against Jack Wentworth, who moves pretty fast himself. One of the most exciting cards in weeks from all accounts.

Soccer Teams In Scoreless Tie

In the junior section of the Public School Soccer League Monday Prince of Wales and Confederation Schools battled to a scoreless tie in a game in which the defence proved entirely too strong for the attack.

Scoring opportunities were not very plentiful and the goalies were able to take care of everything that came their way.

The lineups:

Prince of Wales—Goal, Jones; backs, Best, Chalmers; halves, Carl, Cooper, Panter; forwards, Byers, R. Deck, Johnston, K. Deck, Fowler; subs, Dunn, Moffatt, Wood.

Confederation — Goal, Morrison; backs, Hobson, R. Bryan; halves, Crouter, Sutherland, J. Bryan; forwards, Floyd, McCarrell, B. Jones, Douglas, Strickland; subs, Martin, Hazlett, Sargent, Dawson, Curtis, Kimball.

Referee—D. Crawford.

More Apple Juice

OTTAWA, Oct. 17—(CP)—K. W. Taylor, foods co-ordinator for the Prices Board said today that at least 500,000 cases of apple juice fortified with Vitamin "C" will be available for Canadian consumers this winter.

During the past three years all the apple juice processed in Canada has been reserved for military needs. Because apple juice will be available imports of grape-fruit juice will be reduced from 700,000 to 400,000 cases.

STRATFORD, Oct. 17 (CP) —Thomas Killoran of Stratford was sentenced to a week in jail on a charge of vagrancy in that he was "found in the trunk of a car and was not able to give a good account of himself." Police said he crawled into the trunk of a girl's car and pulled the lid down after him.

Lawn Bowlers Re-elect Old Directors

BY HERB MARTIN

So completely satisfied were the shareholders of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club, with the manner in which the affairs of the club were conducted during the past season, that all of last years board of directors, save R. F. Downey who retired, were re-elected at the annual meeting held in the club rooms on Monday evening. Robt. Hendry was chosen to take Mr. Downey's place.

In opening the meeting President Percy Moore gave a brief outline of the season's activities and thanked all who had made his lot, as president, an easy one. He paid tribute to the chairman of the different committees for their untiring efforts and said how much he had enjoyed the season's work.

In memory of those members who have passed on during the season the meeting stood in silence, for one minute, with bowed heads.

The financial report was given by secretary-treasurer F. M. Brown and was favorably received.

The chaiman of the different committees were called upon. Harold Freeman gave a detailed account of the work accomplished by the games committee—B. Chesler spoke for the green's committee, Harry Beatty the house and property committee and K. Sloane and R. Payne reported for the membership committee. During the election of the board of directors, Judge S. Smoke, presided.

The spirit of good fellowship prevailed throughout the meeting. And everyone seemed to be well satisfied.

After the prizes had been presented, the gathering was treated to coffee and doughnuts, through the kindness of R. Hendry, J. Matthews and P. Moore.

The personnel of the new board is—H. Beatty, B. Chesler, H. Freeman, R. Hendry, P. Moore, R. Payne and K. Sloane.

Fred Reed and Charles Elliott were named a nominating committee and H. Clegg and G. Soulby were re-elected auditors.

It is likely that the 1945 board of directors will meet within a few days and elect a president, vice-president, and secretary-treasurer, and also appoint the chairman for the different committees.

The ladies social committee is holding a dance in the club house on Saturday, October 21st. Jock Marshall's orchestra, dancing 8.30 p.m. to midnight. The admission 50 cents.

Stick Boy's Dad Says "No Trade"

TORONTO, Oct. 12 (CP)—Take it from Coach Clarence (Hap) Day, he's prepared to oppose to the limit any suggestion that the management of the Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League trade their stick boy for Maurice Richard of Montreal Canadiens.

The suggestion came from Frank Selke, Toronto manager, after Dick Irvin of Canadiens proposed that Leafs trade Gaye Stewart and Bob Goldham, now in the Navy, for Paul Bibeault. "We might match Dick's bidding by offering to trade one of our stick boys for Maurice Richard." said Selke in Toronto last night.

"You can report for Mrs. Day and myself that we're strongly opposed to any such deal," said Day here.

The Leaf stick boy is their young son, Kerry.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Oct. 17 — (CP). — Regarding the recently-repeated talk about appointing a hockey "czar" like baseball's Judge Landis, a Winnipeg Tribune sports writer feels there is no need for such a character in the present hockey scene.

Hockey, he says, isn't big enough yet to need a supreme director. The hockey business is on a much smaller scale than professional baseball so there are less chances for "underneath-the-table deals." There may be some, yes, but not enough to get into a dither about.

He feels that the only reason a Landis would be needed would be to preserve the integrity of the game, but right now the set-up is small enough so that every club has a vital business stake in keeping the game on the up and up. There is money enough for everybody without the need for shady dealings to corral the greenbacks in other words.

Sport tabloid:

Remember Colin Ross of the old Ottawa Rough Riders? He's Lieut. Ross of the infantry now, and has distinguished himself by daring plunges and thrusts through centre while hunting out Huns in the Holland fighting....Professional baseballers in Toronto can look back on a season's work well spent with young sandlotters in the city. More than 500 'teen-agers got invaluable coaching and instruction during the summer as members of the Maple Leafs helped out with the club's minor ball promotion.....Prospects are good for a strong ice loop in the Calgary district this winter, but service chiefs haven't reached a decision yet. There is no scarcity of good pucksters in that area....After two years of senior lacrosse, 17-year-old Ike Hildebrand of New Westminster Salmonbellies is ready to try pro hockey. Bunny (Toronto Telegram) Morganson says he wil try out with the Chicago Black Hawks.

Pepper Martin Back To Pasture

By BEN F. Phlegar
Associated Press Sport Writer

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 17.—(AP).—The wild horse of the Osage, John Leonard (Pepper) Martin is heading back to pasture after a one-year return to the big leagues where he excited fans with his daring antics for 12½ seasons.

The 40 year old Pepper yesterday received his unconditional release from St. Louis Cardinals.

He had requested it, telling President Sam Breadon he figured he had served his time as an active major leaguer.

Martin came back to the Cardinals at the start of the 1944 season after managing Sacramento and Rochester since 1941. He has never said what he plans for 1945 and to-day was on his ranch near McAllister, Okla., and could not be reached for a statement. It was believed he would again seek a job as manager somewhere in class AA baseball.

Coming to the Redbirds first in 1928 as an outfielder, Pepper stuck around for the world series, then went back to the minors until 1931. That was his first year as a Cardinal regular, and probably his biggest year in baseball.

It was in 1931 that the wild horse became an all-time world series idol. He batted .500 (tying a record), made 12 hits (also equalling a record) and literally stole the classic from Philadelphia Athletics with his base running with five stolen bases in the seven games.

Pepper played almost 1,200 games for St. Louis and led the National League base stealers in 1933, '34 and '36.

St. Mike's Sweep Western Series

WINNIPEG, Oct. 17. — (CP). — Exhibiting a spectacular lateral-passing attack, St. Michael's College of Toronto defeated St. John's, of Winnipeg, 16-4, in an East-West High School football game here last night at Osborne Stadium. Four thousand fans watched the game.

The Irish were led to victory by fleet halfback Murray Bulger, who scored three touchdowns. One was a 90-yard sprint through the whole St. John's team.

Last Saturday the St. Michael's team whipped St. Paul's College of Wininpeg 11-6 in the opening game of a series sponsored by a group of Winnipeg sportsmen.

St. Michael's played inspired football during the whole game and outshone the Winnipeg team all the way.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

By The Canadian Press

Notre Dame, garnering slightly more than half the first place votes in the Associated Press' second poll of the season, retains its ranks as the No. 1 College football team of the United States in the opinion of 107 sports writers. The Irish got 59 2-3 ballots for the No. 1 spot, and on a system giving 10 points for first, nine for second and so on, compiled 973 points. Army was second with 862, followed by Randolph Field 681.5.

Lee Oma, Detroit heavyweight, won a ninth-round technical knockout over Al Blake of Baltimore at the latter city last night and headed for a return bout with Tami Mauriello in New York Nov. 3. Oma was to have fought Blake several weeks ago but was permitted to postpone the date to sub for Joe Baksi against Mauriello. The fight developed into one of the best heavyweight tussles in several years, Oma losing by a knockout in the eighth after giving Tami plenty of trouble.

Cpl. Melio Bettina, 190, former world light heavyweight champion, knocked out Saint Thomas, 204, of Dayton, Ohio, a follower of Father Devine, in the third round of their 10-round bout at Philadelphia last night. The victory was Bettina's fourth of the year and his 26th in 30 bouts as a heavyweight.

Stukus Fades

Hamilton's Joe Krol continues to set the pace for Ontario Rugby Football Union scorers but stocky Sgt. Doug. Pyzer of Camp Borden has replaced LS. Annis Stukus of Toronto Navy as top point-getter in the Ontario Armed Services League, it was shown last night in scoring statistics compiled by The Canadian Press. Krol's total of 36 points—he tallied seven last Saturday—kept him in front of the scorers in both leagues although the hard-hitting Pyzer narrowed the gap with his three touchdowns for 15 points in his Saturday appearance, bringing his total for the season to 37. Stukus tallied three points Saturday for a total of 28.

Phil Terranova, former N.B.A. world's featherweight champion, outpointed an old rival, Vince Dell 'Orto of Philadelphia, in a whirlwind 10-rounder at Providence last night.

H.M.C.S. Cornwallis of Deep Rock, N.S., yesterday captured the Maritime Senior Baseball championship by defeating St John, N.B., St. Peter's 9-5 to take a best-of-three final series in two straight games.

Athletics Win Mann Cup For Fourth Time

HAMILTON, Oct. 17—(CP)—The Mann Cup and the Canadian Senior Lacrosse champypionship were won by St. Catharines Athletics last night when they defeated New Westminster Salmonbellies 11-9 here, in the fifth and deciding game of the final.

The climax to the hotly-contested series saw the Athletics taking the lead from the start and holding it against determined opposition from the champions of last year. It was the fourth time in seven years that St. Catharines has won the title.

The final game was shifted here because the Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto, where the previous four games were played, was taken over by a circus this week and the St. Catharines club had yielded to committee-room protests from the New Westminster club against playing any games in St. Catharines, which has no indoor floor. A crowd of 3,500 saw the deciding game.

Gold Trophy

E. E. Barnes of Vancouver, president of the Canadian Lacrosse Association, presented the Gold Trophy to the Athletics. He also presented the Mike Kelly Memorial Trophy for the player most valuable to his team in the Mann Cup finals to Ike Hildebrand, youthful Winnipeg-born star of the Salmonbellies.

The Athletics used four replacements in the deciding game and two of them, Bill Arthurs of Brampton and Bill Issacs of Burlington, each scored two goals. Myers, Morton and Cove also counted two goals apiece, and the other St. Catharines goal was scored by Bill Nelson.

Hildebrand and Binder each scored three goals for the losers, Bryant getting two and Bill Dickinson the other.

The Athletics went on the attack early, and led by 5-1 at the end of the first quarter. They were leading 6-4 at half-time and 7-6 at the three-quarter mark. New Westminster pressed determinedly and a stellar performance by Bill Whitaker, veteran in the Athletics' nets, was perhaps the difference between victory and defeat.

Training Camp Gossip

By The Canadian Press

Tommy Gorman of Montreal Canadiens received calmly last night word that it is likely there will be no approval of any N.H.L. player contracts until military status has been investigated. Gorman said: "We have been hard hit, but we shall survive. We have no deals of any kind in prospect yet."

There's no telling yet who will be in the Canadiens' line-up, but if there are any newcomers they will probably come from Ray Leduc, Bob Filion, Fernand Gauthier, Roland Rossignol, or Arbmoise Leduc.

In Winnipeg Lester Patrick picked the Canadiens as the team with the best prospects—on paper. Patrick considers his Rangers and the Toronto Leafs are improved. He admits Rangers are weak defensively, but says this may be overcome by concentrating on backchecking.

At Hibbing, Minn., where the Chicago Black Hawks are training, Paul Thompson has his eye on Russ Bradshaw of Vancouver. Bradshaw is showing speed and cleverness in his try-outs for a left-wing berth. He is reported to be one of the fastest players on the club.

Toronto Maple Leafs, training at Owen Sound, have arranged to divide the squads into two teams for a game at St. Catharines on October 24. Proceeds will benefit the minor hockey clubs.

Ezinicki in Top Form.

Bill Ezinicki, the amateur star from Oshawa, was going great guns in the Leafs' workout yesterday. There is no indication yet which of the rookies is likely to catch a regular berth. Coach Clarence Day spurred them on with the remark: "Every man on the ice has a chance to make this team."

At Windsor, Detroit Red Wings' camp was reduced by three. Cully Simon, regular defenceman, was forced out of training by recurrence of an old injury to his side. Red Kane, defenceman or forward player, dropped out with blood poisoning in his foot, and Tony Buckovitch was called back to his home at Mainesdale, Mich., because of illness in his family.

The Red Wing camp also dropped —for this season at least — three amateurs, Olex Baralke and Clayton Sweeney of Galt, and Stuart Pirie, a goalie from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. There are still 10 amateur players in the Wings' camp.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17— (AP). — Tuesday pm quarterback:...From the looks of Saturday's scores, Army and Notre Dame will come up to their annual tussle without knowing how good they are...The big scores so far don't prove whether they're so good or the opposition so bad... And how about Washington with 247 points in four games — and then comes Southern California?... Navy's coaches must feel like the guys who normally inhabit such football hotspots as Columbus, O., or Baton Rouge, La., during the Huey Long regime...Before every season the fans told them they had a world-beater team and they'd better watch out if they lost even one game....

Hard bargain:

When Lieut. Buster Mills, former Indian outfielder, and Lieut. Birdie Tebbetts, ex-Tiger catcher, were teammates on the Waco, Tex., army air field baseball team, Buster continually tried to talk Birdie out of a gold cigaret case that Tebbetts never used...Then Mills was transferred to another field and when Tebbetts' team was entering a semi-pro tournament, he made Mills an offer to sign up for the event..."Name your own price," said Birdie..."I won't take any money," replied Mills, "but if I play it will cost you that gold cigaret case."...He played.

WALLINGFORD, Ia., Oct. 17 (AP) —Beverly Olson, 13, grabbed the steering wheel of a school bus after driver Howard Bammer suffered a fatal heart attack yesterday and saved nine children and herself from possible injury or death. She kept the car on the road for nearly 90 yards and succeeded in turning off the ignition and halting it.

Willkie Group To Aid Roosevelt

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17 — (AP).—Bartley C. Crum, San Francisco attorney and once head of Wendel Willkie's California committee, to-day announced the formation of a Republicans for Roosevelt committee to support re-election of the President.

"Our hope that the Republican party would provide leadership in the field of foreign affairs," said the text of a statement on principles issued on behalf of the committee's western headquarters here, "was shattered by the platform in which the isolationists and nationalist influence succeeded in introducing extremely broad escape clauses which allow the party to evade a forth-right commitment to aid effectively in the maintenance of world peace."

WILL GERMANY BE THUS DIVIDED BY ALLIED CONTROL? — Germany may be divided and placed under control by armies of the three western Allies at war's end, as shown in the above map, according to a plan reportedly agreed upon at the Teheran conference of President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal-Premier Stalin. The plan provides for policing of Berlin, German capital, by detachments of troops of all three Allies.

Labor Demands Punishment Of All War Criminals

By MELVIN APPEL
Reuter Staff Writer

BLACKPOOL, England, Oct. 17—(CP-Reuter).—Calling for the criminal prosecution of not only the Nazi storm troopers but of every rank and caste of the Nazi system, Ebby Edwards, president of the Trades Union Congress, highest authority of the organised British labor movement, to-day outlined British labor policy toward Germany and European problems.

Mr. Edwards, secretary of the powerful British Mine Workers' Federation, delivering the presidential address to the Congress convention, said members of the German government, great financiers, industrialists and landed aristocracy should be tried and in proven cases "punishment by death will not be too severe."

The Congress chief also called for an investigation into those who assisted Germany to wage war either through diplomatic channels or by trading in materials or instruments of destruction with Germany.

He foresaw re-establishment of relationships with Germany's working class and the re-building of her trade unions as one of the most difficult, yet one of Britain's most important, post-war problems.

"Lack of a strong trade union movement in any part of the world, allowing as it must exploitation of labor's power, cannot fail to have its repercussions on the conditions of the workers in the countries where unions are organized."

He declared British labor was agreed on complete demilitarisation of Germany and Japan and held that they should not supplied with or allowed to manufacture arms capable of being transformed into means which would threaten the world. For that reason British labor advocated "not only taking the manufacture of arms out of private hands but to regulate raw materials of war industry."

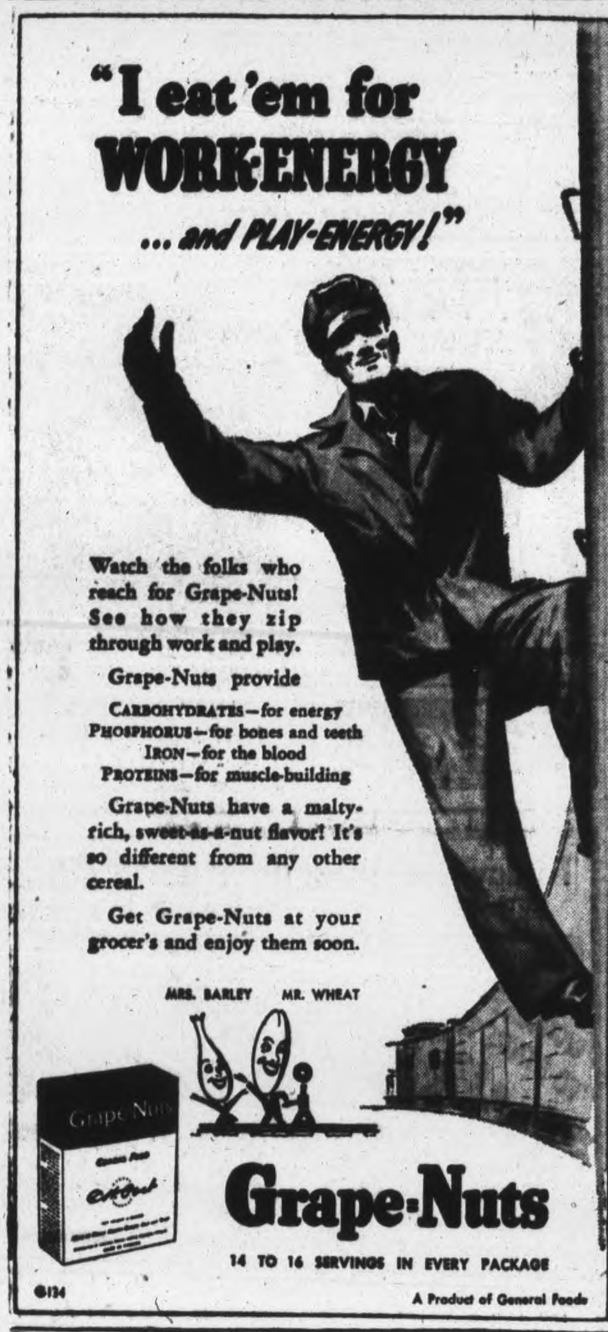
MISS MARY CALLAHAN

DOWNEYVILLE, Oct. 17—(ENS) —The funeral of the late Miss Mary Callahan was held from her residence Monday morning at 10 o'clock to St. Luke's Church where requiem high mass was offered by Rev. Father McFadden who also said the prayers at the cemetery. The funeral was largely attended showing the high esteem in which she was held in the community.

The late Miss Callahan was born 75 years ago on the farm where she died. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Callahan.

Her nephew, when he came home at night, found her dead. She was in good health and doing her work all the time. Death was from a heart condition.

She is survived by one brother, Timothy Callahan at home, and by three sisters, Mrs. Patrick Hickey of Detroit, Mich., Mrs. Patrick Duffy and Mrs. Dennis Shine, both of Downeyville; also several nieces and nephews.



Refuse Amendments To Tenants' Act

VANCOUVER, Oct. 17 — (CP) — Finance Minister Ilsley, has informed Boards of the Canadian Association of Real Estate that the Federal Government will not institute proposed amendments to the Provincial Landlord and Tenant Act, A. E. Craddock, secretary-manager of the Associated Property Owners of B.C. was advised last night.

The contemplated changes called for the granting of powers to rental judges which would permit them to disallow eviction orders if circumstances warranted such action.

Mr. Craddock said his organization had protested the proposed amendments on the grounds that present regulations were adequate to protect security of tenure.

Plane Fires House

COQUILLE, Ore., Oct. 17—(AP)— Three navy fliers were killed and five civilians were injured after a plane tore through a row of houses in this tiny western Oregon town.

The plane plowed into a residential district yesterday near the high school. The chimneys of two houses were sheared; porches of two other homes were demolished. A grocery store was hit and then the plane exploded, setting fire to another house.

Labor Promises To Cooperate

The recently organized Allied Labor Council sent its respects Monday night to the City Council declaring their earnest desire to cooperate in every possible way in all matters affecting the welafre and happiness of Peterborough.

"We express our good wishes to the newly formed Labor Council, wish them success in their aims for a better community, accept their offer of co-operation and reply that we hope to avail ourselves of their offer," was the sentiment of a resolution by Alderman Sands and Alderman Bradburn.

The Labor Council will be advised that the civic hospital committee has been keeping for them a vacant seat in its membership, and that they be asked to appoint a member of this committee.

To the bereaved family of the late James Garside, a former alderman, the Council sent a resolution of sympathy, by Aldermen Glover and Sands, also making grateful mention of the work Mr. Garside had done as a good citizen in the upbuilding of Peterborough.

An invitation from the Local Council of Women to attend its meeting at the Y.W.C.A. Thursday afternoon was greeted rather blankly. Hon. Mr. Ilsley is expected here that afternoon, and any way afternoon meetings interfere with personal business, — but Alderman Glover said "some of us might be able to go." However, the invitation will be duly acknowledged.

TO HELP WITH WAR WORK — The pupils of Central School are anxious to do their share in helping with war work, and as they needed funds, it was decided to have a basket collection, the money from each class to go to the Red Cross or other war charities which they might choose. Eleven hundred six-quart baskets had been collected by Monday afternoon, and they are being sold to a gardener. Large fruit baskets bring 3 cents each, while the six-quart ones sell at 2½ cents. The pupils supported this drive in the same splendid way they backed the War Savings Stamp sale for the purchase of the fighter plane.

Given 10 Days For Wheel Theft

Kenneth Ruttan, 16, Lindsay, was sentenced to ten days in the county jail by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in police court this morning on a charge of stealing a bicycle here in August from Ernest Mattucci to which he had previously pleaded guilty.

Detective-Sergeant W. E. Meagher testified he had investigated the case and had found that Ruttan had stolen the bicycle on Charlotte street ridden it to Lindsay and there sold it for $7.50 .

Ruttan's father told the court that he had got several jobs for the boy. "The Training School spoiled them," he said. "As soon as people found he had been in the Training School they didn't want him any longer."

"I don't think he is very desirable, going around and stealing bicycles," Magistrate Langley, adding that a jail term might have some effect on the boy.

Justin Carter, 20, Crescent street, was also charged today with the theft of a bicycle. The information alleged that the stolen wheel was under $25 in value and that it had been the property of some person unknown.

"Are you sure that it was under $25 in value?" asked the Magistrate. "It seems to me that any kind of a wheel is worth more than that now when they are so hard to get."

At the request of the crown Carter was remanded for a week for sentence.

A thirteen-year-old boy, alleged by police to have committeed the recent break-in in the Stedman store when some $80 worth of clothing and accessories was carried off was also remanded when he appeared in juvenile court today.

Council Grants $400 For Corvette Presents

For the purchase of Christmas parcels for the crew of H.M.C.S. Peterborough the council Monday night made a grant of $400 to the Citizens Co-Ordinating Committee. This is the committee which bought the supplementary furnishings for the city's namesake corvette.

"I understand they are keeping in touch with the ship and its crew, and because of its Peterborough connection and captain they wished to send some extra remembrance from the city," Mayor Hamilton said. "And it is not a money-raising committee," Alderman Sands added. "They did a good job on furnishings for the corvette."

With this appropriation of $400 for the crew of H.M.C.S. Peterborough, the council has allotted most of its Santa Claus money for the Peterborough men and girls in the armed forces. The amount in the estimates at the beginning of the year was $2,000.

Cabinet Ministers To Visit Peterborough

Three Cabinet Ministers, one federal and two provincial, are expected to visit Peterborough in the next ten days.

Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Canada's wartime Minister of Finance, will speak to all the canvassers for the 7th Victory Loan at a dinner meeting at Genelco cafeteria Thursday at 6 p.m., and will address a mass meeting of the employees of the C.G.E.-Genelco at 4 p.m.

Hon. Dr. R. P. Vivian, Minister of Health in the Ontario Legislature, is expected to be here next Saturday afternoon, chiefly to discuss some phases of Peterborough's hospital project with its special committee.

Hon. Dana Porter, Minister of Postwar Planning in the Ontario Cabinet, has promised to come to Peterborough on Friday, October 27. Following its custom the council is arranging a dinner for the Minister, and H. R. Scott, M.P.P., suggested that the members of the county council should be invited to meet Hon. Mr. Porter during his visit. A few other citizens interested in works related to the postwar period will be invited with the county council.

Goes On Trial For Old Murder

WHITBY, Ont., Oct. 17.—(CP). — Sam Michael, 44-year-old Pickering township farmer, will go on trial to-day for murder in the death of Michael Sheveluk, caretaker of a Jewish boys' camp near Pickering whose body was found on Nov. 27, 1937, with the throat slashed and a bullet wound in his back.

Accused was arrested last August as the result of information received bp the provincial police following a seven-year-old search for the slayer. Crown Attorney A. F. Annis is prosecuting and defence counsel are E. J. Murphy and Arthur Slaght.

22 People Fined No Radio Licenses

Twenty-two county residents who had not taken out radio licenses for the current year were fined $3.75 and $1.75 costs each in police court this morning when they entered pleas of guilty to possession of receiving sets without the necessary license.

The charges were laid as the result of a checkup by Radio Inspector M. E. Leslie.

Those fined were: G. L. Tedford, Young's Point; Randall Dickson, Robert J. Douglas, and Harry Dowcett, Westwood; Donald C. Hope, Mrs John Graham, Duncan R. Mather, Chris. Plunkett, Joseph Hastie, and Arnold Nelson, Keene; James Downing, Mrs. Walter Tucker, R. E. Watson, C. McColl, William Peters, all of Apsley; and Ernest Young, Leslie Hall, Melville Hall, Maxwell Lean, Buckhorn.

Arthur Trick who entered a plea of guilty of failing to give another car its proper share of the road was fined $5 and $2.35 costs. The charge was laid by Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure.

Pte. Joe Huard Seriously Hurt

Serving in Italy with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Pte. Stephen F. J. (Joe) Huard, whose wife and five children live at 429 Elm street, has been officially reported "severely injured" in action, although no additional details were disclosed. This is the second time the Peterborough soldier has been hurt while serving overseas. In March, he suffered a wound in his hand.

Formerly an employee of the American Hotel, Pte. Huard is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Huard. He went overseas in November, 1942, and went to Italy with the famed "Hasty P's" in March, of 1943. Three brothers are also serving overseas.

Pte. Cyril Huard is with the same unit, in Italy; Cpl. Clare was wounded with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders in France, and is now in England, and Pte. William Huard is still in a hospital after being wounded in France.

Minister 86 Baptizes Great Granddaughter

BANCROFT, Oct. 17 (ENS) — Rev. J. W. Down, 86-year-old veteran of the United Church Ministry, once pastor of Omemee, and who supplied the pulpit of Lakefield in 1883, baptized his great granddaughter. Dianne Elizabeth, 4½ months-old daughter of Rev. Robert and Mrs. McLauchlin of St. Paul's United church here.

When the latter presented their daughter before the altar in her father's church, the ceremony was read by her grandfather, Rev. Andrew McLauchlin of Toronto. All three ministers had taken part in the McLauchlin-Wray wedding in Peterborough on Saturday. The maternal grandmother, Mrs. Andrew McLauchlin, and her sister, Miss Flora Down of Exeter, Ontario, were present for the ceremony, which took place at the communion service Sunday night, at which the father officiated.

Petition Asks Little Lake Be Cleaned Up

A petition of several hundred signatures appealed to the council Monday night "to clean up the mess in Little Lake". It was signed by residents of Crescent, Lock, Ware, Romaine, Perry and Lake streets, emphasizing a problem that is immediately before the council and under discussion for some time.

The council recently advertised for applications for a temporary position as assistant city engineer, receiving several replies. One of them was from Hugh Ferguson, Hespeler, who is being invited to meet the council in the near future.

City Engineer Parsons was also instructed to advertise for a capable 'instrument man', and a reply will be sent to the south end petitioners informing them that the council is expecting a reply from Dr. A. E. Berry, chief of the sanitary engineering division of the Ontario Department of Health, on his recent inspection of the lake and river; and also that plans are in prospect to "relieve some of the difficulty" and remedy the situation as soon as possible.

First Job

"One thing we could do first is to tackle the job we can see," Alderman Glover said. "We've got to clean up our own backyard. That means we have to lay an iron pipe sewer from the present septic tank in Ashburnham, along the shore of the lake to cross the river at McDonald's Point and connect with our main sewer on George street, and it has got to be deep enough to escape the frost."

Alderman Bradburn repeated a previous opinion that the council should either provide the means for City Engineer Parsons to do this work, or engage a temporary engineer to take charge of it.

That is the immediate 'back-yard job', the "one we can see", as Alderman Glover referred to it, eliminating the Ashburnham "septic tank" and connecting the sewers of Ashburnham to the trunk sewer on the west side of the river.

No Interruptions

Mr. Parsons said his difficulty was to attend to the ordinary work of his department and at the same time try to find time for the several major projects for which the council is urging action. "We want a man experienced in sewerage work. I know the city's sewerage system. A temporary man could make surveys under my direction. As Mayor Hamilton has said, whoever does it must be free from interruptions. We'd need to have a man who knows estimates and sewerage work, that is an engineer and one or two rodmen. We might be able to pick them up."

In the background is the preliminary survey of the Monaghan farms that are being considered as site for a municipal airport, Mayor Hamilton said that ground work might be held over until winter.

"If we are going at it, we should not wait until Spring when the farmers will be putting in the crop," Alderman Ovens said.

SAILOR ON LEAVE — AB. Pat Shaughnessy, whose wife lives at 473 Rogers street, is spending a furlough at his home. Before enlisting in the Navy 2½ years ago, he was employed at the De Laval. Son of Mr. and Mrs. James Shaughnessy, Otonabee street, he has a brother, Justin, serving in the Norwegian Merchant Marine, and a sister Lieut. Helen Shaughnessy, a nurse in the American Army. AB. Shaughnessy has been a member of a frigate crew.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, October 18

THE forecast is for a day on which the energies and initiative should be concentrated upon laying safe and enduring foundations for the future fortunes and security. Serious judgment, well-laid plans and soundly carried constructive ideas and objectives, supported by industry and diligence should yield rich rewards, despite some side stepping of rules and regulations, possibly in favor of a bit of stratagem or wire-pulling, in which the public or community might be concerned. Be wise with writings and credit.

Those whose birthday it is should be ready to grasp a definite opportunity to place the affairs, possessions and future on a firm and enduring foundation. This may occur by mobilizing all the skill, resources, energies and initiative, with well worked out plans and sound objectives. This might be by means of constructive and practical ventures or in safe and sound investments. Intrigue or strategy may play a part, especially where public work or interests may be at issue.

A child born on this day may possess startling qualities, with initiative, enterprise and perseverance for attaining assets in life, with happiness as well.

HOMESICK BRIDE BIG PROBLEM

Surprised Mate, Little Understands Feelings of Girl in New Quarters in Strange City.

A MATRIMONIAL problem with which many young husbands are confronted is that of the homesick bride, and they do not know what to do about it because they did not even suspect that such persons existed. They thought that all brides were ecstatically happy looking at their wedding rings and moving around their new furniture and writing notes of thanks for their wedding gifts. And here's Mary Jane weeping her eyes out because she is parted from Mother and the girls.

Nearly every girl who moves to a strange place to live when she marries goes through this agony of homesickness, and while it lasts it is an experience as bitter as death. For nothing has prepared her to meet this new life into which she has entered. At home she was the centre of a gay, laughing, chatting group. Now she spends her days within four walls, as alone as if she were in a jail in solitary confinement.

At home she knew everybody. In the strange city to which she has been brought she knows no one except the man to whom she is married, and who is too busy to give her much of his time or conversation. At home the days were not long enough for all her activities. Church work, club work, lunches, parties, something to do every hour of the day. In the city, her dreary occupation is killing time.

Too Little to Do in New Home

Worst of all, she has nothing to do to distract her mind from its nostalgic longings for home and Mother, for there isn't even much work to be done in a modern apartment with modern gadgets, and many are the expedients that the transplanted bride has to use to pass over this ordeal when she is taking root in an alien soil. I know one woman who can never be induced to go down certain streets in a city because when she found her loneliness as a bride unendurable she walked miles and miles upon them, just for the companionship of looking at other people. And I know another woman who tells how she ripped up her trousseau, made it all over again by hand to fill in the long hours of boredom.

Men have singularly little understanding and sympathy with their homesick brides. THEY didn't mind leaving home and their families. They gladly went where opportunity beckoned. THEY were not lonely. They were in the thick of things. THEY had no difficulty in getting acquainted. They were thrown in constant close association with other men in their work. And it never occurs to them how hard it is for women to get to know other women in a strange place.

Also, a man resents his wife's homesickness because it hurts his vanity. He doesn't see why she she can't fill her whole life thinking about him when he is absent, and why just having him come home at night isn't enough excitement for any woman. Besides, he made considerable sacrifices to marry her and provide her with a home and he feels that she is ungrateful not to register joy in it instead of gloom.

And the young husband doesn't know enough about women to know that the only cure for a homesick bride is to let her go back to Mother and the girls and find out that home isn't what it used to be, and that her place in the family circle has closed up. Then she will realize that her husband is her home and her people and her life, and there will be no more tears over the past.

Rita Sullivan Wed Saturday

Immaculate Conception. Church was decorated with baby 'mums Saturday morning, for the wedding of Rita Cecelia Sullivan to John Francis Shaughnessy, with Rt. Rev. Monsignor F. J. O'Sullivan officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Regena Sullivan and the late John Sullivan, Rogers street, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Shaughnessy, Otonabee street. Mrs. C. O'Donnell was at the organ, and accompanied Mrs. D. Campanero when she sang "Ave Maria" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her brother, William Sullivan, the bride was gowned in white embossed silk organdy over slipper satin, on princess lines, with a long train. Her floor-length veil of bridal tulle was caught to her head with a wreath of pink flowers, and she carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses. She was attended by Mrs. Kenneth Fleming, her sister, in floor-length powder blue taffeta, trimmed with wine velvet. She wore a hat of wine and blue flowers, and carried Talisman roses. William Shaughnessy was his brother's best man.

The bride's mother received the guests in a black crepe dress, with matching felt hat and accessories and a corsage of Bettertime roses, at the reception held at her home, following the ceremony. The groom's mother, also receiving, wore a tailored suit, with black hat and accessories, and a corsage of Bettertime roses.

For a wedding trip to Toronto and Niagara, the bride chose a heavenly blue dress with a black coat, and heavenly blue velvet hat with black suede accessories. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Shaughnessy will make their home on Park street.

Rev. E. W. Rowland Guest Speaker

Rev. E. W. Rowland took the morning and evening fifty-fifth anniversary services on Sunday at Bridgenorth United Church. The church was decorated with autumn flowers by women of the congregation, and the choir sang special music, under the leadership of Mrs. Clayton Telford.

In his morning address, Rev. Rowland said that "We are here to see; we are here to be; and we are here to do." He stressed that people should do everything they could for the church, and to make the world a better place in which to live.

"None of these things moves me" was the text for his evening service. He explained that Paul could have remained with the church at Ephesus, but chose to go to Jerusalem for the Pentecost, not knowing what dangers and trials might overtake him. He pointed out that "we are often tempted to stay behind, and take the easier way," but urged his audience to rise above it, and take the path of duty, although no one could tell what awaited them.

The honor roll for men and women from the district who have joined the armed services will be dedicated at the service at seven o'clock next Sunday evening.

VON Nurse Takes Marriage Vows

MILLBROOK, Oct. 17 — (ENS). — Seaton Hall, Port Hope, was the scene of a lovely fall wedding Saturday afternoon, when Martha Isabelle Earle, V.O.N., younger daughter of Mrs. H. A. Earle, and the late Mr. Earle, of Millbrook, became the bide of Evan Rowland Crocker, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Crocker, of Newcastle, N.B. Rev. A. L. Sisco, B.D., pastor of St. Andrew's United Church, Millbrook, performed the ceremony in the presence of about forty guests, the large reception room being decorated with zinnias, 'mums, and ferns.

Given in marriage by her brother, L/Cpl. Allen Earle, R.C.O.C., the bride was gowned in a floor-length dress of white duchess satin, extending into a brief train, the long fitted torso being embroidered in braid and lace, with sweetheart neckline, and long fitted sleeves coming to a point over the hands. Her veil, of silk illusion, was finger-tip length, with Queen Anne headdress, and as her only ornament she wore an heirloom cameo brooch, and carried a cascade bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Attending the bride was the groom's twin sister, S. O. E. R. Crocker, R.C.A.F. (WD), of Winnipeg, Man., who was in uuiform, as was also the groom. The groomsman was Reginald I. Fallis, the bride's cousin, as were also the ushers, Clifford and Robert Larmer, of Millbrook. During the signing of the register, Miss Alice Berry sang, and Miss Estelle Hetherington played the wedding music.

For the reception which followed the ceremony, the bride's mother wore a two-piece dress of soldier blue, sequin-trimmed, and corsage of red roses; Mrs. Crocker, mother of the groom, wore a two-piece crepe dress in burgundy tone, with matching accessories, and corsage of yellow roses.

The bride's table was lace-covered and centred with the three-tier wedding cake, flanked with tall pink and white candles in silver holders. Fluted streamers went to the four corners from the white wedding bell overhead, and baby 'mums were in crystal containers. Mrs. Newman-Jones, social hostess of Seaton Hall, was in charge of the luncheon, those serving including Miss Margaret Larmer, Millbrook, Mrs. Sergeant Bowman, South Monaghan, Miss Ethel Gibson, Oakville, and the ushers.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Crocker left for their wedding trip to New York and Washington, the bride travelling in a brown suit, with matching hat and accessories, and beige top coat. Upon their return they will reside at Newcastle, N.B., where the groom, who has seen overseas service, will be assistant manager with his father in a large mercantile business. Mrs. Crocker received her initial nurse's training at the Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, took post-graduate work at McGill University, Montreal, and has been serving as a V.O.N., at Gananoque.

Among out-of-town guests at the wedding were: Mrs. Charles Larmer, Oshawa; Mrs. Z. Seaton, Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Larmer, J. M. Larmer, R. O. Larmer, Rev. and Mrs. A. L. Sisco, Millbrook, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Marvin, Port Hope (the bride's sister), Mrs. Allen Earle, Millbrook, Mr. and Mrs. E. McCrae, Peterborough, Misses Rubena Cook and Kathryn Creegan, Gananoque.

The wedding cake was the gift of the bride's aunt, Mrs. H. Seaton, of Millbrook.

Warns Mormons Dangerous Sect

At the recent meeting of St. Paul's Auxiliary the speaker, Rev. W. L. Newton, described the teachings and beliefs of the Mormons. Mr. Newton had been a student pastor in an Alberta community which they dominated and was very familiar with their ambitions. He explained that in Alberta they already had a considerable degree of political influence and warned against toleration of a sect which believed in polygamy, in the superiority of Joseph Smith's teachings to those of Jesus and the Bible.

They are restrained in the practice of their beliefs only because they were in the minority, he continued, but under different conditions were aggressive and antagonistic to christianity. Mr. Newton said that awareness of the danger would prevent the political domination they exercised in Utah and other American states.

The president, Mrs. E. H. Howson, expressed the appreciation of those present to Mr. Newton.

St. John's Auxiliary

Mrs. E. Young and Miss Emma Clementi were hostesses for the refreshments served at the close of the regular meeting of the Evening Branch of the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Church, Monday evening in the parish hall. Canon W. P. Robertson opened the meeting and read the prayers. Miss M. Lancaster read the second chapter, "They Brave the Pacific", from the study book for the year, "West of the Date Line". An invitation was extended to the meeting on behalf of the W. A. of St. Luke's Church, to attend their golden anniversary, Wednesday evening at eight o'clock, in St. Luke's parish hall. Members decided to hold the next business meeting on November 6, since Dr. John R. Mott will be in Peterborough on November 13, the regular evening for the meeting.

KING GEORGE

Members of the graduating class of King George School were reminded of their good fortune, in being born in an advanced country, and the importance of being independent, by Mrs. F. W. K. Harris, guest speaker at the graduation exercises, Monday evening.

Speaking to the parents in attendance, Mrs. Harris gave an account of the advancement of public schools in Peterborough, both from an education and health viewpoint. She listed five causes for failure, and cited the story of George Washington Carver as an example of the desire for education.

Francis E. Kerr, principal of the school, took charge of the presentation of diplomas, and introduced the valedictorians, Miss Jean Brown and James Swanston. Both pupils stressed their gratitude, on behalf of the class, for the efforts of the teachers during their public school years. J. Blackwood briefly addressing the group, stressed the role played by parents in the education of the child, the value of a Christian background, and the ultimate reward to the parents.

Keith S. Wightman, school inspector, spoke to the graduates on their attitude to the new work at the collegiate, and wished them luck in their future efforts.

Education Week

It was announced that Sunday, November 5, would be the opening day of education week, and would be marked with a church service in Trinity church Sunday evening. Open school, to enable parents to see the progress the children are making, and to discuss the problems of the child with the teachers will be held Friday afternoon, November 10, at three o'clock. The Home and School Association will hold a tea in connection with this open school, to raise a donation for the Memorial Community Centre.

Musical interludes during the program included the following: two duets by Shirley Rome and Adele Gardiner, accompanied at the piano by R. Telford; a solo by Bill Crowder, accompanying himself on the guitar; a piano solo by Bob Cullen; and a community singsong, conducted by Mr. Telford. Mr. Kerr gave a short review of current events, and a few passages from "Paris Underground."

Minutes of the previous meeting were read by Mrs F. Watson, and Mrs. K. Gedge read the treasurer's report. Miss C. Dobbin's class was awarded the attendance book. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening by Mrs. C. Bachelor and her committee. Mrs. A. G. Stock presided.

KING EDWARD

Members of the graduating class of King Edward school were advised to choose a well-rounded collegiate course, to prepare them for the future, by Leo W Copp, guest speaker at the graduation exercises in connection with the regular meeting of the King Edward Home and School Association, Monday evening.

Urging the students to take an interest in all subjects, the speaker said the post-war conditions might compel them to accept a position they would not ordinarily have chosen, and that an all-round course of study would help them adjust themselves to conditions. He advised those acquiring an education, especially students majoring in science, not to believe the theory that that which cannot be proved by science is not so, because the fundamentals of life are based on faith. In conclusion, Mr. Copp said that their attitude would determine, in eight to fifteen years, the attitude of substantial citizens, and future leaders of Canada.

Donald T. Crawford, principal of the school, congratulated the graduating class and urged them to play game and do their best. He presented certificates to the following students: Joan Allen, Bobby Bannon, Mina Campbell, Mae Coe, Alan Crocker, Helen Curtis, Wilma Deyell, Hugh Dobbin, Marian Dugan, Helen Dummitt, Lorne Eakins, Donald Floyd, Raymond Griffin, Bernice Hillier, Germaine Laderach, Shirley Lawrence, Floyd Marsh, Eleanor McGee, Sylvia Moynes, Gerald Murduff, John Murray, Helen Pomeroy, Mildred Pomeroy, Larraine Reader, Mona Robins, Jean Rogers Janet Scott, Jeannette Sloane, Bob Sugden, Doreen Vass, Alberta Whan, Shirley Wood. Helen Dummitt was valedictorian.

Mr. Crawford introduced the chairman for the evening, M. Sloane, who briefly addressed the graduates, Rev. F. W. Craik said a few words on religious education, and his son, Lieut. Norman Craik, R.C.N.V.R. also spoke briefly.

It was decided to hold a Christmas tea and sale of home cooking on November 20 in the school, and Mrs. E. Chambers, president of the Home and School Council read the creed. Mrs. G. Wallace was at the piano. Bobby Bannon played two trumpet solos, and Eleanor McGee and Jeannette Sloane entertained with two piano duets. Mrs. G. Stevens and her committee were in charge of refreshments served at the close of the meeting.

AUTUMN ROSES—There's a wonderful rose crop this autumn, so far as milliners and dress designers are concerned. Roses appear everywhere, tucked into waistbands, pinned to large black fabric bags and adorning the season's happiest hats. Hattie Carnegie tops a black velvet pillbox with an enormous pink rose set in green leaves and tied with satin ribbon. The sort of hat that's at home with a suit, with furs and with a simple or opulent frock.

Lions' Club Warned Inflation Serious Threat

A warning that Canada must maintain her economic stability for the next ten years or face grave consequences was given the Lions Club on Monday evening by Dr. Ken Rogers, noted lecturer and authority on boys' work from Toronto.

Dr. Rogers labelled his talk "Post-war Lionism," and stressed the individual responsibility of the citizens to avert any crises during the period when the soldiers will have returned home and are in the process of re-establishing themselves in a peacetime era.

"The man who comes back from the war wants a job, and the same spirit of fellowship that you give your neighbor. He does not want to be looked on as someone apart," said the speaker. Following this train of thought, he pointed out that never again must the young men of Canada ride the rods in search of work, and he coupled with this the intimation that if the people at home don't do their part in keeping conditions normal, these veterans who have been trained as efficient killers, may take matters in their own hands.

"If we can plan a successful war, we can plan and carry out a successful peace," he declared.

Voicing his fears of economic inflation, Dr. Rogers stressed the great need that exists for people to heed the suggestions of Government heads when they point out the dangers of inflation and what we can do to prevent such a condition. "We must listen to the planners and take their advice. We must curb our spending, put our money into bonds and leave the money there, or we are headed for chaos."

Canada must provide recreational facilities for the men and women who will throw off the uniforms or else they will find their recreation in beer halls and pool rooms with unpleasant results.

Age Dropping.

At this point he switched to the subject of juvenile delinquency, pointing out that since the war started, this has grown by leaps and bounds, with the age of delinquents dropping rapidly.

"We have in our midst the things to take care of these problems if we will but direct them."

The home, the school and the church all have a part to play, and another feature that must be given thought is the question of adult education. Many a mother has given birth to a child, and didn't know the first thing about bringing that child up. If it were not for the God-given quality of commonsense, juvenile delinquency would be far higher. He added that a forum where parents could get advice and guidance in child training would be a boon to any community.

"We are doing a good job in rethinking the functions of our schools, and the teachers are doing a grand job, making the schools centres for the children, not something for the trustees, and the taxpayers.

"The problems that loom on the horizon are a challenge to Lions, to extend their facilities and abilities to meet these conditions and handle them successfully. We must think of the man who is coming back, and the youngster who is growing up. Both are our responsibility," he stated.

The speaker was introduced by Hurrell Dodds and the thanks of the club was voiced by Pete McGillen.

Describes Loan.

Frank Woolley, introduced Bill Reid, Victory Loan organizer, who pointed out the need for some long-range thinking to-day, as the 7th Victory Loan approaches. He urged every member to educate the citizens to the need for buying more bonds and keeping them.

The draw prize was donated by Lloyd McClure and won by Herb Jamison.

Two members, Simpson Gledhill and Bert Sisson were initiated into the club.

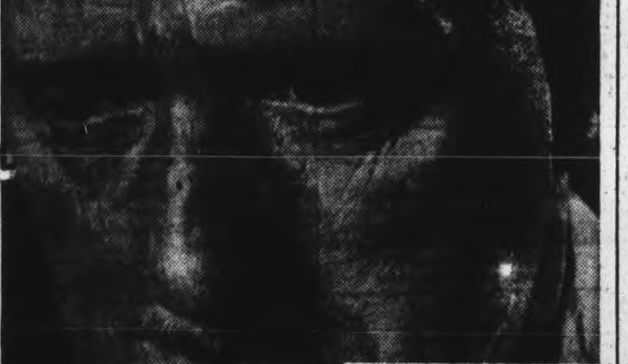
"Every day was a 'BLUE' DAY!"



"I WAS far more worn out than the shoes I mended . . . logey and depressed all the time. I felt sure I was suffering from incomplete elimination. Yet harsh cathartics disagreed with me.

"Then I made Kellogg's 30-day test, and found how one simple change of diet could help me keep fit. No more 'dog' days for me! Now I enjoy my work and do a real job on a pair of shoes in record time!"

Make this 30-DAY TEST!

1. If you're really ill, see your doctor! But if you're just tired and low, especially if you're older than 35, chances are you're suffering from incomplete elimination. So take this precaution:

2. Start now to eat Kellogg's Bran Flakes every morning. You don't need to take nasty doses. To keep fit the natural way get more "bulk" in your diet by eating Kellogg's Bran Flakes with Other Parts of Wheat every morning.

3. Just 30 days should show you how grand it is to feel alert, with all the energy you need to do lots of extra things. You'll be glad to go on eating Kellogg's Bran Flakes—keeping fit the pleasant way.

Council To Meet With Board Of St. Joseph's

"They are asking us to do something which we refused to do for Nicholls Hospital," said Mayor Hamilton at last night's meeting of the council in a discussion of the letter recently received from the Board of Directors of St. Joseph's Hospital.

The specific subject Mayor Hamilton was referring to was a suggestion in the board's communication that, in the event of the establishment of a Civic Hospital "an equitable grant should be made by the city to St. Joseph's Hospital".

Alderman Sands, chairman of the council's civic hospital committee, amplified Mayor Hamilton's comment.

"If they want a grant," he said, "they should come to the council, and if they can show by an audited statement that the money is required, I feel that the council would be prepared to put a bylaw to the people for that purpose. They are a private corporation. If Nicholls Hospital did not have a clause in their private bill making the city responsible for operating deficits, and another clause that they would have to go to the people if they needed money for a new addition, I don't see how we could go to the people as we are now preparing to do."

The council's refusal to Nicholls Hospital, as cited by Mayor Hamilton, was to make any grant to that hospital except for annual operating deficits.

The letter from St. Joseph's Hospital Board set out that a 52-bed extension was being planned at a capital cost of $250,000, also that "St. Joseph's has depended entirely on voluntary financial support from Catholics. If Catholics are to be taxed for another hospital the voluntary support available in the past would be largely withdrawn."

Another clause in their letter was to the effect that the proposed addition to St. Joseph's would mean a large saving to all the taxpayers by supplying 52 more beds for hospital accommodation in Peterborough.

Misunderstanding

One of the statements in the board's letter was: "In the event of the construction of a new hospital by the city the plans for the proposed civic hospital could be reduced by 52 beds in view of this provision by St. Joseph's Hospital, thus materially lowering the capital cost of the taxpayer of the city."

Both Mayor Hamilton and Alderman Sands pointed out that this affirmation in the board's letter was incorrect, and was obviously based on a misunderstanding of the planning and preparations already advanced by the council's civic hospital committee.

"The fact is," said Alderman Sands, "that we took into consideration the report which had come to us that St. Joseph's were considering a 52-bed addition."

The civic hospital committee has been basing its estimates on a net additional accommodation of 225 beds, plus 40 beds in that wing of Nicholls Hospital which will be retained in use as a section of the Civic Hospital.

"If they don't build a 52-bed addition, I feel that the Civic Hospital would be filled rather quickly, and it might not be long until our accommodation was all taken up," Alderman Sands said.

"If they build 52 beds it will not cost us anything," Alderman Glover remarked, "but if we were to build for that many more it would cost us around $300,000 extra."

Conference Proposed

Alderman Ovens suggested that the council should endeavor to arrange at once a conference with St. Joseph's Hospital directors.

"We can't give them a fixed sum of money without going to the people," said Alderman Bradburn. "The sooner a meeting is held, the more quickly will we get a solution."

Alderman Sands: "The hospital committee of this council decided the other night that, in their opinion, the matters in the letter from St. Joseph's board was outside the jurisdiction of our committee, and that it was between the council and St. Joseph's Hospital board.

Sees Two Issues

We should not get two issues confused. One is the proposed Civic Hospital. The other is this matter between the council and St. Joseph's Hospital Board as to what the city council might ask the people to do for them. But, we don't want to tie up the city hospital committee with this question."

Alderman Sands' motion, seconded by Alderman Bradburn, that the board of St. Joseph's Hospital be invited to attend the meeting next Monday night was unanimously adopted. It will likely be a committee of the whole preceding the council's weekly meeting.

The hospital committee's report of their meeting last week was presented by Alderman Sands, and was adopted. It included the estimates prepared by James Govan for a total of $1,400,000. This "outside" estimate of the total cost has already been published. Some of its details were reviewed last night, and it was announced that Mr. Govan was returning to Peterborough in the near future for another conference with the hospital committee. Alderman Sands suggested that the council should also arrange a meeting with him on that visit.

Belleville Profits

Commenting on a question by Alderman Bradburn as to future maintenance costs, Alderman Sands said he was fully convinced that on sound businesslike management "our upkeep will not be as great as it has been. I cannot understand how Belleville is able to wipe off $12,500 a year of the hospital debt. It is one hospital that is paying, and if Belleville can do it, surely we can, too."

Alderman Ovens said he had been recently told in a visit to Brantford hospital that they had made a mistake in providing too large a proportion of ward accommodation, and that they were losing $1.65 a day on each ward patient and they had 140 ward beds.

"They told me their belief that if they had provided more private and semi-private accommodation they would probably be netting around $25,000 profit a year," Alderman Ovens said. "People have more money for hospital needs and they have more hospital insurance, and that enables them to provide for themselves accommodation of private or semi-private nature rather than in wards. Some people think that the larger the hospital the larger the deficit. From my enquiries I maintain that in normal times it would be just the opposite."

Philippines Invasion Drawing Close

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The Japanese war-lords lied to their public in their feverish claims yesterday of a great victory over the American fleet, fearing to disclose the truth—that United States sea and air fleets not only assaulted Japan's inner island defences but administered a smashing defeat to the Mikado's forces.

Tokyo's boast that the Imperial home fleet finally had come out and had decisively whipped Admiral Halsey's force, sinking two battleships and some 50 other warships, was pure hokum.

A communique from Admiral Nimitz's headquarters today discloses that while the Jap fleet did indeed poke its quivering nose out into the open, it fled in ingnominous panic when it saw the strength of Halsey's contingent.

As against this, in the fighting which has been proceeding for several days past as the result of attacks in the Ryukyu-Formosa area, the Japanese have lost an estimated 828 to 843 planes while some 146 ships and other surface craft also have been sunk or damaged.

Luzon, on which Manila is situated, is the northernmost and biggest of the Philippines. We are entitled to attach much significance to the persistent assault on Luzon, as the attacks on island defences in this area enter their second week. It's quite in the cards that we may be witnessing the preliminaries to Gen. McArthur's invasion of the Philippines.

However, these operations mean far more than the recapture of the Philippines, important as that is. They represent spade-work for the ultimate Allied attack on the Japanese mainland, and for an invasion of the southeast coast of China.

Two Jap Ships Sent To Bottom

CHUNGKING, Oct. 17—(AP)—Co-operating with Admiral Nimitz' task force operations, the U.S. 14th Army Air Force yesterday destroyed a Japanese cruiser and probably sank a destroyer in the South China Sea, headquarters announced today.

The American bombers also struck and possbily sank a total of 48,000 tons of enemy shipping which had taken refuge in Kong Kong when threatened by the American task force.

THEY REUNITE IN PRAYER—In silent prayer at the tomb of Aimee Semple McPherson, Canadian-born evangelist, was the first time the trio had been together in many months. They are the late evangelist's son, Rolph McPherson, her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, and her daughter, Roberta Semple Salter, who arrived in Los Angeles, Calif., from New York. The three are the only persons named in Mrs. McPherson's will.

Peterborough Life Underwriters Hold Congress

With a registration of almost one hundred, the Peterborough Life Underwriters held a most ambitious and successful Sales Congress at the Kawartha Club. This was attended by representatives of all companies throughout the district of Central Ontario, including Whitby, Oshawa, Bowmanville, Port Hope, Cobourg, Campbellford, Norwood, Kingston, Lindsay, Orillia, Minden and Peterborough. The registration was supervised by John Nornabell of The Mutual Life.

Immediately previous to the opening of the business sessions, Mayor James Hamilton welcomed the guests and and congratulated the Life Underwriters, not only upon the progress and success of the Life Insurance business, but for the splendid type of citizenship they brought to their communities. This, he pointed out, was evidenced the manner in which they had actively assisted in every community effort for the advancement of society. Mayor Hamilton also made special mention of the untiring and unselfish effort put forward by the Life Insurance men of this country in the several Victory Loan Drives—an effort which he well knew was a vital factor in the success of every Loan.

The business sessions were presided over by E. L. Sackville, C.L.U. of Manfacturers Life, who introduced the following speakers, all of whom were from Toronto; Montague Raisman, C.L.U. Metropolitan Life; G. A. Walters, branch manager, Canada Life; Gordon Nairn, field supervisor, Life Underwriters Association of Canada and Russell Wood, assistant superintendent of Agencies, Imperial Life, Toronto

Preceding the luncheon hour, Mr. D. T. Diplock, manager of the Sun Life, organized a putting contest which was supervised by Lex Robson, pro. of the Kawartha Club. During the luncheon, Jim McCulloch of the Metropolitan Life, president of the local Association, resumed the chair and called on Rufus Payne, London Life, to lead the community singing.

At the opening of the afternoon session, E. G. Pridham, C.L.U., manager of the Mutual Life, presented the Chartered Life Underwriter Certificates (C.L.U.) to Bruce Sargent, manager of the Great West Life, and Duncan McDermid of the same Company. This degree is awarded to those Underwriters who have successfully passed the necessary examinations set up by the Institute of Chartered Life Underwriters of Canada, in co-operation with the Extension Department of the University of Toronto. The degree may not be used by an Underwriter until he has had at least two years of practical experience in the selling and servicing of Life Insurance.

It could be said that the "Theme" of the Congress was "Individual Self-Improvement" with a view to rendering the highest type of service to one's clientele.

Among those present from Peterborough were:— Canada Life: O. Smith, A. Warrilow, James Juby, Alex Sollitt, Frank Patterson. Confereration Life: J. Costigane, C. Gallagher. M. Pringle, P. J. Mather. Continental Life: S. McLeod. Dominion Life: Paige Rowell, Bill Kinlin, B. Seabrook and Mrs. Ruby Brooks. Empire Life: J. R. Londerville, George W. Herron, W. P. Sherwin. Excelsior Life: H. J. Huff. Pte. R. Brown Injured In Boulogne Battle

HAVELOCK, Oct. 17 (ENS) — Pte. Russell George Brown, of the Highland Light Infantry of Canada, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Brown of Havelock, has been wounded in France.

Prior to enlisting in December, 1943, Pte. Brown was employed as a sectionman on the C.P.Ry. here He trained at Cornwall and Ipperwash, going overseas last May at the age of 18 years.

Since receiving the official notice Mr. and Mrs. Brown have received a letter from Pte. Brown stating that he was wounded while in action at Boulogne, and that his right foot had been injured by shell fragments which struck his toe and travelled down the foot, tearing the heel off his boot.

Will Fight Japs

TORONTO, Oct 17 (CP) — Sir Bernard Pares, noted authority on Russian affairs, said in an address to Toronto Canadian Club yesterday that before "the end" Russia will be in the war against Japan, since Russia "has more bones to pick with Japan than we" and cannot afford to be absent from the council chamber when the question is settled.

ALL THE Extra VITAMINS and MINERALS HE NEEDS

Authorities say the difference between husky children and those who are poor eaters, underweight, and nervous is often simply a matter of proper nourishment, especially an adequate supply of vitamins and minerals.

But don't worry about vitamins and minerals! Children who eat 3 average-good meals including fruit juice, and drink 2 glasses of Ovaltine each day, are getting all the extra vitamins and minerals they need. In addition to its well-balanced food values, Ovaltine adds significant amounts of Vitamins A, B_1 and D and the minerals Calcium, Phosphorus and Iron. So, if your child is not developing normally, remember this rule:

3 good meals plus 2 glasses of Ovaltine every day.

IN MEMORIAM

SANDERS—In fond and loving memory of my dear husband, Cpl. Bernard (Bud), Sanders, who was killed in Italy (Hastings-Prince Edward Regt.), one year ago today, October 17, 1943.

I seem to see in the soft, dim light,
A face I loved the best,
And think of him when the sun's last ray
Goes down in the far-off west.
I miss you no less as the time passes on
Than I did on the day of your going,
For absence can never close the door of my heart
And the lamp of my love is still glowing.
Your heart was the truest in all the wide world,
Your love the best to recall,
For no one on earth could take your place,
You are still the dearest of all.
—Lovingly remembered by his wife Pearl.

SANDERS—In loving memory of Cpl. Bernard (Bud) Sanders, who was killed in Italy, one year ago today, October 17, 1943.

There is a mother who misses you sadly,
And finds the time long since you went,
And I think of you daily and hourly
But try to be brave and content.
But the tears that I shed in silence,
And I breathe a sigh of regret,
For you were mine, and I remember,
Though all the world forget.
—Ever remembered by mother and brother Jack.

BALL — In loving memory of our dear mother, Sushanna Ball, who passed away October 17, 1943.

God knew that she was suffering,
That the hills were hard to climb,
So He closed her weary eyelids,
And whispered, "Peace Be Thine".
Away on the beautiful hills of God,
By the valley of rest so fair,
Some time, some day we know not when,
We will meet our mother there.
—Lovingly remembered by sons and daughters.

With The Armed Forces

The editor of this column will welcome extracts from letters from boys serving or any other information concerning them.
By JEAN STENTON

RFMN. WILFRED GEDGE

Rfmn. Wilfred Gedge, whose wife lives at 266 Engleburn avenue, has been fighting with the Queen's Own Rifles since D Day, and he was one of the groups of Canadians who were heavily bombed by Allied planes, some weeks ago.

"You say that you read in the papers about the R.A.F. bombing us. Well that was a mistake. It was the Americans, because we brought one down to make them stop, and our unit was part of the convoy. They only wrecked the middle section of it, but that was enough. They also plastered our ammunition dump next and it burned and exploded from noon until 10 p.m. The convoy was made up of the Queen's Own Rifles; Nova Scotia Shore Regiment; and the Chaudieres. It was the North Shore that got it.

"Six days later the R.A.F. did the same thing again and blew up their own artillery. The bombs haven't bothered me, although there have been some close ones, and the R.A.F. got me more than anything the Germans have handed out. I didn't shake, but when the bombs started coming, I grabbed my steel helmet and ran for a slit trench."

The French people are very happy to be rid of the Boches, Rfmn. Gedge writes. The Canadian troops didn't think so for a long time, but in this part of France, many of the people can speak broken English, he continued, and they have convinced the men that they are glad to be free.

Find A Friend

"There is a little old white-haired lady down here in the village. She is an old maid who lives with her sister and brother-in-law. They sell white bread for a bakery, so one night two of us went down there, and she invited us into the house. We have been down every night since for an hour after supper. This makes almost a week, the longest stay we have had for a month.

"This little old lady has grown very fond of us, so we took her a couple of chocolate bars and a little bit of tea, which they haven't had since the war started. She was delighted and gave us two pears each, each night, and two eggs each. Yet she says 'I am so sorry we have nothing to give you, when you are so kind and give us so much." I also gave her the bar of soap you sent me. That is another thing they have not had. They've been using a substitute, but it's terrible stuff—like clay."

The soldier's last letter described a quiet spot at the foot of the orchard where they were camped. The ground rises 15 feet in a little hill, and the top is a flat circle about 30 feet in diameter, he explained, fringed all around with bushes and the grass is kept cut like a lawn. In the centre there is a stone about four feet each way and five feet high. On it there is a statue depicting Christ, 10 feet high. There are 14 steps leading up to it, and their French friend goes up every Sunday and puts flowers on it.

Strict Curfew

"When I was in the house last night, a bell, like a telephone bell, started to ring and they became quite excited. They laughed and jibbered in French and turned the light switch, and the lights were on. She told me that until last Monday they all had to be in the house by 8 p.m. and if a civilian started a fight with a German soldier, they had to all be in at 6 p.m. and Sunday at 4 p.m. for two weeks.

"The Sunday before we came was the first Sunday they had been able to leave the village and go for a ride on bicycles for four years, so all the men and girls were out in the afternoon. Oh they are so proud of Canadians, but that refers only to the "good" French people. There are still some doubtful characters, that are very crooked to deal with."

Rfmn. Gedge says that the French are funny people to understand. They are so polite. If one person goes to visit another ten times a day, they shake hands every time they meet and when they part. They think a soldier is grand if he salutes first, shakes hands with them, and then takes off his hat as he enters the house. Yet some of the houses are poor affairs, and the people can be seen sitting at the dinner table and a horse looking in the window, the soldier wrote.

BELGIANS KIND

Gnr. Stanley J. Page, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Page, Ross street, is enthusiastic in his praise about the kindness of the Belgian people. He enclosed some snaps, which we were unable to use, of his Belgian friends who had taken him into their homes and hearts.

"It is simply marvellous the way we have been received by the Belgian people. It is a hands-across-the-sea gesture. Since we have been here, we have had lots of fruit and vegetables and the pears are delicious.

Gnr. Page, who married an English girl was overseas four years, September 3.

Seeing the Country.

Since the invasion began, F. O. Donald Church, whose wife lives at R.R. 11, has been travelling around Europe and has recently been moved with his squadron to Belgium. He mentioned being engaged in several dog fights since landing in Belgium and had been shooting up ammunition trucks.

"Belgium seems to be better supplied than across the channel and in France, although we are moving so fast it is hard to tell. The people give you a very warm welcome here, more so than in France. They shut up shop and celebrated after the Germans left and the fence around the airfield was just black with people watching us. Before coming through Brussels, the people stopped our jeep and loaded us with fruit, all we could hold. The other day two civilians were fixing a light in our room and when I offered them a chocolate, they said it was the first they had tasted in four years.

"One large store here is stacked with everything from wine to flat irons. It resembles department stores in Toronto. The people can't do enough for you in the way of treating. We ride on the trams free, they won't even look at your money as they say the Boche rode without paying, so why should they take our money.

"The hotels here are lovely and all the rooms have private baths, which you don't get in English hotels. Even the smallest places have a couple of musicians playing for dancing, although they haven't much room for it except between tables."

How It's Done.

Life in the R.C.A.F. advancing on the heels of a fleeing enemy, isn't all it might be, although they manage not too badly, according to FO. Church, who in a previous letter written from Caen tells something of their activities.

"We have been living in an old house that is full of holes. There is a huge fireplace in it and we keep a fire in it day and night, so we are quite warm. We put straw on the floor at night and sleep on that, and it was quite comfortable, although it made you feel like a hobo.

"While waiting to pull out, we went into Bayeux in an old German truck, (what a crate), it has latticed sides and top. People must have thought we were prisoners—and we sure looked scruffy enough to be, four days' beard, our jackets and flying boots a mess. We saw a move and after that went to a bath house, where they had about ten separate stalls with a tub in each.

"Food was noticeably scarce, we found on our visit to Paris. We parked the truck, but were too late to get into any of the stores. I saw the Eifel Tower and also the Arch of Triumph, that Hitler came through in 1940. They went back a lot faster. The people here would mob you for a cigarette and by the time we had piled out of the truck, there was quite a crowd around. You'd think we were freaks from the circus."

FO. Church, who was formerly employed with the C.G.E., has been serving overseas since February of this year with a Spitfire squadron.

PTE. W. H. HIPSON

Fighting in France is tough now and the Germans are surrendering by the thousands, writes Pte. William H. Hipson, to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Hipson, Marmora. Pte. Hipson is in a Field Ambulance unit and his letter was written the latter part of September.

"I felt sorry for one prisoner, and think anyone else would, as he was a boy 13 years old and about the size of "Rinky" Reynolds (a Marmora boy). We had quite a few prisoners to-night and I helped myself to the loot. They do the same to our boys. We captured a German warehouse of beef and pork, which is all frozen, and I never ate anything so good in the army before. At dinner time to-day I had four big pork chops, and for supper we had beef steak.

"I am going to try and bring a German revolver home for Joe Darrah. I now have two, one for Dad and one for myself. They are a nice souvenir and, an accurate revolver. I am writing this on a writing pad I took from a German to-night and using a fountain pen which I got some time ago. It is my job to look after them, when we pick them up, and they want us to take money for it. They tell us the war is no good, and they are now pushed into the front lines, or die, so they haven't much choice. We all believe them to a certain extent.

"I was talking to a young Canadian who was wounded and taken prisoner. They treated him well and 21 of them brought him back to his own lines and surrendered."

Pte. Hipson went overseas in June 1943 and went to France on D-Day with an ambulance unit. He broke his hand and when he left the hospital, he was posted to another ambulance unit. Prior to enlisting he was employed by the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company and his father served in the last war with the Oxfordshire and Buckingham Light Infantry.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

HE WANTS A TAKEOUT

DOUBLING OF a suit bid of one or two, by a player who had originally opened the auction with a suit bid of his own, is considered an informatory or takeout double by all high ranking players if they had not heard anything but a pass from their partners. A double by such a player is classed as more or less optional, subject to treatment by the partner as either informatory or business, dependent on the kind of hand he has, if the doubled bid is 1-No Trump or three in a suit. It is definitely business only when the doubled bid is 2-No Trumps or four of a suit, or more.

East passed that, later explaining that he thought West wanted to set the 2-Spades, and that his double was for business. West meant it entirely different, not to be passed unless East's holdings were such that he expected to do a good deal of damage to the contract himself. Lacking that, East's duty was to make a bid of his own, based on his distribution and counting on the doubler to furnish enough high cards for the side. East's correct action was to bid 3-Diamonds, which would have been made.

Playing for his 2-Spades doubled, South made the contract and got a game which was never dealt to his side. All that the defenders managed to take, after the diamond A was led, then the heart 9 to the A and a return of the diamond J, was a total of five tricks. Besides the first two, West scored two trump tricks, plus a ruff of a heart.

Belgians In Gent Are Tough Blame Huns For Allied Raids

By CHARLES BRUCE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

GENT, Belgium, Oct. 17.—(CP). —Brussels is known to the world as a sophisticated cosmopolitan city; remembered among many things for the "sound of revelry by night" before Waterloo. But for me the heart of Belgium's people will always be remembered by this ancient capital of East Flanders.

It was here I first met these Belgians—2,000 years ago Caesar found them the toughest people he had ever fought—and learned they had kept their spiritual integrity through four years of German occupation. They are people who build again and again.

It was on the outskirts of Gent (Ghent) that our old Stirling came down on her belly after dropping supplies to the beleaguered 1st Airborne Division at Arnhem in Holland and taking a burst of German flak in her underbody and tail-plane.

An R.A.F. group which had just moved in took our wounded wireless operator away to hospital and the rest of us went into Gent to find a bed for the night.

Took No Tip.

None of us spoke French or Flemish and the old man we met knew no English. But he understood the uniforms, and figured the police could help us out. So he led the way. The police managed to make us understand where the town major's office was, and we went there in pitchy darkness, the old man with us. No one was there, but nearby, behind the blackout of a restaurant, was light and warmth, food and the town major. It was then that we noticed the old man's 1914-1918 ribbons. He wouldn't take a tip for walking two or three miles around the black streets. "Dont's insult him," the restaurant keeper said, in good English. "Give him cigarettes if you want to." He took a package of 10, refused more.

We made a happy group around a table, the crew, the war correspondent, the restaurant man and a woman from Manchester who had lived for years in Belgium. The restaurant man told me he would like his children to go to Canada or the United States when things settle down. "I've had this twice; I don't want them to have it again." But in the next breath he said his eldest son would inherit a tannery business in Gent.

The town major got us rooms in a hotel built in 1228, and next day we set off in a jeep to find the military hospital and our wireless operator, past the Cathedral of St. Bavon, which dates from the 9th century, and the great belfry with its Golden Dragon from Istanbul.

Girl Speaks English.

We couldn't find the way, were trying to get directions from a gendarme when a girl who might have popped out of the cover of Vogue hurried up and said in perfect English: "Are you looking for something?"

She turned out to be a nurse in the military hospital we were looking for—an odd occurrence in a city of 170,000. What was odder still, she has cousins in Vernon, B.C.—Baron and Baroness Herry. Her name is Denyse Deirens.

After we had found the wounded airman, Mlle. Deirens told me she had worked in that hospital since 1940. "You ought to have heard what people said when they used to be brought in smashed up from the Allied air raids," she said. "You know what? They said: 'We can blame only the Boche for this.'"

Yes, the people of Gent are tough. They have known war since the days of Baldwin of the Iron Arm.

In the 14th century this city was the biggest trading centre for Germany and the Low Countries. One reference book says: "The wealth of the burghers during this period was equalled by their turbulent spirit of independence."

They are not so wealthy now, and turbulence has had to be tempered with patience. But the spirit is there.

Premier Drew Hits Communism

ALLISTON, Ont., Oct. 17—(CP) —Premier George Drew of Ontario said here on Saturday that any Liberal who sells his principles "to follow the Communist Party line in Canada is not worthy of a party of great tradition that has contributed many splendid men to public life in the past."

Mr. Drew, assailing proposals of a coalition to defeat his Government, termed "silly" and "fantastic" charges that he was setting up Embassies overseas.

His recent trip abroad had been "more than justified" in the establishment of closer relations between men overseas and the plans for their rehabilitation and Ontario's post-war needs for her farm products.

Mr. Drew said arrangement to foster Ontario's sales in France—which would require many things after the war—would not cost Ontario "one nickel."

The attempt to wed Communists and Liberals was "serious" and typical of the methods of Communism —to seek control of other groups.

"So long as I am Leader of this Government there will be no truck or trade with Communists or their fellow-passengers. We will be elected on the principles of the Progressive Conservative Party or not at all. There is great room for establishment of confidence of that basis."

Tarzan In Action

DENVER, Oct. 17—(AP).—Thieves who took H. J. McVeigh's automobile didn't notice Tarzan, 70 pounds of Airedale and Chow. But it wasn't vice versa. An hour after the car was stolen, Tarzan came home. Later police found the auto. The $150 worth of tools was still in the back seat. On the front seat was a piece of cloth Tarzan had ripped from somebody's trousers.

See Cormorants

PICTON, Oct. 17 — (CP) — Note to nature lovers: sportsmen say several Cormorants — or Bald Ravens —are to be seen in waters off nearby Point Traverse. The birds, seldom seen inland, are skilful fishers, and appear wary and shy.

Prisoner Bag Growing Fast

LONDON, Oct. 17—(CP)—Allied armies have captured at least 570 185 prisoners in Western Europe since June 6. Latest official total: 1st Canadian Army, 72,392; British 2nd Army, 78,681; French forces of the Interior with the British and Canadian Armies, 18,927; U.S. 1st Army, 194,718; U.S. 3rd Army, 96,155; U.S. 7th Army, 90,000; U.S. 9th Army, 19,312—total 570,185.

Two other armies are in the field but their prisoners have not been announced. These are the Allied 1st Airborne Army in Holland and the French 1st Army before the Belfort gap. All totals except that of the U.S. 1st Army are several days behind the actual count.

Fine Is Severe

OSHAWA, Oct. 17 — (CP) — Victor H. McLellan, service station operator, was fined $700 and costs or six months following his conviction on Saturday on a charge of depositing counterfeit gasoline ration coupons in the ration bank. McLellan pleaded guilty.

Victory May Be In Sight But War Loan Needed

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Oct. 17—(CP)—Even if the war in Europe ends before next March it does not mean that Canadian outlays can be greatly reduced, Finance Minister Ilsley said in a luncheon speech prepared for delivery in support of the Seventh Victory Loan.

"The certainty and possible nearness of German defeat does not mean that we need less money now," said the minister, urging support of the minimum loan of $1,300,000,000 in the campaign starting Oct. 23.

"Even if the European phase of the war should come to an end before next March, which is the end of the present fiscal year, our total outlays will not be very much below the $6,000,000,000 level, nor our borrowing needs very much below the $3,250,000,000-mark.

"We shall continue to require large sums of money for the Japanese stage of the war. The end of German hostilities will not reduce our war expenditures very much until after several months. We cannot stop the huge war machine and turn it in a new direction overnight.

Great Costs

Great costs were involved even in slowing down the war machine. Large gratuities had to be paid men returning from overseas and there would be many bills to pay for the war against Germany even after it ended.

"Even if we know that Germany would collapse before the end of the year, it would still be our duty to make the seventh victory loan a new milestone of financial achievement."

Active warfare on land had used up supplies "in far greater quantity than might have been anticipated. We had some warning from our early experience in Italy, but the tremendous scale of these costs did not become fully apparent until our armies invaded France."

Until victory was won Canada must be prepared to provide replacements without regard to cost. Estimated amounts of cash outlays and borrowing needs were based on "invasion, more invasion and still more invasion." Recent statements by Allied soldiers had indicated that the war with Germany might run on into several months of 1945.

Would Maintain High Income Levels

WINDSOR, Oct. 17—(CP)—With incomes in both rural and urban areas of Canada higher than ever before, the peak of expenditure for war purposes is at a new high, Graham F. Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada, said in an interview here today.

Mr. Towers, who is to speak at a meeting of Seventh Victory Loan workers tonight, said ways and means of keeping up the scale of income in the post-war period must be found. This would be possible through export trade and capital development in the Dominion.

"Housing can be one of the means, for housing has not been of sufficient good quality," he said. "I am not a technician nor an engineer, so that I can not enumerate all the other means of maintaining high income levels, but I believe they exist."

ALWAYS TIRED —Yet Sleep Didn't Help!

Doesn't it feel swell to wake up in the morning clear-eyed, refreshed, full of pep? Yet so many, especially over 40, get up tired all over, with aching joints, never really feel their best.

The reason is often a common complaint—a system clogged with poisonous food waste. Like many people, you need help to clean out a sluggish system, get back pep and sparkle rightfully yours. The mild action of BILE BEANS is an effective aid thousands rely on.

Made from 10 pure vegetable extracts, Bile Beans are so gentle, yet effective, they are called "The Medicine That Wakes Up Nature". These small laxative liver pills tone up the system by stimulating flow of liver bile, so essential to good digestion and daily regularity.

Why not enjoy that "glad-to-be-alive" feeling every day? Try Bile Beans tonight—they work while you sleep. Over 7 million boxes used last year, convincing evidence of how greatly they are helping others. 37

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

Thank You

The Cubs, Scouts, officers and members of the Peterborough Boy Scout's Association, wish to thank their many friends for the generous support received on Saturday, our annual Apple Day. Forty-one barrels of apples were disposed of but the present moment the total receipts have not been ascertained. We can report that we went over the top of our objective by a wide margin.

About 250 boys took part in the campaign, some working from early morning. Rain did not stop them from carrying on their work and many words of praise have been received from citizens as to the work the lads did. We can only repeat Thank you.

In passing, we would like to state that this is the only authorized solicitation for funds on behalf of Scouting and anyone being approached by boys who state they are Scouts, are asked to get name and address of lads and to report same to your news reporter, The Skipper, 'Phone 3067. Thank you.

Scouters Social

The Scouters Club are holding their annual social and election of officers at the Y.M.C.A. on Wednesday evening of this week. All officers and assistants are cordially invited to attend and bring their wives and friends with them. Members of Mother's Auxiliary's and Group Committees are welcome. Tickets can be secured at the Y. or 'phone Mrs. Langhorne 3896.

At St. John's

The Pack activities went along in the usual style last Friday evening with the highlight being the Going up Ceremony, when Donald Dawson left the Pack to enter the Troop and start out on the Scout Trail. We wish Don Good Hunting on his new venture.

Church Parade

Park Hill Community Troop and Pack were the guests of St. John's Group on Sunday morning when they attended the church service at St. John's in keeping with Youth Sunday. The Park Hill Group was well attended and looked very smart wearing their white neckerchiefs. Rev. Canon Robertson took as his lesson the story of David and Goliath, telling the boys that they had a fight ahead of them with the giant selfishness.

St. Luke's

Peter Rose led in the Grand Howl at the opening ceremonies of the Pack last Tuesday, following which the game of chair football was played. The Bath Dance was put on by the Cubs during Red Flower and stories were told. Notice was also given to the boys about the church parade on Oct. 22. During the test work Peter Rose passed Skipping, Billy Evans, Summersault, Hugh Rose, Time, and Ken Pammett, Ball throwing.

Hugh Rose led the Grand Howl at the closing.

Local Association Meeting

A meeting of the local association with the receipts of annual reports from all groups, election of officers and other detail will be held on October 25th, we will state location next week. In the meantime, this is notice of the annual meeting and all persons interested in Scouting in Peterborough are cordially invited.

To Aid Loan

TORONTO, Oct. 17 — (CP) — Hume Cronyn, 32-year-old movie actor who was born at London, Ont., arrived in Toronto yesterday to take part in a seventh victory loan broadcast. Alexander Knox, another movie star from the London area—he was born at Strathroy, also will take part in the broadcast.

4,000 Jewish Children Gassed By Germans

NEW YORK, Oct. 17—(CP)—An eyewitness account of the gassing and cremation of 4,000 Jewish children in the German concentration camp at Birkenau was given today in a London dispatch to the Polish Telegraph Agency.

The dispatch quoted the letter of a Polish woman, imprisoned in the camp for seven months and later transferred to a Warsaw prison from which the letter was smuggled out.

More than 65,000 women have died in Birkenau during the last two years," the letter stated.

"There are six crematoria in Birkenau, and they are always working," the letter said...The guards have received words to use gas sparingly because it is very expensive. The quantity used may kill the weaker one but the strongest ones come to on the cart taking them to the crematorium and so are burnt alive."

Dream Comes True

CHICAGO, Oct. 17—(AP). —A child's dream came true when 78 children "roared" through Chicago's loop on two shiny red fire trucks following the Chief Fire Marshal's car. The children, hinging onto the sides and top of the trucks, did no fire fighting, however. They were awarded plaques at the fire prevention show to take back to their elementary schools.

THE BUDGETEERS INVITE YOU TO

BUDGET YOUR SPENDING FOR VICTORY

Here's a new budget plan to help you—Send for a free copy of the Budget Calendar

YOU can make your wartime dollars do more for your family and for your country if you budget your spending, believe the Budgeteers. They hold that budgeting is now the patriotic as well as the sensible thing for most families to do. Don't you want to join them in their campaign? Don't you want to help keep the home front strong by budgeting your spending for Victory?

A totally new way to budget

Budgeteers use the Budget Calendar—a new and simple budget method supplied by Household Finance without charge. The Calendar is based on a totally new approach to the problem of planning family spending. It doesn't ask you to fit your way of living into a fixed pattern that may or may not suit you. It doesn't ask you to set aside so much for this item and so much for that. It simply starts out with the expenses you now have and helps you to meet them with the money you have to spend. Maybe that's the reason so many users have called the Calendar a "budget plan that really works."

Helps to stretch your dollars

Think how much you are trying to do with your pay cheques these days! Pay for your share of war bonds, keep up with wartime taxes, contribute to service organizations, feed, clothe and house your family so that they can do their part on the home front, on the production lines that keep the battle fronts going. A budget can help you plan your spending to get the most out of every dollar.

Join the Budgeteers

We will gladly send you the Budget Calendar by return mail. You are also invited to join the Budgeteers. Budgeteers receive a new booklet or letter from time to time to encourage them in their efforts and may ask for individual help with their problems at any time. All Budgeteers who complete a full year of budgeting receive special recognition.

The Budget Calendar was published by Household Finance, Canada's oldest and largest Small Loans company, as a service to customers. Other families soon found it helpful in solving their wartime budgeting problems. So we decided to make the Calendar available to everyone who wishes to try this practical way to plan family spending. Why don't you send the coupon for a free copy? We will not annoy you with loan advertising of any kind.

Our hands are Tied

Requests for changes, extensions, new installations—they all come to the Service Representative. If the need is not directly related to winning the war* she has no alternative but to defer the installation and to put the applicant's name on the waiting list.

Sometimes if the applicant is a business man, she suggests re-arranging facilities at his premises so that no new equipment is needed. In these days of acute telephone shortages, our hands are tied. We are doing our utmost, in the circumstances, to stretch available equipment to the limit.

Reds Inside Prussia Nazis Report

Germans Abandon Virbalis 3 Miles From Border

LONDON, Oct. 18 (CP)—Germany replied today that the Russians had invaded East Prussia and that the mighty new Red Army offensive from the Baltic states had extended to Schirwindt, a mile inside Germany.

Enemy broadcasts said the offensive, not yet announced by Moscow, had forced the Germans to abandon the Lithuanian highway centre of Virbalis, three miles from the frontier, and that the battle beating against the landed estates of the Junkers generals was on a broadening front.

"The Russians extended their offensive near the East Prussian border farther to the south and attacked strong German defences between Kalvarija and Schirwindt," the Nazi commentator, Col. Ernst Von Hammer said. "After stiff resistance, the town of Virbalis had to be given up."

Kalvarija in Lithuania lies 30 miles southeast of Schirwindt. The German frontier town is 42 miles northeast of the Prussian rail centre of Insterburg and 91 east of the capital of Konigsberg. Other Russians besieging the Baltic port of Memel are within 65 miles of Konigsberg.

Strategic Gain

Kalvarija lies just north of the Suwalki triangle, a bit of Poland which Germany annexed to East Prussia, and is on a trunk highway from Kaunas through Mariampole to East Prussia. Russian forces invaded the Sunwalki triangle in midsummer.

Capture of Virbalis was a strategic Russian gain for the army group of the 36-year-old Gen. Ivan D. Cherniakhovsky.

Six roads meet at the strategic town which lies 41 miles east of Insterburg.

Moscow announced at midnight a succession of heavy bombing attacks in East Prussia, homeland of the Junkers generals.

The German radio declared the offensive sprang forward along a 25-mile front on each side of the Lithuanian town of Vilkaviskis, a dozen miles from the East Prussian frontier.

British Capture Scarpanto Isle

ROME, Oct. 18 — (AP). — Two British destroyers landed forces which took over the island of Scarpanto at dawn yesterday after the Greek population on the island had "contained" the enemy garrison there, Allied headquarters announced tod y.

Located in the Dodecanese group, the mountainous island of Scarpanto is between Crete and Rhodes. The island is 30 miles long and has an extreme width of eight miles. Approximately 8,000 persons live there.

The British destroyers Terpsichore and Cleveland were involved in the operation, carried out without opposition. The landing parties were given an enthusastic welcome, a communique said.

It was announced officially that German demolitions on the Greek mainland caused severe damage to the harbor installations at Piraeus, the Port of Athens, but most of the utilities at the port are functioning.

More Allied parachute troops have been dropped in the Athens area, the communique said, but there was nothing to indicate any enemy opposition was met.

GERMAN WOMEN ARE TAKEN CAPTIVE—Marching quickly ahead with their hands held high over their heads in token of surrender, these two German women were seized after they were found with German marines at Brest, France. They were marched with other prisoners of war to the rear lines of the Allied troops who were moving into the city.

Germans Defend Every Foot Of Land In Schelde Pocket

By ALAN RANDAL—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN HOLLAND, Oct. 18—(CP Cable).—Everywhere in the Schelde pocket which gradually is shrinking under constant battering by Canadian infantry, units tell the same story of fierce fighting for every foot of ground gained. And at night this sector looks like a huge handful of fireflies as Canadian infantrymen creep out to ditches and haystacks to flush out Germans, many of them snipers, with flames.

The Germans—men of the crack 64th Division which has been ordered to fight or die—are not even paying attention to the Red Cross flag, to stretcher-bearers or ambulance jeeps, said the Lieutenant-Colonel of a Maritime infantry battalion.

He and his men have been fighting here for six days and nights. They had a major role in the drive southward from the Schelde estuary coast between Biervliet and the sea to link up with Canadians holding positions in the south near the eastern end of the Leopold Canal and thus open a land route into the Schelde pocket for supplies.

Ready To Die.

Every day and night they are killing Germans. Every day and night they are taking prisoners. "These Germans don't do what you expect trained troops to do," said the Colonel. "They seem quite ready to die. Some prisoners, especially those from a paratroop training outfit we have encountered, won't even give their names and say they are still sure Germany will win."

At one point on the way past Biervliet, a carrier section under Capt. Bud Williamson of Campbellton, N.B., got right into a village, flushing out a good many Germans as they went. But once they were in, said the Lieutenant-Colonel, they couldn't get out. There were enough Germans in the village to hold the Canadians inside for three hours, sniping and machine-gunning them all the time.

Finally a company went into help them out and on the village outskirts they saw many Germans lying in the field. They looked dead enough to suit anybody.

Arctic Regions Growing Palms

LONDON, Oct. 18 — (CP-Reuter) —Tender southern plants, tropical palms, early tomatoes, flowers and thousands of tons of vegetables are being produced by the Russians in a distant corner of Siberia well beyond the Arctic Circle, according to Soviet War News.

There in the 70th Parallel pioneers are growing acres of crops on permanently-frozen soil, electrically warmed. Hitherto the 63rd Parallel was considered the northern limit for farming, but now, by a series of amazing experiments, farming in the Arctic has become a practical possibility.

Extensive fields of cabbage and potatoes flourish on land which formerly was swampy tundra, and the day and night sunshine of the Arctic summer glints on greenhouses and cucumber frames— a peaceful

Hitler Establishes Home Defence Force

LONDON, Oct. 18 —(AP)—Hitler established by decree today an armed German Home Guard of all civilian men between 16 and 60, the Berlin radio announced, as Allied armies beat against the Reich from west, east, southeast and south.

Describing this people's army as "not a preparation for defeat, but for victory," the Berlin station said: "The significance of the German Volksstrum becomes obvious when the possibility of break-throughs in our fighting front or airborne landings in our hinterland are taken into account."

The Home Guard men will be part of the German Army, the broadcast said, adding that "they will wear no uniform, but will be marked by an armband in accordance with international law."

7 Jap Warships Sunk By Subs

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18—(AP). — Destruction of 32 Japanese vessels, including seven warships, by American submarines, was reported today by Navy Secretary Forrestal.

The Secretary also announced that 905 enemy ships have been sunk or damaged by the 3rd and 5th U.S. fleets in the last four and one-half months.

Planes and anti-aircraft guns of the 3rd and 5th Fleets since last June have destroyed 3,060 Japanese planes, including 1,827 shot out of the air and 1,253 destroyed on the ground, he told a press conference.

The bag of the American submarines, he reported, included three destroyers, three escort vessels, and a minelayer, in addition to 26 merchant vessels of various types.

This raises to 956 the number of Japanese ships of all types destroyed by American submarines since the war started.

Uses Bren Gun To Wipe Out Fleeing Huns

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN HOLLAND, Oct. 17 (Delayed)—(CP Cable).—Private Romeo Carriere of Cornwall, Ont., ran his score of Germans killed in the Schelde pocket to 26 confirmed by this (Tuesday) morning and the total may have gone higher since.

Carriere is a gunner in a flame-shooting carrier driven by Pte. Ivan White of Orillia, Ont.

Together they make a great team. At the headquarters of an Eastern Ontario battalion they told how the other day White had been doing a lot of flame-throwing and finally used up his flames on some trenches near a dike. But there was enough in the last lick to scare the Germans. They came popping up out of the ground at a dead run.

"They didn't get far," said Capt. Reg. Smith of Pembroke, Ont.

"The Germans went down like nine-pins one after another," said Smith, who is in charge of these flame-throwers. "That gave Carriere 26 but I think White should share in them."

Gale Batters Havana And Florida

100-Mile-An-Hour Hurricane Moving Up Coast

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 18.—(AP).—A dangerous Caribbean hurricane that battered Havana and Western Cuba with winds up to 100 miles, passed into the Gulf of Mexico with intensity undiminished this morning.

The centre of the storm is expected to pass close to Dry Tortugas by mid-afternoon to-day, bringing high tides and winds of more than 75 miles per hour to the Florida keys.

The storm, the United States weather bureau said, is attended by hurricane winds at the centre and gales over "a rather large area."

Hurricane warnings now are displayed on the Florida Keys and in the Florida coast from Miami to Tampa and northeast storm warnings elsewhere from Vero Beach to Cedar Keys.

Winds 60 miles per hour and higher in squalls were due to strike the southeast coast and interior of south Florida after noon.

The United States weather bureau at Miami forecast that the hurricane would move into the Gulf of Mexico just west of Havana about 6 a.m., and warned of 75-mile and stronger winds and high tides on the Florida keys early today.

It was on the keys, stretching southwestward from the Florida peninsula, that about 500 veterans of the First Great War were killed by a hurricane Labor Day, 1935.

Emergency warnings were broadcast to key residents yesterday, and precautions were under way before nightfall.

Havana Isolated

HAVANA, Oct. 18 — (AP). — Havana was isolated from the surrounding countryside early this morning as a tropical hurricane, with winds ranging up to 90 miles per hour, ripped across the south coast of Cuba near Batabana, scarcely 40 miles from the capital.

Late observatory and navy reports indicated Havana itself could expect the centre of the hurricane between 6 and 7 a.m. E.D.T. at 5 a.m. wind velocity in the city reached 60 miles an hour, ripping down telegraph and telephone wires.

The two principal radio chains broadcasting from Havana left the air early in the morning due to power failures. Communications with the western end of the island were cut last night.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18. — This year's Nobel prize for medicine has been awarded to Sir Alexander Fleming, discoverer of Pencillin, the Bern radio said last night.

Gas Substitute

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18—(AP).—The gasoline gauge said plainly there were 10 gallons in the tank but the motor on Alvin P. Meyers' automobile just sputtered. Then Meyers' son, Jimmy, four, volunteered. "Maybe I did something wrong, pop. I heard you talking about the gas shortage so I filled the tank with water and poured in your bottle of vitamin pills."

Ralston Praises Canadians In Italy Fight

OTTAWA, Oct. 18 (CP) — With a cold in his head, Defence Minister Ralston, back from a three-week tour of overseas battlefronts, arrived here today by airplane and said that the Canadians fighting on the Italian front were holding German divisions which otherwise would be engaged on the western front.

"This is a very important job," said Col. Ralston. "So dogged has been our action an the Italian front that the Germans have been unable to draw any relief for their hard-pressed western armies from the Italian area."

The Colonel, accompanied by Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Stuart, chief of Canadian Military Headquarters in London, and a group of high officers, was met at nearby Rockcliffe Air Station by Air Minister Power, acting Defence Minister in Col. Ralston's absence, and Lt.-Gen. John Murchie, chief of general staff.

Mrs. Ralston also was on hand to greet her husband.

Speaking to newsmen; Col. Ralston said: "I'll give you chaps a press conference as early as possible." But before he broke away he said he had left the Canadians on all fronts "in fine fettle."

He was afraid the people at home might, in their great interest in developments on the Western front, forget about the Canadians fighting with the British 8th Army in Italy. They were fighting through the "toughest kind of country" and against the "stiffest kind of opposition."

Tough Campaign.

"We know the Germans have not drawn any troops from that sector and that all to the good but it is resulting in a toughly contested campaign and we must not forget the important contribution our men in Italy are making to the general plan for defeating the enemy."

At Montreal, asked for comments on a recent declaration by Premier Drew of Ontario that Canadian troops overseas were sent to combat without sufficient training, the National Defence Minister replied that he had "no comments for the time being on any controversial issues." He said, however, he would present a detailed report of his trip after he reached Ottawa.

Canada Requires Markets For Half Farm Production

QUEBEC, Oct. 18 — (CP). — J. G. Taggart, chairman of the Federal Agricultural Prices Support Board, said today in a speech prepared for delivery before the union of Catholic farmers that Canadian agriculture must continue to find export markets for the production of nearly half the acreage of cultivated land.

If there were "reasonable willingness" among world peoples to trade with each other, after the war then the task of supporting agricultural prices in Canada would be relatively simple and a period of great agricultural prosperity was in sight.

But if isolationism and trade barriers again became the accepted rule in the major industrial nations, the prospect for agricultural prosperity was "bleak indeed." Agriculture could survive only by submitting to the severest form of regimentation and undertaking many "unnatural forms of production under authoritative government orders," he said.

"In our own interests, therefore, as well as in the common interests of mankind, we must continue to fight for a speedy victory, for a just peace, and equitable economic relations among the nations."

Mr Taggart heads a board established at the last session of Parliament with authority to support farm prices by buying products at defined prices.

Mr. Taggart said the board had on authority to deprive the producer of the right to determine how his products should be marketed and handled, but would merely be an agency which had the power to purchase products wherever necessary to support reasonable minimum prices.

The board also could establish a fair price for an agricultural product. Producers and processors would proceed to sell the product in the normal way to the best possible advantage. Periodically the average price realized by all producers would be determined, and if the average price were less than the fair minimum price then the board would pay to the producer or his agent the difference between the two.

British Army Takes Venray Americans Mop Up Aachen

French-Canadians Score Gains In Schelde Pocket

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE FIRST CANADIAN ARMY, Oct. 18—(CP Cable)—Demolition in the Breskens area and considerable movement of enemy transport reported today may be the signs of the beginning of the end for the Germans in the Schelde pocket, but Canadian infantry still is having a bitter, tough fight for every yard gained.

The only noteworthy change in the Schelde area overnight was a 1,000-yard gain reported westward in the direction of Oostburg, in the centre of the pocket.

This advance, made by French-speaking Canadian infantry, came directly south of Ixjendijke and while it was not a large advnace it was noteworthy on a front beset by heavy showers because every 1,000 yards gained in this country is quite a feat.

On the Canadian sector north of Antwerp there was no overnight change and Canadian troops for the time being are content to sit astride the neck of land leading to south Beveland and Walcheren islands. There were indications, however, that the Germans are massing north of the area by Canadian formations.

Demolitions around Breskens and the enemy transport movement in the Schelde pocket meanwhile are being viewed with caution. It is authoritatively stated there is no indication the Germans have departed from their original intention of holding out as long as possible to deny the use of Antwerp's great port facilities to the Allies.

The enemy guns at Breskens, which have been the object of attacks from the air and by artillery, were not so troublesome but the enemy has concentrated 20-odd guns, including 150-mm. and field artillery to the west of Breskens with good effect.

If anything, the enemy transport movement probably means the Germans are shortening their lines.

In the northern area of the pocket around the sea, resistance is still fierce with the enemy most sensitive to any thrust the Canadians make in the drive on Schoondijke, 3½ miles northwest of Izjendijke. Here the Canadians are fighting some 3,000 yards southeast of Breskens.

Supporting R.A.F. planes yesterday widened the breaches in the seawall on the west side of Walcheren Island to increase the flooding of German positions and flew a total of 331 sorties, destroying 31 motor transports with other vehicles destroyed or damaged.

Bitter Fighting Slows 8th Army

By LYNN HEINZERLING
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, Oct. 18 (AP)—In the Adriatic sector of the Italian front British 8th Army troops, continuing their painful advance into the Po valley, took over a few more yards of the Rimini-Bologna highway and closed in on Cesena from the east and south, today's Allied communique said.

American troops of the Allied 5th Army, driving toward the ancient Italian city of Bologna, have advanced nearly a mile north of captured Livergnano on highway 65.

While British and Indian troops on the right of the 5th Army moved onto a few more hills and consolidated their positions in the face of counter-attacks, the Americans captured the hill towns of Trepo and Santa Anna and with effective air support fought their way towards Mount Belmonte where a stiff fight is in progress. This peak dominates much of the country on the right of Highway 65.

9 Miles To Go

With the Germans contesting every curve in the highway, American troops drove on but they still were approximately nine miles from Bologna's outskirts at the closest point.

Elect Beveridge

BERWICK-ON-TWEED, England, Oct. 18—(CP-Reuter)—Sir William Beveridge, Social Security architect who became world-famous for his "Beveridge Plan," today was elected Liberal member of the House of Commons for Berwick-on-Tweed by 8,972 votes against 1,389 obtained by his only opponent, William D. Clark, Independent.

Peterboro Men Handy With Flame Throwers

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN HOLLAND, Oct. 18 — (CP. Cable). — Flame-throwing carriers of an eastern Ontario infantry regiment which took the town of Boofdplaat in the Schelde beachhead have been leading the way in this hard, bitter fighting since the landing 10 days ago.

"As the boys say, 'we have been brewing them up good,'" said a lieutenant-colonel from Ottawa.

Flame-carriers under Capt. Reginald Smith of Pembroke, Ont., seared the Germans out of Hoofdplaat and later took part in the push southwest of the villages of Roodenhoek and Hoogeweg.

For the opening attack, one company under Maj. T. Wally Braden of Bowmanville, Ont., moved along a dike by the sea to approach Hoofdplaat from the north. One company under Maj. Gordon Clark of Peterborough, Ont., aided by another company drove straight south-west following the main road to the sea, while Maj. Jack Stothard of Ottawa commanded a reserve company which eventually had to be put in the line to meet stern German opposition.

On the dikes and road the flame-throwers did a terrific job in burning out the enemy.

"It meant getting in on a dike position, cleaning it out and getting off before the Germans could bring their fire down," said the lieutenant-colonel.

There were times when Canadians and Germans were so close that our heavy artillery couldn't be used for fear of hitting our own men.

There were times when this battalion used mortars, which were under the command of Maj. Hugh Kent of Ottawa and Capt. Joe Donihee, of Cornwall, Ont.

Would Ban Rumors From Radio News

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 18 — (AP). — The first national radio congress recommended yesterday that steps be taken to eliminate rumors from radio newscasts.

The Congress approved a resolution presented by Thomas P. Gale, of the British Broadcasting Corporation, recommending that broadcasting of only news items of "good source" be permitted.

The resolution also advocated freedom of speech as a vital principle of radio.

Gale told the assembly that earlier fears that radio would hurt newspapers proved unfounded. "In England, newspaper circulation has reached 15,000,000, greatest of all time, despite the fact that radio broadcasts are heard throughout the day and night," he said.

Allies Grind Ahead On All Fronts Prepare Big Push

By ALEX. H. SINGLETON
Associated Press War Correspondent

LONDON, Oct. 18—(AP).—British 2nd Army troops captured Venray, important rail and road junction five miles west of the Maas (Meuse) River, today as the U.S. 1st Army, slowly squeezing Aachen into submission, prepared for a new assault which Berlin said would be aimed at Cologne. All along the front, progress—slow and methodical, carried out in many cases by bayonets—was reported.

A small German attack east of Aachen was beaten off today, a front dispatch said, in another of the series of vain blows that now have badly cut up two enemy divisions. One of these divisions is substantially destroyed as a fighting unit, while the second has been materially reduced. The rest of the rain-swept Aachen front was generally quiet.

1. Lt.-Gen. Crerar's 1st Canadian Army has reached Ijzendijke, six miles south of Breskens, pressing hard on the newly-formed defence line of the suicide German troops within the narrowing pocket. Meanwhile, Allied Supreme Headquarters reported bombers had attacked the sea dyke at West Kapelle on the neighboring island of Walcheren.

2. In northern Holland where Berlin has reported the Allies have massed 1,500 tanks for a drive into the Rhine-Ruhr Valley, Lt.-Gen. Dempsey's British 2nd Army took Venray after bitter house-to-house fighting and plunged on two miles southeast of the town. Associated Press War Correspondent Ned Nordness, with this force, reported that American armored columns on the right flank had bridged Carai de Doorn.

3. Gen. Eisenhower's communique described fighting on the U.S. 1st Army front as a mopping-up procedure. Lt.-Gen. Hodges' troops are mopping up inside Aachen which has set a pattern of punishment for German cities in the path of the Allied

Bombs Riddle Cologne Again

LONDON, Oct. 18 — (CP-Reuter) —Industrial targets and marshalling yards in the Cologne and Kassel areas of Germany were attacked to-day by more than 550 heavy ubombers of the United States 8th Air Force.

This is the third time within 36 hours that Cologne, 40 miles off Aachen, has been attacked.

The bombers were escorted by approximately 450 fighters.

To-day was also the fourth attack within five days on targets at Cologne, important Rhine Valley industrial and communications centre.

Kassel has many war industries.

No Allied bombs fell in Germany last night.

The aerial blitz was carried on from both the west and south in daylight yesterday, with 1,300 8th Air Force heavies giving Cologne the hardest pounding of the war, while U.S. bombers from Italy struck at strategic targets in Austria, Czechoslovakia, and Hungary.

R.A.F. Lancasters battered the Wlacheren Island dikes again and dive-bombers ranged the length of the Siegfried Line and beat up communications targets.

Santa Claus Visits England

Food Minister Promises Christmas Treat

LONDON, Oct. 18 (CP-Reuter)—Minus whiskers and all the other necessary trimmings, Col. James L. Llewellin, Britain's Food Minister, today became the nation's 1944 Santa Claus.

Col. Llewellin, as popular as any Santa Claus ever could be, told a cheering House of Commons his Christmas bag was full of turkeys, raisins, dates, and other delicacies to be distributed to a Britain now in its sixth year of war. Among the things he promised were:

An extra ounce of tea a week for persons 70 years of age and over, beginning Dec. 10 and possibly throughout 1945.

An extra half a pound of candy for everyone between six months and 18 years of age in the rationing period starting Dec. 10.

An additional a pound of margarine and half a pound of sugar for every ration book during the same period.

An increase in the meat ration from one shilling two pence to one shilling and 10 pence (from about [illegible] cents to 30 cents) for the week preceding Christmas Day.

The minister also said extra supplies of dried fruit would help the housewife to make better Christmas cakes and puddings.

There will be 22,000 tons of sultanas, 4,000 tons of raisins and [illegible] tons of dates.

Bombs Rain Steadily On Philippines

Americans Landed Unopposed On Caroline Isles

PEARL HARBOR, Oct. 18—(AP).—The steady drone of United States carrier planes over the Philippines and a continuing rain of bombs was the answer today to Tokyo radio boasts that the U.S. 3rd Fleet had been dealt an "annihilating" blow and invasion of those islands had been set back two months.

Admiral Nimitz indicated American units have no present intention of breaking off the Philippines attack by announcing last night, without the limitation of a date:

"Carrier aircraft of the Pacific fleet are continuing to attack objectives in the Philippines."

Simultaneously, Nimitz let out a military-secret — that American troops landed unopposed September 20 and 21 in the western Carolines on Ulithi Atoll, the lagoon of which forms a good naval base. He said nothing about it sooner because he had reason to believe the Japanese didn't know about it. Ulithi is about half-way between American invasion forces on Guam and in the Southern Palaus.

Manila Target.

Nimitz did not specify the Philippines targets but Tokyo radio accounts have focused attention on the Manila area. Gen. MacArthur announced today his fighter planes have flown from southwest Pacific bases across Mindanao to wipe out a Japanese convoy of 62 trucks and six staff cars, disperse a cavalry troop and shoot up airfields.

(The sustained air attacks on the Philippines found Tokyo radio toning down previous assurances that the danger of immediate invasion was past.

(The Federal Communications Commission recorded this broadcast observation last night.

"It cannot be thought that the enemy, with this setback, will give up his plans for attacking the Philippines."

(The "setback" was the claimed sinking or damaging of more than 50 American warships, a claim Nimitz repudiated yesterday.)

Lack of opposition at Ulithi was surprising, inasmuch as Ulithi had been used by the Japanese as a minor naval base and for seaplane operations. The main Atoll is 19 miles long, 10 miles wide. The Island of Mogmog, which has the main port, was among the seized.

Nimitz' announcement of sustained air action against the Philippines expanded the activities of carrier forces which since Oct. 8 have attacked the Ryukyus, Formosa and the Philippines, sinking or damaging more than 140 enemy ships and destroying more than 800 planes.

MacArthur's announcement marked the deepest penetration in strength of his fighter planes into the Philippines.

Boxes Are Packed For Corvette's Crew

As Christmas gifts to the crew members of the corvette Peterborough, big boxes containing many items of food and other comforts will be sent on their way this week, under the auspices of the Peterborough Corvette Committee of the Citizens' Co-ordinating Committee, of which Mrs. C. G. Collins, is secretary. The boxes have been packed and sealed in Mason's George street store, and are ready to be shipped to the Peterborough's crew, wherever they may be.

The parcels contain mostly food; soap, tooth-powder, gum and shaving cream are also included. Among the articles of food the sailors will receive, will be cheese, chocolate bars, cough drops, meats and meat spreads, Christmas cake, orange juice biscuits, sardines, sausages, Bovril, and other delicious foods, which will make many meals brighter, for the local men serving in distant waters.

Farmers Busy At Fall Plowing

An increasing population of cattle in Peterborough county is living well according to this week's crop report from the Ontario Department of Agriculture. The actual phrasing is "that they are living well." Cheese production is dwindling in the county and factories may close earlier than usual. "A large number of young pigs are being offered for sale; so far there has been a fair market."

The report reflects plowing activity all the way from York to Renfrew, with comment that more rain is needed. Glengarry dealers are paying $20 to $22 a ton for clover hay delivered to the car. The flow of milk is holding its volume in Hastings, Prince Edward and Stormont.

Some Renfrew farmers are having difficulty disposing of their lambs. Weather has been favorable for the harvesting of potatoes, buckwheat, corn and alfalfa seed.

Here's a note that could apply only to Essex at this season. "Processors are still accepting tomatoes."

And the turnip crop, table and barn, is also being harvested. Plain grade cows of fair size sell for $125 to $135 in Lambton. Two carloads of Lincoln and Suffolk sheep are being assembled in Middlesex for delivery to Texas.

Many of the western Ontario farmers have finished plowing. All parts of the province report excellent weather condition for the final stage of the harvest. Eggs in the St. Catharines district are in large supply at 30 to 50 cents a dozen.

Murder Baffles Toronto Police

TORONTO, Oct. 18 — (CP). — Investigation of the baffling murder of Mrs. Maxime Goch, 59-year-old housewife, at her home yesterday in suburban Swansea was continued to-day by Swansea police, with the assistance of Inspector E. C. Gurnett of the Criminal Investigation Branch of the Ontario Provincial Police.

Mrs. Goch's body was found by her two sons, Bill 37 and Mike 31, when they returned from work. She had been smothered to death by an army greatcoat which was tied around her head with three neckties, all tied from behind. Her hands and ankles were bound with ropes and police said there was no indication of a struggle.

Her husband also was at work, the sons said.

The greatcoat belonged to Bill, who had been in the Royal Canadian Engineers, but had been discharged, said Mike. The neckties came from a collection of old ties in the cellar.

Particularly baffling to police was the fact that $600 in cash in a trunk upstairs in the house and other money and valuables were untouched. Mike suggested that "maybe they got scared when they realized what they did."

The Goch family came from Russia to Canada in 1927, living first in Winnipeg and then coming to Toronto eight years ago.

Neighbors said they had seen Mrs. Goch hanging out a washing during the afternoon and police said some washing was still in the laundryroom near where the body was discovered.

Plans Completed For Ilsley Visit

The man who has to think in terms of billions of the Canadian people's dollars as readily and customarily as the average citizen counts his hundreds, Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Minister of Finance, is coming to Peterborough Thursday for the opening of the Seventh Victory Loan in this city and county.

The Minister's first engagement is at C.G.E.-Genelco where the employees of the big plant are launching out at an objective of $450,000. Hon. Mr. Ilsley is expected to arrive in No. 26 building at 4 p.m. to talk to the thousands of men and women who have been faithfully buying bonds, most of them holding them, too, and, in all likelihood, tell them of the necessity and importance of sustaining this Seventh Loan as generously as each of the other six.

Then at 6 p.m. all the canvassers in this campaign are meeting at Genelco cafeteria to hear Mr. Ilsley and set the campaign in motion in this county and city. The Minister will be introduced by Gordon S. Matthews, chairman of the National War Finance Committee for Peterborough county.

The opening prayer, with remembrance of the Fallen, will be offered by Rev. W. A. Filer, and will be followed by a ceremony of assuming the Flaming Sword, symbol of the Seventh Victory Loan. Lights in the dining room will be turned off, and in a minute's silence between the Last Post and Reveille the Loan's Sword will be illuminated with flaming effect.

CHEX Broadcast

Hon. Mr. Ilsley's address between 7.30 and 8 o'clock will be broadcast by CHEX.

A plaque of the Flaming Sword will be presented to the county committee. Alderman Glover, in the absence of Mayor Hamilton, will move a vote of thanks to the Minister and the benediction will be invoked by Bishop MacDonald.

500 Wounded Reach Canada

HALIFAX, Oct. 18 — (CP). — Bearing a complement of Canadian wounded headed by Major-Gen. R. F. L. Keller, the hospital ship Lady Nelson arrived here last night from Britain.

Bearing leg and arm wounds, Gen. Keller had his left arm in a sling but he was able to walk and an Army Public Relations Officer visited him aboard the hospital ship on arrival said he was looking well, though tired and drawn.

Major-Gen. Keller, who led the 3rd Division into France on D-Day and later was wounded in action, was expected to proceed without delay to Montreal and Ottawa. He is to speak on behalf of the Seventh Victory Loan.

Newsmen, it was expected, would be allowed aboard the hospital ship today. It was not known whether Gen. Keller would be interviewed before leaving Halifax.

About 500 other casualties were aboard the hospital ship.

Farmer Shoots Bear Robbing Apple Tree

MOUNT JULIAN, Oct. 17—(ENS)—Joe Church saw a black bear standing on its hind legs picking apples from an apple tree in the pasture field in plain view from his farmhouse Sunday evening about 6:30.

Mr. Church seized his rifle and fired at the animal, making a direct hit. The animal rolled over several times but then got up and ran for a nearby bush lot leaving a trail of blood behind it. After procuring more cartridges Mr. Church followed the trail for a while but finally lost it in the thick bush land.

Bond Auctions Open At Keene

The first Victory Bond auction and free dance sponsored by the public relations committee for the 7th Victory Loan is scheduled for Keene on Friday night. The following night one will be held in Norwood, Monday night in Lakefield and Tuesday night in the drill hall at the Training Centre.

These auction sales were first tried out during the 6th Victory Loan and proved so popular that the War Finance Committee requested that they be sponsored again. The list of articles to be auctioned remains about the same as in the last loan with numerous additions. Each article will go to the person who gives the highest pledge to buy Victory Bonds. However, for those who cannot afford to purchase large amounts of bonds there is going to be a number of draws. Gordon Hancock will again be in charge of the auction, and old-time dancing is going to follow each sale.

A partial list of articles to be auctioned at Keene and those who donated them are:

3 halters—B. F. Ackerman Co.
3 clocks—Western Clock Co.
1 No. 4 junior separator—De Laval Co.
1 ton Ful-O-Pep feed.
10 cartons canned tomatoes—Canada Packers.

Police To Exhume Windsor Man's Body

WINDSOR, Oct. 18 —(CP)—The remains of Frank Scibor, 48, Malden Township farmer and war worker, have been ordered exhumed by the Ontario attorney-general's office, it was learned here today.

Scibor was buried Sept. 30, two days after his burned body was found in his car outside his home. After the burial a charge of murder was laid against John Shenko, 47, war worker. Scibor was survived by his widow and three daughters.

Dr. Smirle Lawson, chief coroner for Ontario, Dr. Robinson, pathologist, and Prof. Joslyn Rogers, professor of analytical chemistry at the University of London, are expected here for the exhumation.

advance, and mopping up to the northeast "segments of the Siegfried Line" to clear the way for their next drive.

The German radio, finally acknowledging Aachen has been encircled, described the fighting there as "surpassing everything that has gone before in this war," and said Gen. Eisenhower "is planning an all-out offensive on Cologne after capturing Aachen."

4. U.S. 3rd Army infantry under command of Lt.-Gen. Patton advanced nearly a mile north of Ancy Sur Moselle to within four miles of Metz, another big fortress and industrial city. Associated Press War Correspondent Wes Gallagher said only light opposition was encountered.

85-Mile Front

5. In the Vosges foothills, where Lt.-Gen. Devers' 6th Army group is engaged, the Allied communique reported progress just south of the road junction at Bruyeres and northeast of Le Thillot, despite stubborn enemy resistance and strong counter-attacks.

Local operations on an 85-mile front south of Arnhem by British and American units seemed to represent attempts to gain good jump-off positions for thrusts into the Ruhr and Rhineland.

The battle to break the enemy hold on the Schelde estuary approaches to the Belgian port of Antwerp was being fought by the 1st Canadian Army over waterlogged terrain. The Canadians entered Ijzendijke, six miles southeast of Breskens on the south bank of the estuary, and the Germans have taken new positions on a line running from Schoondijke southwestward to Sluis, about four miles inland.

From Aachen in Germany to Arnhem in Holland the Allies sparred warily with the enemy, with some of the heaviest fighting centring in the bend of the Maas (Meuse) river.

On University Board

TORONTO, Oct. 18.—(CP).—Col. W. E. Phillips, C.B.E., D.S.O., M.C., of Toronto, yesterday was appointed a member of the University of Toronto Board of Governors to fill the vacancy left by the death of F. Gordon Osler. Col. Phillips brings to the position wide experience in business, research, education and military affairs.

Waterworks Pumpage Reported Increased

September pumpage at the waterworks was 100,243,000 gallons as compared with 89,829,000 in September last year as reported to the Utilities Commission Tuesday by R. L. Dobbin, manager. The increase has been chiefly for industrial requirements.

Electric power peak for the month was 13,000 h.p., as against 13,500 for the same month last year, but was 1,300 h.p. more than in August this year. Precipitation of rain in September was 3.69 inches and for September last year 2.31 inches. The average temperature was eight degrees cooler.

Nine new water services were laid, and one relaid during the month on Park street, south from Park Hill Road 313 feet of 8" main was completed. Gas production was 5,846,400 cubic feet as compared with 5,559,600 cubic feet in September, 1943.

Power consumption showed increases in domestic and commercial lighting but was slightly less in commercial power.

City Property Owners Endorse Memorial Health Centre Project

Property owners "condemned" last night increases in Peterborough assessments, at a time when rents are frozen, and instructed their secretary to convey their protest to the city council. They contended that this action would contribute to the trend of inflation which the nation's leaders were trying to prevent.

William Langford, president, was chairman of the meeting in the Chamber of Commerce, and William Tinker is secretary.

The expression of opinion against assessment increases was unanimous. On the Peterborough Memorial Centre project the general feeling of the property owners was in favor of this undertaking for which large subscriptions have been made by the city's manufacturers and the general public. Ian F. McRae, works manager of C.G.E.-Genelco, outlined the purposes and possibilities of the Memorial Centre, personally recommended it as a citizen and ratepayer and urged continued support of its funding.

Paige Rowell explained to the meeting that the bylaw providing a grant of $75,000 to the Memorial Centre fund by issuing debentures for a period of fifteen years would ultimately effect the ratepayer only to the extent of twenty-five cents on every $1,000 of his assessment.

The Association did not put this question to a vote, but the discussion indicated a majority sentiment in favor of the Centre.

The other topic of the meeting was the proposed Civic Hospital. Variety of opinion ranged from approval to opposition as a present undertaking. It was felt that the difficulty of obtaining workmen and materials would be factors increasing the total cost of the institution, and generally that the times were not favorable to such a large project at the cost of the community. Another attitude was that the ratepayers of the city had no responsibility for the providing of hospitalization for people residing outside its boundaries. The hospital discussion presented a diversity of present sentiment, and it was felt that the Association did not have a completeness of information that should be available at this stage of the preliminaries of the project.

The members decided to call their next meeting when further hospital information is received.

Two Boys And Girl Missing From Homes

Two youths, Roy Foster, 17, Townsend street and William Gibson, 16, have been reported to the police department as missing from their respective homes since Sunday last. They were last seen together about 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon and since then nothing has been heard from either of them.

A 14-year-old girl is also missing from her Dublin street home since Monday. She went to work at the Colonial Weaving Company in the morning, left there at noon and did not return to her home. A bicycle belonging to her brother was left by the girl at the rear of the police station garage.

The missing girl is described as 5 ft. 2 ins. tall, weighing around 100 pounds, dark complexion, brown eyes, dark brown short and curly hair. A boy's grey suit coat formed part of her costume.

Berlin said the offensive, supported by heavy artillery preparation and swarms of low-flying Stormovik bombers, began Monday.

Bomb Homeland

The Russian bombing raids reached as far as Insterburg, 37 miles inside the junkers' homeland, toward which the land drive appeared to be aimed. The Moscow communique said supply trains and other objectives were blasted at Insterburg and the intermediate railway junctions of Gumbinnen and Stalluponen.

Berlin also suggested a heavy new Russian assault on East Prussia from the south and southeast, but Moscow remained silent about operations in this sector. Along the northern border on the Niemen River line the Russians have approached within artillery range of Tilsit, East Prussian frontier stronghold.

Still farther north, meanwhile, the two Russian armies that captured Riga last week, proceeded with a cleanup of western Latvia and Soviet long-range bombers attacked Ventspils, one of the last useful ports remaining to the Germans trapped on that front.

On the southern end of the front heavy fighting continued in Belgrade. The Moscow communique said more than 4,000 Germans had been killed in two days of fighting there. Marshal Tito announced the Germans had been routed from all except two districts of the city.

Sub-soil Frozen.

Vegetables and tobacco plants are grown in the open on a thin layer of soil resting on permanently frozen sub-soil.

Each cabbage plant is grown separately and then planted in the ground in a pot filled with peat and manure. More than 3,000,000 pots were made this year.

Later the plants are watered with a solution of manure and mineral salts and they grow to a weight of 14 to 18 pounds.

The more tender southern plants are grown in electrically-warmed soil. The sun thaws the top layer to a depth varying from 20 inches to 3 feet, but the temperature of this layer remains low, so a high-voltage electric current applied by electrodes stuck in the ground warms the soil round the roots from 20 to 28 degrees Centigrade.

In greenhouses covering 10,000 square yards cucumbers and tomatoes, two varieties of tropical palms and many garden flowers are grown —favorite flowers are mignonette and pansies.

OBITUARIES

W. P. "WINK" BENNETT

The funeral service was held Monday at St. Peter's Cathedral for William Peter "Wink" Bennett, who died suddenly Thursday after suffering a heart attack at the family residence, 294 Wolfe street. He was 25 years of age.

Requiem Mass was offered by Rev. F. A. Morrocco, who also conducted the graveside service in St. Peter's cemetery. The floral tributes, and the large number of relatives and friends present at the funeral, signified the high esteem and goodwill Mr. Bennett enjoyed.

A number of out-of-town friends were present, and pall-bearers were Paul Simmons, Melville Flint, Joseph Cooke, J. Taylor, Leo Donoghue and William Smith.

The manager and a number of employees of the Atlantic and Pacific Store, where Mr. Bennett was employed for more than seven years, were also at the funeral.

PETER GILBERT VAN ALLEN

BELLEVILLE, Oct. 18.—Peter Gilbert Van Allen died suddenly on Monday at his home, Trent Road, Sidney township. He was apparently in his usual health when taken with a heart seizure and died before medical aid reached him.

The late Mr. Van Allen, who was in his 79th year, was born at Foxboro and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lucas Van Allen.

Surviving are his wife, the former Edith Ketcheson, and one brother, Charles Van Allen, Peterborough.

Courageous Man

And in the flame-throwing outfit there was at least one man his comrades will never forget; Cpl. Leonard Pope of Picton, Ont., they talk of Pope and say "He was just a madman," but they say it with respect.

Approaching Hoodeveg the Germans were dug in along a road with straw roofs over their trenches to keep out the rain. Pope smoked them out by setting the straw afire and then went on into the edge of the town where he found a German gun-crew preparing to lay a 20-mm. gun. He ended their efforts too.

There were other heroes too, heroes who died.

Other flame-throwing specialists of this outfit today whose work their officers said was beyond all praise include Pte. Pat Dolan of Chrysler, Ont., Pte. Romeo Carriere of Cornwall, Ont., Pte. Charles Veley of Cornwall, Pte. Norman Parker of Toronto, Pte. Ken Stevens of Hamilton, Pte. John Kush of Montreal, Pte. Ivan White of Orillia, Pte. Bill McIrvine of Toronto, Pte. Dave Davison of Brockville, Pte. Ace Bailey of Peterborough and Sgt. Bill Smith of Port Hope, Ont.

Without them these advances by this battalion just could not have been made.

Allies Have 2 Weeks To Crack Lines

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

One of the most urgent facts confronting both sides in the war in Europe is that this is the 18th day of October.

This means that in two or three weeks, under normal conditions, autumn rains will begin in earnest. Mud, some of the world's worst, will turn the battlefields of the eastern and western theatres into morasses which will bog down armies. Storms will impair the efficiency of the air fleets either for fighting or as the eyes of the ground forces.

If Europe gets its usual autumn, the Allies have a fortnight or so to launch offensives to break Hitler's frontier defences and set their armies ranging through Germany. And by the same token, this is the critical period in which the Nazi dictator must use every means available to stand off his enemies until the bad weather comes to his aid.

All this fits in with the German insistence that both the western Allies and the Russians are on the verge of great new offensives. Indeed, Berlin says the Red armies already have struck. These Nazi claims aren't surprising, for this not only would seem to be the appointed hour for a general Allied assault but signs are plentiful that the United Nations are about to tighten their vast military ring about Germany.

The western front is in a ferment. The Germans, acting on their own forecast, have been counter-attacking heavily along the crucial northern flank of Gen. Eisenhower's armies. These attacks are calculated to keep the Allies off balance and so hamper their launching an all-out drive.

Key Sector

The Allied armies have increased their pressure, especially along the 50-mile front extending from Aachen to the Dutch town of Venray. And the Germans say that a bit further north in Nijmegen-Arnhem area of eastern Holland, at the extreme left of the Allied flank, the British 2nd Army is "at the ready."

Supporting the idea of impending upheaval is the intense Allied bombing of the great Rhenish cities and communications.

Keep your eye on that sector from Aachen north to Arnhem. It's hot.

The vital question of supplies may be the crux of Eisenhower's problem in engineering a great attack. The Allies need more harbor facilities near the scene of the probable break-through. The Belgian port of Antwerp, now in Allied hands, would answer this description but for the fact that German guns in Dutch territory menace it. The hard-hitting 1st Canadian Army now is engaged in removing this threat.

Council Accepts Resignation Of Alex Young

COBOURG, Oct. 18 — (ENS) — Resignation of Alex W. Young, for many years town clerk and treasurer here, was received at Monday night's meeting of the town council. Council accepted the resignation with regret, expressing appreciation for his long term of faithful service, which terminates due to the illness of Mr. Young. As the books will have to be audited in order to release the bondsmen, the council made the resignation effective on December 1.

Request for removal of two trees on the property of Sherman Cooper was referred to the Highways and Streets committee. Miss M. O'Brien of Toronto, registered nurse, wrote council to inform them that in August she fell on King street and injured her ankle and knee and had been off work as a result. She blamed the condition of the curb for her fall. The matter was referred to the insurance company.

Council disposed of six lots on D'Arcy street, two of which are blind lots with no frontage on the street, to the Cobourg Lumber Co. at a price of $200 for the six. Mayor Jack Burnet pointed out that the company planned to erect 20 houses on the property and on some privately-acquired property. In selling the lots council attached a rider that they must be used as building sites within one year.

A letter from the Legion re request for tag day in November and one from the Legion in connection with rehabiliation, were read and the request of the first communication was granted. The mayor reported progress on rehabilitation plans. The boy scouts were granted permission to hold their Apple Day here on October 28.

Accept Rink Offer

Mayor Burnet announced that E. A. Hircock, the tax collector, had been to see Mr. Ley, owner of the rink, and Mr. Ley had agreed to accept $500 cash for the property. The mayor declared that if the property were seized for taxes, it would cost about $200 for a special tax sale and as the roof was worth $2,000, someone might bid it out of the reach of the town. Mayor Burnett expressed satisfaction with the $500 figure, stating that it was shysterlike to put a gun to the rink owners and force them to give it up. Council then passed a motion ratifying the $500 offer.

Councillor Reuben Jackson stated that there were a half dozen bad posts on the west side and he assumed that there were some on the east side. There was no strain on the main structure from the side sections and with some patching the place could be used this winter.

Mayor Burnet stated that Ed. Campbell and a "labor battalion" from the local factories were going to tackle the job of repairing the building. Voluntary subscription would pay for the cost of materials.

Committee accounts passed were Highways and Streets, $437.04; Public Building and Printing committee, $65.20; Police, $28.85; Fire, Water and Light, $16.25; Market and License, $4.91; Health and Sanitation committee, $7.50; Finance Committee, $562.00; Relief, $61.00.

Council authorized a tax sale this year of properties in arrears of taxes over a certain period. Total amount is $13,141.09 and the amounts vary from $40 to $2,411.24. Some date back to 1924.

Legion Gets Ground For Veterans Cemetery

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 18 (ENS) Branch 103 of the Canadian Legion B. E. S. L. are taking over a plot of ground at the north and west ends of Mount Pleasant cemetery which when completed will be available as a burial place for veterans of any war. The land selected measures 175 feet by 150 feet and plans are already on the way for levelling and sodding in the spring of 1945. A flag pole and Union Jack will be erected at a central point in the grounds. A suitable name will be selected, and a man placed in charge and everything will be done to make this last resting place honoured ground.

Men's Suits Get Frills Back Again

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 (AP) — Suits with belts, patch pockets and pleats — even real pleats—probably will reach men's clothing stores in late spring or early summer, the War Production Board reported today.

Announcing the dropping of all restrictions on men's suits, except the ban on two-pant suits and vests with double-breasted coats, W.P.B. said, however, the fancier models could not be expected to reach stores "in the immediate future." Manufacturers were reported loaded with army orders that will keep them busy for the next three months.

Although most demands for prewar styling have concerned the extra pair of trousers, W.P.B. said this could not be granted because of shortages of both labor and worsted fabric. Otherwise, however, the lid is off, with zoot suits restored to legality.

ENTERING GERMANY—NO HELP EXPECTED HERE—The two-man crew of a jeep rides past a sign that tells an important story and marks a new phase of the war. From now on the war will be fought on German soil, it indicates, and Allied fighting men need expect no help from the populace, uniformed or civilian.

Minister At Millbrook Tells Story Of Newfoundland

MILLBROOK, Oct. 18 — (ENS). — "Newfoundland, the Gibraltar of North America", was the theme an illustrated lecture given on Monday evening by Dr. D. G. Ridout, who is a fellow of the Royal Geographical Society and has travelled extensively all over the world, the event rounding out the observance of the sixty-second anniversary of St. Andrew's United Church. Preceding the lecture a male trio: G. Might, H. Ouellette, and M. McDowell, sang two selections, Miss E. L. Hetherington presiding at the piano.

Among the pictures shown was one of the American air port at Gander Lake, the naval station at Placentia Bay, a vew of the vicinity of Newfoundland where Prime Minister Winston Churchill and President Roosevelt met on a warship and developed the Atlantic Charter, of the airport at Goose Lake in Labrador, and of the Bottwood area where planes land."

Newfoundland's deeply-indented, rocky coastline has a total of 6,000 miles, larger than that of all the United States," the speaker surprisingly stated, "It is 315 miles from north to south and the same in width, and has 290,000 of a population, with 60,000 of these located in just four centres. Its chief drawbacks are the lack of roads, isolation, and poverty. Scattered hamlets are frozen up from three to five months of the year, and if the storekeeper, counting on two month's freeze-up, has not laid in sufficient supplies, there is actual want. Often the missionary, from his own emergency supplies, has had to dole out flour by the handful to stave off actual starvation."

Eskimos, Indians, and mixed races largely make up the population of Labrador and Newfoundland, and the latter has so much of natural beauty, the speaker believes that after the war, it will become a great tourist attraction. The seldom-seen Grand Falls, because they are so difficult to reach, were also shown, they are 310 feet high, and from them a million horsepower of electricity could be generated.

Fishing Industry

Fishing is the principal means of livelihood, with cod spoken of as "Newfoundland. currency", though trapping is also followed, with sealing and whaling, the latter two more particularly in Labrador. Travel is wholly by boat, with sleds drawn by huskies, and snowshoes, in the winter. The icebergs come down from the glacier mountains in Greenland and so are of fresh water formation, Dr. Ridout being surprised to find this out when his captain-host "brewed him a cup of tea from an iceberg."

Church Work

The story of what the church is doing for the isolated folk in Newfoundland and Labrador reads like a romance, the work of Rev. Lester Burry and his wife in the latter county, being especially notable. "Rev. Mr. Burry bought $28 worth of parts and built himself a broadcasting station; then he built receiving sets for a number of his parishioners, and these have proved a boon to the trappers alone in their cabins for months of the year. Also to their families in their lonely homes, where a service with the minister present is possible but once in a whole year."

News of how sick folk at home are progressing is radioed by Mr. Burry to the trappers far out in the wilderness, and one appreciative letter, indicative of how they all feel, was thrown on the screen. More than once it has been proved that, hearing the gospel message seated on the floor by his receiving set in his lonely shack, has led the hearer to dedicate his life to Christ.

Dr. Ridout visited a point in Labrador where scientists have been working and have discovered a solid bed of iron ore, one of the largest anywhere, and visualized the day when means of transportation will be developed, "and when I hope it will be used to fashion implements for peacetime living, and not for the destructiveness of war."

Popular Couple Given Party At Hastings

HASTINGS, Oct. 18—(ENS)—Mr. and Mrs. Marvyn Preston (nee Evelyn Rigby) were entertained at a shower held in their honor at the Riverside Pavilion on Monday evening. Over 200 friends from the surrounding district and towns gathered and enjoyed dancing to the Melody Makers.

The highlight of the affair took place at midnight when the young couple were asked to come forward, while the orchestra presented them with a purse of money on behalf of the friends gathered there. Marvyn on behalf of his bride and himself, thanked all those who helped in anyway to make the evening such a success.

Mines Sink 100

LONDON, Oct. 18 — (CP). — British mines prior to the Allied invasion of Normandy sank or severely damaged an estimated 100 German vessels, the government disclosed yesterday. In a joint communique, the admiralty and the air ministry said special types of mines were developed by the admiralty for the purpose.

Campbellford Man Killed In France

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 18—(ENS) —Another of Campbellford's soldiers has been killed. Word has been received that Wesley N. McArthur, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McArthur, now of Toronto, was killed in action in France September 22. He was in his 27th year, married, and left Campbellford some years ago. He proceeded overseas in May of this year with an old school chum, Cpl. Thomas A. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Smith, Victoria street, who was wounded at Caen. Wesley was overseas only a few weeks before he saw action and was killed.

Cadets To Train In Town Hall Board Planning

HAVELOCK, Oct. 18 — (ENS). — At the October meeting of the Board of Education, a communication was received from the Department of Education granting permission to High School Principal A. C. Reid to teach agriculture and Miss G. McCorvie to teach physical training.

The Department of Education informed the Board that restrictions with respect to the purchase of uniforms and equipment for cadet training have been withdrawn and it is now in order for Boards to purchase these cadet requirements. Also that cadet training was now compulsory in schools for Grades X, XI and XII. It was moved by trustees Matheson and Sayers that the secretary write to the town council asking for the use of the town hall or a suitable place to train the cadets.

Principal A. C. Reid's report is as follows: The playgrounds and school garden reported in a bad condition. Miss G. McCowie had ordered books for the library and arrangements were being made for the travelling library, he said. A request for information on the delivery of a radio-gramaphone ordered for the school, was also made and the principal said supplies were needed for physical training.

The high school are sponsoring a picture on October 25, in aid of the Victory Loan Drive.

Poor Blackboards

Public school Principal W. M. Patterson reported that some of the supplies ordered had arrived and that several blackboards, which were painted during the holidays, were in a bad condition.

Caretaker S. Southward reported that the fence in the back playground needed some new posts.

It was moved by trustees Matheson and McKenzie that the weeds be cut and the garden ploughed and prepared for spring.

On motion by trustees Sayers and McKenzie, a grant of $5 was given for the Oratorical contest on October 24.

A communication was received from Miss V. Buchanan, resigning her position on the public school teaching staff effective December 31, 1944, unless her salary was increased to $1,100 a year, effective from September 1, 1944.

On motion by trustees Matheson and McKenzie, Miss Buchanan was granted the requested increase in salary effective as stated.

The following accounts were passed: Teacher's, caretaker's and secretary's salaries, $1,179.48, W. M. Patterson, increase for field day, 50c, R. Sayers, account $1.68.

Meeting adjourned to meet on November 13.

Mount Julian

Six tables of cards were played at Mr. and Mrs. Albert Reid's euchre Saturday evening. The first prizes went to Percy Thompson and Mrs. Stanley Northey, and the consolation prizes went to John Northey and Miss Violet McCauley. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Northev are to have the euchre next week on Saturday night.

Mrs. J. C. Blackburn, who has been spending the summer here, returned to New York on Monday.

Mrs. Jack Sneath and friends of Toronto were at her cottage on Stoney Lake for the week-end.

Mrs. G. Oxley and son, Barney, and Mrs. Sloan nave closed their respective cottages on Stoney Lake and returned to their Toronto homes on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard Reid of Lakefield and Mr. Alex Reid were Sunday visitors in this district.

Where's Joe?

He's sending a parcel overseas

Some lucky fellow will get it, and it will bring back to him memories of home—crunchy maple sugar to remind him of Canada, gum and chocolate bars; canned fruit which will make him think of branches heavy with apples, peaches or cherries. That parcel will bring more than something to eat; it will bring Canada into his heart and make him feel that he is not forgotten, that someone at home still thinks of him. He will do a better job and be a happier man because of that parcel Joe is sending.

Have you ever sent a parcel overseas? If you haven't, how about sending one today? Some good man deserves that little attention—he is doing so much for you and me.

Introducing The Victory Loan Salesmen

This is the third in a series of six advertisements to introduce to you the Victory Loan salesmen for the City and County of Peterborough, and to give a brief biography of each.

John Lee

Although John Lee, who resides at the Y.M.C.A., is comparatively new in the city, having come to Peterborough from Fenelon Falls in 1940, he is quite well known. Definitely in the annals of Victory Loan campaigns is he well known, as he has canvassed on all six previous drives, and will again be a canvasser on the Seventh Loan drive.

Mr. Lee graduated from Shaw's Business College, Toronto, and for a time was employed as a private secretary in that city. However, since 1937 he has been a representative for the Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada.

W. P. Kinlin

Being a salesman for the National War Finance Committee is just another step in the right direction for Bill Kinlin, as for the past four years he has been a representative of the Dominion Life Assurance Company, and has been in the life insurance business for approximately eleven years.

Besides being a super salesman for his team-mates John Lee and James Juby, his services as a public speaker on behalf of the Victory Loans are in demand.

A brother, Rev. P. S. Kinlin, is Chaplain for the Canadian Army in Regina, Sask.

A. J. McClellan

Now that the Seventh Victory Loan drive is only a few days away, Mr. A. J. McClellan, 599 King Street, is getting ready for action. A Victory Loan campaign in this city just would not be complete without this gentleman — his tactful approach and persuasive power in salesmanship are well known to his many Victory Loan customers.

Mr. McClellan is the District Manager of Excelsior Life Insurance Company, and has held this position for some thirty years. His son, Robert McClellan, is also interested in Victory Loan time, being on the staff of the Group Payroll for the County.

F. R. Revoy

Frederick R. Revoy, 145 O'Carroll Avenue, is becoming quite an oldtimer on the Victory Loan campaigns, this being the sixth drive on which he has canvassed.

Mr. Revoy needs no introduction to the people of Peterborough, as he has been the Attendance Officer for the Board of Education for the past five years.

During World War No. 1, he was Bombardier Revoy, and served overseas with the 33rd Battery.

Mr. James Juby, 319 Boswell Avenue, although a newcomer to the Victory Loan roster, proved himself very worthy during last canvass, and has been asked to work on the coming Loan drive. During the last campaign he pinch-hitted for Mr. Skinner, who, unfortunately had to withdraw because of illness in his family. However, for this Loan both are interested and will be out canvassing in their respective districts.

James Juby

Mr. Juby knows Peterborough well, having lived here for forty years. Also he was in the grocery business for twenty-seven years. He is now affiliated with the Canada Life Assurance Company.

Capt. Robert J. Juby, who enlisted with the local Prince of Wales Rangers, but transferred to the Canadian Fusiliers of London, Ontario, in order to go overseas, is a son. Capt. Juby arrived overseas just prior to D-Day.

Stan. A. Darl ng

Even in view of the fact that he has only recently been elected vice-president of the Eastern Ontario territory of the Ontario Fire and Casualty Agents' Association, Stan Darling, of 529 Weller Street, feels that he will have the time to again be one of the best canvassers on the staff of the National War Finance Committee, when asked by the local representatives to assist.

Mr. Darling has been in business for himself in the General Insurance line for about twelve years, and always manages to help on the Red Cross, Community Chest drives, and other civic enterprises. He is also Past President of the Lions Club and President of the Peterborough Fire and Casualty Insurance Agents' Association.

John Sinclair

Another salesman, who really needs no introduction to the people of Peterborough, is Jack Sinclair. Jack will again be working on the Victory Loan drive, and will, no doubt, be one of the leading salesmen under the Group Payroll.

He was formerly with the Canadian General Electric Company for eleven years, serving his apprenticeship in the main drafting room. However, he is now in the Real Estate and General Insurance business, being associated with H. J. McCannan.

Jack is another one of the many Victory Loan salesmen, who give of their time and energy in helping on the various civic drives, as well as being a faithful blood donor. He is also now a member of the Kiwanis Club.

After battling quite a siege of sickness, Art Cauley is very much back on his feet again. In spite of his many activities, the popular Manager of the Capitol Theatre sees his way clear to assist in the coming Victory Loan campaign and will again be a canvasser. In addition to his being a salesman on this particular Loan Mr. Cauley will assist as an adviser on the Public Relations Section in connection with the theatres.

Arthur E. Caul y

Mr. Cauley, who has been a Manager with the Famous Players (Canadian) Corporation for twenty-one years, has been Manager of the local Capitol for over nine years. He is also a Past President of the local Rotary Club, and is always a very willing worker on any civic enterprise.

Three sons are in the Services, namely Pilot Officer John Stuart Cauley, who is stationed at Charlottetown, P.E.I., LAC. Bob Cauley, who is service flying at Hagersville, and Alan Cauley, who is in the Transport Command, Radio Division, R.A.F., at Dorval, Que.

Complications In Poland

For the past three hundred years there has been a Polish question of some sort, but rarely has it been so complicated or so tragic as it is now. President Roosevelt, at a recent press conference, said that he thought that he knew as much about the Polish situation as anyone else in the U.S., but that he did not feel qualified to talk about it; if that is the case with a man who is undoubtedly privy to many secrets which are not known to the public, what point is there in discussing the Polish problem at all? The answer to that is that the governments of Great Britain, the U.S., and Russia are largely responsible for getting Poland into her present mess, and will somehow have to get her out of it. If nothing constructive can be said about the problem, at least it may be possible to clarify it a little.

• • •

It has been assumed, with good reason, that the problem of Poland has been discussed by Premier Churchill and Marshal Stalin, and it is hoped that a working solution may be found to it. But it will undoubtedly be said by the Poles that such a discussion should have taken place long ago; the lack of agreement between the Anglo-American alliance and Russia has cost Poland a dreadful price. Britain and the U.S. have been supporting the Polish government-in-exile, a group which the most sympathetic observer must look upon as extreme in its demands; Russia has supported the Polish committee of liberation, a group which opposed the government-in-exile on most important points. And meanwhile the Polish Underground, fighting in Warsaw, failed to get help from either side, and was forced to surrender to the Germans, after resisting with the greatest bravery for 63 days. No help came from the Anglo-American union and none from Russia. Is it any wonder that the Poles feel that they have been badly used?

• • •

Obviously a strong attempt should have been made long ago to reconcile the opinions of the rival Polish groups. Perhaps such an attempt was made, and failed. It may be said that the Poles have been unreasonable, and very hard to deal with, but that is not a wholly satisfactory excuse, when the importance of a solution is borne in mind. Somewhere there was a break-down in diplomacy which has cost Poland dear, and which has made heavier the task of the United Nations, and Russia in particular. In his last report to Parliament on the war Mr. Churchill stressed the necessity for a solution in Poland, and urged that the Poles relinquish the territorial claims which are the reason for their quarrel with Russia. But that speech was made after the Polish underground had been fighting for 58 days, and five days later it could fight no longer.

• • •

It is pointless to blame the statesmen involved, and it is pointless to say that the Poles would not have suffered so appallingly, and Warsaw would not have been reduced to rubble, if the Poles had shown a greater disposition to agree among themselves. Until all the facts are known judgement must be suspended. But one thing is clear: the mistake which has been made about Poland has cost us dear, and the Poles even dearer, and that mistake might easily happen again in other countries which have yet to throw off the German oppression. Have we learned the lesson?

Where Dumbarton Oaks Leaves Canada

As anyone who has examined the Dumbarton Oaks proposals now knows, Canada's share in the proposed United Nations organization is limited to membership in the General Assembly and (when elected) to a seat on the Security Council which she will hold for two years.

Apparently there are people who do not think that this is good enough for Canada. Why should China and France have permanent places in the Security Council, they say, when Canada has none? Has not Canada done more for the United Nations' cause than China or France? This same line of argument, of course, might be used with equal force by Australia or New Zealand. Why are these nations slighted?

We find the reason if we call to mind the meeting of Commonwealth Prime Ministers which was held in London last May. It was there that the suggestion was made that the British Commonwealth should work as a unit in post-war discussions with the other Great Powers; this same proposal had been made in January by Lord Halifax. But Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Premier Smuts objected strongly to this plan, because they said that it would turn the Commonwealth into a power bloc, which would intimidate some of the United Nations and alienate others. Thus the conference failed to agree, and when Dumbarton Oaks came along Britain went to it alone.

We must not assume, however, that if Canada had put forward her case at Dumbarton Oaks she would have been awarded a permanent seat in the Security Council. We may have done more in this war for the United Nations than France or China—though that is a debatable point—but no one can pretend that we have the importance in world affairs that France and China have. We are a small nation, and even our claim to be leader of the small nations within the United Nations is a dubious one. Until we have more population, more trade, and more significant intellectual activity in Canada than we have at present we must not expect the rest of the world to place an inordinately high value upon us; we are advancing, but we still have a long way to go.

Meanwhile, we seem to have manoeuvred ourselves into a more insignificant position in the United Nations organization than it was necessary for us to assume.

The Pyrrhic Phalanx

You have the Pyrrhic dance as yet,
Where is the Pyrrhic phalanx gone?

The question which Byron addressed to the Greeks over a century ago seems impertinent today. We have reason to know that the Pyrrhic phalanx still lives, and that while Greece may have lost her greatness in philosophy, art and government, Greece still retains her ancient courage. After three and a half years of German occupation Athens is free again, and the story of Greek resistance to the enemy is beginning to leak out.

The Germans treated the Greeks worse than the other peoples they subjected, with the sole exception of the Poles. Greek resistance had been noble; the Greeks had made the invading Italians look like monkeys; the Greeks gave the forces of the Master Race itself a very stiff fight, and only immensely superior resources in men and machines made the German victory possible. The Germans took pains to humble the proud Greeks, and their principal weapon was starvation. We still know little of conditions in Greece, but what we know is haunting and dreadful.

Only people of the highest courage could have continued to resist under such conditions; starvation takes a man's courage when wounds cannot. But Greek guerillas and partisans have continued their resistance and now, when the Germans flee toward slaughter in the north, they have come out of hiding to pursue and harry the men who once pursued and harried them. Greek courage has stood the acid test: the Pyrrhic phalanx has vanished as a form, but its spirit is still young in the wild and irregular forces of the Greek guerillas.

NOTE AND COMMENT

As leg paint is scarce in England some women are using gravy browning as a substitute, which would be all right if dogs were not so fond of it. The wearer, so to speak, is licked from the start.

Henry Kaiser must look to his laurels; a team of men and women working at Newcastle-on-Tyne in northern England have built a full-size tank-landing craft for the use of the U.S. Navy in 47 hours and 33 minutes—a new record.

A contemporary says it would not be surprised "to wake up some bright morning and find Mr. King and Mr. Hepburn sleeping in the same political bed". We should be very much surprised; when bunk is available Mitch can use it all himself.

Someone has announced with horror that the Pharaohs of Egypt used 100,000 slaves for 20 years to build the Great Pyramid of Egypt. Yes, but the Great Pyramid is still in excellent condition; how many modern buildings, put up in a hurry by a score or so of wage-slaves, will last so long?

Poetry And History

SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

A BOOK OF RUSSIAN VERSE, edited by C. M. Bowra (Macmillan). Here is a first-rate introduction to the poetry of Russia—something which the English-speaking world has lacked for a century or more. Russian literature is comparatively young; Pushkin, the first poet represented in this book, was born at the beginning of the nineteenth century; and although the Russian novelists are available to us in translations which range from good to appalling, Russian poetry remains almost unknown. These translations, then, by Maurice Baring, Oliver Elton, J. S. Phillimore and C. M. Bowra, among others, open a new world to most of us. It is a less gaudy world than we may have expected; sincerity, simplicity and order are the characteristics which are common to all the 27 poets whose work comprises this collection. We who are used to the intellectual adventure and passion of English lyric verse cannot immediately realize that the Russians, who are much more demonstrative than we, are much more cautious in their poetic expression. Some of these poems might be folk-songs, so charming and yet so bare of ornamentation are they. But as we read and re-read—this book has been in my possession for some months—we begin to understand and appreciate the Russian poetic genius. At the present time, this book has more than literary appeal; for those who want to understand Russia it is at least as important as a volume of Lenin's speeches.

ONWARDS TO VICTORY, by the Rt. Hon. Winston S. Churchill (McClelland and Stewart). Here is a book with an assured public. It contains 65 speeches, broadcasts and messages which the great English leader wrote and delivered during 1943; in them all we find what 'Time' has called "the packed drama, the finely chiseled word, the sense and feel of history which are his." It is the dismaying custom of many modern statesmen to have their speeches written for them; even President Roosevelt does so on occasion, and it is considered permissible to guess which of his helpers wrote which pungent passage. But with Winston Churchill there can be no guessing; with him, literally, "the style is the man" whether he is paying Periclean tribute to the fallen, or describing Mussolini as Hitler's "meanest utensil." The year 1943, which this book covers, was a great year, in which the United Nations took mighty strides toward victory; it was a year of great conferences abroad, and sharp debate at home. Here is the record of how Mr. Churchill dealt with the tidings of victory, with ceremonies, and with criticism. It is a volume of history.

FROM THE GREEK, edited by T. F. Higham and C. M. Bowra (Oxford). This beautiful little book is an abridgement of The Oxford Book of Greek Verse In Translation, and it has been compiled for the use of servicemen who have to cram as much reading as they can into their pockets. But it will outlive the war, and it will always find a place in the pocket of any lover of poetry; it is the ideal book for taking on walks, and reading out-of-doors. To those of us who know no Greek, the book is a lasting treasure. Keats, in the best-known of his sonnets, heaps praise on Chapman's translation of Homer; anyone who has ploughed through its boggy fastnesses must wonder at Keats' remarkable staying-powers. But this book presents a great variety of translators for its 293 extracts from Greek poetry. At the present time, when Greece is being delivered from Germany tyranny, it is a special pleasure to read these clear, direct lines in which so much is implied, and yet so little is injected into the verse to make it heavy with emotion; much modern verse seems to derive from German romance and German metaphysics, and in it complication of thought is rivalled by murkiness of expression. Perhaps Greek greatness rested upon the Greek sense of restraint and proportion—qualities which Germany has yet to develop.

THE RISING CRESCENT by Ernest Jackh, (Oxford). This is a book about Turkey by a man who knows that country and its leaders intimately. Dr. Jakh is now Carnegie Professor at Columbia University; he was born in Germany, and was one of the statesmen of the Weimar Republic; while still in his native land he worked with the late Lord Davies to establish the New Commonwealth movement, advocating collective security; after the rise of Hitler Dr. Jackh went to Britain, became a British subject and spent the time between 1927 and 1940 in the Balkans and in Turkey on special missions for the British government. He lived in Turkey from 1908 until 1918, and thus was a witness of the Young Turk's Rebellion; he has known both Ataturk and Inonu intimately; his sympathy with Turkish aspirations and his understanding of Turkish problems fit him particularly to explain Turkey to the western world. For it is a fact that few of us know anything of Turkey's modern history, and without a coherent body of information on that subject we must continue to consider Turkey 'enigmatic.' In reality it is not enigmatic at all, but entirely logical in its behaviour. There are still people who regard Turkey as "unspeakable," and perhaps that name was deserved in the days of the Ottoman Empire; but Turkey has made a remarkable change from Oriental feudalism to modern republicanism, with a strong Occidental bias. It is our business to know about such things, and this is the very book to lighten our darkness.

BETWEEN TWO FURIOUS OCEANS, by Dick Diespecker (Oxford). This book has an introduction by Raymond Massey, who assures us that he knows nothing about poetry, but he likes what Diespecker has written, and pities anybody who does not: the publishers compare Mr. Diespecker with Rupert Brooke and Stephen Vincent Benet. But although his work is interesting it is sprawling and undisciplined; he has plenty of emotion, but it is not very deep and not very well expressed. Mr. Diespecker writes a great deal for the radio, and his poetry has the trumped-up, meretricious air which marks most radio verse.

WHAT A WAITRESS

The first day he went into the restaurant he ordered brown bread with his meal. The waitress brought white.

The second day he ordered brown bread and again she brought white. The third day he ordered brown, and again got white.

This went on for a week. On the eighth day he decided that the only way to get what he wanted was to order the opposite. So, having ordered lunch, he added: "And bring me some white bread."

"But," said the waitress, "aren't you the gentleman who always has brown?"

THE FIRST TORCH —By Goldberg

The Farmers and the Packers

(By R. J. DEACHMAN)

LABOUR, in the packing plants, threatens to strike—strike against itself. There is not the slightest chance that, over the longer period, there can be any gain for labour in this proposed action.

The packing industry is peculiar. It is business of narrow profit margins. It is based on the live stock industry and prices of live stock fluctuate violently over a period of years.

Normally, in times of war, prices of farm products rise sharply. They have done so in this war, if human experience is any guide, prices of live stock will fall after the war, and the farmer will once more be left carrying the bag.

The men who work, in the packing plants, must consider the facts. Look for a moment at the change in the prices of live stock in Toronto since the beginning of the war:

	1939	1944
Good Steers (1,050 lbs.) live weight	$ 6.77	$11.70
Hogs — dressed weight	11.60	17.20

Do the workers want to fix a wage rate based on present prices of hogs and cattle when everyone knows that, after the war, these prices must decline. If that happens, the higher wages of the workers will be taken from the pockets of the farmer.

The farmers will make no protest, even organized agriculture will be silent but the farmer will give his answer even though he does not speak—he will produce less. The time may come when he may sell 200,000,000 lbs. of bacon per annum to the United Kingdom instead of 900,000,000 lbs. as at present. The workers have a tremendous interest in the prosperity of agriculture. No power of organization, no political alliance can help them towards improved conditions if the interests of others are forgotten when they plan the world in which they intend to live and prosper.

Oh, the extra they say is not going to be taken out of the farmer! They are going to take it out of the capitalist—those who own the plants. Are they? How is it to be done? Prices of meats are not determined by the packers, the market fixes the price. A recent report of one large packing enterprise shows a net of four-fifths of 1 per cent on each dollar of sales. If labour took it all it would not, over the period of time, gain thereby one single cent. Industries must be prosperous if they are to pay high wages. The prosperity of the farmer depends on the existence of a balanced economy and that cannot be achieved, by unilateral action taken by employees, without consideration of other interests involved.

If anyone questions these statements let him look at the records. Labour does not march alone. Its total income increases with the prosperity of the basic producer, its capacity to produce is determined by the efficiency of capital. In the first 30 years of this century the dollar value of production per worker in Canadian industry increased more than three times. It was this which gave the worker a tremendous improvement in his standard of living. After this war there will be new advances but the distance gained will be determined not by might, nor by power, but by the reasoning capacity of the people, striving to solve common problems in the interests of all.

Serpents Vs. Seers

The other day, when a news report stated that a fur-covered creature "more than twenty feet long, with enormous eyes and feet, resembling neither whale nor seal," had been washed up on the Scottish coast near Machrianish, The Expositor rejoiced that here, at long last, was something for sea-serpeant-seeking savants to work on. This newspaper has always adopted the strictly scientific attitude toward sea-serpent lore, maintaining that, while "not proven," the age-old and current yarns about these denizens of the deep are certainly not "disproven" either.

But does this objective attitude bring commendation from The Peterborough Examiner? It does not! "Every man has his streak of credulity," it remarks sourly. "The editor of The Brantford Expositor, for instance, is very bitter about the pretensions of prophets, and cocks a snook at Nostradamus whenever he gets a chance, but he is a glutton for sea-serpents. He is now busy advertising the charms of a sea-serpent which has been seen off the coast of Scotland near Machrianish."

Plagued by unscientific preconceptions, The Examiner resorts to wild suggestions that the serpent is probably just a cow that fell into the water and swelled after drowning, or perhaps a Canadian Wendigo which went for a swim in the ocean and got caught in the Gulf Stream. Then it tries to justify these quaint guesses by adding: "We throw out these hints because we have always had a taste for prophets and have never cared much about sea-serpents." Observe, then, that The Examiner's "logic" is palpably and purely prejudiced.

How much more praiseworthy is the conclusion reached by The Ottawa Journal, which, examining the case for the Monster of Machrianish, finds that it throws the skeptics into confusion, confounds the critics and vindicates, once and for all, the veracity of the fine old sea-faring gentry. "The fundamentalist believers in monsters have scored a smashing victory over the modernish unbelievers," exults The Journal.

And if the Peterborough editor persists in his skepticism about serpents, and equally in his credulity about prophets, let him match the Machrianish Wottizit with one single occult, clairvoyant, clairaudient or any other kind of prophecy about this war that has ever come off! —Brantford Expositor.

Is You Crazy Or Is We?

The return of the Magna Carta together with the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States to the Library of Congress was attended the other day by a bizarre juxtaposition of ceremonies. As the Runnymede vellum and the charters of the liberties of the American people were uncovered once more to the reverent gaze of visitors, a popular band leader of the day was depositing his original arrangement of "Is You Is Or Is You Ain't My Baby?" in the music division of the library.

Magna Carta is, and has been for some time "the first link in a long chain of constitutional instruments," to use James Bryce's words, "which have moulded men's minds and held together free governments." More than 700 years after its engrossment it returns with the somewhat younger but no less noble documents of the New World from temporary hiding, and at the same moment the manuscript of "Is You Is Or Is You Ain't" is being enshrined.

Archibald MacLeish, the Librarian of Congress, is reported to have been unable to translate the Latin of the Magna Carta. The script is confusing, to be sure, with its contractions, but it starts off plainly enough: "John, by the grace of God, king of England...."

What interests us more is what Mr. MacLeish can make of "Is You Is Or Is You Ain't." It is plainly not Latin, but neither is it English. Perhaps in 700 years it will have assumed a deeper significance than we can discern now from this distance. The barons at Runnymede may not have thought a great deal of their charter at the time either.—Montreal Gazette.

Especially Tarragon

Our old stone house was situated on the edge of the town, looking out upon open fields and a calm country road. Half a mile away we could see a sprawling farmhouse, framed in trees.... Along the edge of this road was Phinney's plot of fertile loam, planted mostly in carrots, peas, string beans, and tomatoes. The outside of our high stone wall formed another boundary, and the two extremities of the fertile plot were barricaded by a double row of assertive cabbages. Phinney's ambition led him to attempt eggplant, sweet peppers, and Brussels sprouts with fair success.... An ample plot was given over to lettuce, chicory, and escarole, to the delight of the snails. Cucumber vines wove their way through the tomato plants. Espaliered apple trees formed geometric patterns against the garden wall, troubled now and then by an enterprising pumpkin. Close to the wall, where they could get the maximum of reflected heat and sun, were the herbs—chervil, parsley, thyme, sweet marjoram, basil, and especially tarragon. Ah, those prodigal shoots of tarragon. How I wish we could make them grow that way in our new home! The soul of a sauce Bearnaise, the aromatic secret of a fine vinegar, the fairest flower in many a bouquet garni, tarragon is a true aristocrat among herbs. We have never tasted anything better than the tender young chickens which Clementine used to prepare for us, stuffing them generously with branches of fresh tarragon and basting them incessantly until they were roasted a perfect crisp brown. The herbs were removed before serving, but not before their hau[...] fragrance had permeated the bird, with su[...] results.—From "Clementine in the Kitche[n]" Phineas Beck.

A Bible Message

For God speaketh once, yea twice, yet man perceiveth it not.... Yea, his soul draweth near unto the grave, and his life to the destroyers.

If there be a messenger with him, an interpreter, one among a thousand, to shew unto man his uprightness: then he is gracious unto him, and saith, Deliver him from going down to the pit: I have found a ransom.... He shall pray unto God, and he will be favourable unto him: and he shall see his face with joy: for he will render unto man his righteousness.

He looketh upon men, and if any say, I have sinned, and perverted that which was right, and it profited me not; he will deliver his soul from going into the pit, and his life shall see the light.

Lo, all these things worketh God oftentimes with man, to bring back his soul from the pit, to be enlightened with the light of the living. (Job 33: 14, 22-24, 26-30.)

Though a sinner do evil an hundred times, and his days be prolonged, yet surely I know that it shall be well with them that fear God, which fear before him: but it shall not be well with the wicked, neither shall he prolong his days, which are as a shadow; because he feared not before God. Leader Retires After Ten Years

MILLBROOK, Oct. 18—(ENS)—Mrs. T. G. Harkness was hostess for the October meeting of the Women's Institute held at her home Saturday evening. A letter expressing thanks for the donation of $5 for the "Jam for Britain" fund was received and it was learned that Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, after ten years of valuable service, has given up being leader for the girls' work, and that no leader is, as yet, available. The project "Dressing-up home-grown vegetables" was the subject for the leaders' school held at Millbrook during the week, other branches attending.

Mrs. J. W. Hilton, treasurer, reported a total of $30.24 on hand and in the Red Cross fund, $10.07. A letter from the provincial secretary, Miss Mary Clarke, announced the annual convention to be held at the Royal York November 14-16, and Mrs. E. C. Richards was appointed delegate, with Mrs. Edmund Ball as alternate. Mrs. Hilton pointed out that the speaker service will be available in April, and the program was taken over by Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, her paper on "Home Economics" stressing safety precautions in the home, the mother's responsibility and urging "Follow the rule: eat it up, wear it out, make things last as long as possible."

Demonstrating being well dressed and well groomed, two of the junior girls showed two well-made slips, different in pattern and material, explained the requirements of proper personal grooming, and showed the difference between material for slips by burning a piece of acetate rayon, which melted and dripped, and viscous rayon, which was consumed without these faults. The danger of brushed rayon, in its inflammable nature, was shown by Mrs. Armstrong, when her two pupils, Audrey Armstrong and Jessie Dawson were finished.

The November meeting will be at Mrs. Edmund Ball's home, with Mrs. D. L. Dunn taking her department of health for the program. One new member, Mrs. Herbert Patton, was enrolled.

Quiet Elephant Kills Keeper

MELBOURNT, Australia, Oct. 18 (CP) — Queenie, 40-year-old elephant and favorite of children at the Melbourne Zoo, was convicted today of murdering her keeper, Thomas Lawson, 68.

The verdict was reached by the city coroner after a formal court hearing.

Defence counsel—the first attorneys to represent an animal in Australian legal history—presented evidence that for 30 years Queenie had gently carried children around the Zoo.

The coroner ordered that Queenie never carry children again.

Want Clean Up

TORONTO, Oct. 18.—(CP).—Toronto Centre Presbytery of the United Church of Canada yesterday passed a resolution declaring that more book-making establishments now existed than "ever before in the history of Toronto," and urging that Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell offer the city co-operation necessary to abolish them.

French Arrest Newspaperman

PARIS, Oct. 18 (AP)—Sisley Huddleston, former British newspaperman and one-time president of the Anglo - American Correspondents' Association in Paris, has been arrested by French authorities on treason charges, in connection with his writings and radio speeches during the German occupation.

Huddleston remained in France following the 1940 armistice and became a naturalized French citizen by decree of Marshal Petain, according to a civil affairs officer who investigated the case at Nice.

French forces of the interior leaders who seized Huddleston on the Riviera maintained he had defended authoritarian principles and attacked democratic ideals in his writings and speeches.

Ready To Meet CCF Legislature In Saskatchewan

REGINA, Oct. 18.—(CP).— The first Saskatchewan Legislature since election of a C.C.F. government last June 15 will begin here Thursday with more than 50 pieces of proposed legislation to be placed before the House.

The Speech from the Throne will be read by Chief Justice W. M. Martin, who is acting for Lieutenant-Governor A. P. McNab, now on leave of absence.

Proposed legislation includes a Trade Union Act. If adopted it will constitute a Saskatchewan labor code. A Vacations With Pay Act and amendments to the Minimum Wage Act also will be submitted.

Other proposed legislation:

1—A Farm Security Act incorporating a crop failure clause.

2—An act to replace the present Land Division Act, providing for larger school units of administration.

3—A bill to amend the local Government Board (Special Powers) Act giving the Board power to reorganize the financial set-up of cities and towns.

There are 55 seats in the House, including three non-partisan representatives of Saskatchewan armed forces personnel outside the province but in Canada, and in overseas areas. The service representatives will be elected late this month.

The C.C.F. has 46 seats, Liberals 5 and one is vacant due to the death of A. V. Sterling, (C.C.F.-Shellbrook).

Agriculture Minister George H. Williams will not attend the session due to poor health.

Premier T. C. Douglas said the government had planned a 10-day session, but indications now are the session may last a month or more. Members may decide to term the sittings a "special session" for which a special indemnity will be paid.

STRAWBERRY GUAVA
Delicious, Sweet and Spicy
This is a luscious tropical fruit which makes a useful as well as a charming and beautiful house plant. It bears both flowers and fruit at the same time. The flowers are pure white and delightfully fragrant. The fruit is about the size of a walnut, of a beautiful reddish color, and of delicious, sweet and spicy flavor. Fine for eating out of hand, and unsurpassed for making jelly. These plants are usually grown from seed and begin to bloom and bear fruit while quite small.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Brown Married 15 Years

MARMORA, Oct. 18.—(ENS).—Mr. and Mrs. William Brown of Deloro celebrated the 15th anniversary of their wedding Monday. They were married in Madoc on October 16, 1929, by Rev. P. Gatley Reynolds, at that time rector of St. John's Church there. Celebrating their anniversary they took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Loveless (the latter having a birthday anniversary) at the Royal Hotel, and later proceeded to Madoc for a theatre party.

Farmer's Costs Swing Upward

OTTAWA, Oct. 18 — (CP). — The hired man's wages have been the toughest item in the Canadian farmers' budget of increased expenses due to the war.

The Canadian Federation of Agriculture issued to-day a comparison of present and pre-war farm expenses, based on Dominion Bureau of Statistics and Agriculture Department information. It showed that the index of farm wages in 1944 stood 158 per cent higher than in the period 1935-1939.

This increase was by far the greatest reported in the farm budget. The index of interest on farm mortgages showed a decrease of 7.6 per cent.

Next to wages, the farmer found his greatest increased cost in building materials, up 72.8 per cent. His actual living costs showed a gain of 23 per cent.

With almost all his expenses included, the farmer in 1944 faced expenses 32.9 per cent higher than in 1935-1939. On the other side of the ledger, the index of farm products wholesale prices showed a gain of 45 per cent over 1935-1939, but Federation officials said this index showed only the wholesale level and did not give an exact picture of the actual returns to the farmer.

Pleads Not Guilty

TORONTO, Oct. 18.— (CP). — George Butcher of Toronto, chief Crown witness in the trial of four men who earlier pleaded not guilty to charges of armed robbery of $35,000 worth of liquor, kidnapping Butcher and theft of the truck, liquor yesterday described before Judge James Parker and a jury the hi-jacking of the truck in December, 1943. The men accused are Donald (Mickey) McDonald, his younger brother Edwin, Sam Mancuso, and William Baskett.

Fishermen Get Three Muskies At Same Spot

TRENT RIVER, Oct. 18 (ENS) — Two fishermen, Hanford Lee Cooper and C. S. Childs from Cuba, New York, who last week landed a 19¾ pound muskie, were again successful in capturing on Saturday, two more muskies, one weighing 20 pounds and the other 10½ pounds. The fish were both caught at Birch Point, down stream south of the bridge, at the same point where the one previous was caught. These American tourists are spending two weeks' vacation at Ezra King's tourist lodge at Belmont Lake, but motored to Trent River to fish on several occasions.

TAMBLYN
Again Stresses Vitamins
We must admit that the one responsibility common to us all is the maintenance of our own health and well-being. That is of paramount importance at all times. There are of course many causes and contributory factors to that "below par" condition, but inasmuch as but few of us eat correctly (from a standpoint of balanced diet), resulting Diet Deficiency is indeed one of the more common. In other words, we suffer from the lack of a sufficient supply of natural vitamins which are of course essential to good health. This condition can be remedied by the taking of supplementary vitamins and indeed very definite benefits result when diets lacking in vitamins are brought up to full Vitamin Sufficiency. Your Tamblyn Drug Store is recognized "Headquarters" for all Standard and proven "Vitamin Products" and this week is again stressing the importance of their continued use. Wrestler Tosses Referee Out Of Ring

The biggest crowd of the season saw Whipper Watson win a clean-cut victory over Karl Krippler Davis in the main bout of the Tunney wrestling show at the Brock Street Arena last night and they thoroughly enjoyed the downfall of the tempestuous Texan. At that however they probably got their biggest thrill of the night in the Irish Jack Kennedy-Dr. Len Hall bout when the Irish grappler lost his temper and went beserk to wind up by tossing Hall and Referee Bert Maxwell out of the ring half a dozen times each while cheer after cheer came from the excited crowd.

Kennedy's display of temperament cost him the bout for he was disqualified for his attack on the referee but it earned him the hearty approval of the fans and he won a moral victory, even if the official decision went to Hall.

The fireworks were precipitated when the bouncing Hall whose aggressive style and cocky manner aroused the ire of the crowd made the mistake of turning on the heat at the expense of the Irish battler. The Doc was in rare fettle as the bout opened and he proceeded to give Kennedy the well-known works, using his whole repertoire of street-brawl tactics in an effort to get a speedy decision over the popular Georgian. Kennedy took quite a ride for a while and finally was tossed out through the ropes and knocked out again twice when he tried to climb back in.

At The Boiling Point

By that time the gentleman from Georgia was at the boiling point. He finally got back, shook Hall with a couple of hefty hooks to the jaw and wound up by tossing him out of the ring. Then the fun started. Three times in a row the Doc tried to get back through the ropes and three times in a row Kennedy battered him out again. Referee Maxwell tried to interfere and the wild Irishman tossed the official to one side and belted the Doctor back into the crowd again. Once more Maxwell stepped in and this time Kennedy tossed him through the ropes. Hall got nearly back and the Irish gladiator promptly threw him out once more. The referee returned to the ring and in a moment was sailing over the ropes again, this time on the other side.

Then while the crowd milled around the ring and cheered Kennedy to the echo the angry mat artist kept throwing Hall and Maxwell out alternately until finally the referee raised the Doc's hand in the crowd in token of a disqualification for Kennedy. Fans rushed into the ring and raised Kennedy's arm and he was cheered repeatedly while Hall and Maxwell were booed just as loudly when they set sail for the dressing room. It was a wild ending to a bout that was packed full of tobasco.

The Whipper Wins

Whipper Billy Watson took the measure of the wild Texan, Karl Davis after a strenuous main bout that ran almost an hour and had about everything. The Whipper lost the first fall when he fell a victim to the Texan's ring post tactics but he squared the match with as an artistic an application of the flying scissors as has ever been seen here and then went on to win with one of his own specialities, the Canadian avalanche, deftly used and completely effective.

It was a tough battle and Davis as usual put up a terrific argument before he was finally beaten.

The battling started as soon as the gladiators entered the ring for Watson took exception to the tape on Davis' hand and when the Texan refused to take it off Whipper left the ring. He returned in a few moments with his own hand taped and then Davis put up a spirited objection but the bout finally began with both men still wearing the tape.

Watson started out by baiting Davis, slapping him across the head and pawing him around. That was a mistake for the Texan, angered by those tactics, cut loose with some of the most ruthless wrestling of the season and for the remainder of the first round Watson was given a tough passage. Davis gouged, kicked, used his favorite headlock and his stepover toehold and finally climaxed his attack by using Watson as a battering ram and trying to knock over the ring posts with him. After the champ had been tossed against the post three or four times he was about ready for the cleaners and the Krippler didn't have much trouble in rolling him over for the fall. The end came in 31 minutes.

Squares The Match

Watson, wrestling more roughly than usual, gave the Texan a liberal dose of his own medicine in the second round. He used his fists freely and wound up by tossing Davis into the ring posts two or three times. The Texas Tornado tried to fight back and did throw Watson out of the ring but went out himself twice in succession by quick work on the Whipper's part. Then came a lively finish with the two big fellows launching a series of flying tackles at each other. Watson finally succeeded in meeting one of the Texan's tackles with a flying body scissors that enabled him to turn Davis over and pin his shoulders. It was one of the smartest falls of the season.

The third fall came in 11 minutes and Watson had the edge. He softened Davis up with a couple of punches to the head and then suddenly applied the Canadian avalanche, a combination stepover toehold and cartwheel that had the Texan helpless.

Don Evans, the California speedster, won the opening bout from Jack Wentworth after 17 minutes of fast going. The battle started out like a clean affair but before long Wentworth began to take over the bad man role and Evans demonstrated that he too was right at home in the back alley style. The battlers gave each other quite a ride before Evans slowed Wentworth up with a barrage of punches to the head and then used a flying headlock to take the fall.

Referee Bert Maxwell who handled all three bouts had one of his stormiest evenings in a long time. Fred Scates divided the duties of announcer and timer.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

For the first time this year in Ontario, suspensions have been handed out for alleged stimulation of race-horses. The Incorporated Canadian Racing Associations at Toronto last night announced indefinite suspensions of one owner, two trainers and a groom in connection with two horses that raced during the Fall meeting of the Long Branch Club at Dufferin Park.

Those suspended were Bill Chris, trainer of horses owned by his father, Steve Chris of Kitchener; Reginald Thompson, a groom employed by the Chris Stable; Henry M. Walker and his trainer Fred Fellows.

Action followed reports from the Provincial Government analyst in connection with the horses Mere Frolic, owned by Chris, and Lascar, owned by Walker. Mere Frolic won a race Oct. 5 and Lascar was fourth in another race that day.

Can Bring In Shells

Revenue Minister Gibson announced at Ottawa last night that hunters coming from the United States or elsewhere may again import 50 rounds of rifle or shotgun ammunition free of duty. A permit is still required for imported guns.

Jockey Alex Haller of Vancouver is in a Toronto hospital with a fractured skull suffered in a spill in the first race at Dufferin yesterday. Jockey Henry Harris of Toronto suffered a broken collarbone in the same accident, which occurred when Harris on Seneca Bill went down on the first turn and Muchkin, with Haller aboard, fell over him.

Suspensions of from three to five days were given three jockeys by Laurel race track stewards yesterday as the result of Monday's racing at the Maryland track.

Jockey J. Rienzi was suspended for five days for failing to keep his mount straight in the stretch of the eighth race; Jockey A. Kirkland was given three days for cutting across his field too sharply in the sixth race and Jockey C. Erickson was suspended three days for rough riding leaving the gate in the fifth race.

The Nova Scotia branch of the Royal Caledonian Curling Club (Scotland) has affiliated itself with the Dominion Curling Association, President W. Norgan of Vancouver announced yesterday. The Dominion Association now is represented in every province, E. P. Atkinson, the honorary secretary said.

A.A. JOB CHANGE?—According to hot stove league reports, Casey Stengel, who has announced he won't return as Milwaukee manager next year, may get the Kansas City post now held by Jack Saltzgaver. In another American Association change rumored, Burleigh Grimes, formerly of Toronto Maple Leafs, may succeed Stengel.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

The Peterborough juniors are confident that they will be able to break into the win column when they meet the fast Toronto Vikings in an exhibition game at Riverside Park Saturday, a contest that should provide local fans with a lot of exciting football before a winner is decided. The Petes' confidence is explained by the fact that the Vikings who play in the same group as Westsides are not expected to be any tougher than that aggregation and the local players point out that they were in front of the Westsides for the greater part of the game and were beaten largely on their own mistakes. They do not expect such mistakes to come up again and on top of that is the fact that two weeks' practice should put them in much better shape than they were when they were beaten here on Thanksgiving Day. Coach Rich Jackson has been putting the squad through their paces and they are running off their plays much more smoothly than they were a short time ago. It all adds up into a pleasing exhibition of football here Saturday and there should be a real crowd out to encourage the Peterborough youngsters who are doing a good job by keeping the game going here despite wartime conditions.

Scoring averages of the O.R.F.U. senior group show Joe Krol of the Hamilton Wildcats out in front of the parade and probably he deserves to be. But on the other hand this column claims that the scoring statistics as published do not come even close to presenting the true picture of the value of any particular player. You can look down the whole list of the O.R.F.U. scorers and you will not find the name of Billy Meyers anywhere. And yet the little Balmy Beach half was the sparkplug of his team throughout the entire Ottawa game and figured in nearly every scoring play. Meyers actually tossed three touchdown passes and yet the inane method of scoring that is followed gives him absolutely no credit for those three accurate tosses. The birds who caught them got five points each for cashing in on the accurate marksmanship of Mister Meyers. The system adopted is foolish in other ways. A player could run three quarters of the length of the field, dodging the whole opposition team and then out of a feeling of good sportsmanship toss a pass to one of his own teammates just outside the goal line and the recipient of this generosity would be chalked up with five big points in the scoring list while the other fellow who toted the ball all the way down the field would not even be mentioned in the official statistics.

How To Score

There are so many new rugby fans this year and some of the older ones are rusty that an enthusiast suggested to this column yesterday that we should explain the scoring rules for the benefit of both classes. It almost seems unnecessary and yet perhaps there have been folk at the last two games who had difficulty in following the score. In the first place it should be understood that a touchdown or try is the highest scoring play, counting for five points and giving the attacking side a chance for another point by "converting" the try. A touchdown is scored by carrying the ball over the other team's goal line, either by running or plunging, or by falling on a loose ball behind the line or catching a forward pass there. And the convert, which counts a single point can be done by running the ball over the line, tossing a forward or kicking a goal, either by a drop-kick or placement. Only one play, of course, is allowed in a convert. The second highest score is a field goal which counts three points and is made by either drop-kicking the ball or using a placement kick to drive it over the cross-piece and between the uprights of the goal.

* * * * * *

Then there is the safety touch which counts two points and results when the defending side in some way or other takes the ball behind its own goal line and is trapped in there. For instance a bad snap sends the oval back over the goal line and before one of the defending side can recover the ball and run it out he is tackled back of the line. Finally there is the single point score which can come from a rouge, a kick to the dead line or a touch-in-goal. When the attacking side kicks over the other team's goal line and one of the defenders is tackled before he can get out that is a rouge. If the kick goes far enough to cross the dead line 25 yards back of the goal line that is called a dead line kick and also counts a point. On the other hand if the kick over the goal line and into the area outside the projection of the touchline that is known as a touch-in-goal and entitles the attacking side to chalk up a point. That is the list and if it helps a few folk to follow the next game more intelligently that will be a sufficient alibi for trespassing on the patience of the fans who know all this elementary stuff.

Girl Cagers Ready

The Peterborough Ladies' Basketball League is ready for another big season. At an enthusiastic meeting held Tuesday night in the Y.W.C.A. officers for the season were elected as follows: Honorary president, Mrs. J. H. Vernor; president, Mary McPherson; vice-presidents, Jean Castle, Teresa Heslip; secretary, Isobel Crary; treasurer, Shirley Mortimer. The schedule committee will consist of Miss Caroline Littlefield, Howard Macdonald and Hymie Smith and the latter was appointed official referee for the season. It was decided to open the league this season on Friday, November 17, and the schedule will be published as soon as the teams in the intermediate group are determined, within the next two weeks. Reports of last season's operations revealed a very successful season and the treasurer was able to announce a balance of $75 as having been carried over. The meeting decided that a door prize should be offered for the league's opening night.

* * * * * *

As intimated in this column last night the loop will be divided into senior and intermediate divisions for this season's play and the setup will be much as announced. In the senior section will be the Transports who won premier honors last season, the St. John's team who finished a bangup second and C.G.E. who made every game they played a battle. The intermediate division will have the Normal School team, two from the Y.W.C.A., the Quakers and in all probability the Westclox team. Peterborough Lock, spoken of as a probable entry are not being counted on. President Mary McPherson or any other member of the executive will be glad to hear from any group desirous of entering a team either in the senior or intermediate section within the next week—before the schedule is drawn. It looks like a big season for the girl cage teams and lots of good basketball for the fans.

Hockey Gossip From The Training Camps

By The Canadian Press

Bill Durnan, Montreal Canadiens' star goalie, injured in training at Montreal, will be on the sidelines for about a week due to a strained shoulder muscle.

Gerry McNeil, who has been helping Canadiens in their practice sessions as goalie, came in for warm praise from Coach Dick Irvin. Said Dick: "He could help any club in the N.H.L."

Johnny Quilty wrote from Vancouver where he is serving with the R.C.A.F., he hopes to play this season at the coast on a line with Johnny Adams and Wingy Johnson but is keen to return to the N.H.L.

None of the extra players in the Habitants' training camp will be disposed of for cash. All who may be sent to the minors are going strictly on a "loan" basis.

Norm Calladine.

Manager Art Ross, who has his Boston Bruins in camp at Quebec, is satisfied with the way things have been going since opening the pre-season training last Sunday. Among those fast regaining condition are Bill Cowley, Jack Shewchuck, Norm Calladine, Jack Crawford and Captain Aubrey (Dit) Clapper.

Many "green" players are whizzing under the watchful eye of Ross. He directs drills from the rail and is continually shifting players. Bep Guidolin, Harvey Jackson and Buzz Boll have yet to report. Two amateurs—Kenny Smith of Oshawa, and Frank Mario, of Cornwall, are expected at the end of the week.

Bruins will play at least two exhibition games against a Quebec Navy team. During the contest Ross will look over the defects and potentialities of the freshmen.

Heller Goes Back.

Ott Heller, of Kitchener, will once again be on New York Rangers' line-up. He was signed to a contract by Lester Patrick at Winnipeg; yesterday. This will be his 15th consecutive season with Rangers. He'll also be captain again for the third year.

Manager Paul Thompson has reduced the number in Chicago Black Hawks' training camp at Hibbing, Minn., to 26. Four car[illegible] failed to make the grade.

Ike Hilderbrand, 17-year-old Winnipeg boy who starred in juvenile hockey at Vancouver last year, has arrived at Owen Sound to work out with Coach Hap Day's Toronto Maple Leafs. Ike, classy winger with New Westminster Salmonbellies lacrosse team, was presented the Mike Kelly trophy, awarded annually to the most valuable man to his team in the Mann Cup finals

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—(AP)—From Peleliu in the Pacific, Sgt. Billy Goodrich, former Brooklyn sports writer, sends these words:..."The results of the world series just came in and there were more marines rooting for the Browns than guys swearing at the plight of the Dodgers. That seems incredible, but it is the truth....One marine, a terrific Brownie rooter, took things so hard that after the Cardinals won the second game he said: "Why, I'm going to murder every Brownie personally.'..That sounds like Dodger talk, but honestly this lad is the worst baseball rooter I have ever seen... And how could he be with the Japs at the back door?"

Season In Review

Those quotes give you an idea of what a half a dozen major league managers and assorted players and newspapermen will face when they tour the war zones this winters... From all accounts, the G.I. baseball fans have managed to hear about most of the doings of last year, but they'll want to know all the details, and most of all, why they happened.

Gowanus Gossip

Leo Durocher may have a hard time answering some of those Dodger fans on such questions as: How do you expect to win a pennant with a bunch of 16-year-old bobby sockers? What was the idea of getting rid of Fritz Ostermueller, who had such a good year after he landed with the Pirates? How about Dixie Walker's batting? Weren't you threatening to trade him last winter? What will our Bums do next year?

Boxing Chief Order Boxers Defend Titles

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 (AP) — Abe J. Greene, president of the National Boxing Association, said today he has called upon Juan Zurita, lightweight champion, and Sal Bartola, featherweight king, to "prepare for a proper defence of your titles—and soon."

Both boxers, Greene said, had notified N.B.A. headquarters that after a warmup bout or two, they would be prepared to defend their laurels against challengers listed among the contenders by the Association.

"The ultimate aim of the N.B.A.," Greene said, "is to bring about a match between Bartola and Willie Pep, who is listed as the outstanding challenger. If the sponsors of Pep will not impose impossible barriers, it will then be possible to break up the dual championship claims."

Pep is recognized as featherweight champion by New York and affiliated States.

"No major changes have been recorded in the N.B.A. ratings, although there has been a shift among some of the contenders in the various classes," Greene said in announcing the Association's quarterly lineup of talent. Montreal's Dave Castilloux was listed as an "outstanding boxer" in the lightweight division.

The Line-up

The ratings included:

Heavyweight: champion, Joe Louis; logical contenders, Billy Conn, Joe Baksi, Jimmy Bivins; outstanding boxers, Mello Bettina, Tami Mauriello, Lee Q. Murray, Lee Savold, Joe Maxim, Lee Oma, Jack London.

Light heavyweight: champion, Gus Lesnevich; logical contenders, Lloyd Marshall, Freddie Mills of England.

Featherweight: champion, Sal Bartola; logical contender, Willie Pep.

TORONTO, Oct. 18 — (CP). — There's much fuel for argument in a controversy over the use of the youthful players in the N.H.L. that gets an airing in Herb (Winnipeg Tribune) Manning's column. The opposing debaters are Frankie Boucher and Wilf Field, one-time New York American now headed for Montreal Canadiens after two years in the Army.

Field says good-looking young players are being ruined by the hothouse forcing they get when they are yanked prematurely into professional hockey to satisfy the crying demand for players. He says that Billy Taylors and Charlie Conachers are very scarce, and that most of our present-day infant professionals should be allowed to mature naturally until they are about 20 years old.

Otherwise, he contends, they will only be burnt out early, and if their health isn't ruined by trying to keep up with the older men, they will only be thrown into the ruck after the war when the old-line players return to the ice.

Boucher has an entirely different line on the thing, however. That's only to be expected, since after all it is his job to try to build a good team, and if the older, experienced players aren't available, what the heck is he to use?

Frankie says he doesn't believe the young players will suffer any, but on the contrary will learn much more of the fine points of the game than they ever would playing against competition of their own age. Hockey players only exert themselves as much as is necessary to keep up with the opposition and their teammates, Boucher argues, and in the N.H.L. they will have the "highest possible target to shoot at."

Then again, they will find out in a hurry if they are good enough for the big-time game. Those that have the ability will stick, he feels, while the others who fall by the wayside will be those who just don't have the stuff.

The chance to get in the headlines with an N.H.L. team and taste some brief glory also should help to salve their wounded pride if they get the jolly heave-ho, in one way to look at it philosophically.

All of which still doesn't answer the very obstruse question that was put before the meeting.

Ray P. Best Reviews Successful Curling Year

TORONTO, Oct. 18.—(CP).—Delegates to the 71st annual meeting of the Ontario Curling Association here yesterday accepted the annual reports of officers and committees and adopted a number of resolutions with a minimum of discussion.

Ray P. Best, of Peterborough, president, was succeeded by R. R. (Tony) Evans of Hamilton. Mr. Best becomes an honorary president.

Other officers include W. L. Mackenzie, Midland, first vice-president; Frank P. McDonald, Kitchener, second vice-president; W. E. McMurty, Toronto, secretary; E. H. Pooler, Toronto, chairman of the Ontario bonspiel.

George Hanson of Kingston, was named an honorary life member.

It was announced the annual Ontario bonspiel will be held in Toronto beginning Feb. 19, and that the limit would be 128 rinks. Already 28 have entered.

Secretary McMurty reported that the past year, the fifth under war conditions, had been a most successful one. A membership of 86 clubs represented 5,278 individuals, an increase of 577, while the total membership of the 11 women's clubs increased 54 to 319.

The executive was empowered to consider the adoption of standard plans for the construction of curling rinks after the war.

Claims Hollywood Powerful Influence

TORONTO, Oct. 18.—(CP).—Alexander Knox, native of Strathroy, Ont., and a graduate of the University of Western Ontario, said in an interview Monday that Hollywood is a powerful influence in shaping public opinion that intelligent people should support the type of movie which peaks for progress and public betterment.

Mr. Knox in Toronto in connection with the Seventh Victory Loan campaign, played Woodrow Wilson in the movie "Wilson," which is establishing box office records in the United States.

While the Hollywood industry is not perfect, it has performed some wonderful jobs and can accomplish new wonders with intelligent support, he added.

De Gaulle Ready To Administer French Affairs

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 — (AP) — Gen. Eisenhower is expected to turn over to the De Gaulle administration in a few days formal authority over all the territory of metropolitan France except some port areas and active combat zones.

Eisenhower will take the action by designating the sections of France not in the present fighting zones as an "interior zone."

The effect will be the transfer to Gen. De Gaulle and his associates of virtually complete control over almost all of France. This may speed up the political organization of the country although the principal delaying factor so far has been the lack of communication and transportation facilities.

Eisenhower has had top responsibility for French affairs since D-Day because all activities of the country had to be subordinated to the military necessity of defeating Germany. Now only the combat zones, certain great supply ports and some key rail lines have primary military importance.

For some weeks after the Allied drive across northern France Gen. De Gaulle made it clear to the Allied high command that he did not desire the country to be turned for the period following the war in back to him quickly.

Bands of Germans were then still roaming around loose, some French resistance forces would heed only military orders and there was the unusual condition, which is reported to remain, of the Spanish Maquis in the southeastern corner of France near the Spanish border who on occassion have defied the authority of the French government.

Now, however, De Gaulle has conveyed to Allied authorities the idea that he is ready to take control and full responsibility for order in the country.

Canadian Legion Asks Even Break For Veterans

QUEBEC, Oct. 18 — (CP) — J. C. G. Herwig, general secretary of the Canadian Legion Tuesday urged delegates to the fifth annual convention of the Canadian Congress of Labor to endorse a three-point program aimed at giving veterans of the present war "an even break" in unionized industry.

In an address Mr. Herwig urged that:

1. Overseas men who qualified for a war service gratuity at overseas rates be given a preference in employment over any person who entered the industry after the veteran's enlistment date.

2. After a specified period, if the ex-servicemen and women were found qualified, they be granted seniority rights as from the day of enlistment.

3. Some suitable time limit be set which the employment and seniority plans would be in effect.

Mr. Herwig contended that all wartime jobs should be considered temporary. He said the Legion's plan would prevent a reoccurrence of some of the events which followed the First Great War.

"During the depression years, large numbers of veterans in unionized industry were thrown out of work, particularly in the railways," he said. "These men found that men with no military service, oftentimes enemy aliens, remained in employment because they had established seniority rights during the war years. . . .

"What the Legion fears today is that the practical application of seniority clauses in existing contracts will again react to the disadvantage of veterans and will prevent their rehabilitation is such industries as the railways, and automobile manufacturing, and in many other places where similar contracts exist."

The transfer from a war to peace economy would mean that a great many war workers in various industries would be laid off and under existing conditions all would have to be re-hired before any veterans, not previously engaged in the industry, could be considered.

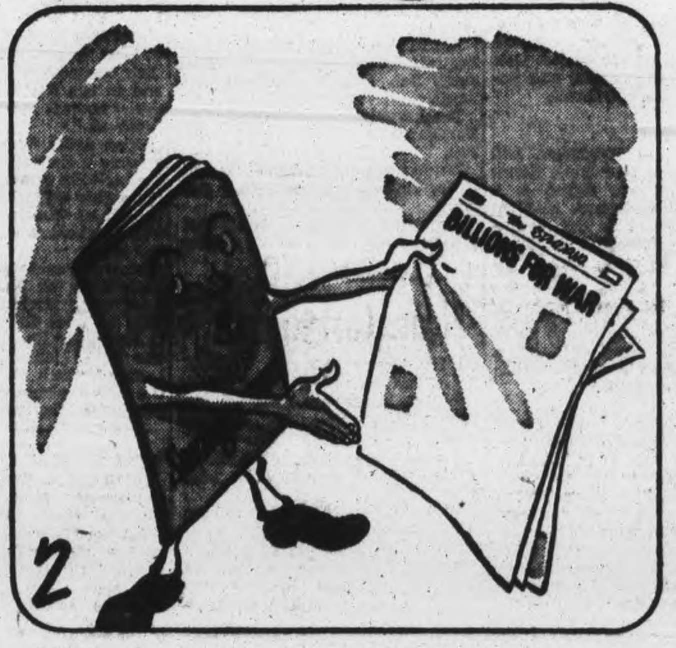
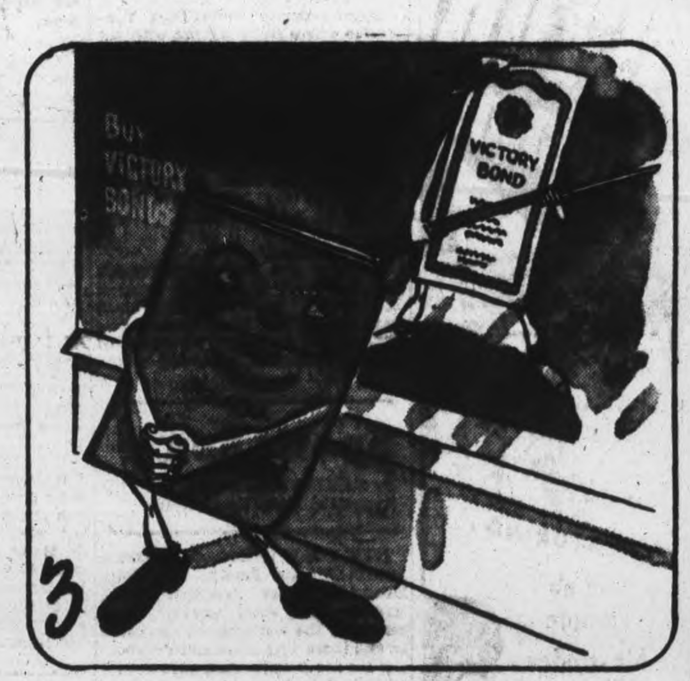
I want to Fight too!

Boy, am I getting fat! And no wonder. "The old man" (he's the depositor) keeps building me up. If he'd only let me "go active" in Victory Bonds! Makes me mad to think how much I could help!



Did you see what it's going to cost Canada to run this war this year? Six billion dollars! We can only meet that cost if everyone goes all-out to help! And that includes even "little me"!



If I could only "enlist" here and get to wear that uniform! That's the kind of battle dress I ought to have. Believe me; when our boys are fighting the war's most critical battles; it's not fair for me to shirk!

Just look what I could buy . . . stacks of anti-aircraft shells . . . vital parts for a Mosquito Bomber . . . or enough smoke bombs to hide the movements of gallant Canadian troops. But why go on?

Maybe if I hang this up in the old man's office, it'll give him the right idea. As a Victory Bond I'll pay good interest and be a swell nest egg for post-war days. The sooner he lets me "go active", the sooner we'll win!

PUT YOUR SAVINGS "ON ACTIVE SERVICE"

History's most terrible war is reaching its climax.

Gallant Canadians are fighting without shrinking from the deadly fire of a desperate and still powerful enemy. So we at home must not shrink from paying the cost of war in money—no matter how high it is.

Today the cost of war on all fronts has mounted to staggering sums! To meet it, every last Canadian who can possibly do so will need to buy Victory Bonds. And all must manage somehow to buy one more than before!

This certainly is little to ask. For Victory Bonds offer Canada's safest, soundest investment. At maturity your money will be returned. And in the meantime, you receive 3% interest.

Still—it's entirely up to you to decide whether or not you'll buy your full share. But before you decide —remember . . . every man overseas is fighting for you!

Will you volunteer to put your savings into Victory Bonds to fight for them?

A pile of burning leaves at Ashburnham Bowl Tuesday evening at suppertime, brought firemen to the scene, but no damage was caused and the little blaze was quickly extinguished.

STILL IN HOSPITAL

David Bedore, three-and-a-half years old, who had his leg broken in a collision between a truck and an automobile at Park and Lansdowne street, Saturday is still in St. Joseph's Hospital. The boy's home is in Marmora, and not Havelock, as stated in the first report of the accident. Mrs. Leal, River Road, who was also injured in the crash is confined to her home, after suffering injuries to her forehead and leg, requiring stitches, and also a number of bruises.

DIED OF WOUNDS

Trooper Richard Michael Rashotte, son of Joseph Rashotte of the French settlement near Tweed, died of wounds in Belgium, September 29. He was with a western unit of the Canadian Armored Corps.

CHILDREN'S SHOES

The standards division of Wartime Prices Board, Ottawa, has assigned two inspectors to the industries making children's shoes, one in Ontario and the other in Quebec, to scrutinize the quality of materials and production. The action has followed some suspicious of "degrading of quality."

A STURDY RUMOR

Cancellation of an order for funeral flowers is reported as an actual occurrence this week, and is something new in reportorial experience. A lively rumor of the death of a prominent citizen got about town as if with seven-league boots, and one of his friends who heard it accepted the source as reliable and immediately telephoned a florist, ordering a wreath of flowers. He could hardly credit the over-taking truth that his friend was making very satisfactory recovery.

KILLED IN FRANCE—Pte. Edward L. O'Connor has been killed in action in France, October 7, according to word reaching his wife, 591 Payne avenue. He was with the Toronto Scottish.

Pte. E. O'Connor Killed Overseas

Pte. Edward Lawrence O'Connor, whose wife (formerly Pearl Martin) and baby daughter live at 591 Payne avenue, has been officially reported killed in France, October 7, while serving with the Toronto Scottish Regiment, according to word reaching his wife. Previously, he had been listed as wounded August 27, but further information received by Mrs. O'Connor, refuted that telegram, although not giving any other details.

A former employee of the Canada Packers Company, Pte. O'Connor went overseas in December 1943, after enlisting in May of the same year. Twenty-two years of age, he received his education in Lindsay, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. O'Connor, are now living in Toronto.

Surviving are his wife, a daughter, Linda, six months old, his parents, one sister, Mrs. R. Carley, of Lindsay, and a brother, Steve, also of Lindsay.

November Beer Available Now

TORONTO, Oct. 18—(CP)—November beer ration coupons become valid at all beer outlets in Ontario today, it was announced last night by the Liquor Control Board of Ontario. The valid coupons are Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4, each good for six pints of beer. The ration remains unchanged at 24 pints or 12 quarts a month. The November coupons are in ration book No. 3, now being issued at beer outlets. Unused October coupons 1, 2, 3 and 4 remain valid until Oct. 31.

The announcement follows the Board policy of making the ration available in advance to eliminate lineups at beer outlets. The policy was first adopted six months ago, when May coupons became valid April 26. June coupons became valid May 22, July coupons June 19, August coupons July 19, September coupons Aug. 21 and October coupons Sept. 20.

Navy Auxiliary Packs 95 Christmas Boxes

Members of the Women's Auxiliary to the Navy met in St. John's Parish Hall, Tuesday afternoon, and packed 95 Christmas ditty boxes for Peterborough personnel in the Navy and Merchant Marine serving at distant points.

Similar boxes for hundreds of Peterborough sailors and Wrens whose addresses are closer to home will be packed and shipped during the first week in November.

Each of the boxes contained Christmas cake, cigarettes, writing paper, envelopes, chocolate powders, razor blades, package of cheese, biscuits, playing cards, peanuts, chocolate bars, chewing gum, a comb, magazines and socks or gloves or a woollen scarf or tuck-in.

Vegetable Sale To Repeat For War Victims

Last Saturday the Peterborough Vegetable Growers' Association held a sale of farm and garden produce at Herb Doig's stand on the market, for the purpose of raising money to give some relief to the victims of robot bomb attacks on the civilian population of the British Isles, besides contributing towards the special gift that will carry some cheer for Christmas to the children who have been evacuated from their homes for the same reason.

Since that time others besides those who gave donations in kind towards this effort have come forward with offers of assistance in a similar way, so it is planned to hold another sale next Saturday at the same stand, in an endeavor to still further increase the substantial amount of $93.99 which was raised at the stall last Saturday.

It is quite possible there are still others who would be glad to contribute some of their garden or farm produce to assist this effort, and if so it will be glady welcomed from both urban and rural sources by Mr. Doig, who will put the best effort possible into the sale of same on behalf of the worthy cause the Vegetabele Growers' Association thus seeks to assist. Among the donations already promised will be a few potted house plants, which go a long way during the winter months to keep the home bright.

Stamp Out Hitler Clubs

The work that these clubs have been and are doing, continues to present a bright picture on behalf of two different war assists, another of their nice donations amounting to $16 appearing in today's receipts for the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, which then naturally speaks of four times that amount in war savings certificates having been bought and paid for, giving them a total of $327 given to the fund, $1,308 contributed via these certificates towards the general war effort.

Credit goes largely to the Canada Packers and Kiwanis Clubs, the former of whom had Fred Storey (7 times a winner), Morris McFee, James Edwards (two wins), Henry Foster, Odell Watson and Harry Martin as winners, and the latter reporting Bill Ovens, Harold Coleman, Ted Pridham, Jack Sinclair, John Troke and M. White as such, while the James Clubs started by Mr. and Mrs. Morley James of Windsor and Lulu Burrell of Stirling as their winners. One can hardly pass on without paying a well deserved tribute to Bob Everitt for his fidelity to the cause in looking after this good assist to the fund.

The young folk (none of them are over seven) of the Primary Class at Bridgenorth United Church Sunday School also deserve much credit, for no group of such young folk have done better than they in helping the fund along, another of their contributions for $3 being listed today, which for people of such tender years speaks well of their thoughts towards the less fortunate boys and girls in Britain.

Handed in on the very day itself, a gift "In loving memery of my brother Bud, who gave his life in Italy one year ago October 17, by his brother Ed Sanders" shows just how they were thinking of him, and doing some good in his name as a tribute to his memory, on that day.

Sour Notes

SEATTLE, Oct. 18—(AP). —Two years of married life ended for Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe I. Miller in divorce court after Miller had testified that his wife had purchased a saxophone. He told the court: "The sour notes she blew drove me from the house."

IN SUB ACTION—Stoker Johnny Mortimer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mortimer, 255 Engleburn avenue, is serving on HMCS Ottawa, one of three destroyers recently credited with sinking an enemy U-boat. Prior to enlisting in 1942, he worked at the C.G.E., and a brother, Cpl. Doug Mortimer, is stationed at the Training Centre.

BQMS. J. Victor Awarded Service Medal

Another Peterborough soldier has been awarded the Canadian Efficiency Medal and Decoration for long and faithful service in the Dominion's armed forces. He is Battery Quartermaster Sgt. John Victor, who went overseas with the 4th Anti-Tank Battery and is now serving in Belgium. His wife at 507 Gilchrist street has received word of the award.

B.Q.M.S. Victor is a veteran of the First Great War, and in a recent letter to his wife said that he was now in the same area as he had been when he served overseas at that time.

He was one of the first to enlist here with the battery recruited by Major John A. Harstone.

Deputation Asks Highway Change

TORONTO, Oct. 18 — (CP) — A new route for the proposed dual highway on the section between Port Hope and Trenton was urged upon Minister of Highways G. H. Doucett to-day at Queens Park by W. A. Goodfellow, Progressive Conservative member for Northumberland, and deputation of 40 from the county, including Warden L. E. Kelly of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham. Mr. Doucett agreed to consider the change.

Mr. Goodfellow said the deputation urges that this 52-mile section of the road be routed straight east from Welcome, just north of Port Hope to a point north of the Trenton airport. The proposed survey takes a route south from Welcome, crossing the railway twice then slightly north again to Trenton.

The straight alignment Mr. Goodfellow said would serve the 15,000 people in the district better than if they followed the proposed survey. It would be less costly and would remove the proposed cost of nearly $1,000,000 for two clover leafs crossing the railway.

War—4 Years Ago

By The Canadian Press

OCT. 18, 1940—Air Ministry News Service said R.A.F. foiled German attempt to invade Britain Sept. 16, Vice-Admiral John C. Tovey appointed to supreme command of Home Fleet succeeding Admiral of the Fleet Sir Charles M. Forbes. British diplomats in Balkans gathered at Istanbul for conferences.

SERVING OVERSEAS—Sgt. E. Harold Louden, whose wife, formerly Audrey Ellis, lives at 255 [illegible] street, is stationed with the RCAF overseas, as a wireless air gunner. His mother, Mrs. Mabel Louden, lives at 201 Brock street.

Housing Need Creates Problem For Aid Society

A shortage of housing accommodation in which some families have been forced to break-up and scatter among friends and relatives, often resulting in making a proper reunion difficult, was one of the problems brought to the attention of the Children's Aid Society, at the monthly meeting held Tuesday afternoon in the City Building.

In her report to the Board members, Rachael Young, superintendent, said that while the situation at the present is not very extensive, it is always a serious one.

"It always seems so difficult for such families, who have split-up and gone to live in different homes, to reunite", Miss Young said. She observed that some mothers might feel relieved to have the responsibility of looking after youngsters lifted from them, and be rather loathe to again take back the work and trouble when the time comes for the family to live together again. "And then we have the very serious problem of overcrowding", Miss Young said, adding that the Society has been having a difficult time trying to get people to help themselves under such circumstances.

366 Visits

During the month of September, 161 office interviews and 366 visits took place, Miss Young's report continued. Other problems present were children without adequate supervision; incompatibility between husband and wife; non-support of child; non-attendance at school; baby found alone in automobile; juvenile delinquency; child being beaten; and three instances of unmarried parents.

A record number of people in mental institutions and hospitals came to light, when an attempt to have a 16-year-old boy admitted to the Ontario Hospital at Orillia, met with failure. "Lack of accommodation" was given as the reason. Members discussed the article recently printed in the Examiner, which outlined the space problem in mental hospitals in Ontario. It was stated that this boy's presence in the community is not fair either to himself or to other children who associate with him, and that the Society could not hold itself responsible for his actions. The boy is 16 years of age, and was first brought to the Children's Aid Society's attention in 1934.

During the month, 64 cases were examined; this includes the investigations for the Dependents Allowance Board and the Dependents' Board of Trustees. Seven children were admitted to the Shelter in the illness of both parents. Three adoptions were completed, and four children returned to their homes.

Reports Read

The sewing report for the month of September was given by Mrs. J. R. Marshall, Convener. Those who sewed during the month were Mrs. Marshall, Mrs. Graystock, and Mrs. Breckenridge. Articles mended numbered 102, and 20 pairs of hose.

The following made donations to the Society during the month: Mrs. M. Sharpe; Mrs. H. M. Yelland; Mrs. J. L. Smith; Mrs. D. V. Ketcheson; Mrs. R. Lewis, G. K. Fraser, Home and School Council; Ray Brown; The Kinettes; Albion Knitting Club; George street Baby Band; Trinity Knitting Club; Miss Roberta Keefer; Mrs. Fredericks; and the Trinity Baby Band. The members were advised in Mrs. Marshall's report that there is a great need for cast-off clothing that can be made-over and repaired for children, and that a telephone call to the Society offices or to any member of the committee, will receive prompt attention.

Mr. J. M. Fanning read the shelter report, and disclosed that during September, there were eight children in the Shelter. Fouteen children left the home, 11 were admitted, and by October 1, there were five children there. Two dental visits were made.

Those who donated food are Junior Welfare League, Fourth Field Battery Heavy Duty, Canadian Women's Voluntary Service, and Miss Skenfield.

Orphanage Report

A report in connecton with the orphanage was delivered by Mrs. F. J. Lynch. Mrs. Lynch revealed that in September, the Diocesan Executive of the C.W.L. formed an auxiliary to St. Vincent's Orphanage, to be known as the St. Vincent's Orphanage Auxiliary, which would meet every Thursday to sew and mend for the orphans. During the season from September to June, the women of the three city parishes made 32 pairs of pyjamas, 28 aprons for children; 18 pairs of long winter pants, 12 pairs of short winter pants, 14 winter overcoats or blazers, 42 pairs of short drawers or briefs, 36 dish-towels, 14 dishcloths, two dozen pillowslips, and three dozen sheets. All the above clothing was remodeled from used clothing sent in.

T. T. Rogers, Secretary, read the correspondence. A letter from Mrs. K. Tucker, a member unable to attend because of illness, was received and read, in which Mrs. Tucker regretfully tendered her resignation, because of the poor health. The Board decided to hold Mrs. Tucker's letter in abeyance until the end of the year.

In the absence of James Dutton, J. J. Kerchar, of Lakefield, was chairman.

LIKES THRILLERS

Librarians, like many other types of workers, receive all kinds of requests. Tuesday evening, a young man visited the Public Library, and in a low whisper, asked for "[illegible] blood-curdling murders." The librarian smiled. "Here are three designed to raise the hair on anyone's head," she replied blithely.

AT OVERSEAS POST — Sgt. Donald Kingdon, wireless air gunner with the RCAF, is stationed overseas. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Kingdon, 32 Barnardo Avenue, and worked in the Brinton office prior to enlisting two years ago.

Examiner Gives Party For Carriers

The Peterborough Examiner played host Tuesday evening to more than 95 young city newspaper carrier boys and girls, at a banquet and motion-picture show, held at the Y.M.C.A.

A former Examiner carrier-boy now in the Navy, Leading Seaman Cecil Courneya, was guest speaker for the evening. Home on leave from action overseas, where he served aboard the aircraft carrier Nabob, the young sailor outlined to the children the advantages of owning a newspaper route, and how a regular route can and does help children, both in business and social life.

For more than twenty years now, at least one person in the Courneya family has been delivering Examiners to other citizens. While the older boys and a sister are now in the Navy, the family tradition is being carried on today by Kenneth Courneya.

A turn-about policy was inaugurated during the banquet, when an acute shortage of waitresses to serve the children forced members of the Examiner Circulation staff to don aprons, and become waiters and waitresses for the evening.

A sing-song was held during the evening, led by Elwood Jones, of radio station CHEX. H. B. Cowan, Jr., circulation manager of the Examiner, spoke to the boys and girls briefly, urging them to keep up the good work, of delivering newspapers, to Peterborough people.

William Reid, of the local Victory Loan Committee, appealed to the children to invest just as much in Seventh Victory Loan Bonds, as they possibly could.

A thrilling pictorial review of the American invasion of New Britain island, in the Pacific theatre of war, was one of the films shown for the carrier-boys and girls. Entitled "The Attack," the film was actually filmed on the beachheads and battlefields of New Britain, and depicted American Marines landing on the island. Three comic films were also shown.

Kootenay And Ottawa Team Up On U-Boat Kill

OTTAWA, Oct 18 — H.M.C. destroyers Ottawa and Kootenay, with the assistance of H.M. corvette Statice, have written "finis" to another U-boat's career, it is announced by Hon. Angus L. Macdonald, Minister of National Defence for Naval Services. Successive depth charge attacks fired from the three ships opened the underwater raider and brought to the surface a litter of uniforms, clothing and stores. The sea was covered with debris, mute evidence of the death of one more Hun craft that dared the well-guarded convoy lanes.

This was the culmination of a long hunt led by Commander J. D. Prentice, D.S.O., R.C.N., the commanding officer Ottawa. The previous night while on anti-submarine patrol in company with H.M.C.S. St. Laurent, H.M.C.S. Ottawa had been ordered to join H.M.S. Brisenden which had established a U-boat contact. This was done and the target was attacked without a let-up. Then came the signal to rush to the help of H.M.S. Statice.

St. Laurent and Rawley were left with Brissenden and Ottawa and Kootenay drove in to aid Statice.

The Canadian destroyers reached the scene and this target, too, was hammered without remission. The Hun never had a chance to escape.

Deadly Charges.

Depth charges from Statice brought up a great well of oil from the U-boat, and a pattern of charges from Kootenay hit with deadly effect. Then Ottawa went in with a charge that exploded with perfect precision and the sea was boiling with debris.

Lieut. Eric Earnshaw, first lieutenant of the Ottawa, put out in a whaler and returned with three sacks of material proof that the enemy had "had it." From. Lt.-Cmdr. William H. Willson, R.C.N., commanding officer of Kootenay, and Lieut. R. Wolfenden, R.N., commanding officer of Statice, came signals reporting all that they had gathered from the area.

The action was a splendid piece of teamwork. When Ottawa was over the target Statice and Kootenay stood guard like terriers over a rathole, and when they ripped in with their death-dealing explosives Ottawa held station for them. The enemy never had the opportunity to fight back, for he was held and imprisoned by an almost constant chain of depth charges.

Took No Chances.

Yes Commander Prentice, the first Canadian naval officer to win the Distinguished Service Order in the present war, was not content to leave the target as long as it would be held. Ottawa, Kootenay, and Statice kept pounding it until nightfall, and then, satisfied that it was destroyed, abandoned it.

26-Pound Lake Trout Takes Meaford Trophy

MEAFORD, Oct. 18 —(CP) — Age is no bar to success in the art of fishing. Samuel Smith of Toronto won the 23rd annual lake trout trolling competition here when he landed one weighing 26 pound 10 ounces and 28 inches long. Mr. Smith is 85.

Victor Brunton of Toronto won second place with a 22-pound three-ounce beauty, while third place went to a Hamilton fisherwoman, Mrs. H. G. Carey, Meaford.

Herbert Rowe, in charge of the competition, said that because of an inability to obtain cups, a plague will be presented each winner.

SERVES IN FRANCE—After being overseas four years Pte. Harold Vollans, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Vollans, 468 Bolivar street, is now serving in France with the R.C.O.C. He transferred from the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment to that unit, while overseas.

Better Salaries Are Urged For Assessors

More adequate salaries for assessors of small municipalities was urged by Hon. G. H. Dunbar, Minister of Municipal Affairs, at the district meeting of the Association of Assessing Officers Tuesday in Belleville.

The Minister announced that the first school for assessors would be opened at Haileybury, November 1. Instruction is also provided for clerks and treasurers. He is also planning a conference on the provincial Assessment Act, the date of which will be made public this fall.

Max R. Sloan of Peterborough's assessment department, president of the District associations, was chairman of the meeting in its morning and afternoon sessions.

Four counties have already appointed county assessors, and several others intend to make similar appointments at their November sessions. Subjects featured in the program were the Assessment Act and its recent amendments, and the work and value of county assessors.

Representatives from Peterborough county included: Reeve M. [illegible] Johnston; Deputy-Reeve A. W. Archibald; Reg Hunter, assessor; Bruce Johnston, clerk, from North Monaghan.

Reeve James Humphries, Thomas Stevenson and Howard Gardner, assessor, Asphodel. M. R. Sloan and Bert Graham, Peterborough.

Douro—Reeve J. Mahoney, B. [illegible] Dench, assessor, J. J. Coughlin, clerk, R. Tedford.

56th Anniversary Observed By Knox Church

HAVELOCK, Oct. 16 — (ENS). — Anniversary services were held in Knox Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning and evening, commemorating the 56th anniversary of the building of the church.

The services were conducted by the minister, Rev. J. Davey, who came to the combined charges of Hastings, Norwood and Havelock last April, after a pastorate of 18 years at Dale Presbyterian Church in Toronto. The United Church withdrew their evening service and the minister, Rev. J. W. Wilkinson assisted in the service at Knox Church. Also present were Rev. S. A. Kemp and Dr. J. Reddick, retired United Church clergymen.

Rev. Davey took the 15th chapter of St. Luke as a basis for both sermons. The lost coin, the lost sheep and the lost boy, might well be termed three short chapters, he said, all dealing with the lost soul and sin was living the lower life, out of harmony with God, lost to God, and lost to the best things of life, wandering as it were in the wilderness. In speaking on world conditions, Mr. Davey pointed out that Germany had gone over the abyss and that we were very near the edge. He also dealt with the liquor question giving the number of charges of intoxication which had been for a week-end in court in one of our large cities and also the high rate of disease as given by statistics for the same centre. He stressed that a stupendous task faced the church today as these questions belong to the church.

Right With God

"You", he said, "are the body of Christ and there is a mighty challenge to you to work while it is day to bring about a realization of sin which will result in an uneasiness of mind, not satified with conditions in life, and the need of the Great Physician. The only solution is in getting right with God."

Special music was sung by the choir. The selections at the morning service were: Anthem, "Building of Life"; trio, "Worshipping Hearts Rejoice" by Miss Dora Ketchen, Mrs. F. Clarke and Fred Bennett. In the evening the same trio sang, "Jesus Lover Of My Soul". There was also an anthem, "Somehow I Know", and a solo by Fred Bennett, "Come Ye to Nazareth".

Presbyterian History

The history of Presbyterianism here dates back over 59 years, the first church being built where the Roman Catholic cemetery is now situated on the old Marmora-Norwood road. The first minister was Rev. James Carmichael, whose charge included Norwood. Later this church was sold and services were held over a store operated by A. V. Fuller.

With the completion of the railway in this district and the passing through here of the first passenger train in 1884, the village began to spring up around the station and shops quickly outgrew the few residences at what is now known as Old Havelock. The need was felt for a church in the midst of this new community and the present church was erected in 1888. The first minister of the new church was Rev. James McMillan and the trustees were Alex Mathison, Sr., John Cochrane, Sr., and John Wright of Belmont.

PROMOTED OVERSEAS—William J. Ridge, serving with the Perth Regiment in Italy, has been made a Major, his parents have been notified. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ridge of Millbrook.

Wm. Ridge Overseas Promoted To Major

MILLBROOK, Oct. 16 — (ENS). — Mr. and Mrs. John Ridge have received word from their elder son, William, that he has been advanced to the rank of Major, his official notice reaching him on September 16. Major Ridge, who is with the Perth Regiment, is still on active service in Italy.

Pte. Robert Ridge, a brother, who was wounded in France in the side, head, left shoulder, and back, and who has been in hospital in England, is now with a "holding unit", and his parents do not yet know if he will be returned to active service, or invalided home. Orval Wainman, another Millbrook boy who was wounded in France, is associated with the same holding unit as Robert Ridge, in England.

Foreign Trade Vital To Canada

WINDSOR, Oct. 18 — Canada must export in volume if the nation is to thrive and keep up its standard of living, James F. Pringle, Toronto, vice-president and general manager of the central region of Canadian National Railways, observed in a speech delivered before the Windsor Rotary Club at the Prince Edward Hotel.

Mr. Pringle pointed out that in regard to population Canada stands 31st, but as a trading nation she stands third, and "to no country, except possibly Great Britain, do foreign markets and export traffic mean more than they do to Canada."

Great Distances

Drawbacks of great distances and principal sources of raw materials such as mines, agricultural lands and manufacturing centres being situated a considerable distance from the sea-board, efficient and cheap transportation is necessary if Canada's export trade is to flourish, he said.

In production of weapons and war materials, Canada stands fourth among the United Nations, but "no war production plant is more important to the war effort than the Canadian railways" and Canada's production would have been of little value if adequate transportation to the battle fronts had not existed.

The load thrown on Canada's railways by the war was much greater than the average citizen had any cause to believe, Mr. Pringle indicated.

Prior to the war, he explained, the bulk of Canadian export traffic moved out of Montreal during the summer and Saint John and Halifax during winter. Owing to activities of German submarines, the St. Lawrence route was closed in 1942 and export traffic during both summer and winter had to be handled through Saint John and Halifax.

Curiosity Makes Pub Owner Wealthy Man

By FRANK LOWE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 18—(CP).—W.Y.P.A.P.I.T.B.I.I.T.Y.—on those initials a London pub-keeper has built a career.

Right now he keeps a pub, a jam-packed one, in the heart of London. You turn left at Buckingham Palace, skirt a bomb ruin, turn right at Dirty Dick's and "you caun't miss it." And once you're inside, and if you want to know, he will tell you how a set of initials started a butcher's delivery boy on the road to ease and comfort as proprietor of a tavern.

He'll swish a cloth over the bar to make a dry spot for his elbows, scratch his head reflectively as though he didn't know from memory what he was going to say and invariably start with "Well, I was a butcher's delivery boy at the time, about 30 years ago, and I wasn't earning enough money."

From then until he lets out a raucous "Time gentlemen" he can't be stopped; even dishing out suds for his thirsty customers only slows him down temporarily.

He points to a card with the initials, "W.Y.P.A.P.I.T.B.I.I.T.Y," and, with a grin, says: "They means 'Will you put a penny in the box if I tell you'." So sheepishly, you put a penny in the donation box and wait for the explanation.

It seems that in the village where he was delivering chops and steaks the local pub-owner was annoyed because his customers were not slipping their pennies into a box put there to help a charity. So the first sign was born—two weeks after it went up the box had to be emptied as every visitor of the pub had looked, wondered, asked and paid the penny as the price of their curiosity.

The butcher's delivery boy thought he had something there. He was right.

The next time a charity drive came up he offered his services — for so much of the take—for money-raising purposes. This time he didn't stick to his home village — he went to about 10 neighboring villages and in every pub put up the sign with the initials.

The response was even better and charity was happy and so was the by now ex-butcher's delivery boy. Curiosity and pennies seemed to offer a good living, so he started travelling around England. And as English pubs are innumerable and the gullibility of their patrons inexhaustible, he rapidly increased in wealth.

Finally, however, the wandering life lost its charm. So he fulfilled the ambition of every Englishman and bought a pub in London.

And there he is today with the sign W.Y.P.A.P.I.T.B.I.I.T.Y. behind him. "I keep it strictly for sentimental reasons," he said, "and don't make any money off it now. Everything that goes in the box goes to the Red Cross."

Pickering Crime 7 Years Old Brings Trial

WHITBY, Oct. 18—A baffling and sadistic murder of the caretaker of a Jewish boys' camp near Pickering, that has defied solution for seven years, had its first airing before an Assize Court jury Tuesday, as the Crown began weaving a pattern of circumstantial evidence with which it hopes to convict Sam Michael of the murder in 1937 of Michael Sheveluk.

The mutilated body of the 35-year-old caretaker, who was shot through the heart, was found on a sideroad near the camp on Nov. 27, 1937. Michael, a 44-year-old Pickering township farmer, was arrested on the murder charge on August 8, 1944.

In his opening address to the jury and in examination of Crown witnesses, Crown Attorney A. F. Annis hinted that a love triangle involving Michael, his wife, and Sheveluk motivated the crime which the presiding judge, Mr. Justice McFarland, characterized as "sadistic."

Entered as Exhibits

Entered as exhibits by the Crown were the remains of the bullet taken from the body of Sheveluk, one of the Crown's most important exhibits; a bloodstained magazine called Health and Hygiene, carrying an article entitled "Behind the Sex Crime," and a series of photographs of the mutilated body.

Arthur Slaght and E. J. Murphy are defending Michael.

The body of Sheveluk, whose head was propped up by the magazine filed in court, was found on the sideroad by Herbert White at about 7 p.m., White testified.

Ian Munro, who lived on a farm adjacent to the scene of the murder, testified he heard a shout followed by a shot at 6.30 p.m. Munro testified he had known Michael for 18 years. Under cross-examination by Mr. Slaght, he described Michael's character as exemplary.

Ole Christensen, with whom Sheveluk lived at the time of the murder, testified that the dead man had lived with the Michael family for a six-month period prior to moving in with him. Christensen testified that on one occasion when Sheveluk was working in the camp, Michael aproached and Sheveluk hid in the cellar of a house.

Doctor Gives Testimony.

Dr. Henry Pearson, Ontario County coroner, who admitted under cross-examination by Mr. Slaght that evidence he had given at the preliminary hearing was untrue, testified that, as the Michael family physician for 15 years, he had delivered three of Mrs. Michael's children. The doctor testified that, though Michael had assisted at all previous confinements, during delivery of a child born to Mrs. Michael after the murder, Michael was not present.

Though vigorous objection to this testimony was raised by Mr. Slaght, Mr. Justice McFarland observed: "I can see where it might have a bearing. You can, too, of course."

Quoting from testimony given by Dr. Pearson at the preliminary hearing that there was nothing unusual about Michael's conduct at the time of the birth of the baby, Mr. Slaght asked, "Was that statement true?"

"No," replied the doctor with a vigorous shake of his head.

From Dr. W. L. Robinson, pathologist, who performed the autopsy on Sheveluk's body, Mr Slaght elicited under cross-examination that the type of man who committed the crime would not probably be a "family man—a farmer who for 18 years has won the esteem of his neighbors."

Cross-examination was directed by Mr. Slaght at Stephen Francis, operator of a sporting goods store on York Street in Toronto, who testified Michael had purchased a .32 calibre Winchester rifle and ammunition from him in 1937.

Hints at Old Feud.

It was shortly after the rifle was sold to Michael that police came to question him, Francis said. He added that the rifle had not been paid for, and he had no record of the sale to Michael, whom he knew as a fellow-Syrian.

"You never in your life allowed a man to leave your store without making an entry in your book if the article was not paid for," Mr. Slaght shouted at Francis.

Mr. Slaght suggested that Francis had vowed to get even with the Michael family after Michael's father had Francis jailed in Syria for destroying his grape and fig trees.

Francis denied all knowledge of the incident and asserted he had never been in jail in his life.

Apsley Family Adopts Partridge As Pet

APSLEY, Oct. 17— (ENS)— The Buott family in this district have a way with animals. A partridge flew against a window in the home, breaking the glass but not harming itself. One of th small children was frightened by its appearance, but the bird is still living quietly in captivity. The same family captured a baby raccoon which they also have as a pet.

Near this house a truck driver along the highway saw a large deer come running through the bush and when it came to the wire fence it was unable to jump over it owing to its exhausted condition. It is presumed that it had been chased by wolves, numerous in that locality.

So-Ed Courses To Begin On October 25

The delightful possibilities of entertainment to be derived from the Arts, as well as facts about the business of living, will be featured in the So-Ed lectures which begin October 25, with a social evening.

Arnold Ward, secretary of the West Toronto Community Y.M.C.A. who was here a year ago, will be a guest at the opening meeting. He is a specialist in mass recreation and will be in charge of entertainment for the evening.

Courses in recreation are under the leadership of Rev. G. F. Kelly of Lakefield and will include lectures on planning a social evening, technique of leadership, preparing games and recreational material. Art appreciation is under the direction of Miss Earla MacVannel, and she will discuss Canadian painting, picture appreciation and art and its place in life. Miss Isabel Weddell is presenting a course in music appreciation which will include instruments of the orchestra, folk music, school of music and a symphony.

Study Theatre

One of the most interesting courses listed is "Talking of The Theatre," which will be conducted by Brenda Davies, former stage manager of the old Vic Theatre, London, England, and Robertson Davies, author of Shakespeare's Boy Actors. They will discuss "what makes a play, what the producer does, what the actor does, what happens at rehearsal and the question of a theatre for Canada.

On the more practical side of things, a course is being offered on "stretching your dollars." It will be under the co-chairmanship of Maurice E. Holt and A. J. Boorne, and lectures will be given in their course by Harold Howay, Lyda Telford, Charles Saunders, J. Jebson, C. S. Collins and T. T. Rodger.

Courses in effective presiding under Mrs. Maurice Holt, marriage conducted by Rev. H. J. Mahoney and reading for pleasure under Robertson Davies, will also be organized.

Mr. and Mrs. Fell Observe Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. William Fell, who operated a general store in Bailieboro for many years, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, Tuesday, at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Roy Greer, Bailieboro. Although the couple lived in Port Hope and Peterborough for a time, they returned to Bailieboro six years ago.

In the afternoon a reception was held from 3 to 6 when Mr. and Mrs. Fell received their friends, assisted by Mrs. Greer and their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Victor Fell of Burks Falls, and Mrs. Hannah Marshal of Peterborough, sister of the groom.

Mrs. Wilfred Jewison was at the door and Miss Olive Marshal of Peterborough escorted the guests to the dining room. Mrs. Jessie Dawson, wife of the best man of 50 years ago, poured tea, along with Mrs. Hector Jewison of Oshawa. The dining room was decorated with yellow and bronze 'mums, and the table was covered with a white linen cloth, centred with a wedding cake. Ivory tapers in crystal candle holders also graced the table.

Those assisting with the serving were: Mrs. Percy Moncrief, Mrs. James Johnston, Miss Elva Jewison, Mrs. Herbert Dawson, and Mrs. Edwin Eagleson.

In the evening 200 friends and neighbours gathered at Mrs. Greer's home and after a short musical program, a presentation was made to Mr. and Mrs. Fell, by Mrs. Blanche Dawson and Wilbert Barnard. Mrs. Fell received a suede black purse with money, and her husband a bill fold containing money. Rev. Mr. Malcolm, a retired minister at Bailieboro and Rev. Arthur McConnachie, United Church minister, also assisted with the presentation.

Many telegrams, and flowers were received by the couple and these included 50 gold-colored roses from their son, Lt.-Col. Victor R. Fell, overseas, and basket of roses from their grandson, Lt. John Fell at Camp Borden. Guests were present from Toronto, Oshawa, Port Hope and Peterborough.

Three children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Fell, two of whom survive. They are Mrs. Roy Greer and Lt.-Col. V. Fell. Mrs. Harry Chambers of Detroit, predeceased her. There are also four grandsons, LAC. Ralph Greer of Moncton; Lt. John Fell, Camp Borden; Jack and Bobby at home.

Euchre Party To Aid Home

A successful euchre party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Harrison, 26 Ware street, recently by members of the Dr. Barnardo Club. As there were only a few men present, the women captured all the prizes. Mrs. Jack Williams was the winner of the women's first prize, and Mrs. Siddall won the women's second prize. The men's first prize was won by Mrs. Percy Smith, and Mrs. F. Mathews received the men's second prize. The winners of the booby prizes were Mrs. H. Clapham and Mrs. Riel. Mrs. W. Firth was the winner of the lucky door prize. The sum of $8 was realized for their Christmas tree fund, which is sent to the children of the Dr. Barnardo Homes, London, England. There are 8,000 children at present in these homes, and the club intends to hold several more activities in their aid.

Eskimo History Told To Club

A detailed history of the Eskimo population in Canada was presented at a meeting of Trinity Club Tuesday night, when an old member, Harvey Shier, was guest speaker.

The most outstanding point in this talk was the fact that only 7,700 Eskimos are living in Northern Canada. He said that they were originally Mongolian and acme to northren Canada across a neck of land at the Bering Sea, which then connected North America with Asia. Mr. Shier concluded his talk with a list of percentages causing death, the second highest of which was tuberculosis.

The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. Dick Clayton and she was assisted by Misses Edna Elliot and Madelyn McWilliams. Dick Clayton was in charge of the recreation and Miss McWilliams provided the refreshments. The next meeting will be in charge of Miss Elva Elliott.

Business Women Hear John Hornal

John Hornal, superintendent of Nicholls Hospital, spoke to the members of the Business and Professional Women's Club at their supper meeting Monday night. The tables were decorated with autumn leaves and assorted fruits in pumpkin shells.

In his address Mr. Hornal dealt with the details of the plans for the new civic hospital as planned by the committee. The speaker gave details of costs and methods of financing and maintenance. At the close of his address he answered questions to clear up some points brought forward by members. Miss Thornton expressed the thanks of the listeners to Mr. Hornal.

Clothing for "Bundles for Britain" may be left at the Lyda Telford shop, and Mrs. Austin announced the date for rummage sale, November 17th.

Mrs. Bennett, accomuanied by Miss Agnes Grant, sang two solos. Miss Grant was accompanist throughout the evening.

The discussion group night is Monday, November 6.

Work Of Padre Described to WMS

The life of an army padre was the theme of the address given by Rev. Capt. W. I. D. Smith, of the Training Centre, at the Autumn thankoffering meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's Church on Tuesday afternoon.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Harris, and gave a description of a normal day's routine in an English camp. He expressed the hope that discussion groups among the boys, such as are held in England, will soon begin in Canada.

Mrs. Campbell reported eleven books in the library, and a Mission Band concert, to be held in the Sunday School on October 27 was announced. The program will be entitled "Cinderella" and will be given by St. Andrew's and Trinity Mission Bands. Mrs. R. H. Radford was at the piano throughout the meeting. The guest soloist was Mrs. H. F. Doig, accompanied by Mrs. James Goldie. The November meeting will be in charge of Miss Margaret Ferguson, and the December meeting under the direction of the Clara Barns' group. At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by the executive.

Training To Face Life Given Collegiate Girls

An insight into the new plan of guidance toward a better type of living, given to collegiate girls, by presenting a philosophy of life, and encouraging and fostering a correct attitude toward life, was given by Miss W. Ashplant, of London, addressing the evening meeting of the Regional Conference of Home and School Associations on Tuesday.

Introducing her topic, an outline of the course she was conducting as health council for the London Secondary Schools, Miss Ashplant said that when the world seemed darkest, it was time to think of the light, and think of the ideals and freedom for which men are fighting. She explained that with freedom, came responsibility, and the emotional development and social life of the child, was a definite responsibility.

Miss Ashplant, a graduate nurse, with wide experience in Victorian Order work, and in hospitals in the United States, admitted that she felt a little unwilling to undertake the task of health councillor for over 300 secondary school girls in London. However, she explained that the medical officer of health drew up an outline, and she began her classes. She said that she had noticed that girls did not want to be different, with the large numbers of girls' club as sufficient proof. She therefore began the course of training with a definite idea in mind—the presenting of a philosophy of life which would help the girls to meet their own problems, and relating each line of discussion with their experiences.

Can Direct Life

In a short review of the topics discussed under her plan, the speaker said that it was pointed out that no one had control over inheritance, but could control how that inheritance would be used. Emotional growth was related to physical growth, and attitudes derived from environment were discussed, always endeavoring to relate each point with emotions the girls had experienced. Anatomy and physiology were also studied.

Miss Ashplant went on to explain that these topics were outlined to teach the students to present the proper attitude to each problem. She said that the home, school and church should share the responsibility of this education, but that the school was the one place where attendance was compulsory, and thus the best suited for the purpose, although she stressed that the home, and the church also, must certainly assist. By relating emotional maturity to every day circumstances, she endeavors to give the girls a groundwork to enable them to make decisions and to accept responsibility.

"Here," she said, "the Home and School can help, by showing pagents the need for such guidance. Try to help children to choose the right spirit to meet changes and problems in life, always looking to the light of high ideals."

Describes Course

C. S. Browne, principal of the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School, gave a brief outline of the Vocational Guidance set-up recently introduced at the school. He explained that all the teachers had been practicing guidance to their pupils, but that increased service could now be given through the introduction of a vocational guidance instructor, and the co-ordination of the efforts of the teachers, through a 'pooling' of information. He explained that forms were filled out by Grade Eight teachers regarding pupils entering Grade Nine, and that home room periods were being conducted, so that the teacher could become more closely acquainted with the special class which was his responsibility.

Mr. Browne extended an invitation to any parents to visit him at any time, to discuss their children, said that the need at the collegiate for an organization similar to the Home and School was recognized, but that he hoped the vocational guidance scheme would help in some way.

Brings Greetings

Greetings from the Board of Education were brought by the chairman of the Board, G. Wilson Craw, who said that Boards of Education and Home and School Associations have much in common, since they have the same object in view,—the welfare and education of children. Paying tribute to the Home and School associations for the progress made in education during the past 20 years, he said that there was still a great deal to be done.

Mr. Craw said that the Home and School associations could be a great help in overcoming juvenile delinquency and other children's problems, since the home was the first school, and the parents' responsibility for the children did not cease when they started to school. Realizing that the task facing the home education committee would be difficult, he expressed his confidence that the Home and School could surmount those problems as they had others in the past. He also spoke of the overcrowding being experienced in Peterborough schools, but said that he felt no board was justified in building additions at the present time, because it was not definite whether the influx of people to factory centres like Peterborough during war years, would remain permanently.

149 Present

Quirt McKinney of the Normal School, conducted an interlude of music with group singing, and all the delegates taking part. Mrs. J. E. Richards presided. The registrar gave the total attendance at the afternoon session as 102, with 47 additions for the night session. One hunored and twenty-six tickets were sold for the banquet, catered for by the women of Murray Street Baptist Church, where the conference was held. Mrs. E. Chambers announced the forthcoming education week, and said that the week would be opened by a special evening service in Trinity United Church on November 5, and invited all Home and School members to join and worship together. Mrs. W. R. Morris introduced Mr. Craw.

Use Vote

"Civic Responsibility" the theme of the conference, was taken as her topic by Mrs. J. E. Richards, speaking after the supper. Presenting a challenge to the citizens of Peterborough, she asked them if they were true citizens, and urged them to make use of their privilege to vote for the people of their choice. She said that women should take more interesting civic questions, and learn the rulings and workings of their municipal offices.

She cited education groups and discussion groups as two ways in which the Home and School could help foster civic responsibility, and urged members to support every endeavor along these lines. In conclusion, she advised her audience to read the Home and School creed, setting forth the ideals for which the Home and School stood, and strived.

Brief messages were presented to the gathering by Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, who brought greetings and a welcome from Murray Street Church, and Mrs. W. R. Morris, and K. S. Wightman. Mrs. E. Chambers introduced the guests sitting at the head table, and paid tribute to the excellent assistance given to her by her executive. Decorations were appropriately carried out in the Home and School colors, blue and gold.

Miss Helen Parkinson was soloist at the banquet, and sang three selections, "The Valley of Laughter," "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes" and "The False Prophet." She was accompanied by Miss Elsie Chambers. In the afternoon, Mrs. R. L. Hale was soloist. Pianist for the occasion was Mrs. H. V. Dobson.

Rebekah Lodge Instals Officers

The officers for the coming year were installed at a meeting of the Golden Link Rebekah Lodge 81, held on Tuesday evening. The installation of officers was conducted by District Deputy President Maud Armstrong of Millbrook, assisted by Bella Bently, District Deputy Marshal. The officers elected were as fellows: Noble Grand Beatrice Gurney; V.N.G. Mable Wood; Recording Secretary, Ethel Barrie; Financial Secretary, Rose Sexsmith; Treasurer, Laura Miller; Warden, Grace Webb; Conductor, Eleanor Murphy; Chaplain, Mary Wheeler; Musician, Elva Throope; R.S.N.G., Elizabeth Rowe; L.S.N.G., Elizabeth McKinstry; R.S.V.G., Ellen Bullett; L.S.V.G Edith Ridyard; Inside Guardian, Gertrude Bryett; and Outside Guardian Robert Murduff. Charter Members were Robert Murduff and Mrs. Murduff, Bert Watts and Mrs. Watts, Toronto, Elizabeth Hartley, and Josephine Batten. There were also five present who have been members of the lodge for 35 years. The guest soloist was Mrs. Thelma Olsen, who sang "Sunshine of Your Smile", and "Out of the Dusk to You". She was accompanied by Mrs. Nelda Pierson, who also entertained throughout the evening with other piano solos. Annie Worboy and her committee were conveners of the banquet which was served at the conclusion of the regular meeting.

Full Cooperation Of Parents Conference Topic

The value of cooperation between parents, teachers, and the community, and the common interest which should draw them together — children — was stressed by Mrs. L. T. Boyd, of Kingston, addressing the regional conference of Peterborough and Lindsay Home and School Association's Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Boyd is a convener of the Ontario Federation of Home and Schools.

Taking as her main topic "Cooperation, the Keynote of Tomorrow", Mrs. Boyd said that there was no organization which offered to parents as many opportunities through cooperation, as the Home and School, and that it had the power to become a strong force within its community. Again the thought of working together was stressed, when the speaker said that the Home and School Association could only become an effective unit when close cooperation existed between parents themselves, between parents and teachers, and the Association and the community.

She explained that parents must be interested in the work in order to become a part of it, suggesting that a careful plan be set up to interest parents in the Association, by asking them to take part in the programs. "The programs themselves", she continued, "should be well balanced, and good speakers are an asset. Friendliness and good fellowship are absolutely necessary, however", she went on, "the basis upon which the Association will successfully function, is the attention which is given to stressing the importance of the child, Canada's most precious resource."

Mrs. Boyd explained that, in order that all children may have every opportunity to prepare for the fulfillment of their destiny, cooperation between parents must be obtained, which is interwoven with the equally important cooperation between parents and teachers. She said that most teachers were keenly interested in any means which would bring parents to the school, and that the training young teachers were receiving, was educating them to regard the Association as a part of the school set-up.

Community Influence

In conclusion, Mrs. Boyd spoke of the Association and its relation to the community, the province, the country, and the world. She said that Association members should be good community members, not only as an Association but also individually, and that Associations, working together, could be a great factor toward moulding public opinion. Speaking of the welfare of the child, the prime purpose of Home and School Associations, Mrs. Boyd said that all efforts directed toward this aim would be richly repaid, by a finer and better community, made up of finer and better citizens.

"It isn't enough, however," she went on," that each community live within its own small sphere. The day of isolation, of either the individual, community or country, has passed." She explained that a Home and School Council, wherever possible, was a stronger factor in working toward a goal, since it carried more weight than one Association. A concerted effort by the the Provincial Federation was stronger still, and the action of the Canadian Federation would be a power felt from sea to sea.

"As citizens, seh concluded,' not only of one small corner, or the country, but of the world, it is our duty to strive to build such a civilization as shall give our children and our children's children, their rightful heritage— a peaceful, happy, cooperative world."

Later in the afternoon, conference groups were conducted under the following topics: Parents and Teacher Relationships, junior grades, taken by Miss O. Armstrong; Parent and Teacher Relationships, senior grades, F. H. Dearborn; Features of Committee Word, taken by Mrs. L. T. Boyd; Association Leadership, taken by Mrs. J. E. Richards. Mrs. V. R. Henry conducted the Literature Table, and Mrs. E. Chambers, president of the Peterborough Home and School Council conducted the opening exercises and the introductions and greetings. Mrs. A. Ellis was in charge of registration.

Splendid Cough Syrup Easily Mixed at Home

It's So Easy! Makes a Big Saving. No Cooking.

To get quick relief from a distressing cough, mix this recipe in your own kitchen. Once tried, you'll say it's your favorite cough medicine, and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a fewmoments, until dissolved. Anyone can do it. No cooking needed. (Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.)

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a special compound of proven ingredients in concentrated form, well known for its prompt action on throat membranes.

Put the Pinex into a 16 ounce bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make 16 ounces of very efficient medicine, and you get four times as much for your money. It tastes fine and never spoils.

And for quick, satisfying relief, it is splendid. You can feel it penetrating the air passages and taking hold of the cough. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

DOROTHY DIX . . . . .

MOTHER CANNOT ESCAPE DUTY

Girl Must Grow Up and Accept Responsibility For Care of Child

DEAR MISS DIX—I am fed up with married life. Have been married two and a half years and have a baby 14 months old who is a little devil on wheels. He never goes to sleep before 10 o'clock at night. Tears apart everything in the house, and even as I write this letter I hear his nasty, spoiled cry, and my nerves are completely wrecked.

I long to be back at my old job, but my husband tells me that we are through if I go to work, because it would change his classification in the draft. What I plan to do is to go to work and let my mother keep my baby. I would be so much happier, but would I be doing justice to the man I love?

A WIFE.

Problems Must Be Solved

ANSWER—The best thing for you to do is to grow up. Be adult. Evidently you are still mentally a child, with a child's lack of any sense of responsibility or of meeting any of the obligations you have assumed. You are not trying to solve your problems. You are just running away from them, and it can't be done. When you try to dodge one, you will find that a worse one has arisen in its place.

You are tired of taking care of a restless little child and you calmly propose to dump him on your mother, with no thought of the burden he will be upon HER, and that it is hard on an old woman to run after a crawling baby. But if you have any vestige of a mother's heart in you, no matter how far you go you will never be far enough not to hear a little boy crying for M-o-t-h-e-r.

Wake up from your dream that you can go through life doing just what you want to do. Quit acting like a spoiled child. Be a woman and meet a woman's responsibilities. That is the only way you will find any happiness.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX — Is it advisable for a medical student, 22 years of age, to marry before he has finished his course? The young man in question is very much in love with his fiancee who is 21. Next year he will be in the army. At present his room and board are being paid for by his father, but that is all the help that he can give. His future wife intends to work until he graduates. He proposes to specialize in surgery. What do you think?

E. R.

Marriage Handicaps Medical Student

ANSWER—I think it is highly undesirable for a young medical student, and especially one who intends to specialize in surgery, to get married when he has no money on which to support a wife, and when there is such a long, long road of preparation ahead of him before he will be able to begin the practice of his profession.

It will handicap him in every way. It will distract his attention from his studies, and give him a whole batch of extra things to worry over and, believe me, any lad who is trying to work his way through a medical education has troubles enough without adding domestic cares to them.

My earnest advice to you is to put off your marriage until you have graduated and are in a position to support a family.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a woman of 22 with a little girl of 4. After the death of my husband I went West and lived with his family for 2 years. While I was gone my mother married a man 10 years younger than she. A year ago I returned to live near my mother and met her husband for the first time. We fell in love with each other almost at first sight.

What shall we do? Shall we ask her to divorce him so we can marry? Or should I go away and keep my mother from knowing how her husband feels about me?

ANSWER—I think that what you should do depends upon how your mother feels about her young husband. If she loves him very much and is happy with him, and they get along well together, I think you should fade out of the picture.

But if it is just one of the foolish marriages that old women sometimes make, and if your mother and her husband are not congenial, then lay your cards all on the table and ask her to decide the matter. She may be very glad to be free again, or she may love you and her boy husband well enough to be willing to sacrifice her happiness to insure hers.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, October 17

A FAIRLY promising day for activity in the direction of achieving high ambitions, with increased finances or credit, in which fresh and important propositions of plans may be advanced through favors, personal popularity and influence, together with a gracious yielding or agreement should opposition arise. Employ tact and ingenuity rather than force or obstinacy. Be shrewd with writings, contracts and make changes if needful. Pleasure and romance may also be anticipated.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year in which there may be definite growth and expansion in attaining cherished ambitions, with tact, shrewdness and personal popularity or social prestige, rather than cut and dried business tactics. Use skill, through speech or writings, rather than for forcing critical issues, and confer with superiors of power and responsibility. There should be pleasant contacts, perhaps romantic, as well as financial and professional, if new opportunities for progress be wisely manipulated.

A child born on this day may have many qualifications for attaining cherished hopes and wishes, with those in power substantially assisting.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

There are so many people who like salads that I have been requested to give some recipes for them. Below you will find some salad recipes that are most delicious.

Orange Frosted Grape Salad

1 tablespoon gelatin, 2 tablespoons cold water, ½ cup of orange juice (heated), ¾ cup orange juice unheated, ¼ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 cup orange pieces, ¼ cup seedless grapes, ½ cup sliced peaches, orange sections, frosted grapes.

Soften gelatin in water five minutes. Dissolve in the heated orange juice and cool. Add the unheated orange juice, lemon juice and sugar. Chill. When slightly thickened, add orange pieces, grapes and peaches. Pour into individual molds and chill until firm. Unmold and garnish with orange sections and clusters of frosted grapes. (Dip grapes in slightly beaten egg white, then in granulated sugar. Spread on a paper to dry.) Serve with lemon mayonnaise.

Lemon Mayonnaise

1 egg or 2 gg yolks, ¼ cup lemon juice, 1 teaspoon of mustard, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar, dash of pepper, 2 cups salad oil. Beat the egg, or egg yolks, lemon juice and seasonings thoroughly. Add the oil very slowly until mixture beings to thicken. Then add remaining lemon juice. Gradually beat in remainder of oil and continue beating until well blended.

Coconut, Celery and Apple Salad

1½ cups mixed, diced tart apples and celery, ½ cup shredded cocoanut 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 4 tablespoons oil, 4 tablespoons orange juice, salt, paprika, lettuce leaves, currant or plum jelly.

Mix the apples, celery, coconut. Sprinkle with lemon juice. Add a French dressing made from the oil and orange juice with salt and paprika to taste. Line a salad bowl with lettuce leaves and pile the chilled salad in the centre. Dot with currant or plum jelly.

Some different ways of serving potatoes are given today. Potatoes, cooked and served in the following ways, make up the entire first part of your lunch or supper. Then with some simple dessert, of fruit, your meal is ready to put on the table.

Potatoes Suzette.

6 medium sized potatoes, ½ cup milk, 2 tablespoons melted fat, 6 eggs, 6 tablespoons buttered crumbs, 1 tablespoon grated cheese, salt and pepper.

Bake potatoes, remove a piece of skin from the side of each potato and scoop out the inside, being careful not to break the skin. Mash the potatoes well and refill the shell almost to the top. Break an egg into each opening, season with salt and pepper and sprinkle with buttered crumbs, that have been mixed with grated cheese. Bake in a slow oven 350 degrees F. long enough to set the egg. Brown lightly, about six minutes. Serve at once.

Spanish Potatoes.

1 tablespoon minced onion, 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper, 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento, 4 tablespoons cooking fat, 2 cups cold boiled potatoes diced, ½ cup cold cooked ham, chopped, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon paprika.

Saute the onion, pepper and pimiento in the fat until a light brown. Add the diced potatoes, chopped ham and seasonings and cook until thoroughly heated through.

Mashed Sweet Potato Caramel.

2 cups mashed sweet potatoes, milk, pepper and salt, ½ cup maple syrup, ¼ cup butter.

Left-over sweet potatoes, either baked or boiled, may be used for this dish. Mash potatoes and add sufficient milk or cream to make a smooth soft paste. Season with salt and pepper. Put into a well-greased casserole or baking dish, suitable for serving at table, and pour in thick maple syrup which has been boiled with butter. Bake until the top begins to caramelize. Serve at once.

No shortage of Goodness

These days, few women are getting as much Jell-O and Jell-O Pudding as they would like. So clever cooks are learning to extend these family favorites in dozens of different ways.

Jell-O and Jell-O Puddings are so deliciously full-flavored that you can add available ingredients to make them go farther, and still be sure of tempting, wholesome goodness in every serving!

TROPICAL ORANGE CREAM

1 package JELL-O Vanilla Pudding
2 cups milk
Chocolate, ginger, or other sweet wafers
Segments of 4 oranges

Prepare Jell-O Pudding with milk, as directed on package. Cool. Line sides of a dessert bowl with wafers. Cover bottom of bowl with oranges, and pour in Jell-O Pudding. Top with a thick layer of wafer crumbs, and chill. Accompany by cream or top milk. Six or eight servings.

Note: Fingers of light cake and cake crumbs may replace wafers. Preserved peaches are a delicious alternative for the oranges.

JELLIED WALDORF SALAD

1 package Lemon JELL-O
2 cups hot water
4 teaspoons vinegar
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup (each) diced celery and apple
¼ cup nutmeats, if available
¼ cup thick salad dressing

Dissolve Jell-O in hot water. Add vinegar and ¼ teaspoon salt. Chill until slightly thickened. Season celery and apple with ¼ teaspoon salt; fold into slightly thickened Jell-O. Add nuts. Add to dressing, mixing well. Turn into wet mould. Chill until firm. Unmould on crisp lettuce. Six to eight servings. If desired, additional dressing may be served with the salad.

JELL-O and JELL-O Puddings

If your grocer is temporarily out of Jell-O or Jell-O Puddings, please don't blame him. He's doing the best he can, to make his limited supplies go 'round.

Needlecraft Pattern

by Laura Wheeler

A LOVABLE DOLL

She'll take a lot of bumps, and will never cry. She sits up, lies down; her arms and legs move; she has yarn hair to braid.

This rag doll is begging you to make her and her pinafore and blouse. Pattern 702 contains pattern, directions for doll clothes.

O'Brien-Allen Vows Pledged

Immaculate Conception, prettily decorated with baby 'mums and roses, was the setting of a charming wedding Monday when Doris Allen, daughter of Mrs. Bessie Allen, of Mountain, Ontario, became the bride of Edward Thomas O'Brien, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O'Brien, Robinson street. Rev. Father Green[illegible]an officiated, and the music was played by Mrs. Cyril O'Donnell. During the signing of the register Mrs. D. Campanaro sang "Ave Maria."

Given in marriage by Mr. Kevi[illegible] Fitzgerald, brother-in-law of the groom, the bride was charming in [illegible] gown of white duchess satin, trimmed with point d'esprit lace, with sweetheart neckline, and long tor[illegible] bodice. The long full sleeves, trimmed with lace, were pointed at the wrist. Her finger-tip veil was [illegible] embroidered tulle, caught with se[illegible] pearls. She carried a bouquet [illegible] American Beauty roses.

Miss Aileen Fitzgerald, bridesmai[illegible] was frocked in pink chiffon ov[illegible] taffeta, with matching headdre[illegible] She carried a bouquet of Talism[illegible] roses. The best man was Barna[illegible] O'Toole, and the ushers James Mu[illegible]ray and Martin Sullivan.

After the ceremony a recepti[illegible] was held at Hooper's Palm Roo[illegible] where the bride's mother receiv[illegible] wearing a gown of black crepe, w[illegible] matching accessories. She carri[illegible] a bouquet of Bettertime roses. LONDON — (CP). — Brita[illegible] youngest preacher is 11-year-[illegible] Donald Peake who gave a serie[illegible] three sermons in a London con[illegible]gational church. Donald learned [illegible] preach by accompanying his fa[illegible] a clergyman, to services in sho[illegible] centres during the blitz days.

EAST'S TOP SCORER IS ARMY "SUB"—Here is Glenn Davis, listed only as a substitute in Army's great array of backs, who today stands as the top scorer of the eastern football section which includes college and service teams. The 175-pound, five-foot, nine-inch Los Angeles boy, has scored 42 points on seven touchdowns.

Grove Nets Game 27-7 Good Kicking Counts

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 18—(ENS)—Recovering quickly after a slow start in the first quarter, the Grove first team defeated Lakefield High School by a score of 27-7, Tuesday.

Smart and Langmuir led the Grove attack with two touchdowns each, while Gordon and Preston accounted for the other Grove tallies.

The Lakefield squad played well in all departments but were greatly outclassed by a superior Grove kicking and passing attack. Many times, they were deep in Grove territory only to be pushed back by the strong blocking of the Grove line.

Lakefield's one touchdown was scored in the first quarter in a spectacular run by the Lakefield backfield.

Marmora Couple Wed 50 Years

MARMORA, Oct. 18 (ENS) — Residents of Marmora village for the past twenty-nine years, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Phillips celebrated their golden wedding on Tuesday.

This genial couple were married at St. John's Anglican church, Madoc on October 17, 1894, by the late Rev. A. Burton. Their attendants were Andrew Phillips, brother of the groom and Tillie McMasters of Rawdon township. Both came of families long connected with this part of Hastings County. Mr. Phillips is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Phillips of Madoc township. His father came to Canada from Londonderry, Ireland, when a lad of sixteen. For a number of years he taught school in Marmora township, and for seventeen years was the clerk of Marmora and Lake township.

Mrs. Phillips before marriage was Isabel Ann Jones, the oldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Jones of Marmora township. Her grandfather was the late Hugh Jones, who was Reeve of Marmora and Lake township over eighty years ago for a period of some years. Before coming to reside in Marmora, Mr. and Mrs. Phillips lived on the farm in Marmora township now owned by Arthur Tompkins.

Ten children were born to them, eight of whom are living. They are: Mrs. James Gordenier, Marmora; Mrs. Lindsay McCarey, Minden; Mrs. Donald McInroy, Marmora; Mrs. William Holmes, McLaughlin, Alta; Mrs. Donald Ellis, Trent River; Mrs. George Shaw, Campbellford; Charles, Toronto and Hugh, who is overseas with an Anti-Tank Regiment. Arthur, their oldest son, was accidentally killed in 1913 and Gertrude passed away in 19[illegible] as a young child.

[illegible]bers of the family who were able to attend, joined their parents in a quiet celebration.

GOLDEN JUBILEE — Mr. and Mrs. Robert Phillips, of Marmora, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Tuesday. The couple have lived in the village for 29 years.

Buffalo Bisons Ready To Start

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Oct. 18.—(CP).—The Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League broke training camp here yesterday and headed for Indianapolis for their opening league game Thursday. The Bisons, managed by Eddie Shore, met misfortune in their final drill when Jack Dyte, of Barrie, Ont., defence star, suffered a fracture of a small bone in his ankle when hit by a puck shot by Oscar Aubuchon. Before breaking camp, Shore traded defenceman Rusty Waldriff to Cleveland for two players to be named later by the Cleveland management.

Would Revise Assessments

MONTREAL, Oct. 18 — (CP). — The system of land assessment should be revised in Canada, Dr. C. A. Curtis of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., and chairman of the Federal Housing and Planning Commission, yesterday told a service (Rotary) Club.

"Generally speaking", he said, "most of the assessment rolls remain unchanged from year to year, particularly in the rural areas where the tendency is to perpetuate the standards and judgments which have existed.

"Thus the values on the assessment rolls generally lag behind the actual physical and value changes."

Dr. Curtis also said that social service functions performed by local governments should not be charged against real property.

Killed In Crash

OTTAWA, Oct. 18 — (CP). — Relatives were informed yesterday of the death Saturday of Flt. Lt. E. T. Wood, 26, R.C.A., son of Commissioner S. T. Wood of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and Mrs. Wood. Flt.-Lt. Wood was killed when his plane crashed while taking off from an English base. He was born in Winnipeg.

SAVED BY PENICILLIN

JOHANNESBURG — (CP). — Suffering from pneumococcal meningitis, a disease hitherto almost invariably fatal, a Johannesburg woman has made a remarkable recovery after treatment involving the use of 300,000 units of penicillin.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

ONE HAND DANGEROUS

"DANGER HAND" is an expression coined years ago by the veteran authority of his day, Milton C. Work, to apply to one of the two defenders against a No Trump contract. In some great proportion of all No Trump contracts, the outcome depends on whether a particular one of the defenders may be kept out of the lead at one stage or another. When the situation is such that one of them is a threat to the contract and the other cannot harm it, the declarer should strain every effort to protect himself against that hazard.

There was no such thing as leading the unbid suit here, so West picked his longest, opening the heart 6. The Q forced the A, leaving South a second sure stopper. Then he led the diamond K, East refusing to cover, followed by the heart 2, to make the J an entry to dummy. West came right in with the K and sent back the 5 to the J.

Now South began operations on the club suit, finessing the J to the Q. West knocked out South's third heart stopper then with the 7 to the 10, leaving him two established hearts. South took his Spade A, K and Q, hoping the suit might divide evenly and set up the 7, but it did not. He was now in the dummy for the second club lead. This time he finessed again, and the K won for West, who scored his two good hearts, plus his spade J, setting the contract two.

At the stage of the second club lead, South should have realized that his sole danger lay in letting West get the lead. To minimize that chance, he should have played the A on the second club trick, even if so doing established a K for East, as that could not have hurt him. East could in that event have scored his diamond A, too, but that would have made only four tricks for his side. Catching the club K, however, as he could have, would have given South his contract plus two extra tricks.

EAST'S TOP SCORER IS ARMY "SUB"—Here is Glenn Davis, listed only as a substitute in Army's great array of backs, who today stands as the top scorer of the eastern football section which includes college and service teams. The 175-pound, five-foot, nine-inch Los Angeles boy, has scored 42 points on seven touchdowns.

Grove Nets Game 27-7 Good Kicking Counts

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 18—(ENS)—Recovering quickly after a slow start in the first quarter, the Grove first team defeated Lakefield High School by a score of 27-7, Tuesday.

Smart and Langmuir led the Grove attack with two touchdowns each, while Gordon and Preston accounted for the other Grove tallies.

The Lakefield squad played well in all departments but were greatly outclassed by a superior Grove kicking and passing attack. Many times, they were deep in Grove territory only to be pushed back by the strong blocking of the Grove line.

Lakefield's one touchdown was scored in the first quarter in a spectacular run by the Lakefield backfield.

Marmora Couple Wed 50 Years

MARMORA, Oct. 18 (ENS) — Residents of Marmora village for the past twenty-nine years, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Phillips celebrated their golden wedding on Tuesday.

This genial couple were married at St. John's Anglican church, Madoc on October 17, 1894, by the late Rev. A. Burton. Their attendants were Andrew Phillips, brother of the groom and Tillie McMasters of Rawdon township. Both came of families long connected with this part of Hastings County. Mr. Phillips is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Phillips of Madoc township. His father came to Canada from Londonderry, Ireland, when a lad of sixteen. For a number of years he taught school in Marmora township, and for seventeen years was the clerk of Marmora and Lake township.

Mrs. Phillips before marriage was Isabel Ann Jones, the oldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Jones of Marmora township. Her grandfather was the late Hugh Jones, who was Reeve of Marmora and Lake township over eighty years ago for a period of some years. Before coming to reside in Marmora, Mr. and Mrs. Phillips lived on the farm in Marmora township now owned by Arthur Tompkins.

Ten children were born to them, eight of whom are living. They are: Mrs. James Gordenier, Marmora; Mrs. Lindsay McCarey, Minden; Mrs. Donald McInroy, Marmora; Mrs. William Holmes, McLaughlin, Alta; Mrs. Donald Ellis, Trent River; Mrs. George Shaw, Campbellford; Charles, Toronto and Hugh, who is overseas with an Anti-Tank Regiment. Arthur, their oldest son, was accidentally killed in 1913 and Gertrude passed away in 19[illegible] as a young child.

[illegible]bers of the family who were able to attend, joined their parents in a quiet celebration.

GOLDEN JUBILEE — Mr. and Mrs. Robert Phillips, of Marmora, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Tuesday. The couple have lived in the village for 29 years.

Buffalo Bisons Ready To Start

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Oct. 18.—(CP).—The Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League broke training camp here yesterday and headed for Indianapolis for their opening league game Thursday. The Bisons, managed by Eddie Shore, met misfortune in their final drill when Jack Dyte, of Barrie, Ont., defence star, suffered a fracture of a small bone in his ankle when hit by a puck shot by Oscar Aubuchon. Before breaking camp, Shore traded defenceman Rusty Waldriff to Cleveland for two players to be named later by the Cleveland management.

Would Revise Assessments

MONTREAL, Oct. 18 — (CP). — The system of land assessment should be revised in Canada, Dr. C. A. Curtis of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., and chairman of the Federal Housing and Planning Commission, yesterday told a service (Rotary) Club.

"Generally speaking", he said, "most of the assessment rolls remain unchanged from year to year, particularly in the rural areas where the tendency is to perpetuate the standards and judgments which have existed.

"Thus the values on the assessment rolls generally lag behind the actual physical and value changes."

Dr. Curtis also said that social service functions performed by local governments should not be charged against real property.

Killed In Crash

OTTAWA, Oct. 18 — (CP). — Relatives were informed yesterday of the death Saturday of Flt. Lt. E. T. Wood, 26, R.C.A., son of Commissioner S. T. Wood of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and Mrs. Wood. Flt.-Lt. Wood was killed when his plane crashed while taking off from an English base. He was born in Winnipeg.

SAVED BY PENICILLIN

JOHANNESBURG — (CP). — Suffering from pneumococcal meningitis, a disease hitherto almost invariably fatal, a Johannesburg woman has made a remarkable recovery after treatment involving the use of 300,000 units of penicillin.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

ONE HAND DANGEROUS

"DANGER HAND" is an expression coined years ago by the veteran authority of his day, Milton C. Work, to apply to one of the two defenders against a No Trump contract. In some great proportion of all No Trump contracts, the outcome depends on whether a particular one of the defenders may be kept out of the lead at one stage or another. When the situation is such that one of them is a threat to the contract and the other cannot harm it, the declarer should strain every effort to protect himself against that hazard.

There was no such thing as leading the unbid suit here, so West picked his longest, opening the heart 6. The Q forced the A, leaving South a second sure stopper. Then he led the diamond K, East refusing to cover, followed by the heart 2, to make the J an entry to dummy. West came right in with the K and sent back the 5 to the J.

Now South began operations on the club suit, finessing the J to the Q. West knocked out South's third heart stopper then with the 7 to the 10, leaving him two established hearts. South took his Spade A, K and Q, hoping the suit might divide evenly and set up the 7, but it did not. He was now in the dummy for the second club lead. This time he finessed again, and the K won for West, who scored his two good hearts, plus his spade J, setting the contract two.

At the stage of the second club lead, South should have realized that his sole danger lay in letting West get the lead. To minimize that chance, he should have played the A on the second club trick, even if so doing established a K for East, as that could not have hurt him. East could in that event have scored his diamond A, too, but that would have made only four tricks for his side. Catching the club K, however, as he could have, would have given South his contract plus two extra tricks.

Lawyer Raises New Question

WOODSTOCK, Oct. 18—(CP)—Question was raised in police court here whether a license issued by the Prices Board voided action by the Woodstock city council in cancelling a restaurant license. Contention that such was the case was made by John A. Cartwright of Toronto in pleading that his client, Vincent Barrie, was not guilty of a charge of operating a restaurant without a city license.

Barrie's license was cancelled because his establishment housed a pinball machine, contrary to a civic by-law.

Mr. Cartwright suggested to Magistrate L. M. Bell that this was the first time in which the overriding power of the Prices Board was maitnained against a city by-law.

Defence counsel's argument was based on the principle that the city had not the power to override a license issued by the board for the duration. The license was issued to an essential industry, Mr. Cartwright said, essential to feed war workers.

Miss Lloyd George Makes National Demand

By ALAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 18 — (CP Cable) — Miss Megan Lloyd George, daughter of Britain's First Great War Prime Minister, initiating a history-making debate on reconstruction in Wales, told the House of Commons in appealing for appointment of a secretary for Wales that "no Englishman can understand the problem of Wales, however much he might try."

"However sympathetic, he cannot get inside the skin and bones of a Welshman unless he be born again," she added amid laughter.

The debate marked the first day set aside for discussions of Welsh affairs since Welsh members first were returned to the house 400 years ago and Miss Lloyd, Liberal member for Anglesey, was cheered when she said: "I think the debate is somewhat overdue."

Prior to entering the House, Miss Lloyd George who is chairman of the Welsh Parliamentary Party, received scores of telegrams from all parts of Wales, urging Welsh members to stress recognition of Welsh nationhood. Twenty-five Welsh delegates attending the trades union congress now meeting in Blackpool wired: "Implore insistence on recognition of Wales as a nation in reconstruction." The Nationalist party sent a similar message, adding: "Unless the entity of Wales is recognized, there is no hope of prosperity."

R. M. Hughes, Labor member from Carmarthen, said that Wales "ought to have the political status of Scotland, the economic status of the state in the United States, and the linguistic status of minorities in the U.S.S.R."

Sir Henry Morris-Jones, aNtional Liberal member for Denbigh, contended there always would be an atmosphere of unreality in Welsh debates until there was a minister specificaly charged with dealing with Welsh problems and Sir William Jenkins, Labor member for Neath, added: "Wales will expect the same treatment as others. We have taken our part in the war. Do not betray Wales when it comes to a question of post-war employment."

W. H. Mainwaring, Labor member for Rhondda East, said employment must be found for Welshmen in Wales. The Welsh people felt they were forgotten during the years before the First Great War and the present war, and they would not allow it to happen again.

"Unless something is told them this week, Wales will declare war upon somebody," he said.

Committees Named To Handle Bazaar

BETHANY, Oct 18—(ENS)—Miss Winnifred Nesbitt entertained St. Paul's W.A. for their October meeting with ten members present.

A letter of thanks was read from Mrs. W. Morton and Katherine, and Mrs. Gribble and Mrs. Hamilton reported on the Deanery meeting held in Blackstock. Mrs. Hamilton had samples of Christmas cards, orders for which were to be taken by W.A. members, and it was decided to order a duplicate set to be sold at the bazaar. Mrs. Hamilton reported enough had been donated for the overseas boxes, which would be packed later Mrs. Logan invited the ladies to meet at her home for the November session, and the lunch committee, Mrs. Gribble, Mrs. Jarvis and Mrs. Phillips. Miss Laura Hutchison donated an apron and table runner, and it was reaffirmed that the purse, previously placed at the disposal of the wardens, was still available to be used for shingling the church.

Plans were made for holding the annual bazaar. It was moved by Mrs. Hamilton and Mrs. R. Morton that the bazaar be held November 18. It was moved by Miss Nesbitt and Mrs. Armstrong that they serve ham. The purchasing committee appointed were: Miss Nesbitt, Mrs. Armstrong and Mrs. Jarvis. The rest of the menu includes escalloped potatoes, cabbage salad, pickles, jellies, biscuits, bread, pie and cake. The kitchen committee is Mrs. Gribble, Mrs. Jarvis; selling fancy goods: Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. F. W. Reynolds; notion table, Mrs. Armstrong; children's table, Mrs. Karl Smith; produce table, Miss A. Sisson and Mrs. C. Reynolds; supervisor of tables, Mrs. Price; tea making: appointment to be arranged later; making of menu lists: Miss Nesbitt, Mrs. Jarvis and Mrs. Armstrong.

Mrs. Gribble offered to arrange for the printing of the bills, and Messrs. George Smith and George Gillies were to be asked to take tables and stoves to the hall.

Otonabee Sunday Schools Meet For Convention

KEENE, Oct. 17 — (ENS) — The Otonabee Sunday School Association held a convention in Keene United Church. The gathering was presided over by Angus Adamson, president of the Association, and he was assisted by W. W. Dawson, secretary. A message of welcome was extended to the delegates by Rev. Geo. Murray who emphasized the need for considering the value of Christian Education.

Mrs. Ross McIntyre gave an interesting account of the successful Girls' Camp which was held last August at Rice Lake near Keene. Thirty girls were in attendance. Discussion groups were formed with Rev. L. Carlson of Toronto in charge of boys' work, Miss Phyllis Moore of Gilmour, girls' work, Rev. E. Rowland and adults and Q. McKinney the juniors.

The convention came together for recreation and singing led by Mr. McKinney, followed with worship period in charge of Keene S.S. The main address of the evening was given by Rev. Carlson, Field Secretary of the United Church Board of Christian Education for Ontario, who stressed the value of the Home and Church working together for the welfare of the citizens of tomorrow.

The Anniversary Services of Zion United Church, Otonabee, will be held October 29 at 7.30 p.m. when Rev. G. F. Kelly of Lakefield, will be the guest preacher, and special music will be provided by Keene Choir.

Powerful American Forces Invade Philippine Islands

PREPARE EARTHQUAKE BOMBS FOR DELIVERY TO NAZIS — Armorers of the British Royal Air Force are preparing a batch of the new 12,000-pound earthquake bombs for delivery to Germany. These bombs, far more powerful than the famous blockbusters, penetrate steel and concrete to a depth of 12 feet and then explode by delayed action fuse. They were used on the submarine pens at Brest with devastating effect; they are carried by Lancaster bombers.

Huns Weaken At Schelde Beyond Antwerp

By ALEX H. SINGLETON
Associated Press War Correspondent

LONDON, Oct. 19 —(AP)—British Tommies and American armor rocked the Germans back toward Venlo on the Maas (Meuse) from the Holland salient today in what appeared to be the preliminaries to an offensive aimed at breaking organized German resistance before Christmas.

West of Antwerp in Belgium Canadian forces were less than two miles from the German guns at Breskens commanding the sea entrance to the port from the pocket south of the Schelde, and Canadian Press War Correspondent Ross Munro said German resistance in that area was "weakening rapidly."

In Aachen U.S. 1st Army troops, again smashing German tank and infantry counter-thrusts northeast of the Siegfried Line point, held about half the wrecked city and smashed on into the northwestern quarter where fighters and fighter-bombers pin-pointed strongpoints ahead of bazooka and grenade squads.

Coincident with Berlin's report of a savage Russian onslaught against East Prussia's defences, the German radio declared that the British offensive in east Holand, "in support of the American attack on Aachen, has increased in violence."

The timing raised the possibility of a grand strategy plan to beat the enemy by smashing simultaneously at East Prussia, heart of German militarism, while wrecking the Rhine-Ruhr valley, centre of German industry.

An Associated Press war correspondent with the British 2nd Army said Lt.-Gen. Dempsey's troops,

PUEBLO, Colo., Oct. 19 — (AP).—James Pitcock aimed at a buck. The bullet passed clean through the buck's ribs, and then broke the neck of a doe standing on the other side. Both animals died instantly. That wasn't all of Pitcock's luck, either. Besides having a regular game permit, he was carrying a special licence allowing him to hunt doe.

RAF Bomb Hits Hun Love Nest

PARIS, Oct. 19 —(AP)—Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering employed thousands of workmen to build a luxurious underground headquarters outside Paris, according to the French press, but all the Allies found intact was one swimming pool.

The remainder of the establishment, situated at Courday-Sur-Thelle, 40 miles from Paris, was destroyed by the fleeing Nazis.

Work on the headquarters, says the newspaper "Front National," was begun in 1941 inside a barbed wire enclosure. Hidden from prying eyes were underground offices, luxuriously-furnished apartments, a colossal casino for entertainment and halls for athletics.

During the construction, the paper said, a cave-in killed more than 100 workers. When work was finally completed, Goering established himself for long periods, in the underground village, where fine concrete roads led cars down ramps through air well ventilated by huge steel-lined shafts.

Special performances were said to have been staged for Goering in the casino by Paris artists especially brought from Paris.

Only disturbing factor was the R.A.F., which bombed the district heavily in June, 1943, "Front National" said. The following month, it added, one plane dropped a one-ton bomb right in the entrance tunnel.

Keller States Soldiers Well-Trained

MONTREAL, Oct. 19—(CP).—Reinforcements to the First Canadian Army in France were "well trained, fit and extremely ready for battle," Maj.-Gen. R. F. L. Keller, wounded commander of the 3rd Canadian Division, said in an interview here today.

He said that the very nature of the fighting, with the pressure continuing as advantages were followed up hard, made it difficult at times to absorb the reinforcements in the fighting lines as early as might be desirable.

This meant that in some cases they might not enter the line finally with the same fighting rhythm as a veteran of the unit "but the more important thing was they arrived on time."

He used the illustration of two editors. "One would think a reporter, trained to his style, was perfect while the next editor might want some readjustments before he considered the same man an ace and such it is with our reinforcements."

"The prompt arrival of the fresh troops, however, is a factor in our success. Morning casualties are replaced in the afternoon by fresh troops. I would say our reinforcement program when I was there was highly efficient."

1,700 Planes In Day Raid

LONDON, Oct. 19.—(CP-Reuter).—More than 1,000 United States heavy bombers, escorted by more than 700 fighters to-day attacked military targets at Mainz and in the Ludwigshafen-Mannheim area of Germany.

Clouds covered the targets and bombing was done by means of instruments.

The Rhineland cities which the heavies blasted to-day contain large railway marshalling yards and many industries important to the German war machine.

The daylight blows followed attacks last night on communications targets at Hanover and Mannheim by small forces of R.A.F. Mosquitos. Other unidentified targets in western Germany also were bombed by the night raiders.

Pickering Man Gets Acquittal

WHITBY, Oct. 19 — (CP). — Sam Michael, Pickering Township farmer, today was acquitted of the murder of Mike Sheveluk, caretaker at a Jewish boy's camp near Pickering, Nov. 24, 1937.

The acquittal came in the third day of the trial when Mr. Justice G. F. McFarland directed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty. He was upholding the contention of defence counsel Arthur Slaght that the crown had failed to prove intent to kill on the part of the accused and also had failed to link him with the crime.

Nazis Threatened Canadian Shores

TORONTO, Oct. 18.— (CP). — Canada was close to invasion from the northeast in 1941, Lt.-Cmdr. W. J. G. Carr, R.C.N., former senior naval officer at Goose Bay in Labrador, said yesterday in an address to a service club.

Germany invaded Norway for the purpose of invading America from the north," Lt.-Cmdr. Carr declared. "That is why we established air and naval bases on the north side of the St. Lawrence at Goose Bay, Hudson's Bay, Southampton Island, two on Baffin Island, and two on Greenland."

Between December, 1941, and April, 1942, 332 ships were sunk off the east coast of America "practically within sight of American shores," he disclosed.

"We did not even have enough ships to rescue our seamen," he said, but during the same four months Nova Scotia fishermen, unofficially organized by Lt.-Cmdr. Carr brought ashore 487 merchant seamen between Liverpool and Yarmouth, N.S.

He said the war found Canada so unprepared that after she had been in ship production a year the first Corvettes to escort merchantmen to Great Britain left port with wooden guns on their forecastle heads.

The price paid for unpreparedness was 50 per cent. of two convoys in October and November, 1940. Cost in lives of the British merchant marine—the men who manned the ships carrying materials was 33,500 casualties, of which 29,200 were dead.

Canadian goods Britain-bound were delivered cash f.o.b. Atlantic coast. "Thus, British seamen were giving their lives sailing the ships towards Britain so that we could enjoy prosperity at home."

Warns Argentine Dangerous

Mexican Delegate Says Country Armed

MONTREAL, Oct. 19 — (CP) — Vicente Lombardo Toledano, of Mexico, president of the Confederation of Latin American Workers—including trade-unions from 16 Latin American countries, said yesterday in a press interview here that "Argentina's aims are those of the Spanish conquest area."

"Argentina," Senor Toledano added, "wants Paraguay, Uruguay, and will undertake the very same steps taken by Hitler, Mussolini and Franco."

Senor Toledano said that Argentina was fostering a puppet Nazi regime and that her armament was "tremendous. An army clique rules the country. Large tanks, weighing 35 tons each, war boats, and others have been produced in large quantities."

"Democracy has been suppressed by violence; there is no freedom of speech, no freedom of religion; parliament has been suppressed and today there is not one person in office who has been elected by the people," he continued.

Senor Toledano warned that certain elements wanted to "establish Fascist headquarters in Argentina and in other Latin American countries."

British 8th Crosses Italian River

Heavy Fighting Continues On Entire Front

ROME, Oct. 19—(CP).—The British 8th Army has forced a bridgehead across the Pisciatello River north of the Rimini-Bologna road in the Adriatic sector, while Allied 5th Army troops took several more peaks and villages along the southern approaches to Bologna, today's Allied communique said.

The bridgehead, east of the important road junction of Cesena, was gained against strong German opposition.

The communique did not specify which units of the 8th Army established it, but an earlier front dispatch from Canadian Press War Correspondent Bill Boss said Canadian and New Zealand troops were deployed along the Pisciatello River, facing strongly-entrenched enemy forces.

In the foothills south of Cesena Indian troops captured Asquarola and Roversano.

Fighting bitterly against reinforced German troops American infantrymen established themselves at San Clemente on a subsidiary road to the Bologna-Rimini highway, nine miles from Castel San Pietro.

Other 5th Army units took Vaglie to the west of entered Castel Vecchio about 2¼ miles northwest of San Clemente, while infantry carried new positions on Highway 65—the main road to Bologna north from Florence.

The communique said "very heavy fighting" continued on the southern slopes of Monte Belmonte in the Highway 65 area. South African troops on the left flank of this sector captured Monte Pezza.

Other American infantry captured Mount Castiglione, an important height overlooking the west coast main highway.

RETREAT IN GREECE

LONDON—The Thursday German high command communique acknowledged today a Nazi withdrawal from the Greek town of Thebes, about 32 miles northwest of Athens.

Premature Birth

BISMARCK, N.D., Oct. 19 —(AP).—A baby girl who weighed one pound and nine ounces at birth four days ago is progressing satisfactorily in a St. Lexius hospital incubator, physicians reported. She was born prematurely and is fed a teaspoonful of breast milk every four hours with an eyedropper.

7 Dead, 300 Hurt In Cuba Storm, Florida Lashed

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 19 (AP)—The centre of a "severe hurricane" now passing over the Tampa-St. Petersburg area will reach the vicinity of Jacksonville this afternoon, weather bureau officials said today.

Shifting gales of 60 to 70 miles an hour will accompany the storm as it crosses the mainland, and the weather bureau warned all interests in the path of the storm that "all precautions should be continued and rushed to completion immediately."

A bulletin issued at 6:30 a.m. EDT by the bureau advised that unusually high tides will prevail from Daytona Beach northward along the eastern coast of Florida.

"Residents of low lying coastal areas should depart immediately for higher terrain," the bulletin warned.

A weather bureau advisory at 6 a.m. EDT said the storm then centred over St. Petersburg and Tampa as both cities felt gales of 100 miles an hour, and added the storm still was moving northward.

The Miami weather bureau, in an advisory at 4:30 a.m. EDT, said the Caribbean-born disturbance "is apparently entering the Florida west coast just south of Sarasota."

It predicted the hurricane, which was moving northward at 13 to 15 miles an hour, would continue travelling in that direction, with a gradual turn to north-northeast during the day, and pass into the Atlantic near Jacksonville early tonight.

The hurricane gave the Florida Keys a severe lashing as it moved into the gulf from Cuba, but the city of Key West apparently suffered no serious damage.

Seven persons were known dead, more than 300 injured and property damage was heavy in western Cuba. Government officials said it would be days before the full toll would be known.

Wage Earners Must Unite To Keep Price Levels Down

QUEBEC, Oct. 19 — (CP). — (Advance). — Donald Gordon, prices board chairman, said today in an address prepared for delivery to the Canadian Congress of Labor convention that Canadians will not be able to meet the employment needs of the transition period if prices get out of hand now, "or over the next critical year or two."

In the reconversion period already begun, prices must be prevented from rising so that the urban worker and the farmer can buy better housing and more consumer goods and services, and so that Canada can get into and hold expanded export markets.

"If we can get volume production, Canada will enjoy a high level of employment," Mr. Gordon said. "And if employment is well maintained I am sure that organized labor will look after the question of wage rates."

Labor, formerly interested in price control as the largest consumer in the community, now had a special concern in such control as fundamental to the success of all other reconstruction policies.

A reasonable and stable price level held out the best prospect for continuous and high employment at decent wages.

"This is a feature of price control that wage earners may not often think about, although, to my mind, it is now the most important feature of the whole program," he said.

When inflation developed, wages trailed behind prices and labor lost out. Counting the armed forces, 6,000,000 Canadians were at work to-day, about 1,250,000 more than in 1939. The labor "potential" after the war would be roughly 1,000,000 more than the pre-war total. To take up the slack caused by the decline in war contracts, labor and management must think in terms of mass markets to provide plenty of jobs at decent wages.

High Wages Misleading.

"Don't let anyone fool you that a high wage is the only important thing," said Mr. Gordon, "maintenance of employment after the war and the buying value of your dollar in terms of goods and services are just as important."

In the long run the only way to get volume employment and good wages was to keep production running to capacity. The policy of the prices Board would be to maintain basic period prices and at the same time relax control measures on industrial production as the opportunity arose, so that nothing would be permitted to stand in the way of maintaining high employment.

The Board would seek to prevent a rise in prices in the transition period and would do this by insisting on the maintenance of the basic period level, which meant prices ruling during the fall of 1941. Goods which have not been produced since 1941 and which now are returning to the market will be priced at their 1941 prices.

Reds Thrust Deep Into Reich

7 Carpathian Passes Taken Over In 31-Mile Advance

LONDON, Oct. 19 — (CP). — Russian forces backed by 50 tanks have penetrated well into East Prussia where the German border town of Eydtkuhnen has been evacuated, the Berlin radio said to-day.

"The deepest Russian penetration' was in the Eydtguhnen area 37 miles east of Insterburg and the Red Army has passed this town, Berlin said. "The Russians have advanced further on German soil."

The German communique acknowledged loss of the town but insisted a break-through had been averted.

Tremendous infantry and tank forces were being hurled against the homeland of the Junker generals to "achieve a grand scale break-through at all costs," the enemy said.

Widen Front.

The front was widened from 30 to 45 miles overnight, with the Russians extending their attacks to the area of Suwalki, centre of a triangle which Hitler annexed from Poland to East Prussia in 1939.

Moscow announced early today that Col.-Gen. Ovan D. Petrov's 4th Ukrainian command, pouring through gaps left in enemy defences by Hungary's military collapse, had dealt stunning blows to German positions in the rich Danubian basin.

The high command disclosed that Russian troops had captured seven important Carpathian passes in advances ranging from 12½ to 31 miles along a 170-mile front.

One of Petrov's columns traversed the Carpatho-Ukraine from north to south, entering through the Tartar pass and sweeping past Korosmezo and Raho to Sighet in Transylvania.

It also was disclosed that Russian and Romanian forces under Marshal Rodio Y. Malinovsky, commander of the 2nd Ukrainian Army, have been fighting near Sighet for two days after a drive northward through Transylvania.

Another Petrov armored unit struck from Verezke Pass to within 15 miles of Munkacs, one of the three leading towns in the Carpatho-Ukraine, or Ruthenia, which Hungary seized back from Czechoslovakia in April, 1939.

Ungvar, seat of the provincial administration, was the immediate goal of Russian tanks and infantry less than 20 miles distant in the higher hills.

Battle Lasted Month

Destruction of the enemy's Carpathian line after a bloody month-long struggle overshadowed other important successes on the eastern front.

Front dispatches said the mop-up of Belgrade was progressing steadily, with Germans fighting and dying like wild animals in blazing hillside buildings from which they could not escape.

Southeast of Belgrade elements of at least two German divisions were reported surrounded by Russian and

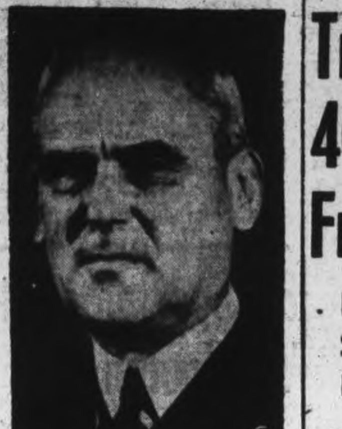
Allowance Act Now Amended

OTTAWA, Oct. 19 — (CP). — Veterans Affairs Minister Mackenzie announced to-day that allowances have been authorized for the orphaned children of Canadian veterans even though the deaths of their parents were not attributed to war service.

Amendments have been made to the War Veterans Allowance Act to deal with cases of hardship among veterans' children who have lost both parents. Boys up to 16 and girls up to 17 will be eligible for allowances up to $360 a year for one child, $696 for two children, and $730 for more than two children.

"The Order-in-Council has been made effective as from September 1, 1944, and application now may be submitted to the nearest district office of the Veterans' Affairs Department," he said.

Machinery also has been set up to accept applications for veterans of this war and the North-west Field Force who are not pensionable, but who qualify under an amendment of the War Veterans' Allowance Act, announced recently.



RECONSTRUCTION—Hon. Clarence Decatur Howe who was named Minister of Reconstruction in the Federal Cabinet. He will continue as Minister of Munitions and Supply.

Ottawa Names Several Deputy Ministers

OTTAWA, Oct. 19 (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced today appointment of Deputy Ministers for the new departments of Reconstruction and Veterans Affairs, and new posts for several other government officials.

The departmental appointments are:

R. A. C. Henry of Montreal, chairman of the Air Transport Board, will be Deputy Minister of Reconstruction;

Walter S. Woods of Ottawa, Assistant Deputy Minister of the former Department of Pensions and National Health, will be Deputy Minister of Veterans' Affairs.

Mr. King's announcement made no mention of an appointee for the thet post of Deputy Minister of the third new Government department—Health and Social Welfare. There has been speculation that the appointment will go to Dr. George F. Davidson of Ottawa, executive director of the Canadian Welfare Council.

Others Added.

The Prime Minister also announced these additional appointments:

Dr. R. E. Wodehouse, former Deputy Minister of Pensions and National Health, becomes a member of the Canadian Pension Commission.

J. Walter McKee, former Assistant Deputy Minister of Pension and National Health, becomes a member of the War Veterans' Allowance Board.

John Baldwin, senior assistant secretary, Privy Council Office, becomes secretary of the Cabinet Reconstruction Committee.

Packinghouse Buyers Show No Activity

TORONTO, Oct. 19 — (CP). — There were more than 3,700 cattle at the Toronto Livestock Yards today, but no buying was evident and representatives of packers announced their buyers would not be active.

Agriculture Minister Kennedy of Ontario was not available for comment on the situation. The yards now are controlled by the Ontario Government.

Figures for September showed that purchases by packers in that month totalled 9,302 head, compared with 22,551 in september last year. Purchases by Toronto butchers declined from 3,810 to 3,316. However, figures also show that the killings in Toronto plants totalled 6,042 head in the first week of October compared with 5,647 in the corresponding week of 1943. Dealers said this was possible because of purchases by packers in Western Canada and at fall fairs.

Troops Land 400 Miles From Manila

Huge Pacific Fleet Shells Coast From Leyte Gulf

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 19.—(AP). — American expeditionary forces are invading the Philippines, Tokyo radio reported to-day, striking at the centre of the vulnerable eastern flank of the archipelago.

Domei agency said flatly that United States forces have begun their "reinvasion of the Philippines," supported by powerful units of the Pacific fleet and China-based aircraft.

Sea forces, Domei said, included "the naval fleet under the command of Gen. Douglas MacArthur."

An official Japanese communique said "the enemy fleet" accompanied transports into spacious Leyte gulf Tuesday (Manila time) and for the last two days naval guns and carrier aircraft have been bombarding shore defences.

"Part of the enemy forces seem to have landed on Suluan Island" at the entrance to the gulf, Domei said.

Domei asserted Vice-Admiral March A. Mitscher's task force 58—the carrier arm of the Pacific fleet—was not participating in the invasion because of asserted losses suffered off Formosa. These have been denied in Pearl Harbor announcements.

These broadcasts were the only reports that Gen. MacArthur had taken the most crucial step to fulfill his pledge, made 2½ years ago, to return to the Philippines.

While there was no confirmation that the Philippine invasion was at last underway, the combined Pacific sea forces of Admiral Nimitz and land-based air strength of Gen. MacArthur have been paving the way for reconquest of the territory in 10 days of unprecedented raids on Western Pacific Islands for 1,000 miles either side of the Philippines.

Cost 1,000 Planes.

These thunderous attacks which have cost the Japanese close to 1,000 planes and hundreds of ships are still continuing, Manila radio reported. It told of 270 carrier planes striking in four waves this morning at Manila and strategic Clark Field. The Japanese-controlled radio claimed 19 were shot down.

The unconfirmed Tokyo announcements indicated that a powerful task group of Admiral Wil-

Tiddim Falls To Burma Force

KANDY, Ceylon, Oct. 19 — (CP). — British troops advancing into western Burma have captured the Japanese base at Tiddim, from which enemy forces launched their abortive invasion of India early this year, Allied headquarters announced today.

The British 14th Army has been closing in slowly on Tiddim for several weeks after pursuing the retreating Japanese 100 miles southward from Imphal in northeastern Burma, which the enemy attempted unsuccessfully to seize.

The fate of the Tiddim garrison was not immediately disclosed. Small British forces, however, have been reported operating along the Japanese escape route to the south after filtering through the jungles.

First troops to enter Tiddim were units of the 5th Indian Division, veterans of the African campaign and the first Burma campaign.

Should Stress Obligations

Director Says Too Much Stress On Rights

TORONTO, Oct. 19 (CP)—Dr. J. G. Althouse, Director of Education for Ontario, said last night children will leave the schools of the province with just as high standards of social obligations and sense of responsibility as the staffs of the schools set with the approval of the public at large.

In the last decade youth had been taught too much about social rights and too little about social obligations, said Dr. Althouse, who said parents and public must co-operate in this effort.

He spoke after receiving a copy of a report prepared by principals and teachers of commercial high schools in the Toronto area an the Toronto Chapter of the National Office Managers Association.

The report said guidance given pupils in elementary schools is inadequate, that there is a tendency to stress academic teaching, to look down on commercial training and to force students along lines for which they are not adapted.

Harry Rishea Is Laid To Rest

The funeral service was held Tuesday morning of Harry Rishea, 495 Romaine street, from the family residence to the Church of the Sacred Heart for the solemn requiem high mass, offered by his son, Rev. Leo Rishea, parish priest of Wooler.

Rev. Rishea was celebrant and was assisted by Dr. J. V. Masterson, Deacon Rev. Captain F. M. Grant, Subdeacon Rev. F. A. Morrocco of the Cathedral staff acted as master of ceremonies, and Rev. John Coughlin of Sacred Heart Church was the incense-bearer.

At the conclusion of mass the choir sang the Libera, and final absolution was given by the Right Reverend J. R. MacDonald, Bishop of Peterborough.

A bodyguard of senior class boys of Sacred Heart school assembled at the casket as it was borne in and out of the church. Pallbearers were Joseph Gosselin, Harry Ranger, Amie Rishea, Frank Gosselin, Clinton Heath and Frederick Rishea.

Floral and spiritual tokens were many and gave silent testimony of the esteem which Mr. Rishea enjoyed, both in the community and business life. He was employed at the F. and G. store for the past 13 years.

Interment was in the family plot in St. Peter's Cemetery. Rev. Rishea conducted the graveside service, assisted by other members of the clergy, including Rev. Capt. Grant and Rev. C. J. Carroll.

Among the clergy who were present in the sanctuary when the service was being conducted were: Right Rev. Monsignor F. J. O'Sullivan, Right Rev. Monsignor J. J. O'Brien, Rev. Dean J. Y. McAuley, Lindsay; Rev. Dean J. B. Ferguson, Warkworth; Rev. G. Maher, Cobourg; Rev. C. Kay, Lindsay; Rev. Dean O'Leary, Bracebridge; Rev. C. J. Carroll, Norwood; Rev. J. J. Garvey, Hastings; Rev. J. Corkery and Rev. J. Killen, all of Peterborough.

Non-Support Charge Brings Jail Term

Philip Rochetta was sentenced to a month's imprisonment in the county jail this morning after he had entered a plea of guilty to a charge of failing to support his wife and two young children.

The wife, called to give evidence, stated that she had been married seven years and that she had received no money from her husband for the past three months.

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., said that a term in jail might serve to awaken Rochetta to a sense of his responsibility as a husband and father.

C. M. Rishor was charged by his wife with the theft of a quantity of household linen, furniture etc., and the case was adjourned until next week.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 19 — (CP). — Strength at Chicago and light offerings here combined to send rye futures prices to higher levels yesterday on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. At the close values were 1½ to 1⅝ cents a bushel higher. Some profit taking was indicated near the close with outside interest showing little activity.

Export trade was confined to the coarse grains, United States buyers taking approximately 500,000 bushels during a dull session.

800 Spectators At Plowing Match W. Hooton, Ida, Wins Open Class

In a golden framed setting of October woods and sunshine, Peterborough county plowmen presented their annual agricultural show to a crowd of eight hundred spectators on the adjoining farms of George Chambers and Matchett Brothers in the Stewart Hall section of Otonabee, Wednesday.

Everybody voted it one of the best local plowing matches in years, with stronger emphasis than ever on the motor traction and the mechanics of the job. Walter Thorne, president, said the members of the association were delighted with the attendance, and grateful for the perfect autumn weather that made all the conditions agreeable to both spectators and plowmen.

Jointer plows in sod, open—1, Wm. Hooton, Ida; 2, R. Moher, Lakefield.

Any type plow equipped with jointer, in sod, Peterborough county only: 1, Joseph Watt, Omemee; 2, Wm. Moher, Lakefield; 3, T. Metcalfe R.R. 11, Peterborough.

For boys of Peterborough, Northumberland, Victoria and Durham, in sod, jointer plows: Edward Ballantyne, Ida.

Open class in stubble—1, Allan Dawson, Bailieboro; 2, Howard Allin, Newcastle; 3, Leonard Henderson, Cavan; J. E. Nelson, Lakefield.

Stubble class, Peterborough only—1, W. W. Dawson; 2, Stanley Smith, R.R. 11.

Gang Plows

Two furrow plows in sod, open: 1, Robert Leahy, Lakefield; 2, Cliff Patton, Bailieboro; 3, Willis Patton, Bailieboro; 4, Jim Eason, R.R. 11, Peterborough.

Tractors with two furrow plows, open: 1, Wm. Robson, R.R. 3, Peterborough; 2, John Hooton, Ida; 3, Walter Orde, Otonabee.

Tractors with three furrow plows, open: 1, Vern Campbell, R.R. 9, Peterborough; 2, Howard Henry, Campbellcroft; 3, Henry Sharpe, R.R. 4, Peterborough.

Tractors, 2 or 3 furrow plows, furrows not less than 12 inches: 1, Wm. Godfrey, Indian River; 2, Harold Dawson, Peterborough R.R. 11.

Tractors, open, boys and girls under 18: 1, Harry Smith, Otonabee; 2, Francis Crowley, Otonabee.

Tillers were operated by Robert McAdams, Stewart Dawson, Ray McIlroy and E. G. Snider. Clark Young of Milliken demonstrated the practical uses of the dynamometer, and another pleasant feature of the day were the meals served by the local Red Cross at headquarters on theChambers farm.

It was recalled that the last match in that section of the township was held 30 years ago with such names as Would, Cleghorn, Fowler, Hatherly, Kelk, Crough, Matchett among the winning contestants that Fall day.

Pte. Thos. Brown Is Wounded In France

Serving in France with the Highland Light Infantry of Canada, and attached to the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, Pte. Thomas James Brown, son of Mrs. Margaret Brown, 285 Dalhousie street, has been officially reported wounded in action October 9, according to word reaching his mother. The 19-year-old soldier's wound was described in the telegram as "a bullet wound in the neck."

A former employee of the Dominion Bank in Peterborough, Pte. Brown enlisted in September, 1943, and went overseas in February this year.

A brother, John Herbert Brown, was killed in action in France while serving with the Toronto Scottish Regiment, in July. Another brother, Pte. Archie Brown, is also serving with the Toronto Scottish in France. Vivian, a sister, is a nurse in Welland, Ontario.

Obituary

JAMES H. METHEREL.

The death of James Henry Metherel occurred at his residence, 340 Rubidge street, late Wednesday after a short illness. He was born in Peterborough eighty-five years ago, son of John P. Metherel, and his wife, Mary Ellen Dixon, and lived here all his life.

In his younger days Mr. Metherel was a machinist, and eventually was proprietor of a shop on the south side of Hunter street, near Aylmer street, featuring the retailing of bicycles, continued in business until he sold it to Harry Millard, and retired from active work.

He was for years a member of the Peterborough Curling Club, to which he contributed a silver cup as a trophy for junior competition. Mr. Metherel will be especially missed by the group of men who have a little meeting place on their own at the rear of Fiske's store on Hunter street. It has been popularly known as the Hall of Wisdom, a facetious title that has followed it through years of personal changes.

Mr. Metherel is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Mabel Kerr of Calgary and Mrs. Margaret Moscrip, Erie, Pa., and his brother, Albert E. Metherel of this city. He was a life member of the Masonic Order and of All Saints' Church. The funeral will take place Saturday at 2 p.m. from the Funeral Home of A. Comstock and Sons, 305 Water street, to Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. W. A. Filer, rector of All Saints' Church, will conduct the service.

Leyte Island

liam F. Halsey's 3rd Fleet combined with the southwest Pacific naval forces steamed into Leyte Gulf in the Central Philippines to screen an amphibious landing on tiny Suluan Island and perhaps some of the other islands bordering the gulf.

The area, only 400 miles from Manila, is an ideal spot from which to establish aerial control of the islands, and completely nullify air bases that carrier planes haven't already knocked out.

A two-day delay in the Japanese announcement of a drive into the central Philippines would indicate that defensive forces were taken completely by surprise.

In The Centre

Leyte is one of the larger central Philippine Islands lying midway between Mindanao and Luzon.

Leyte Gulf is an arm of the Pacific Ocean lying almost in the centre of the eastern side of the Philippine Archipelago. It touches the eastern shores of Leyte Island, while Leyte Bay, mentioned in reports heard in London, is on the northwestern tip of the island.

The gulf about 380 miles from Manila, is surrounded by high coasts with good natural harbors. It is bounded on the north by Samar, on the west by Leyte Island, while a number of smaller islands form the southern side.

Suluan guards the entrance to the gulf.

The central location of the island would make it an ideal spot for an air strip from which to strike at almost any part of the Philippines. The low-lying island has a maximum elevation of 125 feet, and is one of the closest spots to advanced Pacific fleet bases in southern Paual, about 500 miles to the east.

It lies northeast of Mindanao, daily raided by reconnaissance planes from the southwest Pacific, and southeast of Luzon Island, target of continuing raids by carrier forces. It is 415 miles from Manila.

Chose Lesser Islands.

It also is 415 miles north of Morotai, most northerly Allied-held base yet announced.

A landing on such a small and unknown island as Suluan would be in keeping with Gen. MacArthur's conquest of New Guinea and neighboring islands formerly controlled by the Japanese.

His troops hit at unexpected spots, where the Japanese were not based in strength. In striking island groups they normally landed on one of the lesser islands, carved out an airfield and from there went on to the larger islands.

Tokyo radio has been warning its listeners for months that a Philippine invasion was brewing, and both MacArthur and Admiral Nimitz have made no secret of the intention.

Admiral Mitscher's task force 58 has been relentlessly hurling carrier planes for the last 10 days at Luzon Island airports and Japan's island line of supply to the north. In those assaults 900 Japanese planes have been destroyed, nearly 200 ships sunk, and 150 smaller surface craft knocked out.

Carrier planes in combination with China-based B29's have temporarily immobilized the centre of Japan's South China Sea air forces on Formosa.

Parking Ticket To Be Contested

Russell N. Sharp, R.C.A.F., charged in police court this morning with parking in a bus stop on Simcoe street entered a plea of not guilty and the case was adjourned for a week when the police were not ready to go ahead.

Asked by the magistrate as to what line his defence was going to follow the R.C.A.F. man stated that he did not think that he was guilty because the signs at that corner were deceiving. There was one sign announcing a one hour parking limit and another reading "bus stop." On the day in question his view of the latter sign had been cut off by a parked truck.

"I do not think now that that defence can succeed," remarked Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in announcing an adjournment until next week.

Thomas Cheyne who pleaded guilty to not bringing his car to a stop before entering a through street in the village of Lakefield was fined $3 and $2.50 costs. The charge was laid by Chief Garnet Samis.

Illegal parking resulted in fines of $2 and $1 costs for Harry Sutton, Louis Yeotes and the Small Electric Motors Company.

British Take Greek Island

ROME, Oct. 19—(AP)—The German garrison on Sanhorin Island, 70 miles north of Crete in the Sea of Candia, surrendered yesterday to the British Cruiser Ajax, Allied Headquarters announced today.

The naval command said that carrier planes sweeping in from the Aegean heavily attacked enemy transport in the vicinity of Volos, 35 miles southeast of Larisa on the Greek mainland. The same planes also took a heavy toll of enemy shipping in the Sporades islands in the Aegean northeast of Athens.

A German armored vessel containing 200 German infantrymen was sunk in the same area Oct. 16 by H.M.S. Argonaut while the destroyer Termagant accounted for a Siebel ferry loaded with enemy equipment. Some survivors were picked up.

Six enemy vessels were destroyed and another merchant ship set afire Oct. 17 off Lemnos, southeast of Salonika, the naval command announced. Twenty smaller enemy craft were disposed of in the same region.

striking swiftly after taking Venray, had advanced about 3½ miles south toward the railroad town of America. An American armored column was converging at a distance of five miles upon the same objective from the east.

The Germans had been eliminated from all but about seven square miles of territory west of the Maas, and the Allies were within 38 miles of Duisburg in the Ruhr.

Berlin said Dempsey had concentrated strong forces in the area to annihilate the Germans' Maas bridgehead — an objective which would straighten the line along the Dutch border in preparation for an Allied cross-river assault.

In a desperate effort to avoid being trapped on the west bank, the Germans apparently were falling back to the south toward Venlo as their comrades in the Venray-America area were pushed back.

Gen. Eisenhower's communique, officially reporting the seizure of the rail and road town of Venray, seven miles from the German border, said Allied forces had advanced two miles south of the Venray-Deurne road and gains had been made from the west along the north side of the railway east of Deurne.

The German report on this sector said bitter hand-to-hand fighting was taking place east and northwest of Helmond, which the enemy has acknowledged evacuating. Helmond is five miles west of Deurne.

Inside shell-ripped Aachen the end appeared in sight.

In the Scheldt pocket, crisscrossed by dikes and streams, German resistance was evaporating with the 5,000-man garrison reported reduced to about 1,000.

Canadians thrust into the centre of the pocket near the hamlet of Waterlandkerkje, 5½ miles south of Breskens, where German batteries are concentrated.

North of Antwerp, where the other half of the Scheldt battle is being waged, the Germans again were back in the western half of Woensdrecht. In the neck of the spit leading to Walcheren and Zuid Beveland Islands.

In the Vosges foothills, Eisenhower reported that Allied positions had been "consolidated and improved" at several points despite stubborn enemy resistance and "vain" counter-attacks.

Two Houses Are Burned In $8,000 Fire

Two firemen were injured and more than $8,000 damages were caused when fire of undetermined origin completely destroyed the home of Mrs. V. F. Wall, 5 Wilson avenue, and fanned by a strong breeze, ignited the house owned by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Scott, 3 Wilson avenue, in a spectacular blaze that started during the supper hour Wednesday, evening, and attracted hundreds of sight-seers before firemen finally left the scene early in the morning.

The two firemen are Garnet Brown who was treated for cuts on the face and leg, and Hubert Kennedy, who was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital with a wrenched knee. Both men suffered shock, although their condition this morning was reported "not serious."

Started In Shed

As far as can be learned by the firemen, who, under Chief George Gimblett's direction, responded to the calls at 6 o'clock, the blaze started in the rear shed of the Wall home, and quickly raced through the structure. Although every attempt was made to prevent the Scott home from catching fire, the strong winds made firefighting difficult, and its close proximity to the burning dwelling made its safety dubious. Much of Mr. and Mrs. Scott's furniture was saved by dozens of willing neighbors and friends, who went into the house to drag out chairs and other things, the furniture belonging to Mr. and Mrs. William J. Davidson, who occupied the top portion of the house was badly damaged.

At the height of the fire, portions of the Wall home collapsed, and neighbouring houses were given thorough drenchings to make sure no others became ablaze.

Mrs. Scott, who has been suffering from a weak heart, was given medical attention during the fire.

An interesting story is told by Mrs. C. Wilson, of 210 King George street. About five minutes to six, Mrs. Wilson said she saw thin whisps of smoke seeping from the shed at the rear of the Wall house. "Then, somebody pushed the door open, and immediately the entire thing was a mass of flames..

Wreck Home.

One of the people whose house was not damaged by fire, but who nevertheless suffered probably a great inconvenience, Mrs. H. Paquette, of 1 Wilson avenue, had her house disarranged completely, and two-thirds of her furniture damaged, by people fearing for the safety of her dwelling place, and who immediately set about moving things around.

"It's awful what's happened," she sighed, showing the Examiner reporter the oil cloth ripped from the floor, the sink almost off the wall, stove pipes moved, furniture packed like sardines into piles.

"Of course we're glad the house didn't burn, but I think the fact it was soaked, and we have a special fire proof roofing on it, are the main reasons it didn't. Everything is still willy-nilly."

Mrs. Paquette sent her children to spend the night with friends, while she tried to do something with her house, turned into a complete mess by over-active enthusiasts, who figured the house would go.

Mr. and Mrs. McIlwain paid tribute to the workers at the Fuel and Transit company who volunteered to use their trucks to drive her furniture to storing places, in order to save it from a possible rain. Three or four trucks helped in the job, and both said that the co-operation received such as this, is the most uplifting aspect of the tragic fire. Mrs. I. Gordon, who lives at 9 Wilson, received the thanks and gratitude of the Peterborough Fire Department, when she served tea and refreshments to hard-working firemen. Her home, drenched also by firemen, is located across a wide empty lot from the Wall home.

Mr. King said it was understood that Mr. Henry would continue as chairman of the Air Transport Board and that as Deputy Minister of Reconstruction, he would act only during the period of organization of the new department and without additional remuneration. Mr. Henry also is President of Defence Communications, a Crown Company.

Mr. Woods has been in charge of Rehabilitation in the Pensions Department, of which he was Assistant Deputy Minister for 3½ years. Formerly he was for 11 years chairman of the War Veterans' Allowance Board.

Dr. Wodehouse, in addition to his new position as a member of the Canadian Pension Commission, has been appointed consultant in the Veterans' Affairs Department and Liaison Consultant between that department and the Department of National Health and Welfare. Dr. Wodehouse was Deputy Minister of Pensions and National Health for 11 years.

Serves as Link.

Mr. Baldwin, as secretary of the Cabinet Reconstruction Committee, will serve as a direct link between the Reconstruction Minister, who is chairman of the cabinet committee, and the Prime Minister in his capacity as President of the Privy Council.

Mr. King recalled that the Cabinet Reconstruction Committee had been established to assist the Reconstruction Minister in the formulation and review of reconstruction projects and to make recommendations upon the allocation of the financial appropriations for reconstruction.

Minister of the Reconstruction Department is Hon. C. D. Howe, who continues to hold the portfolio of Munitions Minister. The Veteran's Affairs Department is headed by Hon. Ian Mackenzie who was Minister of Pensions and National Health, while Hon. Brooke to the Prime Minister, is Minister of National Health and Welfare.

3 Face Charges As Vagrants

Three persons were charged with vagrancy in police court this morning and one of them, Roy Wright, who pleaded guilty was fined $5 and costs with the alternative of seven days in jail by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C.

"This man was hanging around back premises, half drunk, and unable to give a satisfactory account of himself," Inspector J. F. Reid informed the court.

Two youths, Donald Pinch and William Morgan, who were also charged with vagrancy and both pleaded not guilty.

"I am asking for a week's remand," said Inspector Reid. "There are some inquiries to be made."

Magistrate Langley ordered a week's adjournment in the cases.

British Attack Nicobar Islands

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 19 (AP)—Tokyo radio reported today that an Allied task force has been bombing and shelling the Nicobar Islands in the Indian Ocean for three days.

The attack began Tuesday (Tokyo time) and fighting continued through Thursday morning, the broadcast said. The report, unconfirmed by Allied sources, was recorded by the federal communications commission.

Tokyo said one Allied carrier and one destroyer were sunk today.

The Japanese did not identify the nationality of the attacking force but the Indian Ocean has been the province of the British far eastern fleet.

The Nicobar Islands lie athwart Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's pathway back to Singapore. The attack, Tokyo said, was directed against Car Nicobar, northernmost of the island chain.

Tokyo, said 34 carrier borne planes attacked Tuesday morning and five were shot down. Another wave followed Wednesday morning, at which time the naval bombardment opened. The Japanese counter-attack was reported the third day.

Health Program Outlined By Dr. Vivian

COBOURG, Oct. 19 (ENS)—Addressing the district medical meeting of the Ontario Medical Association here Wednesday afternoon, the Hon. Dr. R. P. Vivian, Minister of Health for Ontario, urged the doctors to make their desires known in regard to sickness insurance as it was a health proposal which the public wanted and which it was the duty of the doctors to assist in any way that they could.

About 65 doctors attended the meeting which was held in the auditorium of the Ontario Hospital, representing the medical profession of the counties of Victoria, Peterborough, Durham, Northumberland, Prince Edward, Hastings and Haliburton.

Dr. Vivian went into some detail in connection with the Municipal Health Services Act and the program for public health in Ontario.

"We as a profession, are faced with something the public wants," Dr. Vivian said in respect to sickness insurance.

Ontario Lags

Speaking of public health services, the Minister of Health said that Ontario was far behind. The only way in which the province could have a satisfactory health plan was to set up the proper machinery to run it. In city areas, their own health units could be maintained but in the rest of the province the health units would be operated on a county basis. The program calls for the control of acute, chronic and communicable diseases with the services of those trained to supervise sanitation and food. The greatest need was maternal and infant hygiene and a health education of prospective mothers and in child care. Such a service by adequately-trained people, sufficiently paid, would entail 150 doctors who were trained in public health as medical health officers and so forth; 300 nurses on a basis of three to four per county and others whose duties would cover mental illness, t.b. and venereal diseases in a five year program. Public health was the most important field, he felt, for the next fifty years.

The O.M.A. was only as strong as the weakest local medical association, stated Dr. C. J. Devins of Aurora, president-elect of the Ontario Medical Association, at the luncheon held by the district medical men in the Ontario Hospital. The visiting doctors were the guests at luncheon of Dr. G. W. Kells, medical superintendent of the hospital.

Dr. Devins declared that the smaller centres had a broader outlook on medicine than had the larger centres. The O.M.A. was anxious to co-operate with the various medical groups comprising it, but it must have the problems of the doctors intimated to it in a comprehensive form upon which it could act, the speaker said.

Some of the local medical groups were slipping. It couldn't be that the doctors were too busy, as it seemed that those who attended the meetings were those who were the busiest. Every unit of the organization must remain strong if the general structure was to be maintained.

Science was an important phase of medical work but sight must not be lost of the need for personal contact with the patient. The big institutions where patients with no organic trouble were sent away no better than before, were not meeting the situation the way the family doctor with his personal contacts could meet it. The personal contact with the patient engendered confidence in the doctor and helped materially, particularly in cases where there were no organic troubles at the bottom of the illness. The chiropractor could not treat organic diseases but they were smart psychologists and a challenge to the medical man in that respect.

Speaking of the overseas doctor, the O.M.A. head said that it was the duty of the older doctor, when the young army doctors returned, to give them advice and encouragement in their resumption of civilian medical duties. In some instances the young army medical man had been rushed through medical school and into the army without the training in business that the medical practice gives. For his good, and the good of the medical profession in general, the army doctor should be given a start off on the right foot, Dr. Devins said.

Lauds Dr. Vivian

The speaker lauded the Hon. Dr. R. P. Vivian for his co-operation with the medical profession.

"He has co-operated with us and has kept his word. Any time that he was unable to carry out a promise it was because powers greater than he had ruled otherwise. A man in Toronto, who had been 55 years in the civil service, told me that Dr. Vivian was the smartest man in the cabinet," said Dr. Devins.

Concluding, the speaker suggested that more services be inaugurated in the smaller hospitals. The doctor was doing just as good work there as the men in the big centres as far as general medical practise was concerned.

At the scientific session in the morning, Dr. E. M. Robertson of Queen's, spoke on toxaemias of pregnancy and Dr. P. H. Greey of the University of Toronto, spoke on penicillin.

Dr. Frank N. Allen, Lahey Clinic, Boston, Mass., spoke in the afternoon on "Neuropsychiatry problems from the standpoint of the Medical Profession," covering mental and nervous ailments. The session closed with a paper on venereal diseases by Dr. John A. Leroux, director, Division of Venereal Disease Control, Department of Health, Ontario, who pointed out that this year there were 10,000 cases of venereal disease in Ontario.

Following were the officers elected for the coming year: Counsellor, Dr. H. V. Dobson, Peterborough; vice-counsellor, Dr. A. Richards, Cobourg; district educational committeet, Dr. H. W. Birks, Bowmanville, chairman; Dr. E. A. McQuade, Trenton; Dr. C. B Kelly, Port Hope; Dr G. R. C. Hall, Little Britain and Dr. H. A. Mitchell, Peterborough.

Roseneath W.A. To Serve Lunch At Sales

ROSENEATH, Oct. 19.—(ENS).—The regular meeting of the United Church W.A. was held on Wednesday afternoon in Mrs. Earl Waldie's home. The vice-president, Mrs. B. Thackeray, presided. Mrs. M Davey had charge of the opening exercises, speaking on the theme. Thanksgiving.

During the business session it was decided to serve refreshments at a cattle sale to be held on November 15 on A. J. Campbell's farm. Mrs. Clark Sandercock, Mrs. Charles Sandercock and Mrs. Leslie Sherwin were named a committee in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Charles Sandercock presided over the program, with the numbers as follows: A reading, 'Keep the Flag Flying,' by Mrs. Earl Waldie; a reading, 'Pickle Surprise,' by Mrs. A. Nill; piano solo, 'Country Gardens,' by Mrs. B. Thackeray; a reading, 'Life's Contract,' by Mrs. M. D. Brown; a reading, 'Let Not Thy Kindness Wait,' by Mrs. Clark Sandercock; a song naming contest concluded the program.

The hostess assisted by her mother, Mrs. James A. Brown, served afternoon tea.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Mouncey returned to Oshawa on Thursday after visiting her sister, Mrs. B. Thackeray and other relatives here following Roseneath Fair.

Mrs. Kenneth Small and children, Wilber and Agnew, of Hamilton, are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Smith.

Mrs. W. J. E. Mason has arrived home after an extended visit with relatives in Toronto.

Unusual Demand

ALLEGAN, Mich., Oct. 19—(AP)—Mrs. Maebelle Waite, 44, childless wife of an Army private serving overseas, demanded a Justice Court hearing yesterday on charges that she had stolen, for her own, the new-born son of a young neighbor whom she attended in childbirth. Such a preliminary hearing was ordered scheduled for November 1.

Reginald Perks Heads Scouters Club

Reg. Perks, under whose direction the 9th Parkhill Community Scout and Cub group have made such outstanding progress in their field of endeavor, was elected president of the Peterborough Scouters' Club for the new term, at the annual dinner, held Wednesday evening, in the Y.M.C.A. Mr. Perks previously was a vice-president.

Other members who were elected to office, were Arnold Olmstead, first vice-president; Charles English, second vice-president; Mrs. J. Langhorne, secretary, and Miss Ruth Murray, treasurer. At a meeting held earlier, those members were nominated, and when the list of nominations was read by B. Ottewell, who conducted the election, Quirt McKinney and Robert Ingham, moved that the list be elected as it stood. Mr. Ottewell is president of the Local Association, a Peterborough Scouting organization.

When Mr. Perks, after being elected, reminded the members that in his opinion, Jack Halihan, one of the officials of the Parkhill group, would make a better president, past-president of the Scouters' Club, and chairman for the evening, Earl McNabb, commented that the act had been concluded, and quoting the proverb about the horse and the wagon, recommended that Mr. Halihan be remembered at the next election of officers.

Good eaders

In a brief address, Ernie Wolff, commissioner of the Local Association, praised the leaders of the various troops and packs gathered at the dinner for their tireless work and sacrifice of time in the interests of the youngsters, who will benefit greatly in the years to come. He said the entire Scouting organization in Peterborough a compliment, when he declared that the leaders here, are the finest in the province of Ontario, adding that there is a great deal to be thankful for, in having the services of these men.

Commissioner Wolff congratulated the Cubs and Scouts in this city for the magnificent job they completed on the recent Apple Day, which turned out to be the most successful ever held here. Although he expressed disappointment at the few who attended the camp at Nassau during the summer, he held great hopes for a better and more successful camp next summer.

According to Commissioner Wolff, about eight Peterborough leaders who have served at least ten years in Scout work, will receive medals of merit soon, from provincial Scout authorities, in recognition of their service.

More Scouts

Mr. Ottewell, in a brief address, urged that more boys become members in Scouting groups throughout Peterborough, and bolster the 500 boys and 50 leaders, at present, to 1,000 boys and 100 leaders in the near future. Thanking everyone who has in any way helped the club during the year, he urged members to attend the annual meeting to be held November 8.

A worker in Scout circles since 1935, A. Hope, Cub Commissioner of the Local Association, appealed not only to young men to become leaders and help the important job of keepng the Scout movement vitally alive, but also to women, who he said, can do valuable work in becoming leaders.

After dinner, a sing-song was led by Mr. McKinney, who later presented a program of sound films, through the courtesy of the National Film Board. An interesting set of films was shown, including a pictorial study of the life of a paratrooper, an Academy Award winning edition of the March of Time, dealing with the problems facing the youth of today, and the story of daily life on the island of Malta, thrillingly recorded on film as a lasting tribute to the gallantry of the people who lived there. This film was entitled Malta, George Cross, and the description was read by Laurence Olivier, famed London and Hollywood film actor, now in the British Armed Forces.

Flier Hidden By Loyal Frenchmen

Thrilling experiences are those of Flying Officer Lorne W. A. Frame, of Ottawa, who has returned to that city after spending a few days as the guest of his grandmother, Mrs. Mary McMillan, 359 Stewart street.

The young officer, a pilot of a Lancaster bomber, was forced to bail out of his flaming aircraft, as did others in the crew, when attacked by German fighter planes over France. He descended on territory where local Frenchmen still held the upper hand over the Nazis, and they hid him for eight weeks. Then, the swiftly-moving Allied armies overran the village where F.O. Frame was staying, and soon, he was on his way back to Canada, none the worse for his close escapes from the Germans.

Broadcast Show From Training Centre

Some two hundred service personnel from Re-Allocation Depot, Exhibition Park, Peterborough, were treated to a fast-paced program of entertainment on Wednesday evening when the staff of radio station CHEX entertained at the new recreation centre on Charlotte street. Headlining the rhythm-filled hour-and-half show were the Melody Men under the direction of Hal MacFarlane, and augmenting this 15-piece band were soloist Bill Collison, featured singer Sergt. Bea Curtis of the C.W.A.C. and George Coleman, baritone. Other entertainers were Russ Titus, soldier who sang "Melody Baby" and Jimmie Abraham who played "Grieg's Piano Concerto." Les Simons, R.C.N.V.R., was interviewed during the half hour that the program was on the air and were also supervisor Ernie Erwin of the Salvation Army Services and Sergt Bea Curtis.

"Boogie-woogie" piano by Jimmie Shields proved to be one of the highlights of the evening.

Working in co-operation with Adjutant Graham and Supervisor Erwin the radio station arranged the program in support of Canada's Seventh Victory Loan, and it was the first in a series of four to go out from the Canteen. Additional broadcast will be heard on October 25th, November 1st and 8th. The entire production was under the direction of Harry R. McLay and George Bouck, of CHEX' Commercial Department.

Introducing The Victory Loan Salesmen

This is the fourth in a series of six advertisements to introduce to you the Victory Loan salesmen for the City and County of Peterborough, and to give a brief biography of each.

E. Garth Braund

E. Garth Braund, 171 Aylmer Street, is embarking on his first Victory Loan drive, and will be working on the Group Payroll along with Jack Sinclair and Bob McClellan. He is a member of an old Peterborough family, having been born in this city and attended Public and High Schools here. For twelve years he was a member of Ferde Mowry's Orchestra, which, at that time, was mainly comprised of Peterborough boys. However, he is now a family man residing in Peterborough, and is interested mainly in looking after the R. C. Braund business enterprises.

Garth is an ardent curler, belonging to the Peterborough Curling Club, and in the summer months confines his sporting efforts to golf, being a member of the Kawartha Club.

He has three nephews in the Services, namely Private Aubrey Braund in the Service Corps, Ordinary Seaman Ralph Braund, R.C.N.V.R., and Ordinary Seaman Sheldon Richardson, R.C.N.V.R.

N. Schaus

Mr. N. Schaus, 686 Water Street, will be canvassing on behalf of the National War Finance Committee for the first time on the Seventh Loan, beginning October 23rd. This gentleman is also more or less a newcomer to Peterborough, having only been here five years, coming from Guelph. However, he is not lacking in sales experience, because for fourteen years he was with the London Life Insurance Company, connected with their branch office at Guelph.

About ten years ago he transferred his business affiliation to the Electrolux Company, and is representing that firm at present in the city of Peterborough.

Mr. Schaus has a brother-in-law, Sgt. Alan Smart of Owen Sound, in the R.C.A.F. at Halifax. Sgt. Smart is a cousin of the Rev. J. D Smart, formerly of Peterborough. A nephew, Cpl. Harold Shaw of Toronto, has been overseas for two and a half years with the Argyle and Sutherland Highlanders.

Jack Arnott

Jack Arnott, 136 Sophia Street, will again be canvassing on behalf of the Seventh Victory Loan. Even though he has only been in Peterborough about three and a half years, having come here from Toronto, he has become quite well known. He is a representative of the London Life Insurance Company, having been with that Company for approximately eight years.

Since coming to this city, Jack has become actively interested in many worth-while organizations. When the A.R.P. was active he was a Post Warden in East City; he is a regular donor at the Red Cross Blood Donors Clinic, and he is always glad to help on any municipal undertaking. He is also a member of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club.

Sgt. E. Turner, R.C.A.F., stationed in Toronto, is a brother-in-law.

R. H. McClellan

Bob McClellan, who is a native of Peterborough, and who is in the General Insurance business, being associated with Messrs. Clegg & McClellan, will again be canvassing on the Seventh Victory Loan under the Group Payroll Division.

Bob is a member of the Kiwanis Club and is an officer in the Sea Cadet Corps, besides always being a willing worker on the many civic functions.

J. A. Troke

New on the assemblage of Victory Loan salesmen but most certainly not new to the citizens of Peterborough, is Mr. J. A. Troke. Although he has only been in this city a comparatively short time, having come here from Regina, Sask., he has become very well known, having been Past President of the Kiwanis Club, and also Past Lieut.-Governor of Kiwanis for Ontario, Quebec, and the Maritimes. He is still very active in Kiwanis activities.

Mr. Troke was born in Renfrew, Ontario, and has just been retired from the Prudential Insurance Company, after being with that firm for thirty years.

A son, Lt. Robert Luke Troke, R.C.N.V.R., who took part in the invasion on D-Day, has been in the Navy nearly four years. He is stationed on the Prince David. Mr. Troke's nephew, and also his namesake, Gunner John A. Troke, is in the R.C.A.F., and has been overseas for three years. Another two nephews, James Collins, Kenosha, Wis., and James Thornton, Detroit, Mich., are in the U.S. Marines.

A. E. V. Gallon

A. E. (Vic) Victor Gallon, 563 Weller Street, who has always been a diligent worker in the past Victory Loans, will again be a Sales Supervisor on the Seventh Victory Loan. It is felt that his experience will be of great assistance in helping the salesmen cover their districts and make the Loan a big success. Mr. Gallon is the territorial salesman for Walter M. Lowney Company, Montreal.

When the last war broke out, Mr. Gallon was attending Durham University, Durham, England. Instead of waiting until he was 19 at which time he would have been able to receive his commisison, he enlisted at the age 17 as a private. However, in 1916 he was returned to Officers' Training Corps and received his commission in 1917. He went back to France where he was in active service, and in 1918 was promoted to the rank of Captain. In 1918 he won the Military Cross. After the Armistice, Capt. Gallon stayed on with the Salvage Corps and was in charge of a Chinese Labor Battalion at Fontenatte, outside of Calais, France, until 1920.

LAC. Jack McLachlan, who is with the R.C.A.F., is a son-in-law.

Mrs. E. C. Moore

Once again it is the pleasure of the National War Finance Committee to announce that Mrs. E. C. Moore will be one of their canvassers. Mrs. Moore is the lone female representative on the roster of Victory Loan salesmen and has always been a faithful worker since the inception of Victory Loan campaigns.

When Mrs. Moore was first asked to be a canvasser, she and her husband were residents of Young's Point, as Mr. Moore at that time was the rector of St. Aidan's Church. After the war broke out and the first Victory Loan campaign was under way, the organizer for the district approached Mr. Moore and asked him if he could see his way clear to canvass for subscriptions. This was impossible for Mr. Moore, and as he was most anxious to do all in his power to make a success of the first Loan, he suggested that possibly his wife could act in his place. Needless to say, Mrs. Moore's services have been more than satisfactory, and she has been prevailed upon to continue in the role of canvasser on all Victory Loans, and she will again be canvassing even in spite of her many charitable and church organizations that are always calling on her very efficient and versatile talents.

Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Moore have two sons in the services, namely Cpl. Godfrey Moore, who is in the R.C.A.F. overseas, and Ordinary Seaman Edgar Moore, R.C.N.V.R., training at Toronto.

Peterborough's Film Library

Peterborough now has an extensive film library, the headquarters of which is the Normal School, and from which films may be borrowed by any reputable organization, club, school or other body in this district. This is one of the 39 regional libraries which the National Film Board has established during the past four years. A large number of films will always be on hand, and the stock will be increased frequently; any films made by the Film Board which are not available in the local library may be obtained from Ottawa on reasonable notice. In addition to the Film Board productions the library will also include films made by the Ontario Department of Education, and it is hoped that local industries which have films relating to their own work will make these available to the library also.

• • •

Obviously this film library is a great addition to the educational resources of Peterborough and the surrounding district. It is now recognized that films will play an important part in education after the war and the demand for them is great. The local library has been established less than a month, but already it has shown films to more than 3,000 people. Fifty students at the Normal School have asked for training in operating a projector and plans are laid for training other projectionists as well. The library possesses a new Bell and Howell projector, and this instrument, with a qualified person to operate it, will be sent wherever films from the library are shown. It must be stressed that no charge is made for this service; the film, the use of the projector and the work of the operator are free; it is hoped, however, that organizations which can afford to do so wil make contributions to defray some of the expense of the work.

• • •

The National Film Board has been doing first-rate work on a small budget for several years, and its work has become very popular everywhere in Canada. Its films for general exhibition in picture theatres are familiar; but its largest audience is that which seeks education rather than entertainment. Many of its films are documentaries, giving information about Canada, its resources and its industries; others are concerned with Canadian art, Canadian folk-music and the work of Canadian museums. These films have reached hundreds of thousands of Canadians, giving them a broader and more intelligent conception of their country than they had before; films can reach audiences and carry messages which are inaccessible to any other medium.

• • •

The establishment of this film library is entirely owing to the foresight and enthusiasm of Mr. Quirt McKinney of the Normal School staff, and enquiries about it should be addressed to him. We must emphasize again the fact that this is a community service, and we hope that every organization within reach of Peterborough will make full use of it; but we are glad that it is connected with the Normal School. Students from that institution go out every year to teach in schools where the equipment for education may be at the irreducible minimum; if they know how to operate a film projector, if they have access to an excellent library of films, and if they realize the possibilities of visual education, they will be able to make their small schoolhouses real community centres, in which ideas are presented in an attractive manner. The film library is an important acquisition to this city, and we wish it every success.

Common Sense At Aachen

The fighting at Aachen must be unsatisfactory to both sides. The American troops beseiging the city would have liked a prompt, clean German surrender, which would have made it possible for them to get on with the big job they have in hand; as they had markedly superior forces, this seemed to them the logical outcome of the struggle, and they were disappointed when they did not get it. The Germans, on the other hand, wanted a fanatical resistance to the Americans, a fight to the last man, which would have shown the world the measure of Germany's determination to sell her cities dearly; but even the terrorists of the Gestapo and the SS have been unable to produce the sort of courage necessary for such a stand.

Common sense and human nature have been asserting themselves at Aachen, and this is encouraging, for there have been times during the past five years when it looked as though all the common sense and human nature had been knocked out of the German people. In some sections of the city resistance to the Americans has been described as "very light", and great numbers of prisoners have been taken. That is to say, some of the troops and civilians in the city have seen the deep wisdom of saving their own skins, instead of going down to death in a hopeless and senseless slaughter. The Americans, we are sure, are obliged to them; they have no wish to slaughter anyone.

The Germans doubtless realize that they have not much to lose now except their lives. The Nazis robbed them of national honour years ago, and put in its place a farrago of silly notions about racial superiority; such notions can only be nourished on victory; when defeat draws near they are clearly seen for the shoddy stuff they are. The people of Aachen have nothing left to fight for; why should they not surrender? Hitler has considerably over-estimated the willingness of the ordinary middle-aged German citizen to die for a Reich which is obviously on the rocks. Common sense breaks through now and again, even in Germany.

Why Pity Sinatra?

Frank Sinatra goes on from strength to strength, throwing larger and larger audiences into wilder and wilder hysterics. A picture appeared the other day in a New York paper of several high school girls under the influence of The Voice, and they looked like spastic children, or young witches undergoing their first demoniacal possession. But they were happy in their strange way, and so long as we are not compelled to share their particular sort of happiness, we grudge them nothing.

But apparently some of our contemporaries do grudge them their fun, and grudge Sinatra his freakish success, too. Here is an extract from an Ontario daily:

"We feel sorry for Sinatra. We are sorry for him because he has become the object of so much adoration from empty-headed schoolgirls and some sissified boys, but we are more sorry for him because he has not got the manliness to quit and eliminate this disease of Sinatraism. He has made a pile of money out of the Sinatra craze sufficient to keep him and his wife and children in comfort for the rest of their days. He has grabbed while the grabbing was good. But we cannot help but think that a real he-man, especially a man with a wife and children, would feel ashamed to earn a fat living on his mysterious occult gift of knocking silly school kids sillier over him.

"A real man would not only feel humiliated about that, but he would wonder what the fighting men in the Far East jungles and at Aachen think about him".

We don't believe that the writer of this pities Sinatra; it sounds far more as though he envied him. And why are the boys who like Sinatra described as 'sissified'? Why is it more sissified to admire Sinatra than to admire say, Alexander Kipnis? Surely the matter is one of taste rather than of virility.

And why pity Sinatra? Since when has a man ceased to be a 'he-man' because he makes a fortune in a reasonably honest manner? As for the men in the Far East and at Aachen, undoubtedly many of them are Sinatra fans, and would be outraged by the idea that he should stop singing. He is a symbol of the sort of civilization which they like and are fighting for.

There must surely be room on this continent for Sinatra and for editors, too. Certainly we have not felt crowded as yet.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Mr. M. J. Coldwell, recently returned from Britain, tells of the magnificent work for our troops being done by Canadian doctors. You can help it along by becoming a blood donor at the local clinic.

Can anyone explain why the World Series is called the 'World' Series? How much of the world is really interested? With equal justice to the Swiss might call a yodeling party the World's Yodeling Contest.

It is amusing to observe how many people are sighing with relief at the death of the cruel Mitsuru Toyama—people who had never heard of him until they read his obituary. As he died at 90, this must serve as a conspicuous example of wisdom after the event.

Aviation Conferences

By B. T. RICHARDSON

TWO conferences which may shape Canada's role in world aviation in the future will be held shortly. The first in Montreal on October 23, will find officials of the British Commonwealth nations completing discussions on civil aviation that have been conducted intermittently for a year or more. The second, probably at Chicago, will find representatives of governments of the United Nations tackling the problem of erecting a framework of international organization in the field of world aviation.

In both conferences a variety of differences and sources of contention will exist; for the world picture of aviation is full of possible disputes. But the groundwork has been laid in discussions extending over many months, in which the British and American governments have taken the initiative and which have included almost every country, except enemy nations, interested in world air routes.

THE Canadian case is a strong one. In the atmosphere of international discussions, the views of Canada will carry considerable weight, for Canada occupies a strategic position on the air routes of the world, possesses well developed internal air services and facilities, and possesses a substantial air skill and knowledge.

When speaking of aviation discussions between Great Britain and the United States, Lord Beaverbrook said in the British parliament on May 10: "We should not move in the direction of making plans without taking into account all our resources in planes. The mistake of making plans without resources is an error which has often been perpetrated in the past, but I hope it won't be all plans and no planes." This observation applies with special relevance to Canada's aviation plans, which have been under the care of Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of munitions and supply.

THE British government has an undertaking from the American government, as Lord Beaverbrook disclosed, that it will be able to obtain long-range American aircraft on a non-discriminatory basis during the interval of conversion of British aircraft production to commercial planes. This will take care of the disadvantage suffered by Britain in the wartime pooling arrangement by which Britain concentrated in fighter planes while the United States specialized in long-range planes.

Recently the Australian government placed orders for commercial aircraft in the United States, with the intention of expanding its services. Announcements from both British and American sources recently have disclosed that, while military aircraft production has continued in types still in urgent demand, the conversion to commercial aircraft has begun.

Against this background, Canada has begun to build its future commercial aircraft. The order for fifty DC-4 planes, the large, four-engined transport aircraft, placed by the Canadian government in Canada last summer, represents enough planes not only for internal services but also for trans-ocean routes on which Trans-Canada Air Lines hopes to operate. Of this number, 15 or 20 will be required to replace aircraft now used by TCA on its trunk line service in Canada, and the rest will be available for international routes.

In explanation of the order, Mr. Howe said: "TCA is planning trans-ocean services that will require additional aircraft. The number of fifty is considered a reasonable estimate of Canada's postwar requirements." Canada will have, in brief, both the planes and plans for future air services.

AS it now appears, the Canadian proposal for an international air transport organization with executive authority is not likely to be accepted at the coming international conference, though it is impossible to forecast whether any plan approximating it will emerge at this time. As a result of rejection of this plan by the American government as a basis of discussion, the Canadian government has been pushed much closer to the scheme of joint operation of air routes by governments of the British Commonwealth countries as proposed by Australia and New Zealand, than seemed likely a few months ago.

In advance of the United Nations conference, it appears that most of the smaller nations interested in world air routes have withheld acceptance of the American proposals of individual agreements with each country separately. They have favored alternately, the general principle worked out at previous Commonwealth conversations on aviation, for an international air transport organization which would plan a network of world air routes in which various nations could obtain a place. It may be that this proposal, as against the American plan for bilateral agreements, will serve as the central issue to be settled at the coming conference.

WHILE the Canadian proposal for a general, binding agreement on a world air authority with executive power vested in it, may not be accepted, the Canadian second choice is not clear. Yet it must be one of two things, either an international organization in which routes will be planned and in which all nations joining could secure an appropriate place, or a policy of bilateral agreements.

It is likely the Canadian attitude will favor the former, though such a policy would not leave Canada in a comfortable position if the United States did not join. Or if Russia stayed out. Neither of these possibilities seem at all likely at present, though there is naturally disappointment in Ottawa over the American preference for bilateral arrangements reflected in earlier discussions.

WHY WOMEN FALL

Women are not as sure-footed as men, and for that reason falls account for the largest number of accidents to women, Mrs. Ann M. Fox says.

Forty-one per cent of the women's accidents last year were falls, compared with 20 per cent for men. Women are put together differently. They pivot on a smaller base. Their legs are shorter. And yes, more women are knock-kneed.

The biggest trouble, in her opinion, is that women do not know how to walk properly. Mothers who have painfully drilled their daughters to take small steps and to keep their feet close to the ground are responsible for many accidents in industrial areas, she declared.

The wrong shoes—wedgies, open toes and high heels—also account for the fact that falls on floors, steps, sidewalks, roads, parking lots, ramps and loading platforms are the common cause of accidents. — Chicago Daily News.

Working for Unemployment

(By R. J. DEACHMAN)

BEYOND question the best means of guaranteeing a full measure of unemployment was put forward by Mr. Percy Bengough, President of the Trades and Labour Congress of Canada. His scheme was to reduce the working week to five days of six hours each, a thirty hour working week, without any reduction in the weekly pay envelope! Wages are paid out of production. Labour would produce less in 30 hours than in 40, 44, or 48. How this reduction of the total national income could increase the earning power of labour, as a whole, was never discussed. The idea was to get the big pay and trust to providence.

It is assumed, of course, that capital, which in thirty years increased production per worker to four times its former level, could forthwith do it again. During the period this was done, capital was allowed to retain some portion of the saving as compensation for its effort. Mr. Bengough's proposal is an announcement to capital that, if it accepts the proposals of labour, there will be a return engagement with equally strong demands for further reductions later on.

Recall the case of the late Mr. Sisyphus. For his sins he was condemned by the gods to push a big stone up a hill and begin all over again, as soon as it had rolled to the bottom. It was a stupid action—Mr. Sisyphus was a strong man—he could have been put to more useful work. Labour would be better employed if its active mind sought more useful measures. Capital should co-operate with capital—do it in its own interest.

The second most destructive proposal comes from the Toronto Daily Star. It suggests, in a very persuasive way—the Star is often quite persuasive—that the excess profits tax should be retained after the war.

The arguments advanced in favour of this policy are rather confusing. Let us put them down in the order followed by the editor.

1. "It (the excess profits tax) increases the revenues at the disposal of the government for social and other services."

2. "It makes more difficult the accumulation of huge fortunes."

3. "It encourages employers to pay their employees better wages and to sell their products more cheaply, since, to use a common expression, "the government will get the money anyway."

Numbers 1 and 3 are flatly contradictory. The government is asked to retain a tax, imposed under special conditions, so that the money may be used for the expansion of social services. In number 3 it gives the story away—"it would encourage employers to pay higher wages." I doubt if the Minister of Finance would care to adopt the suggestion. He is asked to impose a tax for a certain ostensible purpose, while, at the same time, it is pointed out to him that it will be used for another. Business would have every right to protest against the acceptance of the humble role of cats-paw, pulling chestnuts out of the fire for labour, while pretending to contribute tax-money for charitable purposes.

ITEM 2, in this agenda, is rather naive. Huge fortunes are often the result of special privilege, The Star does not suggest, in its story, the abolition of privilege. That would be difficult. Its program creates two privileges and removes none. It would give the advantage to great firms strongly established—while it would prevent the rise of new ones, by similar methods, to competitive positions. It is proposed to distribute these taxes among the workers. I realize that it is extremely difficult to persuade Toronto that it is not Canada. This is understandable—did not chanticleer assume that he caused the sun to rise?

There are others in this country who have rights. Why should the government impose a tax, which, in a roundabout way, would be distributed to labour and taken from the farmers and basic producers, by higher prices in the products they obtain, in exchange for the goods they produce? But the Star suggests that higher taxes imposed by a government really bring about lower prices on the theory that the average corporation would prefer to give away its profits rather than have them go to the government.

I doubt if many corporations take that attitude. If they do, then the form of taxation is wrong. We should devise a tax which will stay where it is put and be distributed according to the law which brought it into existence.

The answer to high profits is increased capital investment, the erection of more factories, the production of more goods, the lowering of prices, the employment of more labour. This cannot be brought about by the means suggested. Strange! Isn't it? In a world where everything depends on the production and exchange of goods in the most efficient manner possible, we seek madly to benefit small sections, at the expense of the whole nation, in the blind hope that the benefit of the few will exalt the many. Then we wonder why nations are at war when groups within the nations play from, day to day, their silly games.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

MORMONS REPLY TO LIBEL

Sir: In answer to the article "Warns Mormons Dangerous Sect" printed in the October 17 edition of the Peterborough Examiner, the following facts should be explained:

The speaker referred to in the article "explained that in Alberta they already had a considerable degree of political influence and warned against toleration of a sect which believe in polygamy, in the superiority of Joseph Smith's teachings to those of Jesus and the Bible".

The following assertions can be thoroughly substantiated:

First, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, commonly called Mormon, does not seek to exert any political influence or domination. Members are free to exercise their own political judgement, and may support any political movement, and do affiliate themselves with such, as freely as the members of any other religious organization. Any exceptional political influence exercised by individual members is due entirely to their own characters and personalities.

Second, the practice of polygamy is not advocated by the Church, but expressly forbidden. Any member who teaches or contracts plural marriage is excommunicated from membership, the severest penalty the Church can impose. The Church is in no way connected with those who are reported practicing polygamy in Utah, and is extending its influence to assist the federal authorities in prosecuting those attempting to evade the law.

Finally, the Church does not place the teachings of Joseph Smith above those of Jesus. The very name of the organization, "The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints", indicates whose church it claims to be, and our Lord Jesus Christ is accepted as its living head. The Prophet Joseph Smith was but a servant in the hands of the Lord in restoring and reaffirming the true teachings of our Saviour. The Bible is accepted as the word of God. The following are known as the "Articles of Faith", a brief statement of some of the principles of the Gospel as taught by the "Mormons". In no way do they conflict with the teachings of the Bible:

1. We believe in God, the Eternal Father, and in His Sons, Jesus Christ, and in the Holy Ghost.

2. We believe that men will be punished for their own sins, and not for Adam's transgression.

3. We believe that through the Atonement of Christ, all mankind may be saved, by obedience to the laws and ordinances of the Gospel.

4. We believe that the first principles and ordinances of the Gospel are: first, Faith in the Lord Jesus Christ; second, Repentance; third, Baptism by immersion for the remission of sins; fourth, Laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost.

5. We believe that a man must be called of God, by prophecy, and by the laying on of hands, by those who are in authority to preach the Gospel and administer in the ordinances thereof.

6. We believe in the same organization that existed in the Primitive Church, viz., apostles, prophets, pastors, teachers, evangelists, etc.

7. We believe in the gift of tongues, prophecy, revelation, visions, healing, interpretation of tongues, etc.

8. We believe the Bible to be the word of God as far as it is translated correctly; we also believe the Book of Mormon to be the word of God.

9. We believe all that God has revealed, all that He does now reveal, and we believe that He will yet reveal many great and important things pertaining to the Kingdom of God.

10. We believe in the literal gathering of Israel and in the restoration of the Ten Tribes; that Zion will be built upon this (the American) continent; that Christ will reign personally upon the earth; and, that the earth will be renewed and receive its paradisiacal glory.

11. We claim the privilege of worshipping Almighty God according to the dictates of our own conscience, and allow all men the same privilege, let them worship how, where, or what they may.

12. We believe in being subject to kings, presidents, rulers and magistrates, in obeying, honoring, and sustaining the law.

13. We believe in being honest, true, chaste, benevolent, virtuous, and in doing good to all men; indeed, we may say that we follow the admonition of Paul—We believe all things, we hope all things, we have endured many things, and hope to be able to endure all things. If there is anything virtuous, lovely, or of good report or praiseworthy, we seek after these things.—Joseph Smith.

ELDON C. OLSEN,
Presiding Elder.

A Bible Message

Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life, whereunto thou art also called, and hast professed a good profession before many witnesses....

Charge them that are rich in this world, that they be not highminded, nor trust in uncertain riches, but in the living God, who giveth us richly all things to enjoy; that they do good, that they be rich in good works, ready to distribute, willing to communicate; laying up in store for themselves a good foundation against the time to come, that they may lay hold on eternal life. (I Tim. 6: 12, 17-19.)

And it shall come to pass in the last days, that the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it. And many people shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths. (Isa. 2: 2, 3.)

◆ ◆ ◆

And he will destroy in this mountain the face of the covering cast over all people, and the vail that is spread over all nations. He will swallow up death in victory; and the Lord God will wipe away tears from off all faces; and the rebuke of his people shall he take away from off all the earth, for the Lord hath spoken it.

And it shall be said in that day, Lo, this is our God; we have waited for him, and he will save us: this is the Lord; we have waited on him, we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation. (Isa. 25: 7-9.)

Old-Fashioned Carriage

The two-seated democrat is a part of American tradition. It did not have the cosy intimacy of the top buggy nor the style and zip of the fringed-top surrey. But many a city man who drives a car with three- or four-score horsepower magically concealed in a small space before him can remember the sturdy, utilitarian two-seated democrat.

It was a wagon of many uses. On Sundays, Father, Mother and four children could be comfortably seated for the ride to the white church beside the village common. On Saturday evenings, when the whole family went to the General Store for the week's groceries, notions and a dime's worth of hard candies apiece for the children, there was room beneath the seats for the eggs, butter, and perhaps some fruits and vegetables for special customers. With the rear seat removed, the democrat wagon body was sturdy enough to carry a barrel of Baldwins or Northern Spies and a couple sacks of Green Mountains to Uncle Barzeola and Aunt Mesakiah.

To many a farm lad the democrat was the best of the farm vehicles. Likely enough, it was in it that he was first permitted to drive alone to the village. It was probably the democrat that Father let him take when he was old enough to drive to Long Pond for a day's fishing. On many a rainy day one Morgan mare was hitched in the shafts and the other led behind as he took them to the blacksmith shop to have their shoes reset. And on that red-letter day in the fall when the family went to the County Cattle Show, it was the democrat that carried the family, with the boxes and hampers of lunch stowed beneath the seats.

It wasn't much to look at. Just a sturdy set of wheels, a low box body and two plain seats with leather cushions. But two-seated democrats had their part in daily living in the country. And when the time came for boys and girls to leave the farm and venture forth to the cities many of them rode to the village depot in it. The air age has has arrived, but there are many who remember the sturdy wagon that rolled along the dust roads behind a jogging horse.—New York Times.

Canning Booms Picton Shipping

PICTON, Sept. 19—(CP)—Huge shipments of canned goods are leaving Picton harbor as fast as freighters can be loaded. Since Sunday, three cargoes, totalling some 2,200 tons have been loaded on three C.S.L. freighters here. With the rush expected to continue until navigation closes, it is likely that all shipping records here will be broken.

From Picton port, the greater part of the pack of Prince Edward's 40 canning factories is shipped, along with those from factories in the area from Bowmanville on the west and from Frankford south.

Picton boasts the only natural deep-water harbor in this district and is therefore the focal point for water shipping. Canned goods are being trucked here night and day, with sheds already filled to overflowing.

Harry Nixon Observes Jubilee; Elected First In 1919

By FRASER MACDOUGALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. GEORGE, Ont., Oct. 19 — (CP). — When Harry Corwin Nixon was nominated as the United Farmers of Ontario candidate in Brant North in the provincial general election of 1919, his father told him, "you're crazy! Where'll you get the vote? Just tell me where you'll get one vote?"

"Well, dad," the 28-year-old candidate replied "I'll get my wife's vote. I'm sure you'll vote for me, I intend to vote for myself — and that makes three for a start."

Actually on election day, Oct. 20, the young candidate received 3,579 votes, somewhat less than the combined total of 4,539 polled by his Liberal and Conservative opponents but enough to win him a seat in the Ontario Legislature. He has been a member of the Legislature ever since, being re-elected in Brant North in 1923 and in Brant in 1926, 1929, 1934, 1937 and 1943, obtaining an aggregate total of 39,421 votes in the seven elections he contested.

Today on the eve of teh 25th anniversary of his first election victory for which he planned a quiet observance, he looked back with pride on a quarter century of service to his native province, including 12 years as provincial secretary and a brief period as premier.

In those 25 years his political affiliation changed three times, from U.F.O. to Progressive to Liberal-Progressive to Liberal. He was House leader of the Progressive group in the Legislature for years and now is Ontario Liberal leader.

Born April 1

He was born April 1, 1891, and the only other person he ever knew with the traditional "all fool's day" for a birthday was his son, Jackson.

"That was the most wonderful birthday present I ever had," said Mr. Nixon in an interview, just a little wistfully. Jackson, a pilot officer in the Royal Canadian Air Force, was killed Sept. 3, 1941, in an attack on Frankfort, Germany. "He was a wonderful boy."

The Liberal leader has been a farmer all his life. He was brought up on the 300-acre family farm near here which he now operates. He was educated at St. George and the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph.

In 1919 he was secretary of the St. George U.F.O. Club which carried on a large commercial business. When a meeting of county clubs was called to discuss possible political action he attended and before the meeting was over found himself a candidate for the provincial election.

His total expenses in his first election were $190 but "I'd hate to try to run an election for that now." The U.F.O. officials passed the hat at campaign meetings and collections totalled $100. Mr. Nixon paid the other $90 himself. Instead of getting help from the central party organization—as candidates do now—he paid $20 to the central office for copies of a campaign issue of the old Farmer's Sun to distribute among his constituents.

Premier 3 Months.

He was provincial secretary in the E. C. Drury U.F.O. government, 1919-1923. He took over the portfolio again when Mitchell F. Hepburn became premier in 1934 and then he resigned in 1942 in pr%otest against the manner in which Gordon D. Conant succeeded Mr. Hepburn as premier.

He was premier of Ontario for three months, less one day—May 18 to Aug. 17, 1943. "That must be a record for short terms among Ontario premiers," he said with a smile.

The most interesting years of his political life were from 1930 to 1934 when he "carried the torch for Mitch Hepburn" in the Legislature. Although provincial Liberal leader, Mr. Hepburn was not a member of the House. Mr. Nixon actually was House leader of the Progressives but "Mitch didn't get along" with the Liberal House leader.

Mr. Nixon was married in 1913 to the former Alice Jackson of Guelph and Petrolia, Ont. They had four children. Oldest was Jackson, killed overseas. Kathryne served overseas with the women's division of the R.C.A.F. but returned home last April and recently "presented me with a granddaughter." Her husband, Capt. Bruce Forbes, now is in Belgium. Margaret is the wife of Warrant Officer Douglas Farrell, with the Canadian army in England. Robert, 16, is at home.

Instal Officers At IOOF Lodge

BONARLAW, Oct. 19.—(ENS).—District Deputy Grand Master I.O.O.F. Leslie Blakely and his staff of Madoc lodge paid an official visit to Springbrook Lodge I.O.O.F. 429 Tuesday and installed the officers. They are:

Noble Grand, Cecil Bateman; I.P.G., Howard Martin; Vice Grand, Everett Cook; Rec. Sec., Clayton Burkitt; Fin. Sec., Sidney Mason; Treasurer, H. Mumby; Warden, Thos. H. Prest; Con., Geo. E. Thompson; Chaplain, Earl Cranston; I. Guard, Lindsay Mumby; O. Guard, Percy Bateman; R.S.N.G., M. R. Neal; L.S.N.G., Roy Shortt; R.S.V.G., Roy Brown; L.S.V.G., G. S. Eastwood; R.S.S., Allan B. McComb; L.S.S., Everett Sine

The team was composed of Leslie Blakely, D.D.G.M.; Percy Holland, D.D.G. Marshall; Dr. S. R. Beatty, D.D.G. Warden; R. F. Bristol, D.D.G. Rec. Sec.; Hubert Nickle, D.D.G. Fin.-Sec.; Mel Caverley, D.D.G. Treasurer; C. H. Conley, D.D.G. Chaplain; J. H. Tate, D.D.G. Her.

A feature of the evening was the presentation of a twenty-five year jewel to Past Grand Chas. Lough, from Springbrook lodge. The presentation was made by the District Deputy Grand Master. P. G. Lough thanked the lodge for the jewel and the D.D.G.M.

Short addresses were given by the members of the installing team, and also by the following visitors: Earl Fox, C. U. Heath, G. Bradshaw, E. Carlisle, W. Patterson. Hhe retiring Noble Grand, H. Martin, thanked the members for their cooperation during the past year and hoped they would give the same support to the newly installed Noble Grand.

Past Grand J. F. Baker complimented the District Deputy and his staff on the way they handled the installation ceremony.

Freak Aerial Mishap Hurls Flier Into Sea

SOMEWHERE IN CHINA, Oct. 19 — (CP) — The B-29 Superfortress "Monsoon Winnie" found a haven inside Free China on its return from Formosa with two crewmen wounded and a third missing in a freakish mishap.

Pressureized air within the Superfortress blew the right waist gunner out of the plane high over the China sea when his plexiglass bulge was broken, either from the outside by enemy gunfire or from the inside by a shell explosion in the flight compartment 40 feet away. Left waist gunner Sgt. Joseph Duemig saw his comrade whisked out and later saw his parachute open far below. A Mae West lifebelt bore him up in the sea.

AT REST IN ENGLAND—This is the grave in the R.A.F. Regional Cemetery at Harrogate, England, of Sgt. Herbert R. Davies, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Davies of Toronto, and formerly of Havelock. He was killed in an air accident in May. His chum, LAC. Stephen Deline of Havelock, recently visited the cemetery and sent the picture to his parents. The two boys had been school chums.

20,795 British Killed In West

LONDON, Oct. 19 — (CP). — Clement Attlee, Deputy Prime Minister, disclosed in the House of Commons Thursday that British Imperial forces, including those of the Dominions and other overseas personnel, had suffered 103,842 casualties from the opening of the western European campaign to the end of August.

Of this total, he said, 20,795 were killed, 63,193 were wounded and 19,854 were taken prisoners or listed missing.

Mr. Attlee said the total included all air force casualties from April 1 while the remainder dated from D-Day — June 6.

Prime Minister Churchill recently told Commons that American losses since D-Day in Europe were about 148,000.

At Ottawa casualty figures for the period from D-Day to the end of August were not available. However from figures already announced it was possible to work out a rough approximation of the number of Canadian casualties during that period.

The Canadian casualty total reckoned on the basis of May 31 to Aug. 31 for the army and May 31 to July 31 for the navy and air force was 22,703. This was broken down to give a navy total of 171, army 20,888 and R.C.A.F. 1,644.

King George Defeats Prince Of Wales 2-0

King George junior soccer eleven defeated Prince of Wales juniors on Riverside Park Wednesday afternoon, by two goals to nil.

Right from the kick-off the East City boys introduced the combination plays that had their opponents baffled for a long while; until a smart clearance by B. Davis, King George, resulted in Harding connecting with a fast drive to score.

In the second half, Prince of Wales forced the play, but weakened badly in front of goal. About ten minutes to go, King George forward, Jensen, accepted a timely pass up the field by Calladine, who had drawn out the defence to let his team-mate beat Byers, goalie, with a fast drive. King George 2; Prince of Wales 0.

Prince of Wales—W. Jones, goal; B. Chalmers and D. Best, full backs; R. Carl, D. Cooper and H. Panter, halves; D. Byers, D. Wood, J. Johnston, R. Fowler and K. Deck, forwards; subs., B. Moffatt, E. Dunn, R. Deck.

King George—J. Stock, goal; H. Carr and T. Chapman, full backs; J. Calladine, B. Davis and L. Thane, halves; B. Jensen, C. Ferguson, J. Shannon, H. Harding and L. Rutherford, forwards; subs., D. Britnell and B. Withers.

Referee: Stroyan Leith, Sr.

SPORTS - Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Coach Rich Jackson hopes to be able to toss out a team on the field in Saturday's game with the Toronto Vikings that will be strong enough to put the Peterborough juniors into the win column. A big squad of youngsters has been working out and the players are showing enough enthusiasm to justify the hope that they will battle the strong visitors all the way down the line and come home in front. Vikings, according to Queen City reports, have a strong well-balanced team and they are generally regarded as on a par with Westsides who proved a shade too good for the Petes in the Thanksgiving Day game here, although in the long run it was the errors made by the homesters that beat them. Saturday's game will get under way at 2 o'clock and should be a colorful exhibition. The starting lineup of the Peterborough twelve has not yet been announced but there will be a full array of alternates and the team should be well qualified, therefore, to travel at top speed. There will be a real crowd out to see the battle, for the Peterborough youngsters favorably impressed the fans on their initial appearance and local followers of rugby will be out in force to see them battle with Vikings.

Although the P.C.V.S. senior squad are leading their group with two straight wins they have to grab off another victory Saturday when they invade Oshawa or find themselves in a three-cornered tie for the top spot. Bowmanville High play Lindsay the same afternoon and should win handily so that if the Peterborough students should happen to lose in Oshawa, Bowmanville, Oshawa and Peterborough would all be on even terms with two wins and one loss each. George Campbell, Oshawa scribe, has the following to say about Saturday's game: "O.C.V.I. gridders busted right into the win column this past week-end, with the well-known "bang." Lindsay Collegiate COSSA entry was the victim of the "bang." The students from the banks of the Scugog came here full of fight and determination, scored the first touchdown and looked as if they were going to push the Red, Green and Gold clan right down into the dank regions of the cellar position in the group race. However, "Nero" Lindsay proved quite a Nemisis to his namesake rivals, as he ripped the visitors' line to shreds and backed up with some nice passing, broken-field running and reliable defensive play all-round, the O.C.V.I. boys start to roll in a big way and took the verdict in handy fashion, 27-10. The win puts O.C.V.I. tied with Bowmanville H.S. for second place in the group campaign. Bowmanville extended the Liftlock team to the very limit up in Peterborough on Saturday. The Peterborough squad now leads the race, undefeated, but having tasted the fruits of victory, the O.C.V.I. boys are going right out after a win again next Saturday afternoon, back at Alexandra Park again. Incidentally, there was a good crowd of "Outsiders" on hand Saturday afternoon, as well as a host of enthusiastic student rooters and this next game should attract a banner crowd, for the brand of rugby is certainly worth watching."

Again About Scoring

This column has company in its contention that the system of compiling scoring records in Canadian football doesn't mean a thing. Mike Rodden, sports editor of the Kingston Whig-Standard and formerly an ace football coach takes a few raps at the scoring statistics and his remarks are to the point. Says Bre'er Rodden: "Statistics relative to scoring in football are misleading. In Saturday's Kingston League senior game at Richardson Stadium Jack Milliken received credit for scoring the touchdown that won the battle when he caught Quarterback Nelson's forward pass behind the goal line and sat down in victory. Wasn't Nelson entitled to at least half the credit? I would think so and yet you can't prove it by the system. Hamilton Tigers of the 1927 to '30 era had vastly different ideas. Nobody cared who scored as long as it was done. In one game the Bengals carried the ball to the one-yard line and then sent Alex Denman plunging over for a touchdown. It was the first time Denman had ever toted a ball. In another march Tigers entrusted the task of scoring a touchdown to Ernie Cox, veteran snapback, and Ernie obliged by barging his way past five amazed opponents."

* * * * * *

"Great plungers like Brian Timmis, "Gear" Elford, Dave Sprague and Ray Boadway would crash their way into the scoring zone and then take keen delight seeing "Pep" Leadley kick his remarkable goals from the field," continues the Rodden article. "'This system,' said Brian Timmis, 'gives us all an opportunity to rest and saves the lives of our opponents.' So what price individual scoring rating in football! It may glorify certain performers but it will impress few players who well know that they are merely pawns in the system. As a general rule a quarterback figures only indirectly in the scoring of points. It is his task to cross the defenders by using a well masked attack. The late Johnny Evans of Queen's University fame, and Ken Walker of Tigers, stood out in this respect and as a direct result of their unselfishness their teams scaled dizzy heights."

What An Arena Means

Just what a modern arena means to a community is illustrated in the following despatch from Owen Sound written by Bunny Morganson of the Telegram who is covering the Leafs' training camp: "Good citizens of this thriving and sport-minded city are to be congratulated. Their civic auditorium is one of the best modern-sized arenas it has been our pleasure to behold. Managed by Bill Garbutt, the Owen Sound Arena is the temporary home of the some 41 hockey players, good, bad and otherwise, that Coach Happy Day has training under the banner of the Maple Leafs. Something like 180 feet long and 80 feet wide, the ice surface stands up well under the pounding of four ice-drills daily. The seating capacity is over the 2,000 mark and at one end there is a balcony with an up-to-date refreshment stand. Owen Sound is ready for the post-war sport program. Since the opening of their Arena back in 1938, they haven't missed a season in winning a lacrosse title and gained several district hockey honors. Building up in minor sport, Owen Sound is anxiously waiting the day of peace when they can, like many other such cities, reclaim their own sons now in uniform, and then proceed with a top sports program. Owen Sound will have senior and junior hockey of the best within a few winters. They are also destined to share greatly in the future senior lacrosse activity."

Bill Joiner, well-known in Peterborough as a boxer who has taken part in a lot of the local cards and always made a good showing has recently been appointed to the position of camp sports sergeant at Petawawa Camp where he has been stationed for some time and has been actively identified with sport activities. The Grenade, the official Petawawa Camp organ says: "This week Sergt. W. H. Joiner takes over as camp sports sergeant replacing Sgt. G. A. Smith who recently left on discharge to M.D. 2, Toronto. Sergeant Joiner before the war was employed by the General Electric Company, Peterborough. In sport he took an active part in aquatic meets and among other things was an active boxing instructor at the Y.M.C.A. for five years. Sergeant Joiner enlisted in the army in 1940 and has been on duty in Lindsay, Ont., Debert, N.S. and Petawawa."

Sporting Chili Con Carne: That the competition in the Ladies' Bowling League is going to be keen this year is shown by the fact that although Westclox rolled up a total of 3260 in their battle with Merry Macs Monday night they only won two out of three.... The Big Bens had 1167 and 1168 in their first two games but fell off to 885 in their third effort. ....Tip Tops must love softball. In spite of the long season they have had the Toronto gang arranged an exhibition game with Hamilton Beavers yesterday and beat the Ambitious City gang at that 7 to 5.... Pittsburg Hornets finished like champs last night when they scored four goals in the final period to knock off Cleveland 5 to 3.... There were no Peterborough names in the lineup.... Hockey Players Like Reporting

OWEN SOUND, Oct. 19.—If Frank McCool, the Calgary boy, becomes Hap Day's answer to the 1944-45 goal-tending problems of the Toronto Leafs he'll be able to write his own publicity notices.

Two years ago McCool tended the nets for ex-New York Americans Tommy Anderson's Army team in Calgary. After being discharged from the services last winter, McCool landed a job as a sports reporter for Harry Scott, veteran sports editor of the Calgary Albertan.

Can Handle Own Blurbs.

If McCool lands the Toronto job and can't find time to handle his own publicity releases, he can call on Tommy O'Neill, the desperado kid from Deseronto. The Leafs rookie right winger called in from St. Michael's College last winter, not only beats the hottest piano in the country, but manipulates the typewriter like a veteran.

Oddly enough young O'Neill definitely the Thomas (Fats) Waller of the National Hockey League doesn't want to pursue a musical career. He wants to become a newspaper reporter.

London To Have Sandlot Playoffs

TORONTO, Oct. 19. — (CP).— London, Ont., will be the site of the 1945 Canadian sandlot baseball championships, it was announced here to-day by Lloyd Douglas, president of the National Baseball Congress of Canada. The series will be held in August.

If conditions permit, Douglas said a double elimination series will be played with the winners meeting the champions of the United States tournament at Wichita, Kansas.

Beaches Must Hogtie Krol

Everybody's been waiting for it, and Saturday it comes up at Varsity Stadium — Hamilton Wildcats vs. Balmy Beach.

What a setup! Both teams are unbeaten and the merits of both are well known. What a lot of people are prone to forget, however, is that come Saturday Alex. Ponton's Balmy Beach-Tip Tops get a chance to gain a measure of revenge for what Hamilton did to them last year in the O.R.F.U. championship series.

Coach Ponton was quite satisfied then, and he's satisfied now, that he had and has a better club than that which belongs this year to Eddie McLean. Beaches, in the championship game last year, went in without the services of dashing Stew Scott. Ponton will be in against Wildcats again Saturday without the services of two important cogs in the machine, but he's still confident he can do things to upset the Wildcats.

Quarters Injured.

Bert Hamm and Frankie Stukus, Ponton's two quarterbacks, are both on the injured list, but there is a faint chance Stukus may get in despite the fact he has three badly bruised ribs. Without these two worthies the Whispering Mentor will have to juggle his backfield, starting Earl Selkirk at quarter and moving Ross McKelvey into the No. 2 spot.

"We've got to stop Krol — that's our main worry," said Ponton last night. "If we can get him sidetracked we've got a large part of the battle won. But, you know and I know, that's a big order."

The Beaches' coach was loud in his praise of Billy Meyers, the former Vaughan Road Collegiate star. Myers turned in a sensational game in Ottawa when Beaches won pretty much as they pleased and Ponton is counting heavily on him and Ross McKelvey to produce a lot of scoring punch.

THE SEA WILL GIVE UP TREASURE to men who think of tomorrow

SALVAGE SUBMARINE OF TOMORROW! . . . Already more than 40 million tons of shipping have been sunk in World War II. What a treasure trove of valuable metals and non-perishable cargoes may be reclaimed with these powerful undersea craft . . . equipped with salvaging cables and with decompression chambers for diving operations. They're coming . . . planned by men who think of tomorrow!

MEN who think of tomorrow are planning many startling post-war engineering enterprises. The salvage of deep sea treasure by giant submarines is one of the most practical . . . and profitable.

But until the day arrives when men and machines are free for such fascinating exploits, we have a lot of salvaging to do on the home front!

For instance, the need for waste paper has never been more urgent than it is now. Are you salvaging yours? . . . Gigantic quantities of explosives must continue to flow across the sea to our armed forces. That takes glycerine and glycerine takes kitchen fats. Are you salvaging every drop you can?

There is no respite for anybody in the kind of a war we're waging. None for the soldier, none for those at home . . . None of us is through with the job until the last enemy flag comes down. And that means, among other things, buying more and more War Savings Certificates and Victory Bonds, and it means hanging on to them, too!

Tomorrow will come, as it always has . . . but it will be the brighter for the sacrifices we make today. Let us all be MEN WHO THINK OF TOMORROW . . . and get ready for it NOW!

By HYE BOSSIN

The rowdy Alan Hale is one of Hollywood's prize husbands, he and the Mrs. having celebrated their thirtieth anniversary recently. They were married in New York's famed Little Church Around the Corner, actors' haven, which is to be the subject of a movie. At the time they were being co-starred in "Cricket On The Hearth." Mrs. Hale was Gretchen Hartman then.

* * *

Hollywood has many a trick to make short persons seem taller—built-up heels, vertically-striped suits, cuffless trousers and so on. One executive really went all out along that line. The ceilings in his home are lower and furniture is proportionately smaller, so that his surroundings fit him physically.

* * *

An usher leading two persons down a theatre aisle had to tell them to quit talking audibly.

"What!" exclaimed one. "Don't tell me that the film has put everyone … already?"

* * *

A Headline in a Hollywood trade paper reads "Actors May Copyright Faces." It isn't as silly as it sounds. An actor's face is the main part of his fortune. Now that television is on the way screen actors want payment for any of their films that may be televised. This extra use of films will bring in more money and the actors want their share of it. Writers and musicians are making the same point.

Jackie Cooper was found not guilty of those charges . . . Laird Cregar plays the smooth killer again in "Hangover Square," this time composing concertos between murders . . . Strange that the late Aimee McPherson, Hollywood evangelist extraordinary, never entered pictures. Born on a farm near Ingersoll, Ontario, she had been an amateur actress and later, when her fame had spread, made several appearances in the USA's leading vaudeville houses. She had a great magnetism that would have found a perfect outlet in the movies.

Henry MacRae, the oldest active producer in Hollywood, has passed on at 68. He had been making films since 1909 and was known as the leading producer of serials.

Like so many of Hollywood's leading lights, he was born in Canada. He came from Stayner, Ontario, to the medical school at the University of Toronto but joined a stock company in the Queen City before graduation.

Some of the films he made were "The Beast of Berlin," "The Cat and Canary," "Charlie's Aunt" and "The Cohen and the Kelly"

Canadiens' Plan A Mystery; Fans Annoyed

By OWEN CHANNON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL, Oct. 19 — (CP) — Hockey fans here are waiting—somewhat impatiently—for someone to come along and sweep away the mystery over the immediate future of Montreal Canadiens. About all that is known is that the Habitants are scheduled to open the National Hockey League season Oct. 28 against Boston Bruins.

The fans are discontented with the meagre reports trickling through from the training camp. No player contracts have been announced and mystery surrounds the military status of each of the players.

With the N.H.L. regulation barring players who are deferred from the army for other than physical reasons dangling over the Canucks, fans are wondering over the immediate future of the N.H.L. champions and Stanley Cup holders.

30 In Camp

The way it shapes up at present is that the Habitants are holding on to three goalers, nine defencemen and 19 forwards, making a total of about 30 players in the training camp. Of course, this list will be whittled down to about 18 before the season opens but those who do not make the squad will not be available to other N.H.L. clubs—instead they probably will be allotted to minor league teams where they will be readily available in case they're needed by the Habitants.

Bill Durnan's draft status is in doubt and until his contract is submitted to N.H.L. authorities for approval, it will not be known whether the Vezina trophy holder will be able to guard the nets for Canadiens this season.

Meanwhile, Paul Bibeault who was loaned to Toronto Maple Leafs last year after his discharge from the Canadian Army is being groomed by the Canucks for the new season.

Leo Lamoureux, Butch Bouchard, Glen Harmon and Mike McMahon, who formed the Habitants' rugged defence last season now are back in top form while a number of other defencemen are in the Canucks' camp, including Wilf Fields, formerly with the New York Americans, Butch Stahan, Frankie Eddolls, Ray Leduc and Larry Reardon.

In the forward area many familiar faces are back including Toe Blake, Elmer Lach and Maurice Richard who led the Habitants' scoring last year, Buddy O'Connor, Ferran Majeau, Ray Getliffe, Murph Chamberlain, Dutch Hiller, Fernand Gauthier, Tony Demers, Bob Filion and Lude Check.

Fights Last Night

By The Associated Press

Elizabeth, N.J.—Willie Cheatum, 135½, Newark, outpointed Bernei Miller, 116, New York (6).

Buffalo, N.Y.—Ike Williams, 138, Trenton, N.J., stopped Johnny Green, 111, Buffalo (2).

Dallas—Fritzie Zivic, 151, Pittsburgh, knocked out Pat Saia, 119, Philadelphia (8).

Frank McCool, another Calgerite in the Leaf training camp, continues to show well as goalie for the Toronto squad. He, Pat Boehmer of Kitchener and Leo Sargent of St. Catharines are vieing for the job.

HORSE RACING RETURNS TO THE PARIS SCENE—Auteuil, Paris suburb, again was the gay horse-racing scene recently, when the first meet held since the Paris liberation, was run before a huge throng. Here is the finish of the third race, won by "Miss Bellovaque." The Eiffel Tower looms in the background.

TORONTO, Oct. 19—(CP)—Latest from the gossip bag is that N.H.L. officials and other big-time hockey interests were behind the easy capitulation of St. Louis Flyers when their men were ordered into the grain pits for a spot of honest labor at Port Arthur.

Vic (Timmins Free Press) Copps relates that on the authority of Bill Holouka, one of the young hopefuls attending the training camp. According to the underground reports, the hockey officials were afraid to have Flyers refuse and pull out of town in a huff because of the unfavorable publicity. If too many trouble spots like that developed, it's feared, the government officials might crack down harder on the player talent, and send them all to the Siberian Mines.

Riple, Note:

Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson is authority for this one. Seems that after the Johnny Greco-Oscar Suggs battle in Montreal the other night, Promoter Eddie Quinn offered bonuses to Suggs and his manager, Lou Meyers. The boys refused any bonsuses "for doing the job we're paid to do."

Grab Bag:

Maybe it was all the publicity in that recent Windsor, Ont., school "football strike" but anyway the border city patrons are turning out nobly for the high school games now they finally are under way. The first day, some 2,000 students and 1,600 or so adults ogled the players . . . Toronto Maple Leafs are going all out to develop young hockey players, with a canny eye cocked to the future. Business Manager Frank Selke has offered to conduct a junior hockey school in Timmins this winter, and Toronto is understood to be willing to contribute two or three good players as nucleus for a Memorial Cup aspiring team. Financial aid, 'tis said, will be forthcoming. . Junior hockey backers are active in Vancouver, and have formed a four-team league—two teams from Vancouver and one each from New Westminster and Nanaimo. . . "Sailor" Grayson, husky Coast heavyweight, is at H.M.C.S. Cornwallis. Deep Brook, N.S., training for a spot of ring battling this winter . . .

School Teams Play Scoreless Draw

In a junior Public School Soccer League game at King Edward Park on Monday afternoon, May's and Queen Mary played a hard fought game without a score. It was a tight battle all the way.

May's—Goal, S. Betts; fullbacks, B. Pullybank, D. Allen; halfbacks, R. Byrd, R. Tully, H. Hegadoren; forwards, C. Boate, P. Evans, J. Hargreaves, G. Lock, E. Harvie; subs, B. Davy, D. Hunter, M. Clark.

Queen Mary—Goal, K. Reid; fullbacks, B. Wagar, B. Hoar; halfbacks, G. Cullen, R. Edwards, J. Robertson; forwards, G. Morley, M. Kellett, D. Sloan, R. Wilson, J. Nisbett, subs, K. Woodgate, G. White, H. Bertrain.

Referee—R. Rutherford.

Barons Clip Pittsburgh 5-2

By The Canadian Press

Pittsburgh Hornets and Cleveland Barons came out even-stephen in the first two games of the American Hockey League season with Hornets coming from behind to whip the Barons 5-2 before a 3,500-crowd at Pittsburgh last night. Tuesday night the Barons defeated Pittsburgh 6-1.

Tommy Burlington set the Barons off to an early lead last night with Batholome adding the second goal for Cleveland mid-way through the second frame. Tony Hemmerling got one back for Pittsburgh less than a half-minute later and in the third period the Hornets piled up the rest of their five tallies with Hemmerling adding two of these.

Roubell and Robertson added the other Pittsburgh markers.

The only game tonight matches Buffalo against Indianapolis Caps in the mid-west city.

TILTY, Essex, England — (CP). — A "harvest home" in the parish hall with free beer for the parishioners and all who helped bring in the harvest, was held by Rev. Hugh Cuthbertson, vicar of Tilty.

Training Camp Gossip

By The Canadian Press

Goalies are not lacking in Boston Bruins training camp at Quebec and four netminders may be seen during workouts. Besides Maurice Courteau of Quebec, who was rearguard for Boston Olympics last season, Jerry Foday of Regina, Harvey Bennet of Oshawa and Jimmie Pineo of Halifax, are aspirants for the job.

Detroit Red Wings appear to have the cream of left-hand forwards this year with six of them working out in the pre-schedule training season. Quite a contrast to the situation in the Toronto Maple Leaf camp at Owen Sound, where there are reported to be but two, and to the New York Rangers lineup of four years ago, which did not include any "lefties."

Larry Thibeault, veteran minor leaguer obtained by Red Wings from the American League's Buffalo Bisons bagged 73 points last season after playing the preceding two seasons with Canadian Army teams. He and Ted Lindsay of Toronto, signed contracts Wednesday.

Frank Mario, a rookie winger from Cornwall, Ont., and one-time goal-getter in the Saskatchewan senior loop, arrived at Quebec Wednesday and reported to Manager Art Ross of Boston Bruins.

To Take Gauthier

Reports have it that Fernand Gauthier, one of the players loaned to New York Rangers in the deal which brought Phil Watson to Montreal Canadiens last season, will replace the dynamic Watson on the Habitants line with Ray Getliffe and Murph Chamberlain. Watson, property of the Rangers, may not be able to play this season because of Selective Service regulations.

Dick Irvin is expected to start paring down his roster after an exhibition game Saturday night at Ottawa in which the regulars will meet an all-star team.

Wilf Fields, former hard-hitter with Brooklyn Americans, is expected to land a berth with Canadiens. He's been working well so far in training.

Bryan Hextall, Ranger winger, may be nailed to his farm by Selective Service regulations. Doug Bentley, star from Delisle, Sask., can't play because of the rulings.

Sweeney Schrnier of Calgary who in 1943 announced his retirement from hockey, is back in the fold at Toronto Maple Leafs camp at Owen Sound. He weighed in at 188.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(AP).—New England hoss tracks are worried about a mysterious "woman in red" whose heavy and successful betting has caused several minus pools in the mutuels. . . . But we never heard of them worrying about the numerous guys in the red every afternoon. . . . The boxing managers' union has been revived on Jacobs Beach and detractors say it is affiliated with the I.O.U.

Lee Dunbar, Oakland, Calif., Tribune: "A reader wants to know my definition of the difference between professional and amateur sports. That's easy, chum—in pro sports the promoter splits the gate receipts with his athletes. In amateur sports the promoter keeps all the dough."

Ed Furgol, the Detroit auto mechanic who cleaned up the amateur fields in the big open golf tournaments last summer, will have a fling at big-time match play in the Sonny Fraser invitation event at the Atlantic City Country Club this week-end. . . . George (No Corn) Kobb is celebrating his first anniversary as fight announcer at Madison Square Garden — and it's a great tribute to say that few fans even know who he is. . . . The thoroughbred racing associations imported about two dozen out-of-town newspapermen for a dinner here Tuesday night and then invited all hands to put the publicity men on the pan.

ANTI-BLAST LACE

NOTTINGHAM, England — (CP). — Release of 600,000 yards of yarn to lace manufacturers does not mean that there will be more net curtains for British housewives. The yarn is to protect glass against blast from flying bombs.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Fritzie Zivic, former world's welterweight champion, knocked out Pat Saia of Philadelphia in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-round fight at Dallas, Texas, last night. Zivic, who hails from Pittsburgh, now is in the Army Air Force at San Antonio.

Lloyd Marshall, ranked by the National Boxing Association as the No. 1 active light heavyweight, last night won a split 10-round decision over Joe Carter of Rome, N.Y., at the Cleveland Arena. The decision, Marshall's second over Carter, was booed. Referee Joe Sedley and one judge cast their ballots for Marshall while the other judge favored Carter. There were no knock-downs.

Moose Jaw Canucks, with an eye on the Dominion hockey championship, have signed another of the famous Delisle, Sask., Bentleys for their Southern Saskatchewan League sextet. Latest recruit is forward Jackie Bentley, 16-year-old son of Jack Bentley, eldest of the hockey playing brothers, two of whom, Doug and Max, played for the Chicago Black Hawks in the N.H.L. Roy Bentley, former playing coach of Drumheller Miners and coach of Trail Smoke Eaters, Western Junior champions last year, has signed to coach the Canucks. His son, Bev, will be goaltender.

Gambling Ring

A protest that "professional gambling rings have been fixing races" was presented to Rhode Island officials yesterday by 40 horsemen at the Pascoag Park track. The petition declared that, among other incidents, Jockey Henry Ramirez had been "attacked" Tuesday, and Jockey Milton Briggs "was threatened" yesterday.

Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League last night scored a 6-3 exhibition victory over the American League's Indianapolis Capitols at Detroit. Joe Carveth paced the Wings with two goals and an assist.

Jake Powell, 74, who started his baseball career with Cleveland in 1897 and was one of the American League's leading pitchers of 40 years ago, died at Chicago on Tuesday. Powell served 17 years in both the old National and the American Leagues. He won 22 games for St. Louis Browns in 1902 and 23 for New York Yankees two years later, compiling a life-time Major League record of 248 victories and 256 defeats.

22 In Race

Twenty-two athletes, among them some of Canada's leading distance runners, have entered Hamilton's annual around-the-Bay race, a distance of about 19 miles, which will be staged Saturday. Among those entered are Sgt. Gerard Cote of Montreal and Sgt. Bob (Scotty) Rankine, R.C.A.F., of Galt, Ont.

A new Quebec Senior Hockey League has been formed and will include Montreal Royals, University of Montreal, and teams from Hull, Que., and Ottawa, it was learned at Montreal last night. The League will replace the Q.S.H.L. which was disbanded this season when it was found impossible to organise enough teams. Although it has not been officially announced, the league schedule is expected to get under way about the middle of November.

The Stanley Cup championship Montreal Canadiens last night played their first exhibition game of the season, edging a team from the Naval Training Station at Ste. Hyacinthe, Que. The Sailors were bolstered by a number of Canucks' training camp recruits. Toe Blake scored three goals.

Sailors Cheer For Lost Ship

Leading Coder "Bill" Hayes was on duty aboard H.M.C.S. Athabascan when that Canadian destroyer was fatally hit. True to navy traditions, he was mum about his experience all the while he was back home, in Hamilton, Ont., on "survivor's furlough." But he was intensely grateful for the clothing and ditty bag that were given to him when he needed them most, and in that spirit he called at the Navy League's office in Hamilton to express his thanks and that of his buddies.

He didn't want to talk about it, but he did want to do something to show his appreciation. So he volunteered to dress the window of the new quarters the Navy League had just opened, on John street north. Mrs. W. C. Vaughan, convener of the Women's Committee, tried to discourage this on the grounds that "Bill" had already done more than his share for Canada, but he wouldn't take "no" and went out and purchased a supply of window-dressing material. Nor would he accept repayment of the money he had spent.

A couple of weeks went by and then, one day, Bill dropped in, again, to say his leave was over and that he was heading for an Eastern Canadian port. He was going back to sea to take his place among the thousands of Canadians who today comprise the personnel of Canada's great Royal Canadian Navy. This was all the information the good ladies of the Navy League needed. In no time, Bill was "showered" and had all the warm woollens he could use, plus a new "housewife." He was dumbfounded, and in his anxiety to explain his gratitude, he started to talk and to tell the story they were all so eager to hear.

"I was sitting in the wireless room," he said, quietly and unaware of the drama he was unfolding, "when the enemy was sighted. We immediately gave chase. We tried to illuminate the enemy. Next thing we knew, there was a terrific thump. The ship seemed to be lifted right into the air and then it settled and keeled over. Next thing came an order to send a message that we were hit. This was done. The order to 'abandon ship' soon followed, although there still were messages that had to be sent out.

"So, with others, I remained on duty to send out these messages. When we could not do any more, I walked out into the passageway and then, for some unaccountable reason—and I'll never figure out just why—I walked back, into the wireless room, looked around in a daze, and came out again. I guess I was wondering if I could do any more messages. There was no panic. Everyone was cool and orderly.

"The stern of the ship was blazing, so I hesitated, wondering which way to turn. So, I climbed a ladder to the break of the foc-sil and right at that particular second there seemed to be another terrific explosion. Sheets of flame would shoot into the air and then fall around us. I tried to make myself as small as possible and figured that this was the time for me to get overside. I half-jumped and half-dived. Someone yelled 'keep clear of tht ship.' I tried so hard to do that, but the more I tried to swim away, the more I found myself heading back to the ship. It was the tide coming in.

"Finally, we managed to get away and when I turned to look at the ship, the bow was up in the air. She was sinking fast. All the fellows gave three cheers as she sank and the memory of that will stay with me as long as I live. Now that she had gone and darkness had settled down, we were all dazed, but we could hear the fellows talking to each other and some were telling jokes to keep up their morale. As far as I can remember, we were in the water about an hour and a half and then there seemed to be a rumbling sound in the water and soon three bright lights peered at us.

"They were star shells fired by H.M.C.S. Haida—out looking for us. It was really a perfect sight to see her nosing towards us, her long sleek bow gliding through the water. Such a sight I shall never forget. Nor will I ever forget the way our fellows rallied when they saw her coming or how spontaneously and almost as one voice, they started singing 'Roll Along, Wavy Navy, Roll Along'—and the strange part of it is that that song was composed by the skipper of the Haida whose calm voice was now calling to us, 'Come on, boys. Take it easy. Climb up. Swim for the ship's side.'

"God, when I think of it. His calmness and quiet dignity. It gave us the encouragement our very souls were needing—and he, too, was risking all to come back for us, with the enemy lurking all around. 'Come on, boys. Take it easy.' No one will ever know what those words meant to us, what they did to us.

"The boys on the Haida were lined along the decks and ropes were being thrown. I tried several times to grab a rope but they were so soaked with oil we just couldn't make it. Somehow, I got the notion to swim to midship where there was a scramble-net hanging over the side. I managed to hook on with one knee and that was as much as I could do. Someone reached down and gfrabbed me by the neck. Someone else shoved and I was landed on deck. For a while I couldn't move. I remember that someone picked me up and put me on the quarter deck. Then they cut off our life belts and clothing. The oil was so thick that no time could be wasted trying to unbutton the clothes. They just cut them off.

"Then they bundled us up in blankets and took us to the officers' cabins. Just then the "Action Bell" rang—and such a feeling as went over us! Here we were. No life-belts, no clothes and at the mercy of whatever might happen. Nothing did happen, and soon we heard the glorious sound of the ship's propellers, grinding away and heading for home port.

"After we had thawed out and after shivering for hours, the boys of the Haida came around and helped us to wash off the oil. Then they gave us warm clothing—a Survivor's Bundle from the Navy League of Canada. In that bundle were the warm clothes we needed so badly. I cannot speak too much of that bundle. It really did something not only for me but for all my buddies—to think that someone back home, some organization, had thought of the dangers we were liable to face and had had the foresight to provide for such an emergency. I must also mention that those new life-belts were simply wonderful. I would not be telling this story if it hadn't been for them.

"And so, we were on our way, and when we reached our Canadian base, H.M.C.S. Niobe, were each given a ditty bag, and my biggest thrill was when I saw that my ditty bag was right from my own home town—Hamilton, Canada!

"We stayed for a few days and then really came 'home.' I can't think of very much else except to say that I am very thankful to be able to tell you my story and that all I could wish for is that every one of the Navy League of Canada who works so hard could see the expressions of joy on the faces of the lads who received Survivor's Bundles and ditty bags.

Girls Class At Knox Plan Hallowe'en Party

HAVELOCK, Oct. 19—(ENS)—The Girl's Class of Knox Presbyterian Church held their October meeting at the home of Mrs. George Kennedy Monday evening.

A discussion took place with regard to purchasing new curtains for the windows of the church basement and Miss Dora Ketchen and Mrs. L. Jack were appointed a committee to ascertain the quantity of material required and the cost and make a report to the next meeting. Five Christmas boxes were packed to send to boys of the congregation who are overseas and the class accepted an invitation to visit their minister Rev. J. Davey and Mrs. Davey at the Manse at Hastings next week.

It was decided that the next meeting would take the form of a Hallowe'en party at the home of Miss Dora Ketchen on October 30. At the close of the meeting a lunch was served by the hostess.

BANK CLEARINGS

Total clearings for the past week amounted to $1,253,743 as reported today by the secretary of the Peterborough Clearing House.

ELECTION DAY.

The election of officers for the Kiwanis club for 1945 will be held Friday at the weekly Kiwanis luncheon.

CONSTABLE SEES DEER.

Provincial Constable Archie Grayling of Havelock, reports that while on a police business trip in North Hastings he saw a number of partridge and also ran across a number of deer. The latter seem to be plentiful.

READY FOR WINTER.

Peterborough's parks are practically ready for the arrival of winter. The park staff has been busy for several weeks making the seasonal preparations for the cold weather and the city's beauty spots are bedded down for the winter.

PLENTY OF THEM.

The police department have announced a drive on one-eyed automobiles and cars without lights at night and there are evident signs that there is plenty of material to work upon. There were three cars without tail lights practically following each other down Water street Wednesday evening.

OFF DANGER LIST

Cpl. Gordon Thomas Bocock, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Bocock, 216 King George street, who was reported seriously wounded a month ago, was removed from the dangerously ill list on October 13. He suffered chest injuries between the ribs and the lungs.

PRESUMED DEAD

Missing since last February, Flight Lieutenant Harold Alton Hancock, son of the late George T. Hancock of Port Hope, is officially presumed dead in notification received by his mother. He was a nephew of W. J. Hancock of Peterborough. His father was for several years Reeve of Port Hope.

RUMOR FACTORIES

One thing Peterborough is noted for, is the strength and speed of its rumors. On a George street bus Wednesday evening, a woman was excitedly telling her friends that two or three people had been killed in the Wilson avenue fire. Along Main street, tales of woe and of lives lost were rising with all the fury of hot news!

BURNING OF LEAVES

Peterborough citizens with large piles of leaves around the house are advised that all precautions should be taken to keep the leaves from catching fire, which in turn might set a building on fire. Winds should be blowing in favorable directions before attempting to get rid of any leaves by burning them. It's best to consult with the fire department.

NEED CORRECT ADDRESSES

Two parcels sent to boys overseas for Christmas, by the Active Army Auxiliary, are being held in Ottawa, because the addresses were not complete. In both cases the unit was missing. General Canvass In County, City Set At $2,300,000

Rural and Urban canvassers for the Peterborough unit in the 7th Victory Loan have all been appointed and schooled and are now ready to commence their drive on Monday to raise $4,600,000 an increase of $100,000 over the objective in the 6th Victory Loan.

The objective for the general canvass in the city has been set at $1,675,000 an increase of $125,000,-000; while the objective of the rural section has been set at $625,000 or an increase of $25,000. With smaller payrolls the objective of the payroll section has been set at $900,000 or $50,000 less than in the last loan. Hence the general canvass in the city and county has been asked to assume the increase of $100,000 in the objective and the $50,000 loss in the payroll section.

The general canvass in Peterborough is made up of four groups selected names, group payroll, banks and city residential canvass.

Placed in City Canvass

The section of North Monaghan which will be coming into the city in January 1 has been included in the city canvass with the result that North Monaghan's objective has been lowered $20,000 and this amount added to the city canvass. The rural section is hence being asked for $45,000 more than was raised in the 6th loan.

Henry Batten again will be the canvasser in the rural area of North Monaghan and he has been given an objective of $20,000. Gordon Hancock, Arthur Morris and Erie Pearson will canvass Smith Township for $105,000 or an increase of $15,000 but $4,600 less than was raised in the spring. Otonabee with Peter Mather, J. S. Henderson and V. W. O'Toole canvassing the objective is $140,000 an increase of $10,000. James Gifford in Ennismore has an increase of $3,000 or an objective of $15,000. There is a $2,000 increase for Harvey, Burleight, Anstruther and Chandos where the objective is $47,000 and the canvassers are Rev. C. A. G. Spence, Cecil Pelton, and W. R. Nicholson. Asphodel where 128.95 per cent of the 6th loan objective was obtained will be asked for $45,-000 an increase of $7,000. Harry Morgan will again be canvassing this township, the village of Norwood which has about the highest percentage of subscribers per 100 population in Ontario will again be asked for $56,000 and W. H. Giffen is in charge of the canvass. J. Healey is in charge in Douro were the objective of $35,000 is unchanged. Dummer has an increase of $5,000 with an objective now of $35,000. The canvassers are William Darling and Alex Ross. Charles H. Hunter is handling Lakefield whose objective of $55,000 remains unchanged. E. J. Leeson of Havelock is in charge of Belmont and Methuen where the objective of $25,000 remains the same and in Havelock Mrs. Cora K. Lancaster and H. T. Mathison are canvassing for an objective of $45,000, an increase of $3,000.

Those in charge of the general canvass in Peterborough are divided into eleven teams. The group payroll is Jack Sinclair, R. H. McClellan and E. Garth Braund; selected names Lionel Browne, V. Gallon and W. S. Rose. Other teams are tea A, Rufus Payne, Lou Brooks and W. Roberts; team B, Jack Curtis, M. H. White, and T. J. Lawlor; team C, W. E. Metheral, James Skinner and Victor Tully; team D, Joseph Londerville, C. A. Gallagher and M. B. Pringle; team E, N. Schaus, George Heron and J. A. Troke; team F, R. Irwin, J. D. Anderson, and Fred Revoy; team G, John Lee, James Juby and W. P. Kinlin; team H, A. J. McClellan, A. E. Cauley and Stan Darling; team I, Arnott and Mrs. E. C. Moore.

Several Bands To Appear In Loan Parade

The Seventh Victory Loan parade Tuesday at 8 p.m. from the armouries may seem but a repetition of the familiar features of other Victory Loan campaigns.

But,—the people of France and of Belgium would not say so if they could make their voices heard during the next three weeks. And the Athenians and next in the order of release, the Czechs of Belgrade.

Canada's Victory Loans have been milestones of the progress of the war, from the first years of anxiety and slow adjustment to the stern actualties of war to this autumn of 1944 and today's headlines of Hun despair in calling upon their old men and women, their little boys and girls to dig defences for the brutal army that rattled across the borders of Poland away back in 1939.

That is what the Seventh Victory Loan parade next Tuesday night represents, the gradual advances of Allied armies and arms, backed by their homefolks, into the territory of the Germans, regarded by them inviolable.

Lieutenant-Colonel James Turnbull, O.C., No. 32, CAMC (B) Training Camp, has been asked to take charge of the parade as Marshal, and composing the parade ranks will be the present strength of the Peterborough Training Camp; Prince of Wales Rangers; 4th Reserve Battery; Sea and Air Cadets; with cadet bands, Salvation Army Band, and also the Medical Corps band from Camp Borden.

The route of the parade, marching off at 8 p.m. from Confederation Square, is north to McDonnel street, George, King, Aylmer, Charlotte, George Murray, returning to the Park.

WO-1 Harry Thompson is conductor of the band from Camp Borden which arrived in the city this morning frankly to add some color to the opening of the Seventh Victory Loan. It is the band of the Machine Gun training centre at Camp Borden.

W.E.A. Holding Discussion Class

Meeting at the Chamber of Commerce Board Room recently under the auspices of the Workers Educational Association, a group of citizens discussed the formation of a series of Fall and Winter classes and discussion groups.

Albert Borland, Peterborough secretary of the association, brought in a report from a former meeting recommending that the discussions centre around the question of post war reconversion.

On the suggestion of John Wigdor, Toronto, National Assistant Secretary of the W.E.A., the first discussion group will be on the question of U.N.R.R.A. and will consist of the showing of a film on this important question with discussion after the film. The film is a product of the National Film Board and deals with matters of particular interest to Canada insofar as U.N. R.R.A. is concerned. Arrangements are now going ahead for the showing of this film and the tentative date set is November 2.

It is to be hoped that many citizens will avail themselves of the opportunity of getting first hand information on the United Nations Rehabilitation and Relief Association. A prominent Toronto spokesman on the question will be present at the meeting.

It will be recalled that the W.E.A. conducted classes in adult education on economics, phsychology, municipal affairs and a range of other subjects at the Collegiate prior to the outbreak of war with tutors attending from the University of Toronto.

"With the end of the war in sight and with the many restrictions which augured against the continuance of W.E.A. in Peterborough now seems the opportune time to get these adult education groups started again," stated Albert Borland, local secretary of the association.

Personal Gifts To Offset Robomb Attacks

For seven nights in a row the enemy has made robot or flying bomb attacks on the south and eastern parts of the British Isles, creating still a further need of assistance, which becomes all the more imperative as the colder and more stormy portion of the year approaches, for reports still tell of damage to property and casualties being caused, necessitating the procuring of new places of abode for those thus afflicted, besides providing them with replacements to set up homes to take the place of the belongings that have been lost in this manner.

Since the early part of last July, the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund has been reporting in this column about once every week, a list of purely personal gifts that have gathered in the interim between each report to mark specially the personal interest that the residents of this city and district are taking in the plight of those who need this help, for since the robot bombs in proportion have been causing damage to both life and property on a much larger scale than that which followed the great attacks in the blitz of 1940 and 1941, some citizens including His Worship Mayor Hamilton, felt that a much wider personal interest could do much to offset this latest attempt by the enemy to prolong the war; besides giving ample proof that the people in these parts were still intensely sympathetic to the needs that this danger was causing to the people in Britain.

There is nothing that speaks of a personal interest just so much as practical assistance in this same personal way by an individual secrifice to help other people, giving each and every one a sense of inward joy at having done something personally to alleviate the sufferings of others, which could also be ranked as an act of thankfulness at our own security in comparison to those who are so placed in the front line of attack in the zone of hostilities.

$450 in Personal Gifts

If any one entire personal list of donations amounted to $450 in a collective way, that would really be big news, but when one individual has by a steady monthly contribution given that much by herself, that really should be more so, particularly when it is known that the donor by no means comes within the class who can afford to live in a lavish manner. This lady known as "In as Much" is for the 45th time included in this daily report on behalf of the fund.

The list of gifts today might be considered fairly representative of the city and district as a whole, for one can note gifts from Sydney C. Boyles at Cavan, A. and R. Chase at Lakehurst and Miss Minnie Williams at Havelock, together with some six contributions from people residing in the city itself, all of whom it can be definitely stated have had the welfare of the sufferers from air raid attacks over Britain at heart in a personal way over a long period of time, as shown by the manner in which from time to time they have helped the fund along.

Another of those beautiful family remembrances is included in this list to mark the birthday of a loved parent who has now passed to the realm beyond, this being a lovely way to express their appreciation of the parental care in the days gone by.

No Wartime Striking In Food Industry

"We have something like that in our industry at Welland not exactly a master agreement as in the packing house action, but we are asking for a union shop and dues check-off," said a member of United Electric, Radio and Machine Workers in a comment on the position of their delegates at the Canadian Congress of Labor convention in Quebec.

"Our leaders, Mr. Jackson and Mr. Harris, both of whom are well known among the Peterborough members, were committed by our Union's "No wartime strikes" in their statement that they could not consistently advocate a strike in a branch of the food industry while the war continued. The "U.E." workers gave this pledge to their industry, their nations and to the men in the fighting areas, and we have gone along now into the sixth year bound by that undertaking and living up to it. I believe we can say that in the prosecution of the war we have been upholding the hands of government. We have been making demands ourselves, but we haven't stopped war work."

Rev. S. Johnston Is Called To St. Paul's

Rev. Samuel Johnston, minister of Queen Street Presbyterian church, Toronto, received a unanimous call from the congregation of St. Paul's Presbyterian church to become its minister. The congregation meeting held Wednesday evening was well attended an was presided over by Rev. W. Patterson of Millbrook, the interim moderator.

Four names were presented to the congregation and Mr. Johnston after the first ballot receivd a unanimous call. St. Paul's church has been vacant since the first Sunday in September when Dr J. S. Smart left for the United States and his new work under the Publications branch of the Presbyterian church.

Vivian Postpones Visit To City

Hon. R. P. Vivian, M.D., provincial Minister of Health, has postponed his visit to Peterborough until next week, City Clerk Outram informed the Examiner today. "The Minister was expected on Saturday to meet members of the council and especially the Civic Hospital committee," Mr. Outram said. "He sent us word today that he is not quite prepared to discuss with the committee a subject of first importance to them, but he expects to be able to make some definite statement probably next week. He said he would let us know as soon as possible when he would be here."

Employees Of Quaker Oats Co. Complete Victory Loan Canvass Going 35 Per Cent Over Objective

Employees of the Quaker Oats Company have completed their joint subscription to the Seventh Victory Loan, and will report this evening to Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Minister of Finance, an increase of 35 per cent over their objective of $48,600.

Payroll canvass at the Quaker Oats has amounted to $65,750. The job is done and manifestly has been done quickly.

On the swift heels of their contribution to the Peterborough Memorial Centre of only a few weeks ago, when the Quaker Oats employees were the first to turn in a collective cheque from the city's industrial groups, they turned their spirited attention to the new Loan and have wound it up with a substantial increase days before its official opening on Monday.

The 35 per cent over objective responds to the letter of the appeal of Hon. Mr. Ilsley to the people of Canada to make this Seventh Victory Loan the largest of the war-winning series. The Quaker Oats employees have written a new and fast moving chapter in the splendid story of the Payroll Canvass of Peterborough's industries, and it will be told in its simple but heart-warming simplicity to the Minister at the dinner this evening at the C.G.E.-Genelco cafeteria which has been arranged to touch off the drive of the next three weeks in the city and county.

Incidentally, there is going to be a party for the Quaker folks at the Y.M.C.A. Friday evening as a celebration of the accomplishment of the employees in anticipating the visit of Mr. Ilsley and of their happy position in being able to inform him that their subscriptions are all signed and ready for delivery to the Finance Department's local commitee, which is headed by Gordon S. Matthews.

Text Of Report

The greeting from the Quaker Oats employees which will be read on their behalf by Reg. R. Faryon, president of the Quaker Oats Company in Canada, to the Minister of Finance follows:

The Honorable J. L. Ilsley
Minister of Finance
Ottawa, Canada
Dear Mr. Ilsley:

We, the employees of The Quaker Oats Company of Canada Limited, feeling that you had greatly honored us and the City of Peterborough in coming here, thought we should recognize and reciprocate this honor in some suitable way.

Therefore, we decided to anticipate your appeal for the purchase of Seventh Victory Loan Bonds and we are glad and proud to be able to report to you that we have already not only met our objective, but over-subscribed it by some 35 per cent.

In accomplishing this before the main campaign has even started, we have hoped to demonstrate:

(1) That we deeply appreciate not only that you have taken time from your happy life to come here, but the great personal service you are rendering our country in this desperate war.

(2) That we feel that this Seventh Victory Loan is the most important of all Loans and that, consequently, we have considerably increased our subscriptions over previous War Loans.

(3) That by conducting our campaign in this manner we have not only saved much time and effort on the part of the National War Finance Committee, but we have also saved many work hours of our own, which in previous Loan campaigns had been taken from the production of vital war supplies.

We would further like to pledge to you, Sir, and to the valiant members of our Forces overseas our continued enthusiastic support of all and everything to bring complete and final Victory."

Rufus Payne Is New President Of Lawn Bowlers

By HERB MARTIN.

At the first meeting of the 1945 board of directors of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Co., held Wednesday evening, Rufus Payne was chosen president, Harold Freeman vice-president, and Fred M. Brown secretary-treasurer.

In selecting Mr. Payne for president, the board honored a man who served as vice-president during the 1944 season, and has gained wide experience, having been on several of the committees. Last year he was co-chairman with Ken Sloane on the membership committee.

He is well and favorably known not only in local bowling circles, but in all clubs in this district. With a strong board to support him, he will no doubt give the Bowling Club real leadership.

Harold Freeman, as vice-president, has come up from the ranks, and deserves the honor. He has been on almost every committee, and last year was chairman of the games committee. He, too, has gained much knowledge and he should be of great assistance in carrying out his duties as vice-president. Congratulations are in order to both of these gentlemen.

With regards to the chairmen of the different committees, the board apparently adopted the attitude of the annual meeting—re-elected all of last year's chairmen; and so now just as soon as the chairmen choose their committees the organization of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club will be in first-class condition to go ahead with their work for the 1945 season.

Senator Favors Jewish State

TORONTO, Oct. 19—(CP)—Senator Alben Barkley, Democratic leader in the United States Senate, said Tuesday tha tthe justice to the Jews demands that Palestine be made an independent Jewish state after the war.

"When the war ends I will be disappointed and the conscience of mankind will be disappointed if Palestine is not made an independent Jewish commonwealth, said the Senator who was participating in an open forum of the Herzl Zion Club. Other forum speakers were Rabbi Barnett Brickner of Cleveland and Phillip Joseph, formerly of Palestine, and now of Montreal.

Both U.S. political parties favored an independent Jewish state in Palestine, said the Senator.

WAR'S EASTERN FRONT—The entire eastern front of the war in Europe is encompassed by this map. The last European ally of the besieged Reich, Hungary, has sought a truce with the Allies even as the Russians push ahead on a 2,000-mile front toward the back door to Berlin. In the north, the Red Army follows up its successes at Riga which renewed pressure against East Prussia and in the south, the outskirts of Belgrade have been reached.

Quebec Troops Held To Last

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN HOLLAND, Oct. 19—(CP Cable).—A company of the Royal Montreal Regiment fought in a savage action on the Leopold Canal, battling alongside Western Canadian infantry in the most gallant fight on this front since the struggle of the ill-fated British "Red Devils" at Arnhem.

Behind sheets of fire hurled across the canal by flame-throwers, the 80 men of this company crossed the waterway in assault boats just before dawn October 6 in the first Canadian attack on the Schelde pocket. For 6½ hours they clung grimly to the slim bridgehead they had won or their sector.

Crack German troops hurled everything they had at them. The Montrealers did not yield although their casualties mounted hourly. Their backs to the canal, they refused to give up a dike they held. Western troops joined them at noon and the gallant R.M.R.S. continued to fight with the prairie men.

The bridgehead was held for four tumultuous days and then the Germans pulled back. The first round in the battl- of the Schelde was won.

LONDON — (CP). — When Capt. B. H. Valentine, Kent and England cricketer was being put in an air ambulance in Normand, he was surprised to find that one of the nurses was his wife.

Robot Bomb Losses Mount Again

LONDON, Oct. 19 — (CP). — Heavy casualties were reported today in a small town in southern England which suffered one of its worst blows of the war as the Germans continued their flying-bomb attacks for the eighth successive night.

An entire row of houses in the community was destroyed by a robot which plowed into the earth after being hit by anti-aircraft fire. Rescue workers still were digging in the ruins this morning for dead and injured, but the total number of casualties remained uncertain.

Flying bombs also fell in other scattered areas.

In some districts lightning-like flashes lit up the sky — seen far beyond the range of the sound of the explosion. Speculation developed as to whether the Germans were experimenting with some new type of explosive.

Claims Bulgars Massacred Greeks

ATHENS, Oct. 19—(CP-Reuters)—The Archbishop of Greece, Dr. Damscinos, said today that German destruction in the south and Bulgar ravages in the north had almost killed Greece and "if the Bulgarians are not punished for their crimes I will declare publicly that there is no justice on this earth."

The Archbishop, prematurely aged and almost broken in health, who is celebrating his 54th birthday today, told the story of a massacre at the village of Karlavrita where 80 Germans had been killed, and the Germans decided to destroy the entire population of the village.

He said.

"The Germans gathered every man, woman and child (about 1,000) into the village square. There they told all males of more than 14 to kneel down.

"The women and children were removed to a school building opposite, from where they could see all that went on. The men were then machine-gunned where they knelt and the school building was set on fire.

"For about 10 minutes babies could be seen falling from windows as their mothers threw them out in an effort to spare them being burnt.

"Eventually a German officer, who himself could not stand the horrible scene any longer ,rushed up and broke open the doors. It was too late. Very few women escaped."

The atrocities committed by Bulgarians in Macedonia and Terace were even worse, the Archbishop continued. There more than 50,000 Greeks were massacred. An attempt was made so to reduce the Greek population that the Bulgarians would no longer be in the minority, he said.

Lindsay Boy Given Reformatory Term

LINDSAY, Oct. 19 — (Special). — A 16-year-old Lindsay boy, George Grahan pleaded guilty of forging a cheque for $250, which he found in Lindsay and cashed in Peterborough, and spending the amount on girls in three days. The cheque, from the law firm of McLaughlin, Fulton, Stinson & Anderson, was in favor of Scott's undertaking parlors and was cashed last March.

A second charge of forgery was preferred when Graham attempted to cash a cheque from Canada Packers, Ltd., in favor of Mr. Darling, a farmer, for $164.80, which he endorsed. Graham said he found the cheque on the road near Omemee.

Graham was sentenced to two years less one day, as well as an indeterminate sentence of one year in the Ontario Reformatory, the sentences to run concurrenty.

Missing Flier Given Rank Of Flt. Sergeant

NORWOOD, Oct. 19 — (ENS). — A letter has been received from the R.C.A.F. records officer by Mr. and Mrs. G. Bitten telling them that their son Fred Bitten was promoted to the rank of Flight Sergeant with effect from January 17, 1942. Flt. Sgt. Bitten has been missing since February 1942. This is based on a policy whereby aircrew members who have been recommended previously by their commanding officer for the next higher rank and would have received the promotion but for the intervention of untimely death.

"It is my sincere hope you may find sustaining comfort in the knowledge that the qualities of your gallant son are thus recognized," the letter continues, "and it is regretted that this could not be passed to you earlier but delay was unavoidable."

Oppose Rail Grading

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 19 — (CP). — A group of Middlesex beef cattle men at a meeting here last night endorsed a resolution expressing opposition to rail and consumer grading of beef. The resolution will be forwarded to the Canadian Shorthorn Breeders' Association, which has been considering the advisability of introducing a consumer system similar to one in operation in British Columbia. Under this type of grading, beef is classified before it goes to the retail store.

Delegates Set Forth Foreign Policy

By JACK WILLIAMS
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

QUEBEC, Oct. 19 — (CP). — The Canadian Congress of Labor at its annual convention to-day approved a five-point foreign policy program for Canada. The plan, which received unanimous approval after a brief discussion calls for:

1—Early victory as the first objective in foreign policy.

2—Promotion of international co-operation among all peace-loving nations.

3—Promotion of unrestricted trade and economic co-operation.

4—Canadian membership in the Pan-American Union.

5—Stronger relations between Canada and Russia with a pact similar to that now in force between Great Britain and Russia.

The resolution summed up views expressed in 12 motions dealing with foreign policy.

A broad national health program was proposed in another resolution which was adopted.

The convention went on record supporting the Canadian Teachers' Federation in its effort to establish a minimum salary of $1,200 for the school teachers.

Vote at 18.

Unanimous approval was given a resolution seeking extension to persons 18 years and over of votes in Dominion, Provincial and municipal elections.

Several of the 600 delegates spoke in support of the resolution.

"We young people have accepted responsibility in the war and we should be given a place as voters and encouraged to take responsibility in public affairs," said Katherine Lotz, United Automobile Worker delegate from Windsor, Ontoria.

The convention also passed a resolution asking consideration be given by the Government to enabling merchant seamen to vote regardless of where their ships were at the time of the election.

In another resolution, the convention asked the Dominion Government to seek provincial co-operation in the adoption of recommendations and conventions of the International Labor Office, most of which apply to matters under provincial jurisdiction.

Unanimous support was given a resolution condemning anti-Semitism.

Ontario Seeks Bigger Share Of U.S. Tourists

Ontario's premier position as the No. 1 Province in the tourist industry is being consolidated by the Queen's Park Government which has appointed a special interdepartmental committee to work with the Travel and Publicity Bureau in developing the tourist business. When travel restrictions are lifted and the tire and gasoline restrictions eased, expected in the near future, Ontario is preparing to capture even more of the tourist influx into Canada, and at the same time provide increased employment.

The new committee, headed by Provincial Treasurer Leslie Frost as chairman, has already met. Out of initial discussions decisions have been taken to:

1. Immediately determine the method of leasing and sale of Crown lands, and zoning of suitable areas for occupancy so as to (a) provide sites for Canadian returned soldiers planning commercial camp operations after the war, and, at the same time (b), take full advantage of new capital which Americans on an increasing scale are endeavoring to invest in similar operations in Ontario.

Sports Advisers

2. Arrange as early as possible for the locating at all Ontario border entry points of highly trained Government representatives who will be able to advise incoming sportsmen on all fishing and hunting locations and problems.

3. Study further the Tourist Conference's recommendation that all tourist catering places in Ontario be brought under some system of Government licensing, inspection, supervision and control.

4. Expedite the Government's previously announced policy with the Rainbow Bridge at Niagara Falls or the Thousand Islands Bridge at Ivy Lea, as the first experimental location of up-to-date and effectively staffed official Government reception and information bureaus.

"In 1941, the last big normal tourist year, 70 per cent of all the American motor cars entering Canada entered Ontario, and in American traffic by boat, train and bus Ontario enjoyed outstanding leads over other Provinces," said Mr. Frost. "Ontario obtained approximately $90 millions of the $127 millions left in Canada by tourists in 1941. The boat and train travel from United States to Ontario this year may have been the highest in history. On the other hand, American visits by motor car, while showing a heavy increase over 1943, are still considerably down from car traffic in 1941."

The new committee was fully alive to the need for increased accommodation and for higher standards of service, Mr. Frost continued. He predicted present accommodation would not be anywhere big enough to take care of postwar tourists.

Use Postwar Appeal

As long as the war lasts, the Travel and Publicity Bureau, headed by Douglas R. Oliver, will continue to use in the United States only a postwar slant or appeal in its advertising. One of the themes to be used and improved in 1945 is the "Plan a Camp of Your Own" approach. This has been used with considerable success, and to date has drawn close to 10,000 requests from United States residents for information on Ontario Crown lands. Hundreds of these inquiries came from members of the American armed forces in the Southwest Pacific and other theatres of action. Next spring, for the first time in its history, the Travel and Publicity Bureau will also enter the American metropolitan newspaper field with a regional advertising campaign designed to place before the travel-minded citizens across the border the tourist attractions of Ontario.

Electric Machine Gun

LONDON, Oct. 19 — (AP) — The Berlin radio came up with a new secret weapon story yesterday, announcing that German troops on the Russian front now are using an "electric machine-gun." The weapon, said the broadcast, is known as "the death scythe."

4030 Pounds Total In Salvage Drive

HAVELOCK, Oct. 19 — (ENS). — Announcement was made at the meeting of the Havelock-Belmont Red Cross Society that 4,030 pounds of salvage was realized from the third curb salvage collection Tuesday, October 17.

Almost eleven tons of waste paper have been received from the three drives, the first of which was held August 16.

The collector advised that should another collection be necessary before the cold weather set in that he be notified two weeks prior to the date set.

The serving quota was completed and the following articles were packed for shipment: 40 jumpers, 40 blouses and 40 pairs of boy's shorts. A stock-taking of material was made and the secretary was requested to write for quota to use this material.

A communication was received in regard to the Red Cross magazine and the secretary was authorized to ask for 15 copies of each issue which is an increase of five.

More Waste Paper

A communication was received from the Department of National War Service stressing that there is still a great national war emergency which must be met and overcome. The shortage of waste paper is critical, and appealed to the society to maintain their salvage committee to concentrate on the collection of waste paper and carry on to the end.

A communication from Stafford Roberts, Commission Ontario Division Red Cross, stated that enquiries had been received asking why in some instances relatives have received no advice through government channels that their men were in hospital. He gave the system followed by the Department of Records as follows: All battle casualties, whether slight or serious are notified to next of kin; each notification is followed by a diagnosis of wounds; next of kin are not notified if injuries received other than in battle except when the man's name as a result of those injuries appears on the seriously injured or dangerously ill lists. The military procedure regarding the return of sick or wounded is that these men are returned to the military district in which they originally enlisted for hospitalization or disposal.

Report in Own Districts

Disappointment has been caused in instances where a man who enlisted in London (Military District 1), but whose relatives are resident or have moved to Toronto have gone to the Toronto station to meet him only to find that he is being sent through to London. The military officials are prepared to co-operate and if sufficient notice is given will arrange for the man to be sent to the military district in which the relatives reside. It is essential that the procedure be understood by the local liaison officer and that branches know in which military district they are situated and in the case of relatives whose servicemen have enlisted in other military districts they be made aware a serviceman is being returned to Canada, so they may communicate with the Adjutant General's Department at National Defence Headquarters, Ottawa and request that the serviceman be sent to the military district in which they reside.

Mrs. H. Ray of the Peterborough branch who was to address the meeting in the interests of the blood donor work was unable to be present owing to the serious illness of her father. Mrs. Ray expressed her willingness to attend a meeting in the future, the date to be arranged later.

The following account was authorised paid: E. D. Chiles, flannelette, etc., $4.63.

Can Wear Uniforms

OTTAWA, Oct. 19 — (CP) — Discharged veterans may wear their uniforms for 30 days after leaving the service or any time after that if they are granted permission by a commanding officer it was disclosed today in an order-in-council published in Canadian War regulations.

Missing In Woods

LINDSAY, Oct. 19 — (CP). — Provincial police said last night no trace had yet been found of Thomas McInroy, 83, who left his farm home north of Highland Grove in Haliburton County last Sunday. Posses are combing the woods for trace of him.

DISAPPEARING BISON

Miscellaneous Shower

Prior to her marriage on Monday, Mrs. Edward T. O'Brien, nee Doris Allen, of Mountain, Ontario, was entertained at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. Thomas O'Brien, Robinson street. The rooms were decorated with pink and white streamers. A basket filled with gifts was presented to the bride by Joanie Murray and Brian Fitzgerald, after which refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Kevin Fitzgerald.

Work On Quilt Top

NORWOOD, Oct. 19— (ENS) — A meeting of the Willing Workers was held Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Lottie Rusaw when seventeen members and three visitors were present. Enough quilt blocks were handed in for a quilt top; 3 pairs of pyjamas, 2 pair of soakers an all-over apron and articles for a ditty bag for the I. O. D. E. were also turned in. Eleanor Carleton of Peterborough who is still a member handed in enough quilt and knitted blocks for 160 points. Annabelle Rusaw played a number on the guitar, Marion Cuthbertson conducted a quizz on "musical instruments" and Mrs. Rusaw served lunch.

Peterboro Flier Weds Wren In Halifax

Flying Officer Ross P. L. Lane, who returned from England last week, and who was visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Lane, 372 Downie street, was united in marriage with L-Wren Roberta McPhee, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. McPhee of Manville, Alta., in Halifax at the week-end.

The wedding took place Saturday afternoon in the Oxford Street United church, in the presence of a few friends and relatives, the Naval Chaplain performing the ceremony. Sub. Lieut. Helen Cunningham was bridesmaid and Lt. Cmdr. Dubroy was best man.

After a brief buffet luncheon at the Lord Nelson Hotel, the bride and groom left to spend a honeymoon at Kentville, Nova Scotia. After a short leave, F. Lane will return to the R.C.A.F. station at Rockcliffe and Mrs. Lane will remain in Halifax where she is stationed at H.M.C.S. Stadacona.

Prior to joining the services, both the bride and groom were graduates of the University of Alberta. FO. Lane has been on operational duty attached to the Lion Squadron. Owing to low category, he was not able to complete his tour of operations and has been convalescing in a hospital in England for the past few months.

Music Teachers Hear Miss Emily Tedd

The Peterborough Music Teachers' Association held their regular monthly meeting in the form of a dinner at the Empress Hotel on Wednesday evening with Miss Emily Tedd of Toronto as the guest speaker. Mrs. R. T. F. Brain the vice president was in the chair.

A very delightful musical program was provided by Mr. Stanley Northrop violinist with Mr. Harry Northrop at the piano. Mr. Northrop selected as his numbers G Minor Concerto 1st Movement by Vivalvi; Scherzo by Van Goens and a very modern number by Nathaniel Shilkret, "The Plantation Dance". As an encore he played "Trees". Mrs. A. H. Mitchell contralto soloist sang as her first solo a number by Handel "Despair No More Shall Fright Me" and her second number was "When I Have Sung My Songs" by Ernest Charles and as an encore "The Star" by James Rogers. Agnes Logan Green accompanied Mrs. Mitchell.

Miss Tedd who was former director of music in the public schools in Toronto and at present teaching the Toronto children for the "Children's Crusade" which will be heard later in the season was introduced by Mrs. Brain. Miss Tedd chose as her subject "Fact and Fun" and in an address sparkling with humor told of her own experiences while teaching music in the public schools. Miss Tedd told of the great changes in the way music is taught in the schools today as compared with when she started to teach. Music today is part of the school curriculum and where a number of years ago ten and fifteen minute a week periods were given to this subject now the children get twenty to thirty minutes a day. Even the attitude of the public has changed towards the teaching of music in the schools and this is very evident by the keen interest of the students. Miss Tedd claimed that a very small percentage of children now enter grade 1 as monotones. The speaker took each grade in the public schools and described how music was taught today in the same grades. In Grade VIII some years ago the boy whose voice was changing was asked to stand aside but now these boys are taught to sing from the bass cleff and feel quite grown up indeed.

Music in the secondary school is also being given a very prominent place today and numerous schools are preparing students for entrance to university in music.

In conclusion Miss Tedd declared music is a very compact subject which needs the co-operation of both parent and teacher. Beautiful tone sensible understanding of sight reading and music as an art is the aim of every teacher.

A vote of appreciation to Miss Tedd and the artists who provided the program was ably voiced by Miss Musa Cox.

A short business meeting followed in which Mrs. Ross Williamson reported on the annual meeting of the Ontario Music Teachers' Association and Mrs. Ford Turner was chosen as convener of a committee for entertaining the soldiers from the Training Centre in a series of Sunday afternoon programs of music appreciation. Dates were chosen for the young Canadian artists' concerts which will be held November 14 and December 12 the artists to be announced later.

Friendly Group Holds Tea At St. Paul's

Glowing red salvia, the attractive forerunner of the bleaker months soon to descend, graced the tea table at the tea and sale of the Friendly Group of St. Paul's Church, Wednesday afternoon, in the Sunday School rooms.

Receiving the guests were Mrs. A. Powers, president, and Mrs. A. A. McIntyre. Mrs. S. Meiklejohn acted as treasurer and Mrs. Robert Ross convened the event. Special tables featuring home cooking, knitted work, novelties, aprons and fancy work were well patronized, and one section featuring pumpkins and other fall vegetables and decorations, emphasized the fall motif. "Two-way dolls" and lambs on the novelties tables were popular, many people buying with an eye to Christmas, since toys are hard to get.

Otonabee I.O.D.E. Holds Bridge

One of the most successful bridges of the season was held Wednesday night, when more than 30 tables were in play at the Y.W.C.A. at the Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E. bridge, held in the gymnasium room. In addition several tables were playing in homes. The proceeds will be used for the Chapter's war work.

The guests were received by Mrs. Alice Leach, regent, and Mrs. G. Borland, while Mrs. W. A. Davern, acted as treasurer for the evening. Mrs. B. J. Hall and Mrs. A. E. Dryland were conveners for the event, and those serving refreshments were Mrs. Fred Mowry, Mrs. W. A. Davern, Mrs. N. Andrews, Mrs. B. W. Harvey, Mrs. J. H. Vallery, Mrs. S. A. Archibald, Mrs. S. Mitchell, and Mrs. F. Robinson.

First prize was won by Mrs. S. Watson and the second prize winner was Mrs. C. Spearin. The winning ticket on the lamp, which was donated in June, was won by Miss Edna Butler, and the draw for the prizes was made by Mrs. F. L. Robinson.

St. Luke's W.A. Observes Golden Jubilee of Service

Fifty years of hard work and progress were reviewed by St. Luke's Women's Auxiliary at the celebration of their 50th anniversary in the parish hall Wednesday night, when the blazing candles on the birthday cake symbolized the bright record of their achievements.

Although 50 years of accomplishment lie behind them, they are on the threshold of the next 50 years, and the door is wide open for further progress, Mrs. B. Ostler, guest speaker from the Toronto Diocesan Board, asserted. Stressing the Anglican Church motto "advance," Mrs. Ostler declared that the next half century invited greater zeal than the past.

"We hear much about post-war plans and the hoped-for peace, and as members of the Women's Auxiliary we know that peace can only be founded on true religion. It is the duty of the Auxiliaries to try and spread this religion."

Much of the guest speaker's address was devoted to the Dominion-wide work of the Diocesan Board. She told of how funds raised by W.A.'s, like St. Luke's, were used to support and equip small churches in the West, and how it was apportioned to the educational section, to combat subversive elements which beset young people. Mrs. Ostler said the Board had found that one of the most alarming facts revealed in the reports was the decreased membership in Junior and Senior Auxiliaries. She said that too much war work had been blamed for the lack of interest, and she refuted this as an excuse and not a reason.

Light Birthday Candles.

One of the highlights of the evening was the lighting of the 50 candles on the W.A. birthday cake, which was flanked by bowls of yellow 'mums. These were lit by past presidents, or their representatives, and two of the original members of the group had the opportunity of looking back over the years and seeing the fruits of their early efforts. They were Mrs. L. Jameson and Mrs. John Scott.

Each of the past officials lit a candle for the number of years they were in office. Mrs. Bennett, president 1894-1895, was represented by Mrs. Jameson; the late Mrs. E. A. Peck, 1895-1902, represented by her husband, E. A. Peck, the only man a member of the W.A.; the late Mrs. W. J. Scott, 1902-1905, represented by Miss Elizabeth Scott, a member from the early days and now Dorcas secretary; the late Mrs. Boswell, 1905-1907, represented by her sister, Miss K. Falconer; the late Mrs. Philips, represented by her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Gibbs; Mrs. Stephen Gaskins, 1909-1916, substituted for by Mrs. H. Wickendon, a daughter of Mrs. Scott, an original member who was unable to take part in the ceremony; Mrs. Harry Butcher, 1916-1920, 1925-1927 and 1930-1932, substituted for by Mrs. Harry Adams, treasurer for 25 years; the late Mrs. J. J. Turner, 1920-1925 and 1927-1928, represented by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Reg. Turner; Mrs. Tom Moore, 1928-1930 and 1932-1940; and Mrs. Gordon Langley, 1940-1944.

Rev. A. J. Arthur, chairman, gave a brief history of the Auxiliary during its 50 years of service. He pointed out that the anniversary of the W.A. was symbolic since its fell on St. Luke's Day, and St. Luke was closely associated with missionary work. He recalled that the first service was held in the church July 9, 1876, when Rev. W. C. Bradshaw was rector, and the first Auxiliary meeting was held in October, 1894. The Junior branch of the Auxiliary was organized in January of 1899.

The original officers were Mrs. Bennett, president; Mrs. Gaskins, vice-president, and Mrs. McGregor, secretary-treasurer. The 1944 officers are: Mrs. Langley, president; Mrs. R. H. Parsons, vice-president; Mrs. M. S. Burnham, secretary; Mrs. D. J. Wyatt, treasurer, and Miss E. Stewart, Dorcas secretary.

Rectors from the other Anglican churches in the city spoke briefly, congratulating the society and expressing their gratitude for past assistance and hopes for the future. They included: Canon W. P. Robertson of St. John's Church; Rev. C. E. Moore of St. George's; Rev. W. A. Filer of All Saints'; and Hon. Capt. W. I. D. Smith, padre at the Training Centre.

Present Play.

Several members of the Auxiliary presented a short play based on an executive meeting held in 1902, when they arranged to hold the annual autumn tea. Those taking part were: Mrs. Mark Burnham, Mrs. D. J. Wyatt, Mrs. A. J. Arthur, Mrs. R. J. Maniece, Mrs. G. R. Langley; junior members: Norma Bond and Iris Pollock, and Heber Rogers.

Mrs. Langley, president, welcomed the guests at the door, and after the program refreshments were served. The refreshment committee was convened by Mrs. T. H. Floyd and Mrs. Harry Starr, and they were assisted by Mrs. Charles Hamilton, Mrs. S. Mason, Mrs. Leslie Thomas and Mrs. M. Mackin. Bouquets of yellow and mauve 'mums were placed throughout the hall by the decoration committee, with Mrs. Fraser Watson as convener, and assisted by Mrs. A. G. Stock and Mrs. J. Watson. Mrs. Parsons and Mrs. Chris Hughes were in charge of the birthday cake, which was made by Mrs. D. Wyatt. Accompanist for the evening was Miss Margaret Flowers.

C.C.F. Club Holds Autumn Tea

More than 60 guests attended the C.C.F. Club fall tea this afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. W. E. Thomas, 548 Weller street, when autumn colors predominated in the decorations.

Guests were received by Mrs. Thomas and the wives of the club branch presidents through the city. They included Mrs. A. E. Couch, Mrs. A. Bettes, Mrs. Ford Smith, Mrs. W. J. Bull (secretary), Mrs. W. Whibbs, Mrs. C. Godfrey.

Tea was served from a table attractively decorated with bronze and yellow 'mums and green candles in black holders and Mrs. William Johnson poured.

During the afternoon, Mrs. Thomas spoke briefly outlining the aims and objects of the C.C.F., emphasizing the necessity of keeping always before members that the C.C.F. is a social movement with high ideals and high standards of Christian ethics. She said that women had a vital interest in politics, in housing, education and health.

Young Sailor Is Wed In Roseneath Church

ROSENEATH, Oct. 19 — (ENS). Before altar banked with autumn flowers, ferns and palms, a pretty wedding was solemnized in Roseneath United Church Monday evening when Shirley Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Brisbin of Roseneath, became the bride of Alec Bryden McCulloch, Tel. H.M.C.S. Huron, R.C.N.V.R., eldest son of Capt. R. C. McCulloch and Mrs. McCulloch of Campbellford. The bride given in marriage by her father wore a floor length gown of shell pink net over shell pink taffeta, with a sweetheart neckline, puff sleeves, high shirred bodice and full skirt with bands of silver embroidery from neck to hem. She wore her mother's floor length wedding veil and orange blossoms and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses and baby's breath. Her only ornament was a gold locket, the gift of the groom. Silver slippers were worn and the "something blue" worn with the costume was a blue silk 'kerchief embroidered with "H.M.C.S. Huron".

Mrs. Samuel Black of Roseneath was matron of honor. She wore a floor-length gown of corded heaven blue sheer, a halo of blue sheer, silver slippers and carried a nosegay of baby 'mums and roses.

The groom was in uniform and was attended by Perry Brisbin, brother of the bride. Rev. R. C. White, pastor of the church officiated, and the wedding music was played by Miss Margaret Atkinson, church organist.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, the bride's mother wearing a flowered American beauty silk jersey and a corsage of mauve 'mums. Assisting her was the groom's mother wearing brown crepe and a corsage of Johanna Hill roses. Immediate relatives sat down to supper at a table decorated with pink and white streamers, pink candles and centered with the three tiered wedding cake.

During the evening a telegram of congratulations was received from Capt. R. C. McCulloch, now posted at Winnipeg.

Later the couple left for a brief honeymoon before the groom rejoins his ship, and the bride resumes her postion on the Royal Bank staff at Hastings. For travelling Mrs. McCulloch wore a brown suit, grey tweed top coat and brown accessories.

Mrs. S. Roberts May's President

Mrs. S. Roberts was elected president at a special reorganization meeting of May's Home and School Association Wednesday held at her home, 29 Brown street. Twenty-one parents became members and elections took place with Mrs. E. Chambers of the Home and School Council, presiding.

Officers for 1945 are: president Mrs. S. Roberts; vice-presidents Mrs. W. Hargraves and Mrs. W. Connors; secretary, Mrs. W. Collins; treasurer, Mrs. A. Glen; corresponding secretary, Mrs. R. Allan; press reporter, Mrs. E. Evans; program convener, Mrs. W. Johnson; and social convener, Mrs. C. Collins.

The new conveners are preparing plans to create Home and School interest in the community and all parents are invited to attend the meeting to be held in the school, November 13. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Roberts at the conclusion of the meeting.

Grapes Are Called Canada's Second National Crop

By MARY MOORE

In my present state of mind and spotty condition all the grapes in Canada can freeze on the trees and I'll drink water.

You can guess what happened to me—yes, that's it: the bag through which the grapes were dripping for my grape juice,—that bag fell into the preserving kettle. The juice splashed to the ceiling of my nice white kitchen, to say nothing of my face, hair and white apron.

I've often said grape stains on your fingers have to wear off, lemon only fades it slightly,—but how am I to wear it off my face?

My dearly loved reader Emmaline, wants my method, again, for Grape Juice. I'm finished—you can splash around in it now.

Emem's Grape Juice

Use clean well-ripened grapes, and wash well in warm water. (Please see note re washing). Call the family to help you pick them off the stems. Place in large preserving kettle, barely cover with water and boil until seeds are free. Strain through strong cheesecloth bag without squeezing. Measure the juice and put over heat and bring to boiling point. Add ½ cup to 1 cup sugar for each quart juice and boil 5 minutes. Pour into hot jars that have been sterilized and seal immediately. If you have bottle with good tops or corks, they may be sterilized, filled boiling hot, then dipped a second time when cold.

Note: Grape sprays are often mixed with oil to make them imperious to rain,—so grapes must be washed in rather warm water to insure removal of the oily base in the arsenic sprays.

Mulled Grape Juice

Two fresh eggs, ⅛ teaspoon cinnamon, 1 tablespoon sugar, 2 cups grape juice. Beat egg yolks slightly, then add cinnamon sugar and grape juice; simmer, stirring, over hot water until slightly thickened. Beat egg whites stiff, and fold into mix. Turn off heat, but keep over hot water 2 minutes. Serve hot. This may be made ahead of time and reheated for serving in top of double boiler.

Grape Frappe

One and one-half tablespoons gelatin, 1 cup grape juice, 4 ounces soda water or gingerale, 1 tablespoon juice, 1 cup cream. Soak gelatin in 3 tablespoons cold water 5 minutes. Add 1-3 cup boiling water. Stir, then cool. Add lemon juice and grape juice and ginger ale. When nearly stiffened beat until light and spongy with rotary beater. Add cream, and beat mixture again to mix well and make it foamy. Pour into serving glasses, chill, and top with whipped cream and cherry to serve. Six people.

Spiced Grapefruit Cocktail

Twenty ounces grape juice, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, speck ground clove. Combine above ingredients and simmer for 5 minutes covered. Strain through fine cheesecloth and chill. Pour into cocktail glasses and serve as a first course.

Grape Tarts (A Winter Dessert)

One-half cup grape juice, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon cornstarch, 1 cup imported grapes, 6 baked tart shells, ½ cup whipping cream. Bring grape juice and sugar to boiling point with ½ cup water. Blend cornstarch to a smooth paste with a little water and stir in. Cut imported grapes in halves and remove seeds. Put in syrup, simmer until grapes are soft. Turn into tart shells. Top with whipped cream, then 1 raw seeded grape on each tart.

ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Would you be so kind as to help me. I baked a wedding cake some time ago and now I am supposed to decorate it and this is what I have never done, and I don't even know the best way to mix this icing. The bride elect wants roses on it and silver leaves, and how and where these are stuck on I don't know. Please help me.—C.D.

◆ ◆ ◆

ANSWER: It is customary to cover a wedding cake with almond paste first, then to cover this with ornamental icing. I will give you directions for doing both of these things.

Almond Paste

One lb. blanched almonds dried well on tea towel, 1 lb. icing or granulated sugar, 1 cup water, ⅛ cup orange juice or 1 tablespoon orange flower water. Grind almonds through finest knife of food chopper 3 or 4 times. Boil water and sugar to 240 deg. Fahr. Add to ground almonds, beat, add orange juice or flower water, beat until creamy. Pour on marble slab (or large platter) dusted with icing sugar. Cool. Store in tightly covered jar one week before using. Roll out to fit cake.

After applying almond paste to cake cover with

Ornamental Frosting

One egg white, 2¾ cups confectioners' sugar, ½ teaspoon lemon juice. Beat egg white with 1 cup sugar until stiff. Add lemon juice and beat in. Add remaining sugar, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition. Cool. Any desired coloring may be beaten into this icing.

After almond paste has ripened, and has been rolled out and fitted to cake cover it with the ornamental frosting. This is first spread onto cover entire cake; then some is put in pastry tube and bag and forced through bag around edges of cake to give it a decorative edging. You should practice doing this away from cake at first, so that you become expert at making symmetrical very small scallops. The roses and silver leaves you mention may be bought at a good retail bakery or caterers'. You can make the roses yourself, with ornamental frosting, if you have the proper fittings for your pastry bag.

You may either place icing roses alternately with silver leaves around edge of cake to form an attractive border or place them in attractive rosettes at intervals around edge of cake or in centre. Arrange your decorations on a piece of paper size and shape of cake first before applying them on the moised frosting.

QUESTION: I want a nice method for preparing halibut besides frying or steaming. Could you send me a nice casserole dish? I always bake my potatoes, and my husband likes pie so the oven is on a lot. — Dess. Frome.

ANSWER:

Baked Halibut in Tomatoes

Two lbs. halibut steak, 2 cups canned or stewed tomatoes, 3 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour, 1 slice onion, 1 teaspoon sugar, ¼ teaspoon rosemary, ½ teaspoon salt, few grains pepper. Wipe fish and place in baking dish with half the sauce made with tomatoes, butter flour and seasonings. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 40 min., basting occasionally. Serve with remaining sauce poured over, or passed in sauce dish. Garnish with cress or parsley.

This Week's Best Wartime Recipe

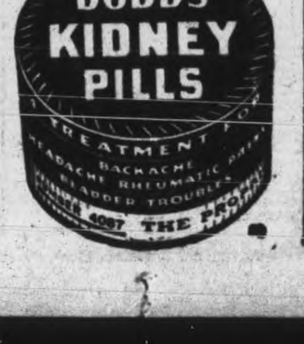
Contributed By Mary Moore Readers

Dear Mary Moore: I don't know how other people manage but the recipe for cookies I am writing to give you is such a good standby for me I think other mothers might find it equally simple and economical to make. As soon as the cookie crock gets as low as 12 cookies I make another batch—so I can't be out if a friend drops in for tea.

Peanut Butter Cookies (Contributed by Elinor Shaw)

Two cups sifted flour, 1½ teaspoons baking powder, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons shortening, ½ cup peanut butter, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ¼ to 1-3 cup milk, ½ cup chopped peanuts are optional. (sometimes I use 1 cup nut crush in place of peanut butter and peanuts.) Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cream shortening and peanut butter together. Beat in remaining ingredients one at a time. Stir in flour mixture, blending well. Chill. Roll out to ¼-inch thickness on slightly floured board. Cut with cookie cutter. Place on ungreased cookie sheet. Peanuts may be left out of cookies and sprinkled on top. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 12 to 15 minutes. Watch carefully in oven—do not leave kitchen, as it is a shame to burn these little goodies.—E.S.

I made the version of these with the peanuts sprinkled on top, but couldn't save a one for future reference, — the youngsters plus their friends found them one day after school before I reached home!



HIGHLAND FLING STYLE—This visiting tartan, although far from its native heath, preserves its Scottish integrity because of the style frock into which it has been put. There is plenty of bonnie lassie effect in the one-piece model, with its jacket-type bodice and fulled pockets which suggest the sporran, in front. The fabric is a tissue wool, the colors a bit delicate for an authentic tartan, as they are chiefly muted green and rose. Bright buttons (and a matching Glengarry bonnet if you want it) are the trimmings.

KEEPING FRIENDS IS NOT EASY

Takes Time, Labor To Stop Them From Slipping Through Your Hands But It's Worthwhile.

EVERYBODY wants a friend. Everybody needs a friend. No matter what else we have, life is flat and tasteless if we lack friends. All of this being a matter of common knowledge, it is a strange thing that the great majority of people take so little trouble to acquire friends and make still less effort to keep them. They seem to think that whether they have friends or not is a matter of luck, and that having once made a friend they cannot possibly lose him, whereas there is nothing else so hard to do as to keep one.

They will slip through your fingers if you don't watch out. They will disappear as completely as if they had dropped off of the earth when your back was turned and you were busy making money, or rearing a family. You can lose them for lack of a postage stamp, or a telephone call, or a telegram of condolence or congratulation. Then, all of a sudden, you get the shock of your life by discovering that where you used to have hordes of friends, you haven't any left.

So easily can this happen to even the most attractive of us that a great philosopher has warned us not to take a friendship for granted, as something that we can abuse or neglect with impunity, but to watch for every sign of break and wear and tear in it and to patch up the damage before it is too late. He said: "Keep your friendships in repair."

Helpfulness Part of Friendship

There are many ways in which we can do this. We can make our friendship something beautiful and comforting, instead of a racket or a burden. Mutual helpfulness is a part of friendship, but that does not mean sponging on our friends for money, or borrowing their automobiles, or dumping our children on them when we want to go off on a trip, or keeping their shoulders wet with our tears.

We can keep our friends by respecting their personal liberty and observing their "keep off the grass" sign. There is no quicker way to lose friends than by trying to boss them. Another way to lose friends is by telling them things they would rather die than hear. Maybe we should be grateful to those who feel it their sacred duty to tell us they saw our husbands out with a blond, or that our children are the worst little brats on the block, or that our new hats make us look like figures of fun, but we are not. We hate them for confirming our own secret suspicions. The bearing of unwelcome news is a job for enemies, not friends.

Still another way to lose friends is via the back door route. No friendship can survive an intimate closeup of the daily life of the party of the other part, and the minute anyone comes popping into your privacy everything is over except the final row.

How, then, shall we keep our friendships in repair? First of all, by showing them that we still love them and are interested in them; by going to them in their joys and sorrows; by the little attentions that are the silken bounds that bind humanity together.

Keeping our friendships in repair takes time and labor, but it is worth it.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, October 20

IT MAY take some clever strategies or undercover methods, sustained by very direct and forceful techniques to put over important projects on this day. There may be various factors to be taken into account and handled with secrecy, intrigue or intuition, although eventually all such subtlety may be dragged into the open. Change, travel, dealings with agencies, or promotional enterprises are indicated, with all professional and business interests progressing.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for the development of a subtle, intriguing or secret matter, which should be practically and constructively grasped not only with strategem but with initiative and real creative enterprise. And while hidden sources may lie at the root of things they may eventually be required to come to the surface for final and lucrative results. Travel, change, new agreements, in connection with financial, business and promotional enterprises, call for shrewdness and acumen.

A child born on this day should have much versatility and constructive ability, perhaps of an exceptional or unique quality. It may be intuitive, inspirational and productive in some modernistic art form or writing.

Needlecraft Pattern

TRAVEL DATES

The popcorn stitch in inexpensive wool is the chief feature of this beloved beanie, ever gay and youthful, with its matching bag.

Ideal for the college girl, this noncrushable crochet. Pattern 999 contains directions for hat and purse; stitches; list of materials.

IDEAL DINNER DRESS—Although the low-necked evening gown is being encountered now and again about town, it is the graceful long-skirted high-necked dress that is the favorite with the smartest women. Metropolitan Opera star Nadine Conner is especially addicted to this type of frock which she wears with such good effect. The dress is of crepe in the delicate "winter rose" shade, it's harem drape accentuated with a grape cluster of purple sequins at the waist.

Skating Champion Plans To Marry

NORTH BAY, Oct. 19—(CP)—Norah McCarthy, once senior ladies' figure skating champion of Canada, now an Ice Folllies star, will marry Michael Kirby, of the Ice Follies, during the coming season, it was announced Wednesday. Miss McCarthy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. McCarthy of North Bay, and her fiance, at present under contract to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kirby of Montreal.

Havelock News

Major D. L. Bennett, Mrs. Bennett, daughters Joan and Jane and son Paul of Toronto were the recent guests of Mrs. Bennett's sister, Mrs. William Wright.

Mrs. W. J. Wright is visiting relatives in Toronto.

Mrs. L. Terrell and children and Mrs. Jack Edmunson and son Norman of Tillsonburg, visited Mrs. B. Dewey during the week.

TOUGH ALLOY

Magnesium is so weak in its pure state that a small boy could bend a half-inch bar, yet it is so tough as an alloy that it will stand the shock of landing a 30-ton warplane.

"Great way to get those Extra vitamins and minerals!"

"I used to worry about them, but now I know with my regular meals and a cup of Ovaltine night and morning I'm getting all the extra vitamins and minerals I need."

Authorities say 3 out of 4 people are underpar—undernourished—for lack of enough Vitamins and Minerals. But experts agree with 3 average-good meals a day and Ovaltine you are getting all the extra vitamins and minerals you can profitably use—except Vitamin C which is plentiful in fruit juices.

Ovaltine is recognised not only as a rich source of vitamins and minerals but, equally important, as a well-balanced dietary food supplement prescribed by doctors the world over for those who are thin, nervous or underpar.

So don't worry about vitamins and minerals. Rely on Ovaltine to give you all the extra ones you can use—in addition to its other well-known benefits. Just follow this recipe for better health.

Obituary

MRS. H. SEABROOK

FRASERVILLE, Oct. 19.—After an illness of over a year, Mrs. Clara Seabrook, formerly Clara Middleton, beloved wife of Harry Seabrook, Fraserville, passed away at her home Wednesday morning in her 63rd year. She was born in Smith Township, daughter of the late William Middleton and Victoria McKee. The late Mrs. Seabrook was made a life member of the W.M.S. at Trinity Church, Peterborough, some years ago and was an active worker in the United Church until her health began to fail.

Surviving are her husband, Harry Seabrook; two sons, Walter G. of Peterborough and Flt. Sgt. Ronald C., R.C.A.F., Jarvis; one daughter, Mrs. J. A. Kingdon, of Oshawa, and a sister, Mrs. Edward Preston, of Lakefield.

The funeral service will be conducted by Rev. H. J. Mahoney from her late residence on Friday at 2.30. Interment will be in Little Lake Cemetery, Peterborough.

Bullet Expert Gives Evidence

WHITBY, Oct. 19. —(CP). —A Royal Canadian Mounted Police expert testified yesterday that the bullet which killed Mike Sheveluk at Pickering, Ont., seven years ago and cartridges taken by police from the stock of a Toronto store were made by the same company.

The evidence was given by Inspector J. A. Churchman, testifying in the trial of Sam Michael, 45, who is charged with the murder of Sheveluk, Nov. 27, 1937.

Stephen Francis, proprietor of the store, had testified earlier in the trial that Michael purchased a .32 calibre high-powered Winchester rifle and cartridges from his store in 1937, shortly before the killing. A statement by Michael to police denied that he made the purchase.

Crown witnesses said hte sample box of cartridges obtained by police seven years ago from the Francis store had been kept in a strong box by provincial police. Inspector Churchmen said the death bullet was a .32-calibre high-velocity cartridge, fired from a high-powered Marlin or Winchester rifle. In cross-examination, the inspector told Defence Counsel A. G. Slaght that "no two bullets are exactly alike."

The Tea Hour Gossip . . . .

History is surely repeating itself. One of the most exciting fashion upheavals is upon us. Milliners and clothes-designers deciding that the slim silhouette which we've been wearing must be rescued and given more character and charm, have turned to the past for inspiration. As a result, your hat, your coat and your dresses this season are teeming with the romance and history of earlier fashion eras. You'll start the season with a higher or a larger hat and with more variation and luxury to the look of your good cloth, or your fur coat. Your dresses will have new skirt and sleeve ideas, all borrowed from period and national influences of the past, and you will be much more brightly dressed.

Fashion re-awaking just at this time is not unprecedented for, from historical records we read that always, at the dawn of a new era, style reaches out to bring about a new cycle in clothes. Hats grow larger and more pretentious and clothing more elaborate and colorful.

There is perhaps the biggest change in the coat and hat styles. The tunic coat that gives you a waistline, is banded at the bottom with fur and is stunning if you have the figure for it. The Shortie, that young and swaggerish coat, can be worn anywhere, anytime, especially if it is fur lined. Then there is the full length coat with luxurious fur collar reaching well down to the waistline. It is flattering to absolutely every figure and, for sheer elegance, the perfection fitting untrimmed coat, sometimes nipped in, sometimes boxy can be worn with a beautiful fur scarf or stole.

In Victorian days, turbans and toques were worn posed back of pompadours, sailors were set well forward and straight and so you wear these types today. Hats with brims and the beret type, inspired by the swift flight of airplanes, give a one-sided line to the head that is attractive and gay. It is not alone the shaping of furs, felts and fabrics that is making millinery so interesting this season, it is the different trimming and rich coloring, roses piled on velvet, ostrich, birds, quills, jacked on felt, bright sequin embroidery, full of elegance without being ornate.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

OH, WHAT A DIFFERENCE

SOME DUPLICATE deals produce such entirely different bidding at various tables that a kibitzer, listening and not looking at any of the cards, would never guess that the varieties come from the same card holdings. Terrific "swings" result when one pair outwits its opponents in the battle of the bids.

Notice how East "kept the pikers out," as he described it later, when he bid 4-Hearts at Table 2. He had the ideal hand for such a bid—terrific distribution and not much high card strength—a hand not at all adapted to a 3-Heart bid, which would have shown strength enough to call 4-Hearts, but including general power.

A rather inexperienced and therefore timid player sat in the East at Table 1, and was up against a very strong pair. North at that table was an especially canny citizen. East's first mistake was in bidding only 2-Hearts, a single raise, which opened the door for his opponents to get into the auction. South did the perfectly natural thing by making a mere minimum overcall at 2-Spades, and the fancy work was supplied by his partner, who passed West's 3-Hearts, feeling sure that either East would bid again or else South would.

When the 4-Hearts from East came around to North he then bid 4-Spades as a belated call which made his hand seem much weaker than it was. West fell for the stratagem and doubled, which was just what North was conniving for. The contract was made plus an extra trick. At Table 2, where East shut out his opponents, the heart game was made plus an extra trick. All told, the swing between one score and the other was more than 1400 points.

Norway Likely To Explode At Early Date

By EDWARD SHANKE
Associated Press Staff Writer

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 18 — (AP). — Conditions in Norway are fast approaching an explosion. The Germans, fearing revolt, are attempting to smash the home front organization with increased terror.

Norwegian legation sources said yesterday more than 1,000 Norwegian hostages have been seized in the last few weeks. Arrests as often as possible are made of likely underground leaders. Prisons and concentration camps are filled. Grini, the most notorious, near Oslo, is packed with 3,000 captives.

Norwegian sources say German patrols search homes and gathering places day and night and that very often Norwegians are shot "by mistake".

Violent sabotage is increasing in addition to tne passive resistance and causing nervousness among the Nazi occupants, who are tightening restrictive measures. The Norwegians said they had accurate information showing the Germans were moving together into selected apartment houses after ordering out the Norwegians. Nazi suicide squads could convert such buildings into defence strongholds.

As early as Sept. 19, the first shipload of German women and children was sent home suggesting the Nazis anticipated a showdown.

There are no signs, however, of any extensve withdrawal of German troops from Norway, legation sources said. Troops withdrawn usually are small units and replaced with green soldiers.

Mayors Warned To Ease Load On Real Estate

TORONTO, Oct. 19.— (CP). — Post-war plans Ontario municipalities must make to ensure full employment through expansion of private industry were stressed here today at the opening session of a two-day meeting of the annual conference of Ontario mayors and reeves.

Employment problems after the war were discussed in addresses by Mayor W. Garfield Case of Owen Sound, president of the conference and by Mayor Fred J. Conboy who welcomed the delegates to Toronto.

In the president's address, Mayor Case warned municipal leaders to avoid further burdens upon real estate and industry after the war on penalty of discouraging private industry.

"There is more than one way to bring about state socialism," he said. "One method—one we recognize in the open—is to advocate public ownership of everything. A more subtle method is to keep on increasing taxation until everyone will be working for the government and private enterprise will become discouraged, home ownership abandoned and we will have a socialistic state in all its realities."

Mayor Case predicted in the post-war period a "cutting down of provincial authority, an expansion of county councils and other municipal authority in order that we might avoid duplication of services."

A means of providing full employment, Mayor Case said, would be reclamation of lands now unsuitable for agriculture but ideal for national park projects. He suggested as a reclamation project the area near Dundalk, Ont., where the Grand and Credit Rivers have their source. This area might be converted to a national park of 35,000 acres, he said.

He said municipal officials should leave the conference prepared to plan for provision of employment for members of the armed forces after the war.

Post-war traffic problems were discussed during the morning session by H. C. Fester of the Ontario Traffic League. He said municipal leaders could solve their local safety problems by adopting a safety commission similar to that in Kingsville, Ont., where citizens act as voluntary commissioners for prevention of traffic and other hazards.

Mr. and Mrs. Stirling Waterman of Toronto were recent visitors in the district.

Christmas boxes were packed for the boys overseas at the Red Cross meeting. These boxes contained chocolates, candy, chocolate bars, cookies, cigarettes and Christmas cake. Boys remembered included: Sgt. M. Thompson in France, Gnr. W. W. Wood in France, Pte. Wm. Moncrief in England, Pte. H. L. Smith in France, Pte. C. L. Thompson in France, Sgt. Ross Taylor in France, Pte. A. Huggins in Italy, Pte. Gus Anstey in Italy, Pte. George Moncrief in England, Rev. M. Rowland, Pte. Harold Patton in France. Tickets had been sold on an antique mosaic quilt, proceeds amounting to $20. Mrs. William Morrison made the draw and Mrs. George Nurse held the lucky ticket.

Mrs. Ross Taylor of Bensfort and son are making a few weeks' visit with Mr. and Mrs. N. Taylor at Woodville.

Truth At Last

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 — (AP) — D.N.B., German agency, is cautioning German troops against pinning their hopes on so-called "V" weapons and has told them Germany's last decisive strength "lies in ourselves, in our hearts, in our staying power,' a dispatch recorded by the Federal Communications Commission said.

3 More Nips Gone

LONDON, Oct. 19—(CP)—Berlin broadcast a Tokyo dispatch today reporting the deaths of three vice-admirals of the Japanese fleet. It listed them as Vice-Admirals Miura, "who died of an illness at the front," and Murato and Mitsunobe, "who died in battle."

LONDON, Oct. 19—(CP)—Some of Germany's prisoner of war camps have been or are situated near legitimate military targets in contravention of Article 9 of the Geneva convention, State Minister Richard Law declared in Commons Wednesday.

Consequently, he said, a number of British prisoners of war have lost their lives in air raids.

Never Go To Church

TORONTO, Oct. 19—(CP)—There are 17,000,000 young people in the United States who have never entered the door of a church, Rev. H. H. Stratton, Detroit Baptist minister, said Tuesday night in an address to the annual meeting of the Toronto Association of Baptist churches. The church should go out and discover persons without a church and provide them with a spiritual home, he added.

Belgrade's Fall Imminent; Hungary Totters

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Oct. 19 — (AP) — Moscow's victory guns were primed today to salute the expected fall of Belgrade, Yugoslavia's war-ravaged capital. Dispatches from the area said German troops were in a death trap, with the city largely mopped up.

Many of the capital's buildings were reported in flames after fierce day-and-night street fighting.

An Izvestia front line dispatch said Yugoslav Partisans equipped with captured German tommy-guns and grenades were pouring into the city to join in the final mop-up. German suicide squads are being exterminated, Izvestia said.

Big Russian self-propelled guns lunged from corner to corner firing point-blank at windows and doorways of German-held warehouses, apartments and office buildings. Thousands of Germans dead were said to be strewn along the streets and in wrecked hideouts.

A belief prevailed meanwhile in Moscow that Hungarian army units have deserted the Germans and now are fighting beside the Russians in an effort to drive the Nazis from Budapest, the Hungarian capital.

(The Germans announced in a Berlin broadcast yesterday that high Hungarian army chiefs had gone over to the Russian side. Specifically named was Maj.-Gen. Bela Miklos von Dalnok, commander of the 1st Army. Neutral reports said von Dalnok's army was marching on the capital).

A strategical development which would be fatal for the Germans in eastern Hungary appeared imminent — a link-up of Marshal Rodion K. Malinovsky's column in northern Transylvania with Col.-Gen. Ivan Petrov's 4th Ukrainian Army sweeping southward from southern Poland.

The two forces were barely 30 miles apart today. A junction would form a solid front across the Carpathians between the Polish and Hungarian plains and shorten the Red Army's supply lines by hundreds of miles.

Springbrook Friends Honor Flier And Wife

BONARLAW, Oct. 19—(ENS)— A large number of friends and neighbors of J. S. Eastwood of the R.C.A.F. gathered in the Orange Hall, Springbrook, and presented he and Mrs. Eastwood with two chairs, a mirror, and a tri-light floor lamp.

There was a short program before the presentation consisting of readings by Mrs. George Williams, Miss Mary McInroy and Mrs. A. B. McComb, and vocal numbers by Rev. J. M. Brownlie and J. F. Baker.

An address was read by Miss Freida McLaren wishing the bride and groom happiness and expressing the esteem in which they are held Allan B. McComb acted as master of ceremonies and short addresses were made by Rev. J. M. Brownlie, Frank Cosby and J. F. Baker. The parents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Eastwood, thanked them for their kindness

Lunch was served by the women in the banquet hall and supper music was furnished by Tom Neal and Delbert McComb.

"BEST REMEDY I KNOW OF FOR GAS, INDIGESTION"

Praises Syntona for Giving Him Relief After Four Years of Stomach Troubles. Also Rid of Pains in Limbs and Nervousness. "Feel Better Every Way."

MR. EDWARD JOHNSTON

"I am really grateful for the benefits I got by taking a few bottles of Syntona and I will be glad to have others know how much it has helped me," said Mr. Edward Johnston, 175 Dundas Street, London, Ontario, in a recent interview.

"In the past four years my stomach kept me in misery almost from one meal to the next. The food I ate just seemed to turn to gas and sour acidity. I was bloated and always belching up hot, sour liquid. At times I felt awful dizzy and my nerves got so bad I couldn't get my proper sleep at night. To make things worse, I developed rheumatic pains in my legs. Many days I felt so sore and lame I had trouble getting around.

"I had tried so many things without getting relief that I was discouraged with everything, but when a friend told me about Syntona, I decided to try it. Frankly I was surprised with the difference that I noticed in only a few days. My stomach was feeling so much better that I got some more and continued taking it. To-day I eat good meals and have no distressing pains afterwards. Gas sourness and bloating do not trouble me. I haven't had any dizziness since and my nerves are calmed down, so I am getting restful sleep at night. Then, too, the pains have disappeared from my legs and I feel better and more energetic than I have in a long time.

"Now I can say Syntona is the best remedy I know of for troubles like mine, and I think everyone suffering like this should know about it."

Let this pure Herbal Tonic help you as it has hundreds of other local men and women. Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store. —(Advt.)

Ontario Troops Press Attack

By ROSS MUNRO—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY, Oct. 20—(CP Cable).—Canadian tanks and infantry launched a new attack northeast of Antwerp at 7.30 a.m. today, with two columns striking north of a narrow front as British troops attached to the 1st Canadian Army covered the right flank of the advance. The attack was made along the main Antwerp-Roosendaal highway and along the railway line which parallels it on the west. The Canadians started out from the areas of Cappelen and Camp de Brasschaet, about eight miles north and northeast of Antwerp, and in the first few hours gained several miles over the flat, wooded country.

The troops had close support from rocket-firing typhoons and other fighters and fighter-bombers which, working on signals from the ground forces, flew 116 sorties during the first hour of the operation.

The new thrust is another phase in the complicated operation by the 1st Canadian Army to clear the Schelde estuary area and thus open the port of Antwerp for Allied use. If successful, it will strengthen the Canadian position at the neck of the Causeway leading to South Beveland Island and make firmer the Allied grip on the whole area north and northeast of Antwerp.

It is still too early for any detailed information on the type of opposition the Canadians are encountering. But the Germans are believed to have a number of assault guns and tanks in the sector south of Bergen Op Zoom, nine miles west and slightly south of Roosendaal, which might be shifted

Captured German Defences Seem Almost Unassailable

By ALAN RANDAL—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN PAS DE CALAIS, Oct. 20—(CP).—Things you remember in a week of war: The seeming impossibility of the task of the Canadians in their march northward and eastward along the French Channel coast... Boulogne, Cap Gris Nez, Calais... to look at the defences captured by the Canadians you wonder how they ever did it... the fortresses seem so unassailable.

The Germans had four years to do the job of digging in and they did it well, but they don't stick out the way they might. These German garrison troops have no desire to die heroes' deaths for Hitler or anybody else....

Men of an Eastern Canada regiment, marvelling a bit themselves at the taking of Boulogne and Cap Gris Nez, saying that if Hitler had had SS troops for these places we'd never have gotten them out....

And the comment of the commander of the Canadian assault force which took Boulogne and Cap Gris Nez: "I think they all have the same dug-out complex—they sit up there behind their concrete and try to shoot the hell out of you. Then when you get up to them, close, where they can get hurt, they quit cold...."

The quiet easy manner of officers and men on the fighting front, men like Maj. Joe King of London, Ont., a company commander in an Eastern Canada infantry regiment, who you found snatching a noon-day nap in the box stall of his stable headquarters, lying down in the straw with a private on either side doing exactly the same thing—trying to catch up on sleep lost during night patrols. No lack of discipline here but none of the parade ground and barracks rigidity either....

King's comment on a particular action he was describing was "never mind the officers, they get paid to do the job, so let me tell you about the men...."

At Cap Gris Nez they had to hunt nearly three hours after the surrender of the coastal gun forts to find the garrison commander, and he was in our hands all the time. The officer commanding the Canadian attack drove his jeep in slam-bang fashion all over the place trying to find the company that had the German top-man.

Best he could do was find the second-in-command riding along in on the tank of a peppery little British major. And then back at headquarters after all this crashing through the potholes and bomb craters came word that an infantry company from Ontario was bringing the much-wanted prisoner in.

Chinese Forces Hang On Grimly

CHUNGKING, Oct. 20 — (AP). — Maj. Gen. Chang Tung-Chuen, Chinese army spokesman, said today that Japanese preparing for a feared American landing in China had fortified the coastal area between Shanghai and Hangchow Bay and were building submarine bases at Wenchow, Foochow and Amoy.

The high command spokesman said inland fighting continued in Kwangsi province both east and west of the Hunan-Kwangsi Railway, with Chinese troops holding the Japanese at bay around Tajungchang, 23 miles above Kweilin.

Northward, west of Hengyang Chinese troops recaptured two Japanese strongpoints near Paoching. They are also attacking in the direction of Changning, south of Hengyang and towards Anjen and Chaling, east of Hengyang, the spokesman said.

Labor Wants No Political Ties

By JACK WILLIAMS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC, Oct. 20 (CP) — Delegates to the fifth annual convention of the Canadian Congress of Labor today heard demands that the Congress be freed from affiliation to any political alliance.

Labor Progressive supporters have asked that the P.A.C. adopt a broader policy to allow co-operation with parties other than the C.C.F. which the committee is supporting.

President A. R. Mosher said endorsation of the P.A.C. did not bind any union to affiliation with the C.C.F.

"All we have done is to make recommendations," he said. "So far as I am concerned we will not tie the hands of any unit of the Congress to any political party."

"Repudiation of the resolution would be repudiation of the policy adopted by every Congress since its organization," he said.

Several delegates shouted disagreement.

John Mitchell, United Steel Workers, Hamilton, supporting the resolution for endorsation of the present P.A.C. policy, said neither the Liberal nor Progressive Conservative parties were friends of Labor.

Old Etonians Are Shocked

Present Appearance Of Boys Is Said "Very Untidy"

LONDON, Oct. 20 (CP-Reuter)—Old Etonians in the mud of the Western Front or the jungles of Burma will be shocked to learn that the sartorial scene around the playing fields (where as everyone knows the battle of Waterloo was won) is not what it used to be.

The present appearance of the boys at Britain's premier public school is "very untidy" and has stunned one of the "Old Boys," Lord Knutsford.

Lord Knutsford visited the school last week and today wrote in the Eton College Chronicle:

"I saw some remarkable sights: one boy in tails with a triangle of shirt showing between his waistcoat and the top of his straining trousers, these trousers held by a belt with an enormous brass buskle showing.

"One boy, no hat on, looking with difficulty through a fringe of hair and resembling a highland bullock on a wet moor.

"The points of every collar were sticking out, and more often than not the tie ends as well. No boy seemed to have had his shoes cleaned since using them in the steeplechase.

Losses Light To Allies In Philippines

Roosevelt States Drive Progressing Right To Schedule

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP).—President Roosevelt announced to-day that operations in the Philippines are proceeding on schedule with light losses and that the enemy was caught strategically off guard by the attack.

The President read to his news conference a message received last night from General MacArthur and addressed to General Marshall, Army Chief of Staff. In it MacArthur said the troops he commanded in the Philippine landings suffered "extremely light losses."

He added that the enemy was caught unawares because he expected the attack further south.

Gen. MacArthur's message said the attack left the Japanese forces on Mindanao, large island to the south of Leyte where he landed, "no longer an important factor" because they are practically cut off.

Mr. Roosevelt said the message confirming the attack which reached Washington shortly before 1 a.m. to-day, may have been delayed through Japanese attempts to jam the air communications. It had been expected earlier.

Ground forces, landing under air and sea barrages along the east coast of Leyte—415 miles southeast of Manila and 600 miles north of MacArthur's previous advance base of Morotai — seized three strong beachheads.

Front line dispatches said the Leyte landings were preceded three days ago by landings on small islands guarding the entrance to Leyte Gulf and mine-sweeping operations of the gulf to make it safe for the passage of convoys.

The Japanese, expecting landings to the south at Mindanao were so completely surprised that beachheads in the Tacloban area "were secured with small casualties," stated today's special communique issued from the field of operations.

225,000 Japs

Reinforcements and supplies poured ashore as the Americans started their drive on an estimated 225,000 Japanese troops in the Philippines headed by Field Marshal Juichi Terauchi.

Fulfilling his promise, made two years and seven months ago when he took leave of the islands that "I shall return," MacArthur went back aboard a warship. It was part of a giant convoy, sailing from New Guinea, which stretched as far as as the eye could see.

The United States Navy, in unchallenged strength, ruled the invasion scene and the seas about it. [illegible]ized the skies.

Retiring Towards Japs

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 20 (AP)

ADMIRAL HALSEY enjoyed radio Tokyo's little joke about the imperial fleet having sunk between 40 and 52 ships under his command and assured Admiral Nimitz that he now is retiring toward the enemy, following the salvage of all the U.S. 3rd Fleet's ships recently reported sunk by the Japanese. Nimitz disclosed the message in a special press release.

Soviet Armies Sweep Ahead On All Fronts

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Oct. 20 — (AP). — Multiple Russian offensives were reported smashing enemy resistance today along a battle line forged across virtually all of Europe from southern Yugoslavia to the Baltic, where the Germans have announced the loss of the East Prussian town of Eydtkau to a tremendous Red Army invading German soil

The Soviet war communique neither confirmed nor denied the German admission but described further Red Army successes in Poland, Lithuania, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Yugoslavia, where the complete liberation of Belgrade appeared imminent.

Beyond the fact that Gen. Ivan D. Cherniakhovsky for months has been preparing an assault into East Prussia from frontier bases between Schirwindt and Suwalki, no details were immediately available in Moscow on a Soviet offensive which the German high command said had driven several miles toward the East Prussian capital of Konigsberg.

Resistance Wilts

German resistance in eastern Hungary wilted in the Debrecen area, where Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2nd Ukraine army reported taking 11,000 prisoners during the last six days.

(Berlin announced today that Debrecen had been lost.)

The flanks of Malinovsky's army and that of Col.-Gen. Ivan Petrov met in northern Transylvania as the Russians continued to clean out disorganized German units from eastern Czechoslovakia.

Russian and Yugoslav Partisan shock brigades moved through Belgrade, exterminating remaining suicide squads of German machine-gunners.

Southeast of Belgrade Russian troops waged other successful engagements in the annihilation of pocketed Germans and in a single day, Oct. 18, took 5,900 prisoners, the communique said.

Reports from beleaguered Budapest said Hungarian troops loyal to Regent Nicholas Horthy were defying the death penalty ordained by the new Nazi puppet government and fighting S.S. units in the city's streets.

Ilsley Urges 7th Loan Greatest Ever

Finance Minister Heard By Workers Of Seventh Victory Loan

With an aggregate income that has never been higher, the people of Canada have the money to make the Seventh Victory Loan the largest public borrowing operation in the history of our country, said Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Minister of Finance, in his address last night to the Peterborough city and county canvassers who are starting out next Monday on three weeks' campaign for the new Loan. Its overall objective is $1,300 millions, of which $600 millions are expected from individuals and $700 millions from business firms and corporations.

As the Minister who has been in charge of the treasury of Canada during the years of the war, Mr. Ilsley made a special appeal to the people to continue their co-operation against the menace of inflation by transferring their money into Victory Bonds instead of letting it flow thoughtlessly into a market in which goods are scarce, and control of which can be maintained only by the intelligent will of the people. Stability of prices must be a primary consideration of the Canadian people during the concluding phases of the war and into the first years after it. Mr. Ilsley reminded his audience that the elimination of compulsory savings in the last federal budget had added about $9,000,000 a month to the "disposable income" of the people who pay income taxes.

"The Budget for the current financial year was presented to the House of Commons last June," Mr. Ilsley said. "I estimated that total outlays would be at least $6 billions, and that about $3¾ billions of this amount would have to be raised by borrowing. These are new high levels both for total outlays and for borrowing needs.

Some persons may ask why Canada is spending so much at this stage of the war, and why borrowing needs are greater now than they were at the time of any earlier Victory Loan. Here are the answers to these questions.

In the earlier years, only our Navy and our Air Force were engaged in intensive warfare. Outlays for the Army were for initial equipment, maintenance, and training. Now, all three services are engaging the enemy. Active warfare on land has used up supplies in far greater quantity than might have been anticipated. We had some warning from our early experience in Italy, but the tremendous scale of these costs did not become fully apparent until our armies invaded France.

Double Bomber Attack Rips Stuttgart

LONDON, Oct. 20 — (CP). Four-engined bombers of the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. made a shattering double-header attack last night on the big industrial city of Stuttgart, a centre of the German electrical engineering industries.

Two large forces of Halifaxes and Lancasters pounded the city four hours apart.

A third large-scale R.A.F. attack was carried out simultaneously on Nurnberg, another engineering centre, and a lighter raid was made on Wiesbaden in the Rhineland. More than 1,000 planes participated in the four attacks.

The four-point attack cost nine bombers but all the Canadian planes returned safely. The force which made the second raid on Stuttgart reported large fires burning from the initial attack as they approached the target.

Night fighters supported the bombers and attacked airfields.

While not a common practice, it was not the first time that R.A.F. night raiders have struck twice in the same place. Several months ago they hit Cologne three times between sunset and sunrise.

The first wave was over Stuttgart last night about 8:30 p.m., and when the second force reached the city shortly before 1 a.m. crews said fires were still burning from the initial blow. The bombers battled storms and icing conditions to and from the target and both attacks were made through thick clouds.

First Major Hun City To Be Taken

Canadian Units Are Making Progress South Of Breskens

LONDON, Oct. 20 (AP)—Ruined Aachen, a sprawling city of death and destruction, fell today to the United States 1st Army on the 7th day of its siege. Tonight the victorious Americans started mopping up the last remnants of the Nazi garrison, trapped on the outskirts.

The city has been encircled by American forces for the last seven days but the battle to capture it really began on Oct. 10, with the expiry of an ultimatum demanding surrender of Aachen. This ultimatum was rejected by the garrison commander.

The capture of the first major German city, a gateway to the Ruhr, was completed at 3:30 p.m., (10:30 a.m. EDT) official announcements from the field said.

The city is 340 miles from Berlin and 40 miles from Cologne on the Rhine. It had a peacetime population of 165,000.

American infantry had been attacking since Sept. 16, and for a week they had engaged in street by street fighting with bazookas, bayonets and self-propelled guns.

Just Wreckage

Aachen was left a mass of wreckage by fanatical German resistance.

Young German officers, many of them not long back from the Russian front, threw away their lives to gain another Oak Leaf cluster on their Iron Crosses.

The last resistance in the centre of the city was at a large stone building in which 100 S.S. men had barricaded themselves in defiance of artillery which had pressed the defenders into an ever-narrowing space. This last major stronghold was knocked out at 3:30 p.m. with direct fire from a 155 mm. gun. The gun literally knocked down the building.

Gain Miles

Eighty miles to the west of this major battle, Canadian forces of Lt.-Gen. Crerar's army launched a new drive northeast of Antwerp and gained several miles. Allied Supreme Headquarters said the Canadian thrust, northward along the railway and highway leading from Antwerp to Roosendaal, 19 miles north of the big port, was on a moderate scale but was going well.

This drive, through the wooded and marshy flatlands near the Belgian-Netherlands frontier, was de-

MacArthur Asks Filipinos To Rise Against Japan

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 20 (AP)—"I have returned," Gen. MacArthur told the Filipino people in a broadcast over the "Voice of Freedom" radio, as reported by the United States Office of War Information:

"This is the voice of freedom, General MacArthur speaking:

"People of the Philippines: I have returned. By the grace of Almighty God our forces stand again on Philippine soil—soil consecrated in the blood of our two peoples. We have come, dedicated and committed, to the task of destroying every vestige of enemy control over your daily lives, and of restoring, upon a foundation of indestructible strength, the liberties of your people.

"At my side is your president, Sergio Osmena, worthy successor of that great patriot, Manuel Quezon, with members of his cabinet. The seat of your government is now therefore firmly re-established on Philippine soil.

"The hour of your redemption is here. Your patriots have demonstrated an unswerving and resolute devotion to the principles of freedom that challenges the best that is written on the pages of human history. I now call upon your supreme effort that the enemy may know from the temper of an aroused and outraged people within that he has a force there to contend with no less violent than is the force committed from without.

"Rally to me. Let the indomitable spirit of Bataan and Corregidor lead on. As the lines of battle roll forward to bring you within the zone of operations, rise and strike! Strike at every favorable opportunity. For your homes, and hearths, strike. For future generations of your sons and daughters, strike. In the name of your sacred dead, strike! Let no heart be faint. Let every arm be steeled. The guidance of divine God points the way. Follow in His name to the holy grail of righteous victory."

Citrus Damage Is $20 Millions

CHARLESTON, S.C., Oct. 20 — (AP)—A tropical hurricane which killed at least 26 persons and caused untold property damage in Florida and Cuba, apparently was diminishing in force early today as it moved northward along the Atlantic coast.

The Washington Weather Bureau, in a 3 a.m. E.D.T. advisory predicted flood tides by noon today at places in the Carolinas, but said they would subside rapidly as the centre of the disturbance passed.

Three hours later, a bulletin located the centre of the storm about 40 miles east-southeast of Columbia, S.C., moving north-northeastward at 20 miles an hour. It was expected to reach Raleigh, N.C., by mid-afternoon.

Little damage and no casualties were reported in the Carolinas, although Charleston was without power for more than six hours and low-lying sections of the city were reported flooded.

Damage was unofficially estimated at $20,000,000 to the citrus crop in Florida. The storm turned out to sea at Jacksonville and began its swirling course up the Atlantic seaboard, striking Savannah and Brunswick, Ga., before moving into the Carolinas.

Laval Is Sentenced To Death In Absentia

LONDON, Oct. 20—Pierre Laval has been sentenced to death in absentia by a Marseille tribunal, the Paris radio said today.

A warrant for the arrest of the Vichy chief of government, now either sheltering with or held by the Germans, was issued by the tribunal two weeks ago, but it was stated then that he would be tried whether he was present or not.

The Algiers radio reported that Jean Galliard, former director of the newspaper Petit Marseille was condemned to death in absentia by the same tribunal at the same time.

Labor Wants Pay From Axis

BLACKPOOL, Eng., Oct. 20 (CP)—The defeat of Germany and Japan must be followed by the payment of reparations, the Trades Union Congress declared in a resolution today.

"The countries which have been plundered and exploited to serve Germany's aim of conquest and domination have a just claim to reparations which must be paid to the full and cannot be paid in money alone," the resolution said.

The resolution, adopted almost unanimously, urged complete disarmament of Germany, control of German industries which could be converted to war purposes, and creation by the Allies of an organization armed with power to enforce peace.

Expects Post-War Decline

Auto Industry Will Top Last Peace Years

By DAVID J. WILLKIE
Associated Press Staff Writer

DETROIT, Oct. 20. — (AP).—Post-war employment in United States' automobile factories—a major question mark in this war-boomed industrial centre—will decline somewhat from the peak of wartime production levels but will be considerably higher than the top of the last peacetime year.

Such is the expectation of many of the former car manufacturers looking for a 50 per cent. increase in automobile production for several years after the war. Many of them believe, too, that insofar as their own plants are concerned they can level off to a peacetime basis with relatively little over-all dislocation.

As indicating the place of the automobile in the economic life of the country's industry, statisticians have estimated that in normal times it directly and indirectly creates a job for one of every seven persons gainfully employed in the United States.

Currently the industry as represented by former parts plants, new suppliers created by war work and the prime contractors themselves is employing in excess of 1,100,000 men and women.

British Score New Gains Enter Cesena

ROME, Oct. 20—(AP)—British and Indian troops of the British 8th Army have entered Cesena, former German administration centre on the main Bologna-Rimini highway in the Adriatic sector, Allied headquarters announced today.

Meanwhile, other 8th Army troops made additional progress in bitter fighting in the mountainous areas southwest of Cesena, while the Allied 5th Army made local gains in the Central Italian sector south of Bologna, flanking the Bologna-Florence highway.

Cesena, Forli province town of historic Aemilian Way, is 12 miles southeast of the town of Forli and about 20 miles inland from the Adriatic.

The penetration of Cesena apparently was only in the eastern part of the town, the communique indicated, but gains by other 8th Army troops to the south made the German position in Cesena extremely difficult.

Headquarters said the bridgehead across the Pisciatello River, north of the highway and west of Macerone, has been enlarged by "Dominion troops" to a depth of two miles and has been joined with a bridgehead farther to the west established three days ago.

Presumably this action was carried out by Canadian and New Zealand units.

South of the Aemilian Way Celincordia has been captured and farther west several villages and hills have been cleared of the enemy south of Galeata, the communique said.

RCAF Escort Present At R. Munro's Funeral

A military escort from Camp Borden attended the funeral service for Robert Bertram Munro, son of Mrs. Annie E. Munro and the late M. D. Nihill Munro, 560 George Street, held on Thursday afternoon from the family residence to George Street United Church at 2 o'clock. Mr. Munro, meteorology expert at Camp Borden for the past three years, on loan to the Royal Canadian Air Force by the Department of Transport, died on Monday morning in his 31st year, following an accident.

During the time he spent at Camp Borden, Mr. Munro made many friends, and some of these, all of them in the services, came to Peterborough from the camp, in order to pay their last respects.

The service was conducted by the Rev. Dr. J. R. R. Cooper, of George Street United Church, and Flight-Lieut. D. R. L. Clarke, padre of the No. 1 S.F.T.S., R.C.A.F., Camp Borden.

Mr. Munro, born and brought up in Peterborough, received his education in part at local schools, and was an honor graduate in mathematics and physics at the Queen's University, where he received his Bachelor of Arts degree. Before studying law at Osgoode Hall in Toronto, he taught for three years in schools in these districts. When war broke out in 1939, he became interested in meteorology, and after studying this, took up his post with the Department of Transport.

The military escort who attended was made up of LAC. J H. Bethel, Warant Officer L. I. Stock, Pilot Officer G. Kelly, Flying Officer R. Carter, Flight Lieutenant F. A. Alton, Cpl. Grace Rogan, R.C.A.F. (W.D.), and Cpl R. Hoyle, W.D.

Pall-bearers were B. Green, J. Little, Major N. L. Stuart, D. B. Kennedy, K. Rozell, and D. Carlisle, and interment was in Little Lake Cemetery.

Old Orchard Farm Heifer Heads List

"Old Orchard Stephanie," yearold Hereford heifer from the herd of John Stuart, Jr., of Old Orchard Farm, Otonabee, brought $1,175 at the Ontario Hereford show and sale held on Wednesday at Stratford. This was the top price brought by any animal at the sale and it is the second year in succession that an entry of Mr. Stuart's has brought the top figure. The heifer was born May 6, 1943, and was purchased by the Elmac Hills Ranch of Gaylord, Michigan.

Mr. Stuart consigned four bulls and two heifers to the sale, the other heifer bringing $775. The second highest price paid at the sale was for a heifer sold by George Rodans of Stouville to the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph.

threatened to engulf us—an evil already responsible for a world tragedy without parallel in history. Do not lose sight of the fact that since the day Hitler unleashed his evil on this earth, it is almost certain that more than 10 million men, women and children have gone to death—with many more millions maimed for life. And, the end is not yet. It must be our consuming aim, our fervent wish, to hasten the complete defeat of the forces which have brought this death, this suffering, and this destruction to humanity.

Now, there are two main reasons for the increase in borrowing needs. First, the abolition of compulsory savings, at the end of last June, meant a loss in this year's receipts of $70 millions. We could discontinue these compulsory savings only because we could hope, and expect, to replace them with voluntary savings—savings made on the initiative of individuals. Second, our total outlays—as we have just seen—are now higher than ever. Even with the taxes at present high levels, we must rely on borrowing to cover just over half of our outlays. For these reasons, borrowing needs this year are some $300 millions greater than last year.

We raised a part of this year's borrowing needs through the Sixth Victory Loan, last Spring. But, the balance of the needs are very large—we must still raise over $1¾ billions by loans to cover this year's outlays. This is why we call the dollar objectives of the Seventh Victory Loan, "minimum" objectives—this is why the Seventh Loan must surpass the record of the Sixth Loan—this is why borrowing needs are now greater than they were at the time of any earlier Victory Loan.

Many Canadians expect Germany to be defeated by Christmas. This expectation receives support from Field Marshal Motgomery's expression of certainty that the Germans will be defeated this year. More recently, however, speeches by Prime Minister Churchill, General de Gaulle and General Eisenhower have indicated that the war with Germany may not end this year, but may run on into several months of 1945.

War On Japanese

The ultimate certainty, and possible nearness, of German defeat do not mean that we need less money now. Even if the European phase of the war should come to an end before next March, which is the end of the present fiscal year, there will not be any important immediate reduction in outlays or borrowing needs. The end of German hostilities will not reduce our war expenditures very much until after several months. And, we shall continue to require large sums of money for the Japanese stage of the war. We cannot stop the huge war machine and turn it in a new direction overnight. Great costs are involved in stopping it, or even slowing it down. For example, we shall be paying a large amount of gratuities to our men when they return from overseas. Moreover, we shall still have a great many bills to pay for the war against Germany, even after that war ends. In other words, even if we knew for certain, that Germany would collapse before the end of the year, it would still be our duty to make the Seventh Victory Loan a new milestone of financial achievement.

Plans For Peace

There was a time when it seemed wrong to think or to talk about postwar problems and opportunities for fear such things would weaken concentration on the war. At the present stage of the war, we have no choice. We must make plans for the return of peace. In any event, there is no clear cut division between many of our wartime policies and our postwar policies. From our present vantage point, we can see how many of these wartime policies can contribute to the solution of post-war problems.

For instance, I am sure that most of us at one time or another during these long war years have wondered whether the intense effort, the toll, and the trouble required to maintain a reasonable degree of stability in our price level were all worthwhile. There is a general impression that Canadians have made an outstanding success of price control. Today, our cost of living index shows a rise of 18 per cent since the beginning of the war compared with 65 per cent in the same period after the beginning of the last war. For this record, we have received high compliments from those in other countries who realize how difficult the control of prices is in time of war, particularly in a country such as Canada where half the entire production is devoted to war purposes.

But price control would never have succeeded as it has if it had not been for high taxation and the savings programs. At an earlier stage of the war the prospects of a rapidly rising price level may have seemed to hold out attractions for some, although never for the consumer. Suppose we in this country had not fought against higher prices? Judging by the experience of some countries our price level might now very well have been double the pre-war figure. Even at that level, it would have been very much lower than the level actually reached in many parts of the world. We would today have been facing a severe post-war crash in prices, burdened with a debt very much larger than the present one, forced to go through all the strife and argument involved in finding equilibrium at a completely new level of wages and prices and interest and exchange rates, with adjustments in all the other factors which make up our complex economic structure.

Avoiding Inflation

We hope to avoid the difficulties of highly inflated prices—inflation as we call it—followed as it inevitably would be by deflation, with its attendant miseries of bankruptcy and widespread unemployment. We hope to maintain a large measure of stability in our prices—to keep them from going too high, and to keep them from going too low. If they go too high, they certainly will later go too low. Every man who wants continued employment, has an interest in avoiding this inflation — plus-deflation, which has caused so much unhappiness and suffering in this and other countries following other wars.

Now, the basic causes of inflation are still with us. Heavy war production, manpower shortages, insufficiencies of civilian goods, and increased purchasing power are still apparent. And, we shall not be able to prevent inflation during the remainder of the war, and during the period after the war, unless we persuade or compel the people to part with a fairly substantial proportion of the money which is so freely flowing into their hands at the present time. In other words, in order to lay down a bed-rock base for high employment after the war, it is essential that we tax severely and borrow largely during the war period.

Mr. Ilsley reviewed Government enactments devised to secure a high level of employment after the war. He briefly mentioned the Housing Act, Farm Improvement Loans Act, Industrial Development Bank Act; linked with public works projects by city, provincial and federal governments.

Loan Comes First

"But, we must no allow thoughts of the future to divert our attention from the immediate job before us—the Seventh Victory Loan. The slogan for this Loan will be "INVEST IN VICTORY." I ask you to think of the deep significance of these three words. Think of the toil, the struggle, we have gone through since 1939. Think of the years of defeat, disappointment and frustration—years when only undying hope and a blind confidence in our destiny urged us onward to our goal—think of all we have risked and endured to reach the day—this day —when Canadians can be asked to "INVEST IN VICTORY."

In the early phase of the war we saw pictures in the press and on the screen of devastated countries and German triumphs. Recently, these that we have seen are in marked contrast to those shown in the early phases of the war. Recently, we have seen depicted the liberation of Paris and the scenes of happiness which accompanied its restoration to the Fighting French. We have seen newsreels showing great masses of German prisoners taken by our armies in northern France and Belgium, and veritable legions of Nazi prisoners wearily moving through the streets of Moscow, the fruition of years of terrible Russian campaigns.

Our thankfulness might well become exultation if we did not have in our minds other pictures, not shown on the screen, of our own men wounded on the field of battle, pictures of men returned to civilian life who will carry all their days the marks and effects of this war, pictures, too, of memorial services in churches all over Canada held for boys who were the pride of their parents but whom their parents will never see again. Over 20,000 Canadian boys are dead or presumed dead. They have lost their lives in this war.

When our armed forces are facing the greatest test of their courage—when many more of our boys in the Navy, the Army and the Air Force are going to lay down their lives for their country—we cannot think our task is done. The actual need for our support—the moral claim on our support—was never greater.

3 Landings

"In a major amphibious operation, we have seized the eastern coast of Leyte island in the Philippines, 600 miles north of Morotai and 2,500 miles from Milne Bay (New Guinea) from where our offensive started nearly 16 months ago," the communique stated.

"This point of entry in the Visayas (group of islands of which Leyte is one) is midway between Luzon (site of Manila) and Mindanao and at one stroke splits in two the Japanese forces in the Philippines.

"The enemys anticipation of attack in Mindanao (southern island blasted daily since September by MacArthur's Southwest Pacific Air Arm) caused him to be caught unawares in Leyte and beachheads in the Tacloban area were secured with small casualties.

"The landing was preceded by heavy naval and air bombardment which was devastating in effort."

Terrific Toll

Participating in the preparatory blows were carrier planes of the U.S. 3rd Fleet which since October 9 destroyed more than 1,300 Japanese aircraft, sank 86 ships and damaged 127 more in forays extending from the Ryukyus within 200 miles of Japan south across Formosa into the Philippines.

"Our ground troops are rapidly extending their positions and supplies and heavy equipment are already flowing ashore in great volumes," the communique said.

These ground troops, comprising elements of the U.S. 6th Army and units from the Central Pacific, included every able-bodied man who escaped from Corregidor in Manila Bay prior to its surrender May 6, 1942.

The U.S. 7th Fleet, elements of the 3rd Fleet and a squadron of the Royal Australian Navy made up the naval forces in the invasion.

"Air support was given by navy carrier forces, by the Far East Air Force and by the Royal Australian Air Force," the communique said.

The invasion brought the Americans against the largest segment of the Japanese army yet encountered in the Pacific war. The estimated 225,000 defenders included Terauchi's 14th Army troops.

The Japanese landed on Luzon Dec. 9, 1941, after air raids the day before. Manila, bombed by the Japanese after it was declared an open city, was occupied along with the Cavite naval base Jan. 2, 1942. Thereafter began the siege of Bataan, defenders of which fought until they were without food and arms, then surrendered to be mustered into the "death march" to enemy prison camps.

Corregidor surrendered May 6, 1942. The previous March, MacArthur arrived in Australia and opened the offensive which was climaxed this week by the Philippines reinvasion.

In a communique last night at Pearl Harbor, Admiral Nimitz reported carrier plane blows Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in the Manila area and to the north. These were combined with land-based attacks by MacArthur's bombers to knock out every Philippines air base which might interfere with invasion operations.

Invaded Leyte is geographically suitable for the quick establishment of airfields from which to dominate all other enemy bases in the Philippines.

The Japanese war machine in the Philippines has been deprived of rich sources of aviation gasoline and lubricating oil at Borneo by MacArthur's destructive air attacks on Balikpapan.

Last week's carrier-plane assaults on Formosa are believed to have cut it off as a source of reinforcement.

On the Philippines, guerillas long have been operating against the Japanese in preparation for the return of the Americans. Last week, a Japanese authority frankly acknowledged these guerillas were effectively cutting up communications.

Mining News

TORONTO, Oct. 20 (CP)—Industrial stocks posted a gain of .27 in the index by noon today on Toronto exchange and the other groups were down moderately. Trading was dull and the turnover for the first three hours was 273,000 shares.

In the base Metal group, International Nickel was a feature, advancing to 34 on the news that substantial compensation would be received by the company for the loss of the Finland nickel properties. Steep Rock slipped off to a low of 2.95, showing a drop of 35 cents.

The golds weakened .23 in the index by noon. Changes in the gold shares prices were narrow.

Most of the industrial list held steady. Abitibi Pfd had a decline of a point and other papers were firm.

Obituary

FREDRICK CACCAVELLA

Fredrick Caccavella, son of Michael Caccavella and the late Anna Gardino, 506 Elm street, died early Friday morning at St. Joseph's Hospital, in his 21st year, after a brief illness. He was born and brought up in Peterborough, and had lived here all his life, with the exception of the last two years during which he lived in Newcastle, while employed at the Ajax defence plant.

Mr. Caccavella was a member of St. Peter's Cathedral, and was educated at St. Peter's School.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his father, five brothers, Joseph, Maurice, Anthony, Michael and Carmen, all of Peterborough, and four sisters, Mrs. J. Tobin, Anna Marie, and Theresa, all of Peterborough, and Bibiana, of Bangor, Penn.

The funeral will be Monday morning at nine o'clock, from the family residence, 506 Elm street, to St. Peter's Cathedral. Interment will be in St. Peter's cemetery.

$20,000 Fire Sweeps Oshawa

OSHAWA, Oct. 20 — (CP). — Damage of $20,000 or more was caused here last night when fire swept through four frame buildings owned by D. M. Tod, proprietor of Tod's Bakery.

The main bakery building was not damaged though smoke, which seeped into the structure, spoiled the night's batch of bread and bakery products.

The loss was about evenly divided between Mr. Tod and Edward Wilson, retail furniture dealer, who rented the largest of the four frame buildings as a storage warehouse. He estimated his loss at $10,000, with no insurance coverage.

The warehouse was filled with new furniture and practically all of it was ruined. Mr. Tod's loss is the frame buildings all sheet metal covered, worth about $3,000; 3 delivery trucks used by the bakery, which were standing at the loading dock, to be loaded during the night and harness, other equipment, feed and hay in the barn. The horses were removed in safety from the stables.

Truck Lands In Ditch Turning Upside Down

Mr. Coons was brought into Lakefield, where he was treated by Dr. Cameron Smith for head injuries, and then taken to the home of his brother, Nelson Coons.

The investigation was in charge of Provincial Constable Price Morris of Peterborough and Chief Samis of Lakefield. Charges will be laid.

to meet the new assault.

In the pocket south of the Schelde Estuary British infantry under Canadian command captured the towns of Aardenburg and Middleburg, north of the Leopold Canal, extending the bridgehead over the Canal to three miles.

Effect Link-up

At the same time Canadian light armored elements passed through from the east to effect a link-up between the Leopold Canal bridgehead forces and the formations which made the back-door beachhead landing on the Estuary near Hoofdplaat 10 days ago.

The Canadian in the beachhead also gained some 3,000 yards in a new thrust which drove to within 1,700 yards of Oostburg, 10 miles west of the inlet where the amphibious landing took place and more than halfway across the breadth of the pocket.

Meanwhile the weather was aiding the R.A.F.'s campaign to flood the Germans out of Walcheren Island across from the Schelde pocket. According to the latest reconnaissance, gales of the last few days have sent flood waters roaring through the bomb-smashed breaches in the main dike around Walcheren until the towns of Vlissingen (Flushing), Middleburg and Veere and the dike itself are the only ground above water.

The link-up of elements from the Leopold Canal with those from the Schelde beachhead was between British formations and a Quebec regiment which thrust west from the beachhead zone. Ontario troops are leading the attack towards Brekens.

Major Armstrong Named

At a forward headquarters for the drive north of Antwerp, Maj. J. G. Armstrong of Peterborough, Ont., said: "Our troops got off to a good start. An Ontario outfit overran two German positions in the first hour and now is working through a dense wood. There are a lot of mines and bobby traps and it will be slow going for a while."

Capt. B. G. Shallon of Kirkland Lake, Ont., another officer at this headquarters, said: "Our tanks have moved up several miles and they are shelling woods in their areas as infantry go into them."

The shattering crash of Typhoons' rockets was heard up the road and waves of fighter-bombers and more Typhoons zoomed low over the front to plaster the enemy. The weather is muggy but the air force is flying anyway.

Ontario infantry and tanks are leading this attack. Several German battlegroups are opposing the Canadians and they have some self-propelled guns.

Denver, Oct. 20 (AP)

NINE blind persons have solved a production dilemma for a Denver contractor manufacturing rifle cleaning thongs for the army. Knots which had to be tied in the thongs were slowing up work; 833 an hour was the best output. Blind employees stepped up the output as much as 175 per cent, one of them tying 4,000 knots in 7½ hours.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 20 — (CP). — In erratic trading, rye futures prices yesterday regained early losses and closed unchanged to ¼ cent a bushel higher on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. The market moved upward when buying was reported for local and American accounts.

Only light export trade was reported. Maltsters took 200,000 bushels of barley, but no wheat sales were confirmed. In the domestic market millers purchased 175,000 bushels of wheat for shipment to Eastern Canada.

Building Up

signed to bolster up the Allied powerhouse salient being built up in Holland against Germany's northern defences in that country.

It was launched at 7:30 a.m. from an area about eight miles north of Antwerp.

Canadian troops also made progress in their bitter battle to clear the Germans from their small pocket south of the Schelde estuary, striking to within a mile of Oostburg, and within two miles of Schoondijke, Allied Headquarters reported.

French Advance

At the same time French infantry fighting along the ridges of the Vosges at the southern end of the Allied line outflanked the village of Ventron at the entrance to the 15-mile-long Bussang Pass which opens out on the Rhine valley only seven miles from Mulhouse.

American troops of the 7th Army on the latter front also captured Bruyeres, 13 miles east of Epinal, in an additional stab at two more passes leading through the Vosges to the Rhine flatlands around Colmar and Strasbourg.

Today's communique said the Germans recaptured several pill-box positions in the Haaren area northwest of Aachen but later were driven out.

Gains Inside Aachen

"Our units made gains in the fighting inside Aachen," said the communique. The 1st Army's artillery broke up a fairly strong tank and infantry counter-attack north of Haaren, northeast of encircled Aachen, before it could reach the American lines.

Lt.-Gen. Dempsey's British 2nd Army, attempting to advance southeast of Venray toward Amerika and the border town of Venlo, on the main railway from Eindhoven to the Ruhr; met a stonewall of German resistance, sticky ground which bogged down tanks and increased artillery fire. Nevertheless some advances were made and prisoners were taken.

American troops drove the Germans out of Bruyeres, famous for its pipes, in house-to-house fighting which forced the Germans out of positions 16 miles from Bonhomme and Schlucht passes through the Vosges.

French forces took more than 250 prisoners in fighting along ridges on either side of Ventron with tank support in the valleys 20 miles north of Belfort and 14 miles southeast of Remiremont.

Six German counter-attacks were beaten back by the French yesterday just to the south in the area northeast of Le Thillot. The Germans threw in six counter-attacks in the same area the day before also.

The Germans sent a score of planes over 3rd Army lines in the Metz-Nancy sector in large-scale reconnaissance last night.

Allied planes showered bombs on a woods east of Luneville where the enemy was reported concentrating tanks. Hard fighting continued in Maizieres Les Metz, on the Moselle five miles north of Metz.

Berlin speculated that Gen. Eisenhower might not wait for the opening of the Antwerp supply port to begin a heavy new drive on the Reich from his northern wing.

Some German radio commentators for days have been asserting the Allied command could not begin an attempt to break through into the heart of Germany until clearing of the Schelde sector opened up Antwerp to funnel in supplies. But last night they began reversing their analyses.

One even saw the possibility of another seaborne landing in the Rotterdam area of Holland north of the Schelde estuary.

Huns Evacuate Hungarian City

LONDON, Oct. 20 —(AP)— The Berlin radio announced today that German troops have evacuated Debrecen in the great battle on the approaches to Budapest in Hungary.

The German military commentator, Col. Ernst Von Hammer, said: "Debrecen was evacuated after violent house-to-house battle. The enormous scale of this battle is indicated by the high number of 418 Russian tanks destroyed within 12 days."

Debrecen, a rail centre of about 122,000 population, is located 116 miles east of Budapest.

Berlin also said the Russians had breached the German front in East Prussia in the Rominte river sector south of the border town Eydtkau which the Germans previously announced they had evacuated.

50 Aircraftsmen Go Into Army

TORONTO, Oct. 20 — (CP). — Fifty aircraftmen will be taken over by the army at Manning Depot here today in the first transfer of an estimated 4,300 R.C.A.F. personnel throughout Canada. The former airmen will begin their army training at Newmarket basic training centre Monday.

Army officials said R.C.A.F. personnel affected by the transfer might enlist in a military district other than the one in which they received their discharge. A Vancouver airmen stationed in Toronto has the option of receiving his discharge and clothing allowance, have his fare paid to Vancouver and there enlist in the army or wait for his army call.

Vice-Admiral Dies In Torpedo Plane

LONDON, Oct. 20 — (CP). — Vice-Admiral Nashahara Arima of the Japanese navy was killed Oct. 15 when his torpedo plane "attacked and hit a big U.S. aircraft carrier" off the Philippines, Berlin radio said today, reporting a Tokyo dispatch.

Just why an admiral was riding a torpedo plane, one of the most hazardous of naval weapons, was not disclosed.

Before he crashed, he was said to have torpedoed the carrier, but no such damage has been reported by Allied naval authorities.

Former Peterboro Man Killed In Belgium

Mrs. Allan Robinson, 210 Dublin street, has received word that her brother, Pte. Morton Solmes, formerly of Peterborough, was killed while fighting with the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry at Schoonsel, Antwerp, in Belgium.

Born and educated in Peterborough, Pte. Solmes has been overseas four years. His wife and children live in Regina and his mother in Winnipeg, where he lived after leaving Peterborough.

Fire Destroys Store Area In Burnt River

LINDSAY, Oct. 20.—(ENS).—The entire business section of the village of Burnt River, 25 miles north of Lindsay, was entirely destroyed by fire Thursday afternoon. The fire, of unknown origin, broke out in a grocery store owned by Ralph Sheehy and fanned by a strong wind swept the block before being brought under control by the Fenelon Falls fire brigade.

It is the third fire of this nature in that district in as many years. Three years ago the village of Kinmount was entirely razed by flames and two years ago the business section of Kinmount was also destroyed. The Sheehy store and service station became an inferno almost immediately after the fire started and Mrs. Sheehy and four children only managed to escape by the stairs before the building was enveloped. The flames spread to a vacant house owned by the Thomas Suddaby estate and from there to a frame dwelling owned by Stanley Dancey, station agent of the C.N.R. A large brick general store and dwelling owned by John Handly caught fire but all contents were removed by a host of volunteer workers. All buildings were gutted and only two small houses are left standing in the village site.

The C.N.R. freight sheds were turned into temporary quarters to take care of those burned out by the fire. Damage will probably amount to over $10,000.

Transport Hits Truck

COBOURG, Oct. 20 — (ENS) — Sideswiping a truck which was parked on King street, a Marsh Transport, driven by S. Rustan, swung sharply to the left and turned on to the collegiate front lawn, grazing a tree. Tins of paint in the transport were smashed by the impact with the tree and plastered the trunk with white paint. The right side of the trailer was torn open. The parked truck, which is owned by Harold Richardson, was damaged also. Constable E. Houghton investigated.

Scouts Collect Paper

COBOURG, Oct. 20 — (ENS) — Cobourg Boy Scouts will collect waste paper and rags, Saturday. The scouts have secured nine trucks from local owners to help them make the collections and the town has been laid out in sections. Skinner's coal yard will be the storage centre. All kinds of paper are wanted, particularly old newspapers and magazines, which should be securely tied in flat bundles, and placed on the curbs in front of the houses. Collections will start at nine in the morning.

Japs Evacuate Falam In Burma

KANDY, Ceylon, Oct. 20 — (CP). — British pressure exerted southward from captured Tiddim in northwestern Burma has forced the Japanese to evacuate the town of Falam, it was announced today.

The withdrawal was described as important in that it weakened Japanese political influence over some 40,000 natives of the Chin Hills. The town, 30 miles south of Tiddim, geographically is the natural seat of administration for the central Chin Hills.

The hillsmen have been operating in advance units of the British 14th Army throughout the present campaign beginning in India at Imphal. More than 1,000 Japanese casualties have been inflicted by them.

Volunteers To Help Repair Skating Rink

COBOURG, Oct. 20 — (ENS) — Donations are coming in well to finance the cost of putting the skating rink into shape. The rink has been purchased by the town for $500 in lieu of a sale for tax arrears. For some time it appeared that the young people would be without skating this coming winter because of the fact that the rink was considered unsafe and the town was reluctant to put any repairs on it so long as it remained private property. Later the town was able to negotiate with the rink owners with the result that a sale was made.

Ed. Campbell is lining up an army of volunteer workers from the various industries who will help repair the rink, after their regular working hours. It is planned to strengthen the rink supports, remove the galleries and replace them with seats arranged in tiers on each side of the ice surface on the ground floor.

Tito Takes Dubrovnik

LONDON, Oct. 20 — (CP). — Yugoslav Partisan forces have captured the important Dalmatian port of Dubrovnik, Marshal Tito announced today in a communique broadcast by the free Yugoslav radio.

The bulletin also announced that Partisan artillery was shelling German positions in Zagreb, capital of Croatia, and said the power station in the city had been knocked out.

Victory Loan Opening

COBOURG, Oct. 20 — (ENS) — The Seventh Victory Loan drive will start off with official ceremonies Saturday afternoon at the town hall. A choral group from the Ontario Girls' Training School here, under the direction of Mrs. McKee Bingham, will sing patriotic numbers. After the pledge flag has been dedicated by Mayor Jack Burnet it will be raised on the town hall pole while the girls' training school choir sings, "The Soldiers' Prayer." Maurice Daignault will be master of ceremonies.

$2,136 Collected

COBOURG, Oct. 20 — (ENS) — The Salvation Army home front appeal has raised close to the objective of $2,250 with rural returns expected to bring the total up to the required amount. The amount at last compilation was $2,136. The tag day resulted in $192 being raised for the drive.

American Troops Make Three Landings In Philippine Islands

By DEAN SCHEDLER
Associated Press War Correspondent

WITH MACARTHUR AT LEYTE, Philippines, Oct. 20—(AP).—Under cover of devastating fire from Allied warships, American troops knifed ashore on Leyte Island today, striking simultaneously at three points along the eastern beaches.

One assault force struck the beach from San Ricardo, approximately three miles south of the main city of Tacloban, to Palo. Another strong force struck along the coastlines between San Jose and Dulag, and a combat team landed at Panson on the southern tip of Leyte.

The beach fronts are 3½ miles in width and approximately 11 miles apart.

340 Miles From Manila.

This drive into the heart of the Southern Philippines establishes American forces only 275 statute miles from Davao and 340 air miles southeast of Manila.

At the entrance to Leyte Gulf an American combat team landed three days ago on the northern tip of Dinagat Island and the southern portion of Homohon to take over enemy installations and establish command of the entrance to the gulf for the main assault forces.

The big landings were made along the level coastal Leyte valley unopposed by Japan's navy. American battleships and Australian cruisers laid a thunderous fire along the beaches.

At H-hour an enemy plane appeared. Strong ship anti-aircraft fire brought it down.

As the heavy naval fire raised a cloud of cordite and huge billowing columns of smoke, carrier-based planes from the U.S. 3rd and 7th fleets bombed and strafed the beach. Overhead pursuit planes patrolled the sky. It was only minutes before the few salvoes of 16-inch shells increased into a continuous barrage which echoed and re-echoed across San Pedro bay.

Tons and tons of explosives ripped into the coastal area along the beach, augmented by close inshore fire from rocket-firing craft.

Great battleships worked slowly along the shore, splitting the air with belching flame as their guns cracked round after round over the heads of crouching infantrymen.

This invasion armada of hundreds of ships goes busily about the business of landing troops and equipment on the smoke-filled shore under protection of surface and air power—so far unmolested.

Revolution By Taxation

An extremely interesting aspect of our present system of taxation was presented to a recent meeting of the Insurance Institute of Montreal by Mr. G. S. Thorvaldson of Winnipeg who is president of the Income Tax Payers' Association. It is Mr. Thorvaldson's opinion that Canada is being rapidly but quietly changed from a free enterprise nation to a socialist or state-ownership nation, and that this revolution is being brought about by our discriminatory system of taxation. It is not Mr. Thorvaldson's belief that this is the intention of the system, but it certainly is its effect.

• • •

Nobody needs to be told that taxation in Canada is heavy at present; we have all accepted heavy taxes as a necessary part of the nation's war effort. But it is doubtful if the average citizen knows how extensive or how high our taxes really are, or how they affect business. As matters stand, the Excess Profits Tax leaves any business which is affected by it a portion, often very small, of the profits which it makes in a year, and this sum enables the business to keep afloat, but certainly not to expand, or to make provisions against future ill-luck. It may be that many citizens who do not own businesses are unconcerned about the misfortunes of those who do, but they would be short-sighted to disregard them altogether; our present economy is built on business, and if business is strangled, that economy must go. Business can stand severe regimentation during the war, because all businesses are doing well, but they will not be able to stand it in times of peace. One prominent Canadian newspaper recently recommended the retention of the Excess Profits Tax after the war is over; that would effectively kill Canadian business in ten years.

• • •

What is the other way in which the present system of taxation is bringing about a revolution in our enonomy? It is this: certain forms of business, notably co-operative societies, mutual insurance companies, and such government businesses as hydro-electric plants, distributing systems, electric appliance sales, railroads, banks, real estate loan agencies and construction companies are free of federal income tax. These exemptions deprive Canada of more than $100,000,000 in tax money every year. And who bears the tax burden for these businesses? Their competitors—the private businesses.

• • •

A few figures will make this clear: during the year which ended on July 31, 1943, the Prairie Wheat Pool Elevator Systems earned $4,268,717; if that company had been charged income and excess profits tax it would have been left $748,085 out of this sum. In 1940 the joint stock insurance companies made profits of $5,422,400 and paid $2,272,168 in tax: but the mutual insurance companies made profits of $1,250,008 and did not pay a cent in tax. Obviously this is discrimination of the most unfair kind. What further steps could be taken to smooth the way of the state enterprises and the co-operatives? Is it any wonder that during the first six months of this year 171 retail stores in Saskatchewan turned themselves into co-operatives, free of tax? If Canadian business is to continue on a partially exempt and partially taxable basis after the war, the rush to get on the tax-free side will be even greater in the next two years.

The Witch Of Scrapfaggot Green

An entertaining story has been appearing in the newspapers about trouble in the English village of Scrapfaggot Green; the tale goes that an army bulldozer shifted a boulder there under which a witch was buried two centuries ago, and at once strange things began to happen which alarmed the villagers; heavy stones were shifted, people were chased by unseen pursuers, and there were alarming noises at night; now the boulder has been replaced, and all is peace. The story has a factitious air about it, but we cannot believe that Canadian Press would knowingly invent such a tale.

Stories of the kind are not uncommon. There is one which is very well known in North Wales. In 1880 the city of Liverpool purchased Lake Vyrnwy from the Earl of Powis, in order that the water might be piped to supply the city. The laying of the conduit involved moving a large rock, and the Welsh workmen employed on the job refused to touch it; they explained that a particularly malicious spirit called Black Robin had been charmed into the rock many centuries ago, and if it were moved he might be released. Therefore a crew of English workmen were brought in for this special job, and they blasted the rock with dynamite; it split down the centre and inside was found a huge toad, which had apparently been imprisoned there for centuries. The local opinion, of course, was that the toad was the spirit of Black Robin.

We express no opinion about such stories. It seems curious, however, that they are so common, and that they have been believed for hundreds of years. But there are no limits to human credulity, as everyone knows who watches the world about him with an enquiring mind.

George Washington And Gandhi

A number of clergymen, some of them prominent, in the city of New York, are making preparations to celebrate the 75th birthday of Mahatma Gandhi, whom they admire greatly. Now we can understand their admiration of Gandhi who, with all his faults, is a remarkable man, but we think that admiration is carried to extreme lengths when one of their number expresses himself thus:

"Mahatma Gandhi is the embodiment of India's freedom. In the years to come when India shall have gained her freedom—for that freedom is inevitable—Gandhi will stand in relation to India as Washington stands to this nation—the father of his country. In celebrating Mahatma Gandhi's birthday, we celebrate nothing less than the birthday of a nation. I suggest that this day be a day when gratitude to God may be expressed for our own freedom and prayer be offered that India may soon share that freedom".

There is a breath-taking disregard for facts and for diplomacy about this opinion which compells attention. Gandhi is very far from being a symbol of India; he is anathema to millions of Indians. He has chosen to take a stubborn attitude about India's freedom and in that way has jeopardized that freedom. His ideals are high and his actions have been sincere, but there have been times when his conduct has been that of a foolish crank, who would lose everything rather than make a concession.

But because he has defied the British, these New York clerymen compare him with George Washington, who did the same thing. The comparison doubtless amuses Gandhi, and must set Washington swearing in the Elysian Fields. No two men could have less in common.

When clergymen, whose chief concern is with things which are timeless, choose to concern themselves with things which are timely, they usually get themselves into a mess. May we suggest that praying publicly to God that Gandhi may have his way implies a criticism of Great Britain which ill becomes an ally? It also implies that God needs advice about India from a party of gentlemen who have clearly not troubled to acquaint themselves with all the facts about the Indian situation. If Heaven has a Dead Letter Office for ill-considered and foolish prayers (which it undoubtedly has) the petitions of the Gandhi enthusiasts will find their place there.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The trouble with setting out to do nothing is that you can never finish it.

One of the big jobs at the Post Office at present, is sorting Christmas mail for soldiers and separating it from that for civilians. Parting the Mail from the V-Mail, in other words.

A gardener has crossed a tomato and a potato, and calls the result a pomato. But we should like to have watched the persuasion and patience which resulted in the thimbleberry.

A western couple are about to remarry after having been divorced for 40 years. They will refer to their period of separation, in modern jargon, as 'the truce between the two wars'.

When Marshal Stalin visited the British Embassy in Moscow the other day there was consternation because there was no one on hand to take his cap and coat. This is amusing, considering that the Soviet Union began its career with a fine contempt for 'lackeys', and proclaimed a great new state where all men would be brothers, if not worse, and would sleep in their underwear to show their depth of egalitarian feeling.

The Church And Planning

By the DEAN OF ST. PAUL'S in the LONDON SUNDAY TIMES

UNDER the title, "The Church and the Planning of Britain," a pamphlet of thirty-one pages has been published which contains matter deserving the attention of every citizen. It is the Report of the Social and Industrial Commission of the Church of England whose chairman is Sir Montague Barlow. The conclusions of the Commission cannot be described as the official opinions of the Church, since they have not yet been submitted to the Church Assembly, and they are presented to the world now in order that preliminary study may prepare the way for the Assembly's discussion. Whatever may be the decision of the Assembly, the Commission has rendered valuable service to the country by undertaking a coherent survey of the problem of planning inspired by Christian principles.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE Commission points out that what is done within the next few years in the reconstruction of our country will have profound results in the character and direction of the national life for centuries. This is obvious to every intelligent person, but perhaps the conviction, which the Commission also assumes as shared by most thinking people, that physical planning by itself is not enough, is not so universally recognized. The impression that, if the manifest evils of the environment are removed, the people will become good and happy is still widespread. The guiding thought of the Report is the need for establishing a real community, and its most interesting remarks are concerned with the means of doing so. It is a paradoxical feature of our present civilization that, while the national life has become more and more socialized, the life of the private citizens has become more and more individualized. He has lost the sense of existence in a community of which he formed an integral part.

THE Commission is surely right in regarding this as a sinister aspect of the national "set up." Those of us who are no longer young can record in our own memories the process by which neighbourhoods, formerly comprising families of the most varied social and economic status, have been changed into districts inhabited by families of the same type—from the differentiated coherence of a community to the undifferentiated incoherence of a satellite dormitory is the recent history of too many places. This geographical separation of economic classes is a cause not only of the loss of human values, but of grave danger to the stability of the State.

The Report is, therefore, on sound lines when it concentrates upon the life of the family and the district. It touches, too, upon a matter of great moment when it criticizes some of the well-mean attempts to solve the problem of overcrowding. Housing estates which have no provision for community life and are at a distance from the place of employment do not meet the real needs of human beings. An epigram in a footnote, "straphanging is no remedy for slum congestion" should be graven in the heart of every planner. But there are obviously factors arising from the nature of modern industry which militate against the growth of that "natural" life of family and local community which the Commission desires to promote.

The population tends to become "mobile," to use a word unpleasantly familiar to us; large business concerns, banks and multiple shops, move their employees about, and the fluctuations of trade require that labour should have a certain "fluidity." A population which is continually "on the move" cannot develop the attachments and loyalties which enrich the life of the family and the individual.

ONE of the consequences of the conditions of modern life in a highly industrialized country is that more and more individuals become "rootless," without local attachments and without normal family life, and this in turn affects their mental and spiritual outlook. They live "on the surface" and develop the "mass mind," instead of being persons in a community. The Report is right when it argues that much of the difficulty of preaching the Word of God to this generation arises from this source; in order to face the alternate issues a man must be a person. The Gospel is a message to persons; the mass-mind is susceptible only to propaganda.

AMONG the practical details which have a bearing on this large question is the nature of the houses in which families have to live. It needs not to be said that the Commission is whole-heartedly in favour of the sweeping away of slums which still disgrace our cities, but it has no love for the large blocks of flats which figure in many town plans, and still less love for labour hostels or camps, which it regards as definitely pernicious. The necessities of the case probably demand that, in some areas, the flat system should be adopted, but the Commission would forbid any block of flats to have more than three storeys. On this controversial issue of houses versus flats we must not enter, except to remark that the common man, including the present writer, would far prefer to have a house where he could sometimes forget his neighbours. One of the wisest dicta in this document, which is a plan for a true community, is that to live a full human life a man must be able at times to be alone.

We have spoken so far of the "planning" side of the Report and no doubt it is on this that discussion will rightly centre, but we should get the whole in a wrong perspective if we did not emphasize the religious principle which gives it coherence and drive and its insistence on the duty of individual Christians.

THE religious principle is that of the Incarnation, from which it follows that "good living conditions are those which open the way for needs, and each with a special contribution by every member of society each with his special reason of age or function, to live as children of God in the community, in the family, the school and club, the street and neighbourhood, in the shop, field and factory, the area of local government and wider areas." The primary responsibility of the individual Christian, the Report insists, is in the local community, and the influence of congregations and Christian groups which are in touch with the conditions might work with transforming power in the area. The narrow conception of "Church-work" as concerned only with definitely ecclesiastical activities must give place to the idea that all service to the community in the spirit of Christ is work of and for the Church.

We may be grateful to the authors of this Report that they have put before us at least most of the questions which need to be asked by all Englishmen and have given answers to many of them which are, in the best sense, "realistic," because they have in view both the situation as it is and the spiritual nature of man.

"CRADLE TO THE GRAVE"

Madness In Manhattan

(By BRUCE HUTCHISON)

NEW YORK: This is history's greatest boom town—the Klondike, the Barbary Coast, Paris, ancient Rome and Babylon combined in such a spetcacle of lavishness as humanity has never seen before. Into New York now flows the swollen wartime income of the whole nation and as many of its inhabitants as can get here. The town has seen booms before but nothing like this.

Nothing like it in volume, to begin with. No stranger can be sure of finding a room in a hotel or a flop house. You stand in line to get a meal or a drink and you must reserve theatre tickets days or even weeks ahead. As the theatres empty around 11 o'clock, Times Square is solidly packed with people. You cannot walk, you cannot turn aside from the current, you just ooze along and the human tide is pushed off the pavements and swells acrossthe side streets, so that all traffic is frozen for minutes at a time.

EVERYBODY has money and appears eager to throw it away for as little return as possible. You take out to dinner a lady who likes lobsters, as this reporter had the misfortune to do last night, and the waiter selects two small wriggling lobsters from the tank and says they will cost $7.50 (American funds). He thinks it is a bargain. In some dingy night spot, where the walls are papered with the lipstick impressions of a thousand famous female mouths, a 15-cent bottle of beer is worth 60 cents, and a plain corned beef sandwich a dollar and a quarter. You pay for the atmosphere, and apparently the public hasn't yet realized that New York after dark is the largest gyp in history.

This is the climate in which celebrity flourishes like a rank weed. The night spots are aswarm with male faces and female figures known to the readers of movie magazines. Stars of stage and screen are a dime a dozen, the only cheap product on the market. People hardly notice them any more, glance once at the famous visitor, and go on with their drinks.

But when this reporter, presented with a particularly fine trout landing net by a friend, for use in British Columbia waters, wandered into Reuben's with it over his shoulder the other night, there was some polite comment, but no objection. The head waiter made it clear that he understood I was some distinguished world figure with an eccentric habit of fly fishing on Fifth Avenue. No one asked for my autograph.

And up on Madison Avenue yesterday, in a tiny bookstore, the proprietor shook hands with an elderly gentleman, bid him bon voyage, and informed me that the traveller was Sir Arthur Salter, a noted British Communist (sic). To the proprietor the great British economist and shipping expert was just another customer.

Famous faces are always disappointing when you meet them. An hour before Mr. Calhern, for instance, was a dashing, pink-faced Polish D'Artagnan in the current hit, "Jacobowsky and the Colonel", but in a night club afterwards he appears old and tired. Female movie stars, once off the celluloid, look about like your wife. But the streets and resorts are packed by millions of beautiful women like those on magazine covers, painted with a vividness which, commonplace here, would start a riot on any Canadian main street.

MORE than before the war, manners are relaxed. No one wears evening clothes. In the dark loneliness of these nameless crowds nobody drops his voice to talk private business, love is made publicly in every bar and osculation is no longer a private sacrament. Also, if this is any comfort to the Canadian radio audience, Mr. Alexander I. Gorogokuptz, a skinny young man with good aim, heroic instincts, and no discretion, last night landed three bad eggs on the eye, forehead and chest of Frank (The Voice) Sinatra while he was singing "I Don't Know Why I Love You Like I Do"; but the hero of the occasion was mobbed and almost destroyed by 500 female listeners, who had managed not to swoon.

All this current madness in Manhattan is different from any previous boom because no one believes in it. The boom of 1929 was believable. Mr. Hoover had promised it would be permanent. But the American people know that this one won't last and the universal emotion here today is fear of the future. In their blind way, and having a good time while they can, the American people are trying to find out where their nation is going, how they will work and eat in normal times, and, despite the political promises and economists' figures, no one can tell them.

Overhead, But Not Understood

(LONDON TIMES)

FEW things are more tantalizing than snatches of overheard conversation. The unwitting eavesdropper who, on picking up the telephone receiver, hears, instead of the operator's voice, a conversation in full spate should, of course, promptly hang up and try again but the temptation is strong to wait for a coherent pattern to emerge from the cross-talk. Those unable to resist it can at least reflect that they are applying themselves to the proper study of mankind and learning a considerable amount in the process.

In streets, tubes, and buses, it is usually only beginnings or ends of sentences, stray words which, by some trick of acoustics, impinge on an ear not deliberately tuned to receive them and leave it in a state of intrigued interest and puzzlement. The railway carriage allows for greater continunity, and Lord Ponsonby has illustrated the richness and variety of the clues to character which may be picked up from a few words spoken at the window before the train has started or from the corner seat once it is on its way.

Some overheard remarks throw little light on peronal idiosyncrasy, but have a content of intrinsic interest, and among them President Roosevelt's reported utterance at Quebec must rank high. When the President met Mr. Churchill the two, according to reports, entered into an animated conversation in the course of which the President was heard to remark, "If you had a lot of money, I should bet on it."

The form may be a little confusing, but the meaning is clear enough—clear enough, that is to say, except for the all-important matter of what exactly it was the Prime Minister should bet on. Since Lord Halifax is supposed to have had a wager on the date the war in Europe will end, it is tempting to suppose that it referred to the duration of the struggle with Germany, but the alternatives are as many and various that the prudent will refrain from speculating upon them.

The trouble is that every one will add his own rider to the President's words, and such is the power of self-deception and so vigorously do stories grow in the telling that soon those with a fancy for some particular day, based on a reading of the pyramids, the movements of the plants, a dream, or a private and illogical conviction, will begin to believe they have Mr. Roosevelt's authority for their choice.

Thus it is that oracles which we ourselves work lure us to our own destruction, and many of those tips divulged with a vast parade of secrecy and as coming straight from the horse's mouth turn out to be little more than ingenious interpretations of an enigmatic and unrevealing neigh. The itch to appear "in the know" has undoubtedly resulted in many an innocuous remarks coming from a personage with red tabs or gold leaves being given a meaning and importance of which it was wholly innocent and what is overheard is even more subject to ministerpretation than that which is simply and straightforwardly stated. Perhaps in years to come the precise nature of the bet the President advised the Prime Minister to make will be revealed; in the meantime it would be well to remember that what we overhear the soldier, or the President, saying is not evidence.

PETITIONS

Signing petitions means little these days, The Charlottetown Guardian observes. The Government once undertook to analyse a monster one presented to them, and discovered (a) many of the names were in the same handwriting, (b) some of the subscribers repudiated their signatures, (c) others declared they signed merely to oblige the canvasser but otherwise were uninterested.

A Bible Message

Know ye not, that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness? But God be thanked, that ye were the servant of sin, but ye have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine which was delivered you. Being then made free from sin, ye became the servants of righteousness....

For when ye were the servants of sin, ye were free from righteousness. What fruit had ye then in those things whereof ye are now ashamed? for the end of those things is death. But now being made free from sin, and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life. (Rom. 6: 16-18, 20-22.)

He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches; He that overcometh shall not be hurt of the second death. (Rev. 2: 11.)

◆ ◆ ◆

Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years. (Rev. 20: 6.)

Unconsidered Trifles

As a "help your neighbour" driver bound for Finchley stopped to give a lift to two young women in Central London, two older women bustled up, appealing to be taken instead. "We simply must get to Finchley quickly," they pleaded.

The younger women stood back; the others took their places.

As the driver was passing Paddington Station one of his passengers called, "You can put us down here."

"But you wanted Finchley," reminded the driver.

"Oh, no, we have to get off here," they replied.

"You're going to Finchley," the driver said grimly. And they went to Finchley.

Art Treasures At Front

How he came by chance on an old Italian house, within 3,000 yards of the German lines, which was doing duty as a storing place for some of the greatest works of Italian art, was told in a recent dispatch by the BBC's correspondent with the 8th Army, Vaughan Thomas.

The paintings, it appeared, had been taken from the famous galleries of Florence and hidden in this house under the sole care of an old man. Thomas described how in one corner, where two refugees were lying on straw mattresses, he saw one of the most famous pictures in the world, Botticelli's Primavera, propped against the wall. Among other works, he saw some of the finest of Giotto, Fra Angelico, and Cimabue.

The old man told Thomas that as the battle drew nearer he had been almost overwhelmed by his responsibility. He had spent his whole time going between this particular house and others in an effort to keep guard over these treasures. The Allied authorities immediately took steps to get the pictures removed to safety.—BBC London Letter.

Peanuts In Algoma

There is no telling what Algoma will be producing next.

A few years ago Mike Oreskovich of Korah grew some tobacco from seed sent him by his father who lives in Croatia.

Now Leonard Stevens has been growing peanuts in his garden on St. Joe Island, reports the Sault Ste. Marie Star. His crop this year was only half a bushel but he counts on having a much larger one next year.

So there you are. Goobers from Algoma! That's just a sample of how agricultural production in this district may yet be expanded. Once upon a time it was considered doubtful that potatoes could be a profitable Algoma crop. Indeed the late J. D. Dobie used to tell of the first potatoes grown in the Bruce Mines-Thessalon area, though perhaps the first to be grown was a crop gathered at Michipicoten about 175 years ago by Alexander Henry, the district's first Anglo-Saxon trader. Henry's potatoes, by the way, were mostly destroyed by frost during the following winter.

Now potatoes are a very important Algoma crop and some spectacular yields have been reported.—Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

Knowledge Of Christian Science Declared Aid To Men In Services

"Many a young soldier and many a young sailor in our armed forces to-day is thanking God for an understanding of Christian Science," so declared Herschel P. Nunns, C.S.B., of Portland, Orgeon, at the Collegiate Auditorium on Thursday night. Mr. Nunn's address was the annual lecture sponsored by the First Church of Christ Scientist of Peterborough, and he was introduced by Miss Lillian Elliott. His subject was, "Christian Science: the Science by Which We Come to Know Our True Selves."

"Unless these young men were conscious of a very present God, an available God, a good God, an all-knowing God, an all-loving God, they would not find the healing and protection which they find in turning to Him in their hour of great need. But that is the God they have learned to know in their study of Christian Science, a God that is "of purer eyes than to behold evil," a God that is the Principle and substance of their being, "with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning."

In the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by the discoverer and founder of Christian Science, Mary Baker Eddy, you will find that this word "Principle" is one of the seven synonyms for God which Mrs. Eddy uses in the definition of God. "God is incorporeal, divine, supreme, infinite, mind, spirit, soul, principle, life, truth, love." She asys on this same page that these terms are synonyms and that "they refer to one absolute God. They are also intended to express the nature, essence, and wholeness of Deity." To think of God as principle brings wonderful comfort, because if God the creator of the universe is known as the divine principle of His universe then we can think of God as conscious only on that which is in entire accord with His divine nature. Whatever is not in accord with God, good, is not the creation of God. This fact removes forever the possibility of evil of any name or nature having existence in His universe.

Man's True Self

Salvation results from the recognition and understanding of man's at-one-ment or oneness with God, and that is the only salvation there really is or could be. Man—the real man, the perfect man, the spiritual divine idea—does not need to be saved. Salvation, then, is a present recognition of God and of man's true selfhood. This selfhood is the man of God's creating, the divine idea, the spiritual image and likeness of mind, soul, spirit. This is the man that you really are now and always have been. In salvation, you lay off the old sense of man and put on the new. This is a new sense of being appearing. The old being of material sense has no consciousness of the new being of spiritual sense. As St. John says in his Gopel, "And the light shineth in darkness; and the darkness comprehended it not."

Christian Science teaches that the human must be overcome by the divine in every detail of human existence. Unlovely traits of character disappear in this overcoming. Because of this, unlovely conditions of the body are healed; the light and beauty of true being once seen and understood reveals the unreality of mortal mind's false concept of selfhood apart from God. The dawn of day comes quickly, and in the new day in human experience, with the coming of the Christ, one who has hugged the tattered robe of material sense about him for years, may find it dropping away and realize that he is clad anew in righteousness.

Healing Prayer of Petition

Prayer is truly the Christian Scientists's "vital breath." From the new light on prayer which comes to him from his study of this science he can well understand what Paul meant in his letter to the Thessalonians when he said: "Rejoice evermore. Pray without ceasing. In every thing give thanks." One prays without ceasing when his thought is based on the realization that there is but one mind and that he himself is the reflection of this one and only mind. God as mind is the one infinite intelligence constituting and governing the universe of ideas. Divine Mind is the source and substance of all that really it. The affirmation and realization of these facts of being is prayer itself. Such realization identifies one with the divine mind as its idea. This realization enables one to find and express his true selfhood as the expression or manifestation of divine mind. One rejoices evermore and in everything gives thanks in this ceaseless prayer of the consciousness of real being.

An individual afflicted with some malady is not expressing his true selfhood because that selfhood, being the image and likeness of God, is the expression of wholeness, completeness, and harmony. The full acknowledgment of spiritual perfection will bring instantaneous relief from discordant conditions of belief. A practitioner received a call from a man whom she was treating in Christian Science. He said to her over the telephone, "If only my heart would stop pounding, it would be such a relief." Instantly to the practitioner's thought came a phrase from our textbook, "the unlabored motion of the divine energy." The entire sentence reads "Christian Science silences human will, quiets fear with truth and love, and illustrates the unlabored motion of the divine energy in healing the sick." A few minutes later the man whom she was helping called back and said: "Right after talking with you I went to my chair and sat down. I suddenly realized that all that heart pounding had ceased and I am comfortable, and very grateful." That occurred several years ago and there has never been a recurrence of that heart difficulty.

Solomon asked, "Give therefore thy servant an understanding heart." Our beloved leader says in her message to the mother church for 1902 "All Christian faith, hope, and prayer, all devout desire, virtually petition, make me the image and likeness of divine love."

The prayer of illumined understanding of Truth may petition as did Jesus, "Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil." Such prayer approaches the divine presence, knowing only good and uncovering its supposed opposite, evil, sin. From the vantage point of God's ever-presence, known and realized it is seen that error is not an entity but the inverted opposite of good for good alone is real.

The important points to remember in considering the relation between prayer and the recognition of true selfhood are these: First, that since there is but one mind, prayer should be thought of as an activity of that one mind. Second, that as man is the expression or reflection of this mind, there is no separation between man and God. In other words, man is the direct expression of divine mind. Paul says, "For I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord." Third, to have that mind which was also in Christ Jesus, we must pray as He did, "I and My Father are one." Fourth, that through the spiritualization of thought and conduct, we may attain this recognition of true selfhood here and now.

Jesus expressed this divine intimacy when He prayed: "Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on Me through their word; that they all may be one; as Thou, Father, are in Me, and I in Thee, that they also may be one in Us; that the world may believe that Thou hast sent Me. And the glory which Thou gavest Me I have given them; that they may be one, even as we are one: I in them, and Thou in Me, that they may be made perfect in one."

Christianly scientific demonstration is not concerned primarily with so-called material things or conditions, but rather it is primarily proof of divine facts. Better conditions, abundance, harmony appear as the result of the application of one's knowledge of divine Principle and its laws.

Growth In Character

Last fall, The Christian Science Monitor published a notable series of articles entitled, "The World We Want," of which the twenty-ninth in the series was written by Basil Matthews, well-known teacher, writer, and lecturer. He tells of walking in the gardens of New College at Oxford with that university's Professor of International Relations, Sir Alfred Zimmern. This was at the time of the fiercest period of the months of continuous blitz over Britain. Mr. Matthews asked Sir Alfred this question: "What, in your opinion, is the greatest obstacle between us and the building of enduring world peace?" His reply, Mr. Matthews says, startled him beyond measure. It was in four words: "The small-scale individual." Mr. Matthews gives an example of what was meant by this statement. In 1666, after the Great Fire of London, Sir Christopher Wren, the great architect, laid out magnificent plans for a new city which would have made the heart of London the most beautiful in the world, with spacious avenues and superb vistas. But "small-scale individuals," selfish merchants, petty-minded counselors who sought office by cutting expenditures, a multitude of little people standing for vested interests, tore up his plan and London was built once more as a city of twisted narrow lanes utterly inadequate for the needs of subsequent generations.

What but a scientific Christianity will heal the world of its small-scale thinking with its pettiness, its selfishness, its materiality, its limitation, its greed? These are the qualities of thought that fight one another in wars. Only through individual salvation, through the individual discovery of true selfhood, will the world find surcease from these shackling, blighting qualities of thought which hinder the progress of civilization.

Study of Lesson-Sermon

Through the inspiration of their leader, Christian Scientists have been provided with a much cherished weekly lesson-sermon, made up of references from the King James Version of the Holy Bible and correlative passages from the Christian Science textbook. Thus the purity of Christian Science is preserved and human opinion excluded. These Lessons are provided for them in a publication known as the Christian Science Quarterly. Through the prayerful study of this Lesson during the week and the resulting daily application, Christian Scientists come to their churches on Sunday so well prepared to listen to the reading of it that beautiful spiritual unfoldment of new meanings in their two textbooks often comes to them there. Careful study of the Bible and the Christian Science textbook brings to students throughout the world, day by day and every day, spiritual illumination, healing, growth in character, peace, and assurance. This daily study of the lesson brings spiritual refreshment every morning, increases our mental alertness, and establishes our day in "the secret place of the most High."

Bruin Hopefuls Training At Quebec City

QUEBEC, Oct. 20.— (CP).— A group of eager rookies are going through their paces with Boston Bruins in training camp here and Art Ross, silent manager of the Hub city club, is sparing no efforts to quicken their talents.

Guy Labrie of Quebec, and with Boston Olympics last year, is one of the more promising freshmen and may get the nod for a contract. Frank Mario came in from Cornwall, Ont., a couple of days ago and in that time has shown promise of major league talent. Ross has seen Mario perform in former years when the Bruins had their training camp at Cornwall.

Mario formerly was with the Cornwall Flyers in the Quebec Senior Hockely League. Pete Leswick may also end up with a berth with the Bruins for it is reported that his efforts have caught the eye of Ross.

Rinkside observers still seem to favor Maurice Courteau for the goal tending job but perhaps definite word might be forthcoming after an exhibition game Sunday in which the Bruins will meet a Royal Canadian Navy team from Quebec. Ross is expected to use this encounter for "polishing" and testing the rookie players.

Those who have returned from last year's team are proving satisfactory to Ross who has hard-hitting defencemen in Johnny Crawford and Johnny Shewchuck. Aubrey (Dit) Clapper adds a touch of finesse to the rearguard while Pat Egan can usually be counted on to stir up the rough house business when the game is going too slow.

Bill Cowley, Herb Cain and Buzz Boll have been working on one forward line again and they may be able to take up where they left off last year when injuries forced Cowley to the side lines for almost a month. Norm Calladine, Busher and Art Jackson and Bep Guidolin seem to be on a par with the form displayed last year and are all set for a successful season.

A New Plan

LONDON, Ont., 20 — (CP). — London's board of health yesterday authorized establishment of a community recreation and adult educational centre in one of the city's schools. If the experiment proves successful, other schools may be opened for similar purposes.

Battlers Matched To Finish Brawl

IRISH JACK KENNEDY

"I guess after what happened last Tuesday night and the wildman demonstration staged by Irish Jack Kennedy, the best thing I can do is to throw him in against Dr. Len Hall in the main bout next week and let them fight it out," said Promoter Frank Tunney in announcing that he has booked Kennedy and Hall for his feature attraction for the show at the Brock next Tuesday. It should be a thriller. Both Kennedy and Hall were burned up over the clash this week and they are both anxious to finish their battle.

SPORTS - Day by Day

For Peterborough fans the big event of the week-end will be the football game at Riverside Park at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon which brings together the well-trained Toronto Vikings and the Peterborough juniors in an exhibition battle that should have a lot of color. Since their defeat at the hands of Toronto Westsides in the opening game of the season the Peterborough youngsters have been ironing out the weaknesses that were uncovered in that tussle and have been working on new offensive plays and it will be interesting to watch how much they have benefitted by recent drills. Vikings will give the young Petes a real test. The Queen City team is said to have a strong forward wall and a fast-moving backfield with a repertoire of effective plays on the attack. The game is called for 2 o'clock and there should be a big crowd on the sidelines by kickoff time. Local fans appreciate the act that the local squad has been working under difficulties trying to keep Peterborough on the rugby map and they will probably decide to show that appreciation by turning out to give the homesters financial and moral support.

In the senior O.R.F.U. the biggest game of the season is carded for tomorrow when the surging Balmy Beach club meets the champion Hamilton Wild Cats in Toronto. So far fans in general have been somewhat indifferent to senior football, doubtless because of a widespread belief that the Hamilton team carried much too heavy guns for the rest of the teams. But that surprising Bammie victory in Ottawa when the Trojans were beaten 33 to 0 right on their home stamping ground of Lansdowne Park caused interest in football to perk up amazingly. That score served notice that some opposition for the Wild Cats was in sight and now many enthusiasts are looking to Alex Ponton's Beachers to knock off the champs tomorrow. If they are to do so it is obvious they will have to find some way of doing what no other club has yet succeeded in accomplishing and that is to stop Joe Krol. Mister Football comes close to being the whole Hamilton club so far as punch is concerned and if the Bammies can keep on setting up road blocks in his path they may keep him under control and pull off a win.

Why Not Be Frank?

Blurbs in the Toronto newspapers as the beginning of the professional hockey season draws near give every indication that we are in for another winter of press-agent claims of greatness that does not exist. No sensible fan expects pre-war hockey in the sixth winter of the war period and the hockey interests should be wise enough to realise that fact and not attempt to picture half-baked junior players and worn out oldsters as stars of the first magnitude. If they would be satisfied to say frankly "We are giving you the best hockey that can be provided under war conditions," as professional baseball has been doing across the border there would be no complaints but a lot of folk resent the clumsy attempts to pin star medals on a bunch of pucksters who are far from that rating Bill Cowley hit the nail on the head when he said that Canadiens would have been lucky to have finished fourth in a pre-war season. And now up to bat comes the veteran Mike Rodden of the Kingston Whig-Standard with this home truth: "No matter what the eloquent Thomas Patrick Gorman might tell you in rebuttal I am firmly convinced that the Canadiens of last season were the weakest team to win the Stanley Cup since Toronto St. Pats captured it most mysteriously away back in 1922."

* * * * * *

Incidentally the eminent Mr. Rodden takes up the cudgels on behalf of Bill Ezinicki as follows: "It is to be sincerely hoped that Ezinicki was signed for purposes of playing hockey strictly according to the rules. Most definitely he should not be expected to act as guardian or protector of other Leafs less rebelliously inclined. Such publicity places this ex-Winnipeg boy in an unenviable position and makes the lanes he has to skate very trying, indeed. As referee in seventeen games in which Ezinicki played last season I did not see this star performer commit one serious foul. It is true that he used strenuous tactics at times and drew his share of minor penalties but in almost every case his opponent was just as guilty. Ezinicki was subjected to treatment that no player should be asked to accept lightly and it just so happened that he was resourceful enough not to have to accept such attention without handing out receipts of appreciation. Without question of doubt Ezinicki is one of those high-strung athletes who are quick on the trigger. He does not look for trouble but he most definitely will not run away from it. He does unto the other as the other does unto him and in this respect has the wisdom of a Bill Cook."

Wants Belleville Back

Says Ken Colling in the Belleville Ontario-Intelligencer: "President Lester Shiels, of the Bay of Quinte group in the C.O.S.S.A., was in Toronto the other week attending an Interscholastic convention. Prexy Shiels was surprised to learn that all groups of the C.O.S.S.A. had returned to the Interscholastic gridiron wars in the 12-man game. The Niagara Peninsula, Georgian Bay district, Trent Valley loop and Lake Shore groups are all back into both senior and junior Interscholastic football. After a lapse of several years Peterborough's Scribe tells of the Liftlock City Collegiate winning both ends of a double-header of Interscholastic football last Saturday. The Peterborough Collegiate seniors nosed out Bowmanville High 8 to 6, while the Liftlock City juniors won by the smallest of football scores, 1 to 0, over the Cobourg kids. The actual scores mean nothing, it's the fact Interscholastic football is returning to prominence in every town and city in Ontario, except Belleville. Six-man football is a splendid game for inter-form competition and perhaps has its place in the smaller secondary schools, but after all is said and done there is no comparison in the abbreviated game to the conventional game of rugby football. Six-man football has served a definite purpose at the Belleville Collegiate, but if the local secondary school hopes to keep pace in the athletic field with the other collegiates and high schools throughout the C.O.S.S.A. district they should return to the junior Interscholastic football grouping, but quick."

* * * * * *

For tomorrow's exhibition game at Riverside Park with the fast Toronto Vikings the Peterborough juniors will field two full teams, with 24 players in all in uniform so that the local youngsters should be able to travel at top speed all the way. Here is the complete list of Peterborough players with their positions and numbers and fans who take this list to the game with them will be able to follow the home team accurately: J. Conlin (1) middle wing, O'Rourke (2) middle wing, Griffin (4) end, Jordan (5) end, Harris (6) middle, LaPlante (7) middle, Conlin (8) snap, Brooks (9) middle, Daly (10) quarter, Pagett (11) snap, Menzies (12) inside wing, Miller (13) inside wing, Roberts (14) quarter, Shadgett (15) half, Carpenter (16) half, Hodson (17) half, Wilford (18) half, Withers (19) half, Dugan (20) end, Lucano (21) flying wing, Lynch (22) flying wing, Quigley (23) end, Burns (24) end, Wade (26) half.

Goal By Whitnall Saves Central From Soccer Defeat

One goal apiece was an excellent criterion of the run of play in the first game of the best-of-three series in the Public School soccer championship between King Edward and Central on King Edward Park on Thursday afternoon before a large crowd of spectators.

With only a half-minute to go, Central's left wing, Dolan and Brooks carried the play into King Edward goal. Brooks shot the ball into the centre of the goal where Whitnall drove a high ball in below the bar for the equalizer amidst a questionable decision in regards to time being called. On making comparisons between timekeepers as prearranged, it was emphatically declared that half-minute was still to be played, although that goal saved Central from defeat.

The next game is scheduled for Tuesday afternoon at Nicholls Oval with Stan McLeod officiating.

All play-offs or cup games must play full 45-minute periods, with the referee controlling the play and time of the duration, and may be assisted with neutral linesmen if agreed upon by the teams playing.

Central's Attack Good

There was no choice in the selection of goals. Right from the spot kick, Central opened up a steady pressure upon the King Edward goal which compelled the halfbacks of Riches, Byers and Self, falling back to steady their defense that seemed to be unreliable. On one occasion, Riches came from nowhere just in time to stop Brooks from scoring. Then this was followed by a dangerous foul kick taken by Brooks who rattled a hot drive into goal. A scrimmage ensued with all Central forwards having a try at goal, with-[out a]ny success. Tom Hum sent a fast ground drive into the far corner that was left vacant but Chambers, King Edward, kicked out to Byers to save the goal from downfall. Play continued in mid-field for a while with Wilson, McKenzie and Hum, the Chinese boy, dominating the play with smart checking and timely passes out to his wing men. Dolan and Patterson made good use of the openings which Riches, King Edward, endeavoured to hold in check that eventually found Tom Hum outplaying them in tackling to advantage. Both goals went under a seige with corner-kicks being conspicuous and making poor use of a concentrated effort to shoot for goal at the opportune moment. In fact this method permitted Byers to run at his leisure to hold King Edward on the attack as half time arrived. No scoring.

Two Smart Goals

King Edward made two alterations in their line-up in the opening of the second half, with Hooper and Ferguson replacing Anderson and Buchan, while Central relied upon their first selection. Quickly taking advantage of an easy gong defense, Chambers had the Central full backs in a quandry as he made them miskick and misjudge the flight of the ball with keen tackling, thereby rapping in beautiful centres that had Central custodian busy as a bee holding his citadel in safe keeping. Eventually Chambers beat two men on the wing to shoot the ball across the goalmouth where Lawson connected with a left-footer that shot the sphere away into the far corner of the goal. Encouraged by their success, King Edward consolidated their margin by confining Central to mid-field tactics and holding them outside the danger zone.

Time and again, the Hum, Patterson and Dolan combination would break through to end up in scrimmages in front of goal, while Whitnall with individual efforts carried the play right in on goal but found King Edward full backs and halfbacks right in on goal blocking any progress in that territory. Byers kept plying the ball up the centre to find McKenzie holding him incheck. The latter shot the ball out to the left wing where Brooks returned the drive quickly across the goal about 10 yards out. Whitnall connected with a lightning drive that sailed over the heads of the King Edward defense in below the bar with only a half-minute to be played. This equaliser caused quite a discussion about time being called with half minute to go that was full corroborated as correct. Referee Stan McLeod declared the score at one-all.

Goal scorers: Ken Lawson for King Edward; J. Whitnall for Central.

Central—J. Hutchinson, goal; W. Noble and J. Forbest, full backs; H. Wilson, W. McKenzie and T. Hum, halves; J. Whitnall, K. Delahaye, D. Brooks, E. Patterson and W. Nolan, forwards; subs.: G. Chambers, N. Howard.

King Edward—J. Grant, goal; D. Downer and D. Breadman, full backs; A. Riches, J. Byers and R. Self, halves; M. Chambers, D. Buchan, K. Lawson, D. Anderson and R. Beggs, forwards. Subs—G. Robinson, J. Hooper and P. Ferguson.

Referee—Stan McLeod.

In Junior Circles

There are three teams in the top sections of the Junior League with King Edward, King George and Confederation in the order named. On Wednesday afternoon King Edward Juniors defeated Queen Mary Juniors 6-0. Goals being scored by Bryon Robinson, Don Whatley and Bob Batley at Nicholls Oval with both teams depending upon the same teams.

Buzz Bombs Launched

LONDON, Oct. 20 — (CP). — For the ninth successive night the Germans launched flying bombs at southern England and the London area last night. Only a few got through night fighters and a barrage of anti-aircraft fire.

The attack was brief and first reports indicated the damage was small. Some of the buzz-bombs came from the North Sea, indicating the Germans were launching them from aircraft.

Unbeaten Football Teams Clash On Saturday

By The Canadian Press

With the Ontario football campaign going into its fifth week, the time seems to have come to trot out all the well-worn adjectives to herald the first clash of the season between two unbeaten Ontario Rugby Football Union teams—Hamilton Wildcats and Toronto Balmy Beach.

They meet in Toronto in the feature clash of a four-game program. In the other O.R.F.U. game, the winless Toronto Indians play Ottawa Trojans in Ottawa while in the Ontario Armed Services League, Toronto Navy plays St. Thomas R.C.A.F. Hornets in London and Hagersville R.C.A.F. Bombers entertain Camp Borden R.C.A.F. Hurricanes in Hamilton.

While Coach Alex Ponton, whose Beaches have won three games, has expressed belief he has a stronger club than Coach Eddie McLean of Hamilton, he summed up the feelings of the majority of fans when he said that stopping halfback Joe Krol "is our main worry" and "that's a big order."

Krol, scoring leader in the two leagues with 36 points, has been a mighty factor in the four Wildcat victories so far this season.

Beaches may be without the services of their two quarterbacks—Frank Stukus and Bert Hamm—injured last Saturday although there is a chance Stukus may be able to get into action. Ross (Red) McKelvey, fleet young Billy Myers and veteran Sam Sward are the chief Beach threats.

The Ottawa game is the last of the season for the Indians who have lost all five of their games so far. The Trojans have three losses and one victory, but the victory was a 33-11 conquest of the Indians in Toronto.

Feature game in the Services League is at Hamilton. Hurricanes need a win to keep in the play-off contention. They are in third place behind Navy and Bombers, tied for first with two wins and two losses. A victory would give them at least a second-place tie with Hagersville and would provide a three-way tie for first place should the winless Hornets spring a surprise and take Navy into camp. Navy and Bombers each have three wins and one loss. St. Thomas has lost all four of its games.

TORONTO, Oct. 20.—(CP).— In line with Toronto Maple Leafs' avowed new policy of adding blood and iron to the players' diets, Coach Hap Day has been giving his charges a taste of commando action. Mob hockey is the rule at the Owen Sound camp, with all the young hopefuls on the ice battering away at one time.

Probably he's getting them ready to live up to Frank Selke's "be tough" decree and give them the taste for blood and bodily contact. Maybe we won't need pucks at all this winter around the N.H.L. circuit!

Will History Repeat?

Chortling merrily, Harry Eisen of the London Free Press predicts that the N.H.L. likely will forget all about its "no players with war workers' deferments" clause before the season ends. He predicts there will be quite an outcry about the affair, led by Montreal Canadiens, and that the governors will have to draw in their horns. Of course, as precedent there is the famous "gag rule" of last season.

It's Business, But—

There was a rather pathetic story behind the claiming of Head Seat at Dufferin Park, Toronto, the other day, Jim Coleman relates in the Globe and Mail. The horse comprised the entire stable of little Jimmy Daru, jockey who was crippled several years ago in a spill at Connaught Park, Ottawa. Some Montreal sportsmen, headed by Wilf Trenholme, bought him a service station and gave him a mare, Cavana, for Darou to race and keep him in the game his heart was in. Then, after Cavana got past her peak, Trenholme gave the little fellow Head Sea. All's fair in horse racing, but it's tough for a fellow like Darou to suffer.

Incidentally:

It was touch and go for a while whether the sailors in Halifax would be dancing or playing hockey this winter, but the Navy League directors of the Forum finally decided to put down a sheet of ice in the service centre and the day was saved....Joey, idol of the western race fans, is still in the news although he has been dead and buried these many moons. His last set of racing shoes, silver plated and engraved, were auctioned off for Victory Bonds to start off the 7th Victory Loan drive at No. 4 R.C.A.F. Training Command in Calgary. Joey was there in the flesh when the first loan was held back in 1941, when he helped raise a sizeable sum.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

By The Canadian Press

A man with no arms—Lloyd Edwards, veteran of this war from St. Catharines—last night bowled a score of 207 in a five-pin game at Hamilton. He accomplished the feat by manipulating with his artificial hands a special bowling ball invented and developed by John Weatherston of Hamilton. Edwards, who lost his hands in an accident at the Mountain View, Ont., bombing and gunnery School of the R.C.A.F., was testing the attachment for the first time. It consists of a pin and spring attachment in the ball which can be grasped in the artificial hand and springs back inside the ball on being released.

After shooting for a knockout from the opening bell, Irish Bobby Ruffin, 139½, of Astoria, N.Y., finally managed to floor the rugged Vince Del' Orto, 133, of Philadelphia, for the full count in the seventh round in the seventh round of their scheduled 10-round bout at Boston last night.

Castilloux Wins Avenging Former Defeat

MONTREAL, Oct. 20 — (CP). — Dave Castilloux, Montreal, holder of the Canadian lightweight and welterweight titles, last night evened his score with Joey Peralta of Mexico, when he pounded out a clean cut decision before an estimated crowd of 7,000. Castilloux weighed 137 pounds, two less than the Mexican lightweight champion.

Avenging a decision loss suffered earlier in the month at Toronto, Castilloux got the unanimous nod of the referees and the Canadian Press score card showed even rounds for Castilloux, four to Peralta and one even.

It was one of the most riotous battles seen in a Montreal ring in a long time, with both fighters swinging freely after the bell and finally engaging in a kicking duel, shortly before the end of the tenth round.

Repeatedly the Canadian champ caught Peralta with hard right crosses that slowed him down temporarily and brought out cuts over both of the Mexican's eye brows. However, at no time in the fight did Castilloux have too much of his own way as his opponent shook him with several short rights and left uppercuts.

In the tenth, Peralta, thinking the bell had gone ending the round, headed for a neutral corner. But Castilloux came from behind and caught him with a looping right. Peralta replied with a kick to Castilloux's legs. The two started kicking at each other freely and then began swinging from all angles.

Managers and seconds had to jump into the ring to help the referee get the two to the corners and succeeded just as the bell sounded ending the round.

In the semi-final, "whistling" Willie Roach of Wilmington, Del., earned an easy eight-round decision over Horace Leftwich of Buffalo. Roach, who is signed to meet Sal Bartolo of Boston for the featherweight title, had little chance to show his class against the mailing Buffalo boy.

Caps Vanquish Buffalo Bisons

By The Canadian Press

The return of Bill Jennings and Byron (Butch) McDonald of the Indianapolis Capitals was signalled last night with a 2-1 victory over Buffalo Bisons as the two teams opened their American Hockey League season at Indianapolis. George Pargeter saved the Bisons from a shutout when he beat Harry Lumley with a neat shot in the second period.

Jennings came back from Detroit Red Wings where he played last season and McDonald recently was discharged from the Canadian army. McDonald and Jennings also posted assists with Bill Thomson also earning an assist.

Don Webster served the pass to Pargeter which resulted in the Bisons' tally but later efforts to score on Harry Lumley were fruitless.

In week-end games, Indianapolis will visit Cleveland on Saturday, with Providence at Hershey and Buffalo at Pittsburgh in other Saturday games. Sunday Hershey will be at Buffalo, St. Louis at Indianapolis and Pittsburgh at Providence.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 — (AP). — Cmdr. Gene Tunney, who ought to know something about the subject, says that to make a good boxer you should get a boy who is naturally just a little timid...."I don't mean he should be afraid," explains Gene, "but a boy who doesn't like to take a punch naturally develops the instinctive moves for good defensive boxing."...Since Coach Frank Murray introduced the modern "T" formation into southern football, his Virginia teams have played 30 games and scored 583 points — averaging better than 19 a game....

When Saint Thomas marched to the ring to be stiffened by Melio Bettina the other night, his fiddler, Little David, followed playing "I'll be seeing you in all the old familiar places."...Sounds as if he had his spot on the canvas picked out....

The Connecticut Sports Writers Alliance will revive its annual dinner this winter and devote the proceeds to its members in the armed forces. ...Chalky Wright's purse for the Willie Pep fight, which was held up until he fulfilled a contract to fight in Washington, has been released. Gen. Phelan, the local head man, now is convinced that Promoter Joe Turner really didn't want to use Chalky....Kenny Iyenaga, American-born Japanese halfback on the Oneida, N.Y., High School football team, took a kickoff on his own 20-yard line the other day, went back 10 yards and then went for a touchdown against Canastota. Sounds like some guys with similar names heading for the goal line in Tokyo.

Training Camp Gossip

By The Canadian Press

Word from Boston Bruins' training camp at Quebec says Pat Egan, the hard-checking defenceman, will be back as a regular with Art Ross' squad this season. Others expected to return include: Dit Clapper, Johnny Crawford, Bill Cowley, Busher and Art Jackson, Herb Cain and Buzz Boll.

Note: Bruins meet Canadiens in one of the league openers, Oct. 28.

The Canadiens have requested that they be permitted to delay the filing of the numbers of players with the N.H.L. office—an indication that clubs officials are having a tough time lining up their squad.

Manager Paul Thompson of Chicago Black Hawks has added Bill Mosienko, classy winger, to this season's line-up. The team has had the best practising conditions in six years, the manager says.

When President E. W. Bickle, Vice-president W. A. H. MacBrien and Frank Selke of the Maple Leaf Gardens official family, dropped in to watch the Leafs in action at their Owen Sound training quarters they saw the "poorest workout" since the start of training, says Coach Hap Day.

To-day (Friday) promises to be a big day at the Leafs camp. Nick Metz, of Wilcox, Sask., is expected to arrive for training. Gus Bodnar, rookie of the year last season, also is scheduled to return to practice after a week's layoff because of an injury.

New Puck Loop At Montreal

MONTREAL, Oct. 20 — (CP). — Officials of five hockey clubs gathered here last night and formed an inter-provincial hockey league which will operate this season with teams in Cornwall, Ont., Shawinigan Falls, Que., Lachine, Que., Montreal and Valleyfield, Que.

Representatives of the University of Montreal were present at the meeting and announced they would enter a team representing Montreal. Earlier yesterday, it was announced that the U. of M. would play in the revived Quebec Senior Hockey League but it was understood that the university would withdraw from the Q.S.H.L. in favor of the new loop.

It was reported at the meeting that Quebec Aces, another team from the Q.S.H.L. and present Allan Cup holders, were interested in the new loop but it was not known whether the club would apply for entry.

(Yesterday, George Slater, president of the Q.S.H.L. announced that the League would operate this year with teams from Hull, Que., Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec. He was not immediately available for comment on the new league.)

Gen. Keller Back From France Warns Tough Battles To Come

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL, Oct. 20 — (CP) — Bearing the scars and honors of battle, big and sandy Maj.-Gen. R. F. L. Keller, who led the Canadian 3rd Assault Division to the Normandy beaches, through Caen to the gates of Falaise disclosed here today that the tactics which few and held the main strength of the German army at that Canadian-British sector were vital to the success of the big Allied break through on the right flank.

His left arm in a sling and walking with the aid of a cane, the hard-bitten soldier — home for further hospitalization — gave a graphic picture of the campaign up until the time he was wounded when supporting American bombers misjudged a target.

As for the case of mistaken identity, the general gave a philosophical shrug and a smile and said: "this is a very big war and those things are bound to happen. We must run these small risks for the objects are so much greater." Then he paid a warm tribute to the softening up work the American Air Force carried out in front of his division's advance.

Still Dark Day

It was his opinion that the big push of Aug. 8 through Falaise was timed to give the Allies a psychological advantage. For it was the anniversary of the date in 1918 when the Canadians spearheaded the break-through at Amiens which the German soldier Ludendorff later described as the German army's black day — the first day of the famous "last hundred days" of the First Great War. "I believe that Aug. 8, 1944 may be given by future historians as the German army's second black day."

He said that the main strength and power of the German army was concentrated in the Canadian army and was held there by "our pressure tactics." While this strength was held up the Allied right wing plunged through a weaker opposition. "Then when the enemy realized his mistake he sent too little reinforcements too late to the American front and that gave us the chance and we broke through."

When the Canadian-British push began however the Germans made another mistake and sent too little back to the Falaise front too late.

The confusion that followed "was truly a black day for German arms and may have been the crucial point of the whole campaign."

Anxious to Fight

He told of his trip back on the hospital ship Lady Nelson and his talks with men who "hope to get back on their feet like I do in time to get into action against those Jap baskets" (he deliberately mispronounced the noun.)

The ship was two days late arriving at Halifax and terrific storms some days slowed its speed to three knots. This was pretty tough on the efficient nursing staff and tougher on some of the patients but he heard no one talking about post-war problems and only about the work left to be done. "They were in good heart and ready to fight again," he smiled.

The general had heard of optimistic reports on the battles in Europe. "If you saw the type of men we've got to lick yet before victory I think the ardor of the general public would be more conservative," he said.

He thought the most important factor in the fine combat spirit of the Canadian army was that it's long three-year wait in Britain had given it a specially healthy appetite for the enemy.

Paper Strike Comes To End

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 20 — A dispute which left Sydney virtually without a newspaper for 13 days ended to-day.

Two evening newspapers will resume publication to-morrow and two morning papers on Saturday.

Employees accepted the terms of a settlement drawn up at a compulsory conference. Settlement includes that all employees be reinstated. The secretary for the printers said the proprietors would not oppose application to court for a 40-hour five-day week and four weeks' annual leave to replace the present 44-hour week.

This was the crux of one of the strangest disputes in Australian industrial history. Printers on the Sun had walked out when their demand for a shorter week was refused by publishers, who said the matter was already before compulsory conference.

The dispute spread to the Daily Mirror when the Sun asked for a composite paper, and then to the Sydney Morning Herald and Daily Telegraph when publishers decided on a composite paper for the entire city.

Journalists came into the dispute when they refused to work for the composite paper on the grounds they would then be acting as strike-breakers.

The resulting dispute involved 12 unions, 2,250 employees, and stopped printing presses worth millions of dollars. Publishers issued a composite paper during the dispute and journalists issued a rival tabloid which will make its final appearance to-morrow with a 16-page edition.

Magnetic Marks Delight Airmen

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Oct. 20—(CP)—New directional devices comfort the airmen, but he still likes a map of Canada that looks as if a few hundred thin red worms were crawling over it.

It is the detailed map prepared by the Hydrographic and Map Service of the Resources Department showing the lines of equal magnetic declination and annual change in Canada.

Authorities said today that Canadian studies of magnetic declination have been a major factor in facilitating northern air operations which have grown by leaps and bounds since the war.

Only along a line running about northern and south through Port Arthur, Ont., can the compass reading be taken as representing true north. Everywhere else a correction has to be made. West of Port Arthur the compass needle ponits east of true north and east of this line it points west.

The Canadian map, developed as the result of long studies, gives the airman a close reading of the compass correction necessary wherever he is flying in Canada. At Cardston, Alta., for instance, he would require a correction of 22 degrees east and at Montreal 16 degrees west. The necessary correction is given by a red line on the map showing the magnetic declination.

Officials said that modern service aircraft carry radio and other directional devices which make them to some extent independent of the old magnetic compass. But it is still carried as a safeguard.

Buy British Drive Starts On Continent

LONDON, Oct. 20—(CP)—Bidding for post-war world markets, hundreds of commercial travellers already have left Britain with government help to start a "Buy British" campaign around the world, the Daily Express said today.

Harcourt Johnstone, secretary of the Department of Overseas Trade, was quoted as saying the government was cutting red tape to expedite the missions and that British manufacturers were getting passports and visas within three weeks after applying for them. Mr. Johnstone said Britain "is not going to be left out in the cold" in efforts to capture world markets.

The overseas trade department has made a survey of 26 countries outside the battle area of Europe for the "Buy British" drive and has organized 140 exporting industries, it was announced.

BROOKFIELD, Mo., Oct. 20 — (AP). — An American flag of living trees is the war memorial planned by the Brookfield Garden Club. The blue field of the flag, 800 feet by 600 feet, is to be of Colorado blue spruce, the white stars and stripes of Russian olive trees, the red stripes of red maple, the halyard rope of yellow willows and the standard of evergreen.

Slogan Contest For All Schools

A slogan contest is being sponsored by the Public Relations Committee of the 7th Victory Loan. This contest is being held in the city's public schools, the separate schools and the collegiate and vocational school and closes on October 25. The prizes offered are theatre passes through the co-operation of the three theatres in the city. The prizes are divided into four groups. The first group for all boys and girls of high school age; the second is for all boys and girls of public and separate school age who are in grades VI, VII and VIII; the third is for boys and girls in the public and separate schools of grades I, II, III, IV and V; and the fourth is a grand prize for the best slogan of the other three groups. The prize in each group is a one-month theatre pass admitting two and the grand prize is an additional pass good for two on all three theatres. The judges will be Reg Faryon of The Quaker Oats Company, Cecil Upper of the De Laval Company, and Charles Saunders of the Richard Hall store.

Fires Set In Catholic Church

HAMILTON, Oct. 20 — (CP) — Hamilton police and inspectors from the Fire Marshal's Department in Toronto, are investigating attempts made to set fire to the Holy Family Roman Catholic Church here yesterday. It was the second time fires had been deliberately set in the church.

On Oct. 12, burning paper and cardboard was discovered under the stairs leading to the pulpit, but no damage was done. Yesterday, Charles Begin, church caretaker, discovered three separate fires.

Officials said that during the past few months several fires were deliberately set in various apartment buildings and are continuing their investigations.

Introducing

The Victory Loan Salesmen

This is the fifth in a series of six advertisements to introduce to you the Victory Loan salesmen for the City and County of Peterborough, and to give a brief biography of each.

VICTOR W. O'TOOLE, 304 Margaret Avenue, although a newcomer to the Victory Loan circle, is very well known in Peterborough, having been born on a farm in the Otonabee Township in Peterborough County, and lived there for many years before moving to the city.

"Vic," as he is known to his many friends, is now in the real estate and general insurance business with offices located on Charlotte Street. He is a member of the Kinsmen Club and is a willing worker on the various charity drives.

A brother, Private Edward O'Toole, is attached to the Accounts Office at the local Training Centre.

MR. JOHN S. HENDERSON, R. R. 7, Peterborough, definitely holds an enviable reputation as far as Victory Loan salesmen are concerned. He was the leading salesman for the rural district of the County of Peterborough during the Fourth Victory Loan, and on the Fifth Victory Loan he was the leading salesman for the whole County of Peterborough. Again on the Sixth Victory Loan, Mr. Henderson was a leading salesman.

In the "off" periods from Victory Loan campaigns, this gentleman is a prosperous farmer on the 7th Line of Otonabee and has lived in th Township of Otonabee all his life. He is very interested in the Otonabee Branch of the Red Cross Society, and is a regular canvasser on their behalf.

MR. GORDON HANCOCK, R. R. 2, Peterborough, really needs no introduction, as he is well known as a prominent Auctioneer, Valuator, and farmer. Not only is he a faithful canvasser on behalf of the Victory Loan campaigns, but during the last Loan he gave generously of his time and experience to the Rural Auction Sales, which will again be held during the coming Loan.

Mr. Hancock is president of the Ontario Crop Improvement Association, vice-president of the local Federation of Agriculture, and vice-president of the Peterborough Exhibition Board.

Mr. Hancock always maintains that he receives the very best of co-operation from his customers, and he is quite looking forward again to getting his quota on the present Loan.

MR. HENRY BATTEN, R. R. No. 3, Peterborough, is a Victory Loan salesman that needs no introduction, having lived in Peterborough County all his life. His family have been here since the Crown (1826)) and was one of the original families. For ten years he was with the Peterborough Chees Board, and was formerly secretary-treasurer and salesman of the Warminster Cheese Factory.

Mr. Batten is also quite a singer of note, and is one of the soloists in the George Street United Church choir.

Having had experience on five previous Loan drives, Mr. Batten knows his clients and when interviewed he said: "I have never had a cross word spoken to me on any of my calls and I feel that the people in my territory are exceptionally patriotic and will do their bit towards bringing this War to a successful conclusion."

MR. HARRY MORGAN, of Norwood, Ontario, will again be a canvasser on the Seventh Victory Loan. This makes five Loan drives on which Mr. Morgan has canvassed.

Mr. Morgan was formerly a farmer, but during the past season ventured into another line of business, namely operating a summer resort known as Beachwood, at Deer Bay, which is near Buckhorn.

He was very pleased with the response from his customers during the Sixth Victory Loan, and it is hoped that he will receive the same co-operation during the coming Loan.

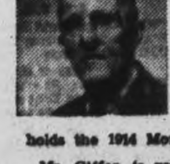
MR. ARTHUR MORRIS of Young's Point, Ontario, has joined the staff of Victory Loan salesmen, and will be canvassing the northern part of Smith Township.

Mr. Morris, who is very well known in Young's Point, having been a resident there for some eight years, is retired. This will be his first canvass on behalf of the National War Finance Committee, but his reputation of being a good worker has come to the front by his very worth-while achievements as far as the Red Cross Society, Blood Donors Bank, and the Ration Board are concerned.

PETER J. MATHER, R. R. No. 2, Keene, will again be a canvasser on the Seventh Victory Loan. This will be the fourth Loan campaign for Mr. Mather.

As Reeve of the Township of Otonabee and ex-Warden of the County of Peterborough, he is very familiar with his district, and working along with Mr. J. S. Henderson he feels confident that the prospective customers in their district will again show their confidence in this great Dominion by subscribing to their utmost in the present campaign.

Mr. Mather is a farmer and also a part-time representative of the Confederation Life Association, and is second vice-president of the Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities and honorary president of the Otonabee Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society.



W. H. (PETE) GIFFEN, of Norwood, is another World War I. veteran who appreciates the value of Victory Bonds. Mr. Giffen was a Corporal in the last War and served overseas four years with the First Motor Transport Company. He was wounded during the Second Battle of Ypres. He holds the 1914 Mons Star.

Mr. Giffen is very well known having been in Norwood since 1918, where he is the Postmaster of that Village. He is also in the General Insurance business, as well as being vice-president of the Norwood Branch of the Canadian Legion.

This is the seventh Loan on which Mr. Giffen has canvassed.

MR. ERIE PEARSON, R. R. 1, Lakefield, is canvassing on the Seventh Victory Loan for his first time. He is very well known in Smith Township, having been born in that district and has lived there all his life.

He has been the Deputy - Reeve of Smith Township for two years, and is also a member of the County Agriculture Committee for the township.

He will be canvassing the centre part of Smith Township, working along with the veteran canvasser, Gordon Hancock, and Mr. Arthur Morris, another newcomer to the Victory Loan sales staff.

Birthday Thanks Expressed In Helping Fund

To each individual, certain days of the year, as they come and go mean much more than others, among which their natal day stands pre-eminent. It is usually, in most persons lives, quite a happy occasion, marked by the felicitations of relatives and friends in various ways, when one is usually on the receiving end for many good things designed to accentuate the givers good wishes.

As the years roll by, the thinking persons more and more comes to realize that life has a definite purpose, so that the annual occurrence of this day takes on a much deeper significance, and there may come a desire to recognize that there can be much joy in living obtained from fulfilling a mission of helpfulness to others, besides thinking only in terms of self. What better day could one choose to do some act of goodness for others, than on a birthday.

Ever since the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund began to operate nearly four years ago, A. E. Thompson has made the annual occurrance of his birthday an opportunity to express a measure of thankfulness, while the time and opportunity was his, by making a contribution of $25 on that day, to assist the sufferers from air raid attacks over Britain through the fund.

This year, the annual occurrence of October 20, finds him assisting the same cause in a greater measure, with a contribution of $36.50, this amount being based on what he considered as the giving of a loaf of bread, or a quart of milk to some family in need, for each and every one of the 365 days that have passed by since the last annual celebration of his birthday took place.

In acknowledging the gift, the writer feels that there is quite a depth of though contained in such an act, particularly as it concerns the helping of people in distress, whom if they knew would be among the hosts of others who would fervently say, "Many happy returns of the day."

School Children Help

Many and varied have been the efforts of school children to help along the war effort, among which the giving of assistance to this fund has found a place, the latest of these coming from Miss Esplen's Room at Central School. The pupils have given assistance on a number of occasions for the same purpose. What children gain in habits and knowledge in their early training usually lasts a lifetime, and they who guide their pupils in great thoughts for others, and particularly those in need of assistance, do both the children and the country a real service, for selfishness often is the root of many evils.

This Saturday, the Vegetable Growers Association are repeating their effort of a week ago, to further enlarge on the $93.99 raised by a sale of vegetables at Herb Doig's stand on the market to assist the fund. Any others wishing to donate produce for that purpose can leave it at the same stand, where Mr. Doig will do his utmost to turn it into money for the same purpose.

Main Street Topics

BURNING LEAVES

An alarm turned in about 9 o'clock Thursday evening, brought the fire department to 302 Rubidge street, to extinguish a small fire from burning leaves.

FINISHES 40 FLIGHTS

Word was received this morning by Mr. and Mrs. Bert Cutmore, 272 Burnham street, that their son, Flt. Sgt. Deane Cutmore with the R.C.A.F. overseas, has completed 40 operational flights in England. He went overseas in 1943.

AT PETERBOROUGH CLUB

Hon. Mr. Ilsley was social guest of the city council for an hour or more at the Peterborough Club Thursday night after the canvassers' dinner. G. S. Matthews, chairman of the War Finance committee, and other campaign workers were also invited.

THANKS TO W.V.S.

A resolution of thanks to the Women's Voluntary Services for their assistance in the distribution of books of rations stamps and for other help, including the approaching addressing of cards to voters in the municipal elections was passed by the council Monday night on Alderman Glover's motion, seconded by Alderman Bradburn.

ROSES BLOOMING

Defying the onslaught of the colder weather, roses in the garden of Mr. and Mrs. J. Errol Wilson, 113 Morrow street, have been sturdily blooming. A rose enthusiast, he has 47 different varieties growing, with as many as 24 different shades. When they went through their garden Thursday afternoon, they estimated there were about 200 buds, which will bloom shortly, if not destroyed by the frost.

GROW THEM BIG

A mangel, weighing 16 pounds, has been harvested on the farm of Miss Nell Forsyth, Lot 5, Concession 1, Douro.

ON EXECUTIVE.

Mayor James Hamilton, who has been attending the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves in Toronto, was elected to the executive at the concluding session Thursday.

SWEATER FIRE.

Brush rayon sweaters are still proving a menace. A group of employees at the Ovaltine were looking out of the window Thursday when they saw fire break out in a car. A young man jumped out of the car, the back of his sweater aflame. He tore it off and threw the sweater away, burned beyond further use.

QUAKER MESSENGER

The messenger from the employees of the Quaker Oats Company to Hon. Mr. Ilsley Thursday night was Miss Helen White, 319 Burnham street, employed in the bag department under Mr. Thackeray. The message was the cheerful news that the Quaker Oats staff had already subscribed 135 per cent of their Seventh Victory Loan objective.

HEADS ALUMNI — Patrick D. Scollard, lawyer, was elected president of St. Peter's High School Alumni at the inaugural meeting held Thursday evening.

Property Owners Pay 95 Per Cent Of Taxes

Peterborough property owners have paid 95.3 per cent of their 1944 taxes, City Treasurer Shaver informed the Examiner today.

The total payment up to Wednesday this week was $756,724.56 as compared with the total of the 1944 tax roll—$794,044.93.

The 95.3 per cent was fractionally higher than last year when the corresponding proportion of payments was 95.19, and in 1942 the percentage at the same time in October was 93.34.

Details of Mr. Shaver's comparative statement were: For 1942—amount of roll $754,630.28; taxes paid $704,398.64; per cent of roll—93.34.

For 1943—Amount of roll $787,953.14; taxes paid at October 18, $750,068.47; per cent of roll 95.19.

For 1944—Amount of roll $794,044.93; taxes paid $756,724.56; per cent of roll 95.3.

Quebec Senior Loop Will Not Operate

MONTREAL, Oct. 20.—(CP). — President George Slater of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, said today the league will not operate this season.

Mr. Slater made the announcement when asked for comment on the formation here last tight of an Inter-Provincial Hockey League which would include five teams, one of which was said to be the University of Montreal.

C.G.E. And Genelco Employees Give Ilsley Rousing Welcome

For the opening this morning of their Seventh Victory Loan campaign, the employees of C.G.E.-Genelco figuratively unfurled their marching banners for the new campaign at a huge shop meeting on Thursday afternoon, which had as its minimum objective subscriptions amounting to $450,000.

Four thousand men and women gave the Minister of Finance, Hon. J. L. Ilsley, a splendid reception in No. 26 building, the most westerly, nearest Monaghan Road, as he entered building, accompanied by C.G.E. and local finance committee officials, the heads of some of the other industries of the city, and to the music of Irving Berlin's "God Bless America," played by the WO1 Harry Thompson's Machine Gun Band from Camp Borden.

It was one of the largest assemblies ever seen in Peterborough, and few others Mr. Ilsley may address throughout this country could exceed its numbers, especially industrial rallies.

This audience stood attentively during the program of half an hour or more, grouped closely together, presenting an animated tapestry of faces, raptly focussed upon the stage and its central figure, the Nova Scotian into whose hands the Canadian people placed during the war the responsibility of the Treasury bench.

Ian McRae was chairman of the meeting, and with him and Mr. Ilsley on the platform were J. C. McFarlane, Toronto, vice-president of the Canadian General Electric Company, Lt.-Col. J. Turnbull, officer commanding the local Training Centre; G. S. Matthews, chairman of the local War Finance Committee, city and county, David G. H. Melton, and S. E. Nixon.

Extend Thanks.

On behalf of the staff Mr. McRae extended thanks to the Minister "for taking time out of his busy life to be with us this afternoon. He is one of the busiest men in Canada. Without his Department no other Department in Canada could function. We consider it a great personal tribute to each and every one of us that Mr. Ilsley is here to-day, and we welcome him to our plant."

Mr. McRae recalled that in the six preceding Victory Loans subscriptions by employees of Genelco Limited and the C.G.E. amounted to $2,500,000.

The Minister thanked the crowd for the cordiality of their welcome and also for the support they had given to the previous Loans. His talk to that vast company of Peterborough people was mostly included in his dinner address to the city and county canvassers.

Mr. Ilsley emphasized the practical results of investing in Victory Bonds, not only the direct patriotic motive and the financial support to the men and women overseas but the draining of surplus money out of the wartime market by buying Victory Bonds would provide the people with a tremendous buying power for after the war and for its swing to peacetime employment.

Week's Campaign.

In concluding the meeting Mr. McRae thanked Mrs. Ilsley for his address, and informed him that the plant committee, beginning its canvass this morning, hoped to have the campaign wound up in a week. He also thanked Col. Turnbull for his interest in the meeting by making possible the presence of the 48th Highlanders Band from Camp Borden, and he seemed to become more the employee than the works manager when he told the crowd that several other plants in the city were reported to have already broken over the top.

"I offer my sincere congratulations to their workers, and I feel sure our own will do as well as any others in the city and better than many," Mr. McRae said.

'Buddy' Wright Killed Overseas

Rfmn. Leslie George Harry Wright (Buddy) of the Regina Rifles was killed in action October 6, his wife, 565 Division street, was notified Thursday.

The young soldier enlisted in January, 1943, and went overseas the latter part of August this year. He was married in July to Marguerite Lowe, who is employed in the Colonial Weaving Company. Since he went overseas, Mrs. Wright has had two letters from England and three from France, and she received one this week written October 5, the day before he died. Prior to enlisting Rfmn. Wright was employed in Christies bake shop, Toronto.

Surviving beside his wife, are his parents, Cpl. George S. Wright, R.C.A.F., of Mountain View, and Mrs. Wright, Toronto; a brother, Leonard, 11, at home; and two sisters, Mrs. John Craig and Miss Gladys Wright, Toronto.

Fewer Partridge

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Oct. 20—(CP)—Two hunters can testify that there are fewer partridge to be seen now than in the 1943 season. The two, hunting at Havilah, travelled all day and saw only one bird. Even then it got away from them.

WINS DISAGREEMENT — Miss Vera Parsons, said to be the first woman lawyer to represent a client charged with murder before an assize court jury in Ontario, won him a jury disagreement. She represented Allan Baldwin, charged with killing Robert Canning, guard at the Don Jail, Toronto, during an attempted jail break.

War—4 Years Ago

By The Canadian Press

OCT. 20, 1940—R.A.F. dropped 15,000 bombs on Channel Ports, also attacked Berlin and other German centres and northern Italy. Admiralty reported successful attack on German seaplane base at Tromsoe, Norway by torpedo planes; Italian planes bombed Cairo for first time, killing one civilian and injuring six.

A.-Cpl. A. Henwood Invalided Home

A veteran of the heavy fighting in France, where he suffered leg wounds July 24, A.-Cpl. Arthur George Henwood, whose wife lives at 469 Albert street, has arrived in Kingston as a stretcher case, and is now in a military hospital to receive further medical treatment before returning home. Mrs. Henwood was in Kingston to meet her husband. Another district soldier who arrived aboard the hospital ship Lady Nelson, is Rfm. C. N. Armstrong, whose wife lives at Omemee.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Henwood, of 124 Lansdowne street, A.-Cpl. Henwood was wounded by machine gun fire in the right leg, while attempting to hold a position on one of the French battlefronts, and also received a compound fracture in the left leg. He has been overseas since May of this year, and he enlisted with the active army in March 1941. Before this, A.-Cpl. Henwood was an employee of Campbell's Dairy.

Three brothers are also serving in the armed forces, Leading Stoker Sydney, with the Navy on the high seas; Harry, with the R.C.A.F. and Kenneth, who is with the Kingston Depot Band.

Rfn. Armstrong, who has been with the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps since September 1941, arrived in England in June 1942. He was injured in a motorcycle accident in England several months ago, suffering a compound fracture of the right leg, severe lacerations to his side, and an injured arm. Rfn. Armstrong has a little boy, Jimmie, whom he has never seen.

Reckless Driving Count Dismissed

A charge of reckless driving against Ambrose Lee, arising out of an accident on the Keene road on March 16 last in which a Sunshine Dairy truck driven by the accused rolled over in a ditch was dismissed by Magistrate O A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning.

"As against the theory advanced by the crown and based on the marks on the road that excessive speed was the cause of the accident there is the direct testimony of two witnesses for the defence that the vehicle was not being operated at excessive speed," said His Worship in giving his judgment.

As a result of the accident, it was stated during the hearing, Lee had spent eight weeks in hospital with severe back injuries and Harold Babbs, another Sunshine Dairy employee was still in a Toronto hospital, suffering from a fracture of the leg near his hip.

Lee was defended by T. J. Carley, K.C., while Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., prosecuted.

Believed Speeding

Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure who laid the charge said that in his opinion the truck must have been travelling at an excessive rate of speed at the time of the accident. The truck he said had travelled 147 feet on the shoulder of the road, then turned over on its right side and skidded another 120 feet and finally came to rest 66 feet further along after making what the witness declared two and three-quarter rolls.

Frank Draoup, foreman at the Duffus garage said that nothing had been found broken about the steering apparatus of the truck but that a number of parts had had to be replaced because they were badly bent. His opinion was that the bending had been caused by the accident.

Provincial Constable Price Morris and James Matthews of the Sunshine Dairy were other crown witnesses.

Wheels Didn't Turn

Lee testified that he was on his way to Keene for a load of milk and driving a half-ton truck when the accident happened. He said that he was driving at 35 miles an hour and that after making the curve he went to pull over to the left and found that while the steering wheel would turn the truck wheels would not. Then he applied his brakes and that was what caused the truck to upset.

Richard Toner, a passenger in the truck, said that in his opinion the vehicle was travelling at 30 or 35 miles an hour at the time of the accident.

Mr. Carley said that he was willing to submit the case without argument and Crown Attorney McElderry took the same position whereupon Magistrate Langley dismissed the case on the grounds already stated.

On a charge of having been drunk to which he pleaded guilty Michael McNamara was fined $10 and $2.50 costs.

Former Students Of St. Peter's Organize Alumni

An association of former students of St. Peter's High School to be known as St. Peter's High School Alumni was formed last night when upwards of 60 ex-students held an organizational meeting and unanimously endorsed the proposal.

Patrick D. Scollard, well known Peterborough lawyer, was named president, when a slate of officers was brought in by a committee of five nominated from the floor.

The purpose of the association is to renew and keep alive the old associations formed in school days, and to sponsor and encourage any activities supplementary to or in conjunction with the school board. One of the social aspects of the venture will be an annual dinner which will serve as reunion. The members will also seek to give stimulus to high scholastic attainment by presenting annual prizes. They also hope to do whatever is permitted in the way of promoting school athletics.

A master roll of all former students of the school will be compiled as soon as possible, and all students who spent at least two years at St. Peter's are asked to send their names and addresses to any of the officers.

Most Rev. J. R. MacDonald, Bishop of Peterborough, addressed the meeting, and gave his endorsement and a promise of co-operation to the proposal.

Six councillors were also named as follows: John Madden, Fay Galvin, Gladys Perdue, Mrs. Patrick Anglesey, Doreen Sheehy and Francis MacPherson.

Ceiling Placed On Eastern Hay Starting October 31

OTTAWA, Oct. 20—(CP)—Ceiling prices on hay grown and sold in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime provinces have been set by the Prices Board in an order effective Oct. 30, it was announced today.

The new order fixes a basic maximum price for growers and shippers of $16 a ton for baled hay loaded on cars at the shipping point nearest the area of production.

Board officials stated that hay prices in some sections of the central and eastern provinces, where this year's hay and other fodder crops have been below average, have been rising rapidly in recent weeks. This had caused concern to dairy farmers and other livestock producers, with a consequent threat to the price ceiling structure on beef cattle and on fluid milk and other dairy products sold to the consuming public.

The prices fixed were in line with those set last season for hay in the Prairie provinces. The Board gave these examples of how the ceiling will work:—

The Prices

1. If the grower or shipper delivers the baled hay to the shipping point but does not load it on the car, his maximum price is $17 per ton.

2. If he sells baled hay at his farm, his maximum price will be $17 a ton less normal hauling charges from the farm to the nearest shipping point. If this charge is 50 cents a ton, his maximum price will be $16.50 a ton.

3. If he sells the hay loose or unbaled at the farm, the maximum price will be $16.50 less the customary baling charges or $3 per ton, whichever is the lesser. Thus, if the customary baling charge is $2.50, the maximum price will be $14 per ton for loose hay at the farm.

4. If a grower-shipper sells direct to a person who buys the hay to feed to his own livestock, he is permitted to add to the above maximum mark-up of $1.50 per ton if the hay is shipped or sold otherwise than by railway in carload lots.

Provision is made in the order for specified maximum mark-ups which may be taken on sales of hay by wholesalers and retailers.

Antwerp And Warsaw Keys To Speedy Allied Victory

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20—(AP)—The possibility of victory in Europe this year will very likely be decided by the speed with which Allied armies can turn to their own use the two great strategic keys to Hitler's fortress Germany—the Belgian port city of Antwerp and Poland's devastated capital, Warsaw.

Full use of the unloading facilities of Antwerp could crush much of the western front supply problem and support a crushing thrust into Germany over the shortest, best route to Berlin.

Antwerp is in Allied hands but enemy guns in the Schelde pocket still dominate its approaches. Clearing those approaches, conceded by military men here to be one of the top-priority jobs on the western front, has been undertaken by Lt.-Gen. Crerar's battle-hard 1st Canadian Army. A dispatch from Allied supreme headquarters said last night the battle for the pocket was moving into its last phase.

Unless the Canadians can clear the way to Antwerp promptly, it appears highly improbable that the Allies can muster full strength against all the enemy's vulnerable points for multiple heavy blows this fall.

Must Move Fast

This would sharply limit what appears to be the grand strategy for a 1944 victory in Europe—final twin offensives by the Russians in the east and the Allied forces in the west before winter closes in.

The main trend of Russian front events and their significance in the broad picture of the war—often obscure—can now be reported on high authority as having developed in this manner.

The Russian summer campaign paralleled the Anglo-American invasion of Normandy and contributed much to its success. The campaign reached its most advanced point in the suburbs of Warsaw at the end of July. The Germans had determined to hold the city and counter-attacks drove the Russians out.

Thus the Soviets were stalled on the central front and required much reorganization of supply and forces, which presumably still is going on.

Jury Disagrees In Jail Murder

TORONTO, Oct. 20—(CP)—The eight-day trial of Allan Baldwin, 32, and William O'Sullivan, 22, jointly charged with murdering Robert Canning, 49-year-old guard at Toronto's Don jail last June 10, was brought to a close last night when an Ontario Assize Court jury failed to reach agreement after deliberating 11 hours.

The pair will be tried again at the next assizes.

Mr. Justice D. J. R. Kelly said the jury had given the case every consideration and had attempted to fulfill its duties throughout. Before dismissing them, however, he said that if there was a possibility of "coming to an agreement I think you should endeavor to do so." The foreman said that was not possible.

The jury had retired following the trial judge's address in which he said they could arrive at two possible verdicts, either murder or manslaughter.

Pistol Battle Features Arrest

OWEN SOUND, Oct. 20—(CP)—Fifty year old Stephen Gaskey of St. Catharines spent a "fair night" in hospital here where he is recovering from bullet wounds and a slashed throat following a gun battle with police in nearby Meaford yesterday. His condition was described as satisfactory.

Gaskey, whom police said will face changes of attempted murder and attempted suicide, is under continuous police guard at the hospital.

The shooting duel with police in Meaford occurred after the officers were called to a grist mill owned by Mrs. Gaskey.

"When we arrived at the mill Gaskey was standing in the centre of the road," said Meaford Police Chief Clifford Ford. "I stopped the car and said 'put them up, you are under arrest.' As I started to get out of the car he drew his revolver and started to fire. I emptied my gun at him, firing low."

Constable Thomas Sims of Meaford said three bullets crashed into the car where he had been sitting. Blood was streaming from Gaskey's arm. The officers ran out of ammunition and Gaskey went to his wife's home, the Chief said. Provincial police from Owen Sound joined the Meaford officers and when they entered the house they found Gaskey sitting on the Chesterfield, bleeding profusely from a throat wonund. A straight razor was lying nearby.

University Gets Many Donations

TORONTO, Oct. 20—(CP)—H. J. Cody, president of the University of Toronto, today announced gifts amounting to $107,775 have been made to the University. The 22 awards include contributions to medicine, dentistry, forestry, history, engineering, commerce and finance, applied science, English language and literature, political economy, as well as loan funds.

Largest gift was made by the Garnet W. McKee estate which donated $50,000 to establish the Garnet W. McKee loan and scholarship fund for students in engineering physics. Eli Lilly Company contributed $20,000 for medical research and the Rockfeller Foundation gave $6,500 to the history department.

Spend 5 Millions On New Auditorium

MONTREAL, Oct. 20 — (CP) — Plans for a $5,000,000 auditorium and convention hall here have been made, it was announced today.

Officials of the Montreal Tourist and Convention Bureau, sponsoring the plans, said that the city executive committee will consider the suggestion at a meeting next week.

The announcement said that while no decision had been reached regarding the site of the new construction, it had been suggested that it be built over Canadian National Railways tracks near the Uptown Central Station.

The proposed auditorium would seat 12,000 persons and the music hall, with a seating capacity of 2,400, would have a 90-foot wide stage.

Mayor Hamilton Gives Report Wartime Houses

TORONTO, Oct. 20—(CP)—More than 50 delegates to the annual conference of Ontario Mayors and Reeves Thursday began their second session of a two-day meeting here following opening discussions yesterday on post-war industry and housing.

Yesterday's meeting was marked by the announcement that the Ontario government is prepared to pay one half of the 10 per cent equity municipalities must raise before the Federal government will subsidize low-rental, community housing projects. The "50-50" agreement was discussed in an address by Hon. Dana Porter, Minister of Planning and Development.

Earlier in the opening session plans were discussed on the part municipalities must play in encouraging industrial expansion to provide full employment after the war.

Earlier during the afternoon session, Mayor James Hamilton of Peterborough gave a report on the committee on war-time housing. The report was received and filed. The conference also approved a report on community hospitalization costs prepared by the executive.

At the close of yesterday's session, the resolutions committee met to prepare a report for presentation at today's meeting. Appointed to the committee were Mayors E. Brunette of Timmins, George Ingles of Niagara Falls, Garfield Anderson of Fort William, James Minesinger of Kitchener, Charles Lamb of Lindsay, N. S. Cuthbertson of Brockville and W. F. Stone of North Bay.

In an address to more than 50 delegates at the second session of the two-day conference, K. Grant Crawford, director of the Institute of Local Government of Queen's University, Kingston, warned against the danger of "centralization" of government and offered as a solution development of citizen interest in community affairs through organized publicity campaigns.

Publicity Plan

"If long-established business houses feel it worth while to carry on continuous and costly publicity, it seems only reasonable that local governments with an idea to sell to their people . . . should be able to produce results with such a plan," Mr. Crawford said.

Noting a "continuous and definite pressure towards centralization in the government," he warned that as this situation develops, "public interest dwindles and the governing system becomes one of the people and perhaps for the people, but certainly not by the people."

"The greatest contribution which municipal government can make toward preserving our Democratic form of government is to develop strong Democatic institutions," Mr. Crawford continued. "The hope for future Democracy lies in keeping the people as close to the government as possible."

Ontario Buys 5 Million In Bonds

LINDSAY, Ont., Oct. 20—(CP)—The Ontario government is subscribing $5,000,000 to the Seventh Victory Loan, Provincial Treasurer L. M. Frost said here Thursday. He was speaking to the Victoria-Haliburton Counties Victory Loan Committee where he introduced Finance Minister Ilsley.

Mr. Frost said the province now has subscribed $20,000,000 in Victory bonds.

The government will accept Victory Bonds at par and accrued interest in payment for succession duties, Mr. Frost said, provided they were purchased by the decedent from the Dominion during his lifetime.

Previously prevented from subscribing to the Victory Loan under a statute now repealed, Hydro-Electric Powder Commission and Workmen's Compensation Board will subscribe substantially to the new loan.

334 Boxes Packed For Airmen Overseas

Three hundred and thirty-four boxes were packed this week at the Y.M.C.A. by the R.C.A.F. Auxiliary, for men and women serving in the air force overseas.

There were 19 boxes sent to the Far East and Africa; 301 to Great Britain and Northern Europe and 16 to Newfoundland. Included in this total were boxes to seven women overseas, three of whom are stationed in Newfoundland.

Among the articles contained in these boxes were a 1-pound Christmas cake, a tin of chicken, writing paper and envelopes, pencil, chocolate drink, comb, shoe laces, game, handkerchiefs, shaving soap, oxo cubes, tooth brush, shaving powder, razor blades, tooth powder, chiclets, toffee, chocolate bars, gum and peppermints, toilet soap and soap boxes.

It is expected that about 300 boxes will be sent to those serving in Canada and so far, only 264 names have been handed in. The Auxiliary is expecting to pack these boxes around the beginning of December and would like all names in by December 1.

Fine For Thumbing

VANCOUVER, Oct. 20—(CP)—Thumbing rides on Vancouver streets will bring a $100 fine under a new traffic by-law presented yesterday to the civic traffic commission. The proposed measure would provide that motorists must give right-of-way to pedestrians crossing street intersections without traffic signals.

Double Amount

EDMONTON, Oct. 20—(CP)—J. A. King, chairman of the Alberta Liquor Control Board, announced yesterday that liquor permit holders in the province will be allowed 20 ounces of hard liquor in November and December, double the amount ordinarily allowed. No increase will be made in wine and beer allowances, 26 ounces and 12 pints a month respectively.

Questions and Answers About Victory Bonds

(Tear out this advertisement. Put it in your pocket or purse. Read it at your leisure.)

Q: What are Victory Bonds?

A: Victory Bonds are the best buy any Canadian can make. They show that you have loaned money to Canada to help win the war.

They are your country's promise to return your money to you—and, in addition, to pay you interest on that money every half year until you get it back. This promise—a promise which has always been fulfilled—is backed by all the wealth and resources of Canada.

When you buy Victory Bonds, you are not giving your money to Canada. You are lending it to your country at a time of national emergency.

Q: When will Victory Bonds be paid off?

A: The money you lend to Canada will be paid back to you by your country when the Bonds reach their maturity date. This date is shown on each Bond.

Q: Can Victory Bonds be turned into cash before maturity?

A: Yes. They can be sold at any time—or, if the need for cash is only temporary, they can always be used as security for a bank loan.

Q: Can Victory Bonds be sold easily?

A: Yes. You can sell your Bonds at any time, without difficulty and without delay.

Just take your Bonds to any bank, any investment dealer, stockbroker, or trust company. The current sales value of the Bonds, including interest up to the day of sale, will be paid to you while you wait.

There is always a ready market for Victory Bonds.

Q: Are Victory Bonds good security for a bank loan?

A: Yes. They are the best security for a loan you can own.

Victory Bonds are acceptable by all banks as security for a loan. When you use your Bonds as security for a bank loan, the interest income on the Bonds still belongs to you. This income will pay a large part of the interest charges on the loan.

Q: In what denominations are Victory Bonds available?

A: Longer term 3% Bonds—the kind most people buy—are available in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and larger amounts.

Q: How is the interest paid on Victory Bonds?

A: Interest is paid every half-year. The dates when interest is due are shown on each Bond.

A sheet of interest coupons is attached to each Bond. One of these coupons falls due each half-year. The date of maturity of each coupon is shown on its face. On each interest date, you cut off the coupon which falls due at that time, and take it to a bank. Any branch of any chartered bank in Canada will give you cash for Victory Bond interest coupons. There is no charge to you for this service.

Q: Is Advertising and Publicity needed to sell Victory Bonds?

A: Yes. Our experience in this war, as well as our experience in the First World War, has proved the need for advertising and publicity during Victory Loan campaigns.

Some people would buy Bonds if there were no advertising at all. But, to make each Loan a success, it is essential to sell the largest possible amount of Bonds to the largest possible number of people. Some people are reached best through newspapers, others through radio, others through speeches, and so on.

Q: How much does it cost to run a Victory Loan Campaign?

A: Costs of all kinds amount to less than 1 cent for each $1 of Bonds sold.

Q: Who will accept orders for Victory Bonds during the campaign?

A: Your order for Victory Bonds will be accepted by the Victory Loan salesman who calls at your home or place of business; by your neighbourhood bank; by any trust or loan company; by your employer; or by your local Victory Loan headquarters.

Q: What is the Payroll Savings Plan?

A: Under this Plan, you place your order for Bonds with your employer.

You pay for the Bonds by regular savings assignments from your wages over the next five or six months. After you have completed the final payment, your employer delivers the Bonds to you.

Q: What is the Monthly Savings Plan?

A: This Plan is for people who receive income regularly, who do not find it possible or convenient to use the Payroll Savings Plan.

You can arrange to buy Bonds under this Plan either through a Victory Loan salesman, or on direct application to any bank, trust or loan company.

Under this Plan, the bank, trust or loan company of your choice buys Bonds for your account. You make a down payment equal to 10% of their purchase price. Then you take care of the balance over the next five months by regular monthly payments to the bank, trust or loan company. The amount payable each month is shown both on the Official Prospectus, and on the form acknowledging your order.

Interest begins to accrue on your Bonds right from the start. Your first interest coupon returns you interest at the rate of 3% on the payments you have made, and takes care of the interest charges on the unpaid balance of the purchase price which you owe up to the time you complete payment for the Bonds.

Q: What is the Deferred Payment Letter?

A: The Deferred Payment Letter is for people who have an irregular income or who expect a lump sum of money within a few months.

You can arrange to buy Bonds under this Plan, either through a Victory Loan salesman or on direct application to any bank, trust or loan company. The regular application form and a special Letter must be completed for this type of Bond purchase.

Under this Plan, the bank, trust or loan company of your choice buys Bonds for your account. You make a down payment equal to at least 10% of the purchase price. Then you take care of the balance within six months by one or more payments to the bank, trust or loan company. There is no fixed schedule of payments.

Interest begins to accrue on your Bonds right from the start. Your first interest coupon returns you interest at the rate of 3% on the payments you have made, and takes care of the interest charges on the unpaid balance of the purchase price which you owe up to the time you complete payment for the Bonds.

A: To win Victory, our spending now is at peak levels. Cash outlays are expected to average $190 every second, or over $11,400 every minute—a total of at least $6,000,000,000 for the whole year ending March 31, 1945. This is 12 times the size of pre-war Budgets, which averaged around $500,000,000.

Cash outlays consist of around $5,200,000,000 for war purposes, and about $800,000,000 for other purposes.

Q: Why are we giving away war supplies to our Allies?

A: Canada produces a huge volume of war supplies, raw materials, and foods. Part of these we need in Canada. Part we need for our Armed Forces overseas. And, part is needed by our Allies.

We are engaged in a common enterprise with our Allies. Victory will be delayed, and lives lost needlessly, if any of our partners lacks war supplies.

It is in our own interests to maintain and increase the vital flow of arms to the fighting fronts—particularly at this stage of the war.

Britain and others of our Allies have some receipts in Canadian dollars obtained in payment for goods sold to us, and from other sources. These receipts enable them to pay for large quantities of the things they need from Canada. But, they urgently need more supplies than they can pay for in this way. With a recognition of what is at stake, we can not allow any financial problems to interfere with the sensible sharing of our war production with our Allies. They are paying for all the supplies they can. But things they need, and can't pay for, are being transferred to them free of charge under our scheme of Mutual Aid.

In short, when we make war supplies available to our Allies, we hasten Victory and save lives. Further, the production of these goods gives jobs and incomes to Canadian workers.

Q: How do we expect to pay for war and other expenses this year?

A: The Budget provides for the raising of about $2,600,000,000 from taxes—something less than $200,000,000 from trust accounts and other receipts—and, at least $3,200,000,000 from borrowing.

Each $1 of outlay will be raised about 46 cents from taxation and other receipts, and 54 cents from the sale of Victory Bonds, War Savings Certificates, and other securities.

A: Yes. Our borrowing needs last year were about $2,900,000,000. This year, they will be at least $3,200,000,000.

The Budget for this year states that this increase in borrowing needs requires larger purchases of Victory Bonds by more individuals than ever before because business firms and corporations cannot buy any more Bonds than they bought last year.

With production still increasing, the total of personal incomes is growing ever larger. And, despite high wartime taxation, the excess of money to spend over the costs of necessary wartime living standards is now greater than ever before.

Increased personal savings to meet the increase in borrowing needs is both necessary and possible.

Q: Why does our country borrow our savings?

A: There are two reasons. First, our country needs our money to pay the costs of the war. And, second, every dollar we save to lend our country cuts down our spending. Every cut in our demand for things means that more men and materials are released to war use. And, by holding down our demand for things closer to the level of available supplies, pressure on the price ceiling is reduced and the cost of living is held down.

Q: Why not collect all the money needed for war through taxation?

A: We cannot rely on taxation to pay all the costs of the war.

If the personal circumstances of everybody in Canada were identical, it might be possible to pay all our war costs by taxation. We might then devise a system of taxation which would involve equal sacrifices by all. Each of us would bear his fair share of the real costs of the war—once and for all—when we paid our taxes.

However, the personal circumstances of people in different income levels—and more important, the circumstances of different people in the same income level—vary widely. There is no system of taxation which could give special consideration to all these variations. Accordingly, any attempt to cover all our war costs by taxation would mean unbearable hardships for thousands and thousands of people.

Q: What is meant by Inflation?

A: Inflation means runaway prices—a persistently rising cost of living. Let's see how it could start and grow if we did not keep things under control.

In wartime, more people are working, farm incomes are high. Money to spend grows larger and larger. But, a large part of production is needed for war. Consumers cannot get all they want. When things are scarce, people will pay more and more for what is available. Prices and the cost of living begin to go up and, before long, workers demand higher pay.

Each increase in pay would step up costs of production. To keep in business, producers and dealers would ask higher prices. Each increase in prices would lead to new demands for higher pay as workers tried to keep up with the cost of living. Rising costs and prices would keep pushing each other up and up.

For most people, wages and salaries would never catch up with living costs. Money would buy less and less. Most of us would suffer, some more than others. Hardship, despair and confusion would sweep over factory, farm and home. Production of war and other goods would slow down.

Inflation would create tremendous problems both for the present and the future. Since the start of the war, we have recognized the dangers of inflation and have taken definite steps to control prices and the cost-of-living. The willingness of the public to save to buy Victory Bonds has been a vital factor in the success of this program.

Q: How are we fighting Inflation?

A: We are fighting inflation in many ways. A ceiling has been set on prices. Costs of production, including wages and salaries, are controlled to prevent higher costs from pushing up the ceiling. Supplies are divided fairly among producers and merchants. Certain necessities of life are being rationed to ensure a fair share to everyone.

Our spending power is being reduced by high wartime taxes and by Victory Loans. The less money we have to spend, then the closer our demand to the volume of things to buy. This keeps down both the pressure on the price ceiling and the need for rationing. Our government has made careful plans to keep the cost of living under control. But, our co-operation is essential to make these plans work.

We must economize and buy wisely; we must make old things do; we must resist the lure of luxuries; we must not ask for higher pay or for higher prices for the things we have for sale; and, we must save the largest possible amount of our incomes to buy Victory Bonds.

Q: Why are we asked to save our money?

A: Our voluntary wartime savings perform a number of vital jobs both during and after the war.

First, every dollar we spend in wartime means that someone is working for us, and that materials are being used up for our wants. When we save that dollar, that someone and those materials can work for quick and complete Victory instead of our private comfort.

Next, every dollar we spend means we compete with our fellow Canadians for the limited supplies of goods. Every dollar we save helps to spread available supplies fairly, and helps to make sure that the goods go to those who need them most.

Third, every dollar we spend increases the total demand for goods and puts upward pressure on prices. Every dollar we save reduces the demand for goods and helps to keep down the cost of living.

Individually, everyone needs a reserve of savings to meet emergencies. Personal security and happiness are not possible otherwise. Every dollar we save increases our ability to meet emergencies as well as helping our country in the ways we have just stated.

Wartime savings also have important post-war features. For one reason or another, everyone will be glad to have a reserve of savings when the war is over.

Completely apart from the value of savings as a reserve against emergencies, there will be many things we will want to buy in the post-war days when our resources can again be concentrated on the production of civilian goods. Not only will we have a lot of postponed wants and needs which will have piled up during the war years, but we will want to buy the new houses, the new cars, the new radios, and all the other things which will have improved in range and quality due to technical advances. Again, we may want to have enough money to start up our own business or to learn a new trade—to educate our children or to travel.

The spending of our wartime savings in these post-war days will have important results. The demand for goods financed by these savings will stimulate production and thus give peacetime employment to Canadians. A high level of employment is good for everybody because it means a strong demand for goods and services of all kinds, and a consequent high level of personal incomes.

Plan Social Evening

Mrs. E. Bartley, Morrow street, was hostess for the regular meeting of the St. David's Society Wednesday evening, when plans for future activities of the society were discussed and arranged. Members decided to have a social evening November 1 at Mrs. Bartley's home, to open the season's activities.

BSP Cover Girl Entrant Plannel

A member of the Omicron Chapter, Niagara Falls, Miss Jessie Cuthbert, was welcomed by members in Beta Sigam Phi at the regular meeting of the Peterborough Alpha Theta Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, in the recreation room of the Y.W.C.A. Miss Cuthbert was introduced by Mrs. M. Holt, director of the Peterborough chapter.

Under the direction of Miss Phyllis Turkington, plans were discussed for the choosing of a member of the Alpha Theta Chapter, whose photograph would be sent to be entered in the international Valentine cover girl contest conducted from headquarters in Kansas City. Arrangements were also completed for a telephone bridge, to be held during the next two weeks, with the prize to be drawn at the October 30th meeting.

Mrs. P. Larochelle discussed the badges and insignia of Beta Sigma Phi, and Miss Janet Kearns outlined interesting facts about a few international honorary members of the sorority, Osa Johnson, Eve Curie, Senator Iva C. Fallis and Senator Carine Wilson. Mrs. J. King was in charge of this period.

The cultural program was in charge of Mrs. S. Munro, and covered table manners and table decorations. Illustrated table settings were carried out by Miss Jean Cox.

A staff of registrars and assistants to make out receipts, for effective handling of the So-Ed registration on October 25, was appointed. After the registration, which begins at 8 o'clock, the meeting will be in charge of Arnold Ward, secretary of the West Toronto Community Y.M.C.A., for a period of recreation and entertainment, with group games and dancing.

Reception Given For Newlyweds

MILLBROOK, Oct. 20—(ENS). — The home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Winslow was the scene of a reception in honor of their son and daughter-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Winslow, recently returned from their wedding trip to Sudbury and other points north. The first part of the evening was spent in cards and dancing, after which a lunch was served by Miss Ruth Lunn, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Oke.

The bride's table was lace-covered, centred with the three-tier wedding cake, flanked by pink and white candles in crystal holders, and low crystal containers of pink and white asters. Fluted streamers from the ceiling to the corners of the table completed the color scheme. The bride and groom received many beautiful gifts, including a cabinet of silverware, and a walnut bedroom suite.

Relatives were present from Niagara Falls, Toronto, Peterborough, Kendal, Orono, South Monaghan, Fraserville, and Millbrook. Previous to her recent marriage, Mrs. Winslow (nee Jean Holden), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holden of Millbrook, was entertained at a miscellaneous shower by the felowmembers of the office staff of the Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, the event taking place at the home of Miss Barbara Clark, Charlotte Street.

Radio Artist Visiting City

Mr. Stanley Hoban, a baritone soloist with the C.B.C., and Mrs. Hoban, his accompanist, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. F. F. McNeely, 414 Water street. Mr. and Mrs. Hoban, who formerly lived in Winnipeg, are planning to make their home in Toronto, where they will continue their radio, concert and church work, as well as teaching.

One of the pioneers in radio work, Mr. Hoban, who came to Canada from Scotland in 1920, has been singing with the C.B.C. since 1922. He and his wife were in London, England, a few years ago, busy with the B.B.C. and stage and concert engagements, returning to Canada in 1938 to take up residence in Winnipeg, where they were well-known and had a wide circle of friends and associates.

Women In Governing Roles Challenge Given to LCW

A direct challenge to women to accept their responsibility; take more interest and participate in their country's affairs; and a searching analysis of wartime conditions to-day, was presented by Miss Stella Cuffe and Mrs. H. L. Luffman, special speakers at the regular meeting of the Local Council of Women, Thursday afternoon in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A.

Mrs. Luffman, who is president of the Women Electors' Association of Toronto, cited the lack of personal responsibility as one of the prime reasons leading up to the world crisis which precipitated the present war. She said that three main wrongs, bad housing, malnutrition, and unemployment, conditions which preceded the war, were a definite prelude to it, and that juvenile delinquency, child care, hospitalization and recreation were vital problems to be met today.

Canadian women have a great responsibility," she continued, "and must put forth an effort to be of real value, and have a voice in matters concerning the government. They must realize their status." Outlining the various improvements and reforms the Women Electors' Association has backed, and obtained in Toronto, Mrs. Luffman stressed the value of public opinion. She said that the Association, after carefully considering and compiling all the facts to be gleaned on a certain needed reform, sent representatives to various organizations in the city, explaining the situation to them. With the backing of these groups, the resolution was then presented to the city department which it concerned, carrying with it the weight of the backing of an average of 30 men's and women's groups throughout the city.

One of the most interesting facts Mrs. Luffman presented to the meeting was her explanation of a verbatim report of city council meetings, which is compiled by two members of the Association who are always present at council meetings. This report is mimeographed, and available to anyone.

Miss Stella Cuffe, sister of Mrs. C. H. Stuart, 583 George street, formerly of Peterborough, and now of St. Catharines, has had several years' experience as an alderman in that city, and was also a member of the Board of Education and a teacher by profession. She brought years of experience as a background to her talk on the joint topic, "Civic Affairs, and Women's Place in Civic Affairs."

Challenge to Women.

Miss Cuffe said that women's somewhat flimsy place in administration was being challenged, and that good citizenship demanded knowledge and participation. "Democracy is a living thing," she continued, "and must be supported by vigilance, or it will disintegrate, and war is the penalty. If this had been understood earlier, there would have been no war, but men, as well as women, must waken to the realization that the responsibility of democracy rests with each of them."

After dealing with the problem of public health, and citing statistics showing the many difficulties still to be surmounted, Miss Cuffe turned to her "pet theory." She felt that women, with their different viewpoint, had a particular contribution to make to society. Speaking to the women present, as representatives of organizations, she said, "You maintain and defend you right to share the responsibility and governing of your home equally with your husband. Then why not share this responsibility in the community? After all, the community, and the province, and the country, are just collections of homes." She was addressing her remarks principally to women whose families had grown up, or those without the responsibility of families.

Going on to explain that the home in which the man and woman work together, pooling their particular views and talents, was a happy and well-managed home, Miss Cuffe asked why women did not want to contribute their talents and abilities to their community. Continuing along this line of thought, she said that "the pattern of the community affects your children. Children spend more time outside their home than they do inside, and therefore the contacts they make in the community should be of vital interest to every mother."

Spirited Co-operation.

Concluding on a high note, Miss Cuffe cited the battle of Britain as an emaple of a triumph of democracy, since it was brought about by men, women and children, working together under municipal government. She said that a study of city government would give an idea of the handling of provincial and federal affairs, and urged the women to waken to a realization of their responsibilities, and to have representation in the government.

After Mrs. H. Tremaine had read the laws concerning mother's allowances, members decided, on a motion by Mrs. W. Addyman, to name a committee to look into the matter of improving the allotments, and making the laws in this respect better known. Mrs. W. H. Morton, the president, was authorized to attend a special meeting of the sub-executive of the provincial Council, to be held in Toronto in November. Disappointment was expressed at the unfortunate weather conditions which resulted in a comparatively small turnout for the Council's afternoon tea. The meeting voted a sum of money to supplement the proceeds of the tea, to make a donation of $50 for the Memorial Community Centre.

Mrs. W. L. Hepburn, guest soloist, sang "Land of Hope and Glory," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. W. Greenslade. Miss M. Patterson introduced both speakers, and Mrs. W. Boorne moved the vote of thanks to the speakers and the soloist.

Soldiers Enjoy Dance Party

A lively, well-planned dance at the Training Centre canteen Thursday evening marked the opening of the fall program of entertainment being planned by Supervisor Ernest Irwin, of the Auxiliary Services, who was in charge of arrangements. About 130 soldiers and friends were in attendance.

The Citizens' Co-ordinating Commitee arranged the orchestra, and the recreation committee of the Citizens' Committee, with Mrs. J. K. Hughes as chairman and Miss Gertrude Cox as co-chairman, arranged for 40 junior hostesses from the Westclox, C.G.E., Genelco and W.V.S. canteen group. Senior hostesses were Miss Florence Scott, Mrs. E. M. Campbell and Miss G. Cox.

The evening's activities opened with a bingo dance, which got everybody on the floor, and the master of ceremonies, Sgt. Arthur Hudson, assisted by C.S.M. Eva McIllhagga, C.W.A.C., kept the spirit of fun alive throughout the dance, awarding prizes for spot dances, jitterbug contests and other specialties. Refreshments were in charge of Sgt. Joe DeNoble of the canteen staff, and members of the C.W.A.C. assisted.

Victory Girdle Is Synthetic

OTTAWA, Oct. 20 — (CP). — The long pull to get a workable answer to Canadian women's No. 2 prayer—No. 1 is stockings—is almost over.

Synthetic rubber girdles — perhaps not quite as snappy as the old two-way stretch — will soon be on the market as a result of successful experiments with neoprene, a synthetic latex suited to the production of rubber thread.

"Owing to developments in the United States we can expect to get new and improved girdles on the market soon," R. Geddes, chief of the supply division of the Prices Board, said today. "The American experiments turned out well."

Samples of the new victory model —a little unmentionable of tea-rose neoprene—have been worn for some time by Washington Government girls who volunteered to test it as part of their home-front war effort.

They report that it is "very satisfactory" and launders "nicely."

However, the new neoprene models will not appear on Canadian store counters immediately as the new thread will not be released to manufacturers until there is a sufficient bank to take care of essential needs, including surgical elastic hose.

Employees Of Ten Industries Report Reaching Objective In 7th Loan To Hon. J. L. Ilsley

With a glow of enthusiasm surpassing the achieving spirit of its precedent and unbroken series of successes in subscribing to the nation's war bonds, Peterborough lighted the Flaming Sword, symbol of the Seventh Victory Loan, with impressive and dramatic effect in the presence of Canada's wartime Minister of Finance, Hon. J. L. Ilsley, at a dinner meeting of city and county canvassers in the C.G.E.-Genelco cafeteria Thursday night.

The immediate purpose of Mr. Ilsley's visit was formally to open Peterborough's Seventh Victory Loan campaign. The pith of his address was an appeal to the people of the city and district to increase their subscriptions to this new loan to the utmost extent of their means, to explain to them the broad significance of the slogan of the Seventh Loan—"Invest in Victory", and to warn them anew against the dangers of inflation.

The Minister was asking Peterborough people to buy more bonds than ever, and before the echoes of his message had settled into the thoughts of his large audience, he was presented with a list of Peterborough group investors, lenders of their money to the Government of Canada, who have already exceeded their objectives in the Seventh Loan, without waiting for the official opening of the campaign next Monday.

And after reading that list, an earnest of Peterborough's response to the new Loan, D. G. H. Melton, dinner chairman, pledged the community to exceed its total minimum objective, and add another accomplishment to the record of this county and city in helping to finance the long struggle to victory.

The groups of employees in factories and shops who were cited to Mr. Ilsley as having "beaten the starting gun" were as follows:—

Employees of the Quaker Oats Company, 135 per cent of their objective with 95 per cent of the staff subscribing. Their objective is $48,600, and they have subscribed $65,750.

Employees of B. F. Ackerman, Son & Company, 115 per cent of objective; 97 per cent investing.

Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Company:—152 per cent of objective; 97 per cent buying bonds.

Canadian Nashua Paper Co.—121 per cent of objective; 95 per cent of employees buying bonds.

Colonial Weaving Company — 169 per cent of objective; 94 per cent of employees buying bonds.

Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Limited:— 118 per cent of objective; 95 per cent investing.

Peterborough Lock Company — 109 per cent of objective; 96 per cent buying bonds.

A. Wander Limited (Ovaltine):— 104 per cent of objective; 100 per cent of employees.

Bell Telephone employees—130 per cent of objective; 98 per cent investing.

George Whitaker & Company — 115 per cent of objective; 100 per cent investing.

The following were quoted in the group payroll division:

J. C. Poolman Manufacturing Co. —187 per cent of objective; 100 per cent investing.

Selkirk Men's Shop—180 per cent of objective; 100 per cent investing.

Canadian Department Stores Limited—143 per cent of objective; 100 per cent of staff investing.

Zeller's Limited—147 per cent of objective; 100 per cent investing.

F. W. Woolworth Co.—112 per cent; 100 per cent investing.

S. S. Kresge Co.—115 per cent; 96 per cent investing.

Lucky Strike Bait Works—186 per cent of objective; 100 per cent investing.

Hamilton Furs—136 per cent of objective; 100 per cent investing.

Minister's Reply

Following Mr. Melton's summary of pre-campaign results, Hon. Mr. Ilsley presented to Gordon S. Matthews, chairman of the National Finance Committee for the city and county, the symbolic plaque of the Seventh Victory Loan "in commemoration of the objective assigned to this unit and as a token of your acceptance of your objective in this largest Loan ever attempted by the Canadian people."

The Minister expressed his thanks to the members of the War Finance Committee for the great job they have done in the previous Loans, to the men and women of the city and country for their loyal support, "and my best wishes for even greater action in this Seventh Victory Loan".

Mr. Ilsley said he was deeply impressed by the beginning already reported in this "unit", and no words were adequate to convey the appreciation which he felt on hearing the many names already associated with exceeded objectives. He read the letter from the employees of the Quaker Oats Company, announcing the result of their collective subscriptions, and applied to it the tribute "an excellent letter, beautifully expressed."

In making these acknowledgments Hon. Mr. Ilsley said: "But, I don't wish for one moment to say anything that might seem to indicate I hadn't an appreciation of what the employees of other firms in Peterborough are doing, if not quite so early in completion as those named. The record of this city in our Victory Loans has been most honorable."

Lighting the Sword

The symbolism of the lighting of the Flaming Sword of the Seventh Victory Loan invested the setting of the meeting and the spirit of the approaching campaign with a touch of ceremony that was strikingly presented. By rheostatic control, from the resources of the C.G.E., the lights of the spacious dining room were slowly dimmed with the sounding of the Last Post. In the darkness all eyes were fixed on the wall decorations behind the speakers' table, and its central design, the Flaming Sword superimposed on the large numeral figure seven. During the minutes of prayer a light flushed behind the colored glass of the symbolic figures and gradually brightened to their full illumination, appearing with seeming mystic effect as the challenge of the Seventh Loan to the hundreds of canvassers in the hushed and darkened silence. Two flickering candles at the head table burned alone during Rev. W. A. Filer's "prayer for the fallen", in tribute to the sacrifice of Canada's defenders. Then with the reverse of control the lights slowly returned to brightness as the Reveille was blown. The meeting proceeded with its program as Mr. Matthews introduced the guest speaker, Hon. Mr. Ilsley. But, attention was previously directed by Mr. Melton to the presence of three young men of the Canadian armed services, Flying Officer Donald Hill; First Class Seaman Cecil Cournyea; and Private Francis Page of that famous Ontario regiment the "Hastie-Pees", (Hastings-Prince Edward), sitting together at a table directly in front of the Minister. These young Peterborough men were living symbols of Canada's fighting forces and of the victory that is pounding along the frontiers of Germany.

Every detail of that dinner for the city and county canvassers was splendidly carried out, fitting together as an accentuating background to the distinguished visitor, Hon. Mr. Ilsley and his message. A program of music was played by the active service 48th Highlanders Band of Camp Borden, also known as A-11 Canadian Machine Gun Training Band, under the direction of WO-L Harry Thompson, who played with Paul Whiteman, conducted his own S.S. Leviathan band and was also a member of the Kansas City Symphony Orchestra.

They are a smart organization with an ensemble of tone balance and harmony, precision and a verve that made an immediate hit with the audience. Russ Titus, one of the bandsmen, varied the program with songs that delighted the crowd.

At the head table with Mr. Melton as chairman, and Mr. Ilsley, were Mr. Matthews, Alderman Glover, representing Mayor Hamilton, Rev. Wm. A. Filer, representing the Ministerial Society, Bishop J. R. MacDonald, and Reeve M. H. Johnston, representing Warden I. Anderson.

Below them sat: Judge Smoke, Lieut.-Col. Jas. Turnbull, David Leether, H. T. Cranford, Clarence Neal, L. H. Ingram, Reg. R. Faryon, Ian F. McRae, Thomas Glover, Fred J. Overend, G. H. Cutmore, W. A. Richardson, Chas. Lacheur; Senator Iva C. Fallis, Gordon K. Fraser, M.P., G. Wilson Craw, Vincent Eastwood, R. L. Dobbin, Chris Hughes, Robert Abbott, D. J. Fitzgerald, J. E. Keyes, C. L. McCutcheon, S. E. Nixon, private secretary to the Minister.

Letters regretting absence from the dinner were received from Harold R. Scott, M.P.P., and Senator Duffus.

Alderman Glover extended the assembly's thanks to Mr. Ilsley, and also recognition of his ability and earnestness and adaptability for the great responsibility that had been assigned to him as Minister of Finance. In a brief concluding address Bishop MacDonald wishing success to the canvassers in the work they were undertaking said the Battle of Germany was now begun, and it remained for the people at home to help win it by their subscriptions to the Seventh Victory Loan.

EASY WAY TO RELIEVE
ACHES AND PAINS

Here is a simple, easy way to get relief from the agony of swollen, rheumatic joints and muscular aches and pains. Go to Tamblyn's and get a bottle of Ru-Ma. If you are not pleased with the help it gives you—go get your money back. This is a generous offer you can not afford to ignore.—(Advt.)

GEN. MACARTHUR KEEPS PROMISE— Gen. Douglas MacArthur is commanding the American combined forces attempting to recapture the Philippines as he promised at Bataan and Corregidor. Here he is aboard a warship on the way.

For Saturday, October 21

AUGURIES are for a sudden turn of events, radically affecting the personal as well as business career, the finances, environs and romantic ties as well. There may be public as well as private issues at stake, in which it might be easy to make disastrous mistakes, with loss of funds, prestige and social, domestic or emotional stability. Unusual conservatism with funds, energies and health are recommended. With caution there may be beneficial change, travel and romance.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year of sudden and drastic change, with fresh adventures of magnitude and far reaching importance in the business and private life. Singular opportunities or situations may manifest demanding the utmost sound judgment and conservation of funds, resources, nerves and impulses, lest there be devastating loss in lieu of pleasant and profitable change, dramatic adventure, and romance.

A child born on this day should have exceptional creative talents, ingenuity and skill, indicating a dramatic, romantic and thrilling career, if it is not carried to extremes by erratic or emotional extravagances or impulses.

CRUSH SUPERIORITY COMPLEX

Girl Can Meet Eligible Men at Parties, Alter Views When Urged to Quit Home For a Time.

DEAR MISS DIX—I have a sister who is just about the sweetest, finest person one could ever want to know. She is thoroughly intelligent and has a sparkling personality, but she keeps it hidden under a bushel because she has an inferiority complex that was developed by our misguided parents who constantly threw her awkwardness and lack of beauty at her. She has ugly teeth and has to wear glasses, but I do not think that these bad features should wreck her. Yet at the age of 28 she is letting the joy of living slip through her fingers.

What can I do to help her?

BONNIE.

Defects Not Handicaps

ANSWER—You can write off the glasses as negligible as a handicap to your sister. Practically everybody is wearing them. In spite of Dorothy Parker's wisecrack about boys not making passes at girls in glasses, they do, or else the wedding bells wouldn't be ringing merrily so often as they do. No physical defect is easier remedied than bad teeth, and after a few sessions with a skillful orthodonist and a good dressmaker your sister would probably emerge looking like Cincerella after she had been touched by the wand of a Fairy Godmother.

But something with boiling oil in it should be done to the parents who kill all of their children's self-confidence and initiative by continually reminding them of some physical blemish or mental inferiority. By harping upon their youngsters' shortcomings they only exaggerate them because they make them feel that they are somehow disgraced, and they shrink into themselves and fail to make the best of whatever good qualities Nature gave them.

You can help your sister by not only seeing that she reconditions herself, but by getting her away from the home atmosphere that keeps her from putting her best foot foremost. And you can help her to get a husband by giving her little intimate parties where she will meet a few eligible men.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a woman 43 years old. Have been divorced several years. For the past four years I have been keeping steady company with a man of 34 who wishes to marry me. I hesitate, although I love him dearly and he is all that I could wish for in a husband, because of the difference in age. He thinks it will make no difference and gives me until December to decide. What do you think?

◆ ◆ ◆ MARY.

Difference In Ages Not Detrimental

ANSWER—I think there is an age limit on age. And that you are on the safe side of it. If the man were 24 instead of 34 and you were 9 years older, you might well hesitate to marry him, but inasmuch as he is past the danger zone and is adult and knows his own mind, if he is ever going to, I do not think that a few years difference matters.

On the contrary, I think that the young man is a wise picker, for no women are such husband-spoilers as those who are a little older than their husbands and who feel that they must always keep on their tip toes to make up for not being teen-agers.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—Why is it that a grownup girl who will cheerfully parade around her town, (say in the suburbs) in a pair of shorts and a tight sweater; who will appear on the beaches in the smallest of bras and a pair of tight trunks (no, I didn't say even shorts) when she sits down in the usual short skirt of today, invariably tries to pull it over her knees?

CYNIC.

ANSWER—Only God, who made women the way they are and who neglected to give all of them the kind of legs you like to look at, knows. Personally, when I behold the average mill run of feminine gams, I marvel that even the government could force short skirts, to say nothing of scanties, on women. Certainly it doesn't do it with mirrors.

Will Teach Japs Lesson Roosevelt Says

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 —(AP)— President Roosevelt hailed the invasion of the Philippines today with the assertion that "we have the will and the power" to teach Japan "the cost of treachery and deceit."

With the other Allies, he said, "We shall teach this lesson so that Japan will never forget it."

As American troops plunged into the central Philippines, Mr. Roosevelt in a statement promised freedom to the islands as soon as Gen. MacArthur's forces clear out the Japanese, saying:

"We shall free the enslaved peoples. We shall restore stolen goods and looted wealth to their rightful owners. We shall strangle the black dragon of Japanese militarism forever."

The president declared that "we have learned our lesson about Japan. We trusted her and treated her with decency due a civilized neighbor. We were foully betrayed. The price of the lesson was high. Now we are going to teach Japan her lesson."

Redeems Pledge

The Philippine invasion redeems the pledge made when American troops surrendered on Corregidor and marks another "way station on the road to Japan," he said, adding: "we promised to return, we have returned."

In a message to Gen. MacArthur, the president said "you have the nation's gratitude and the nation's prayers for success as you and your men fight your way back to Bataan. The whole American nation today exults at the news that the gallant men under your command have landed on Philippine soil."

In messages to Admirals Nimitz and Halsey, the president said "your fine co-operation with Gen. MacArthur furnishes another example of teamwork and the effective and intelligent use of all weapons."

The president in another message asked President Osmena to tell the Philippine people that "when the Japanese invaders have been driven out, the Philippines will take their place as a free and independent member of the family of nations."

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP

No time to lose. Those overseas boxes must be on their way. No man is going to be very thrilled by the affection behind the gift, if the contents of that gift package do not carry well. So stick to the safe gifts, those that will not spoil, in the two months they may take to reach their destination. Today our recipes will be for food that will save and carry well.

Nut Strips

2 tablespoons shortening, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 small cup brown sugar, 1 cup once-sifted pastry flour, 1½ teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon grated nutmeg, 1 egg well beaten, ¼ cup chopped walnuts, or other nut meats, ½ teaspoon vanilla. Melt the shortening and add sugar. Stir over a low heat until mixture is thoroughly carmelized. Cool slightly. Measure and sift together the flour, baking powder, salt and grated nutmeg. When the caramel mixture has cooled sufficiently, stir in the beaten eggs and then the sifted dry ingredients, the nutmeats and vanilla. Spread in a buttered, floured eight-inch square pan. Bake in a moderate oven, 30 to 35 minutes. Cut into strips while warm, then turn out and roll in sugar.

Chocolate Chip Cookies

1¼ cups once-sifted pastry flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup shortening, ¼ cup butter, ¾ cup brown sugar, lightly packed, 1 egg well beaten, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ½ cup broken walnut meats, 4 ounces semi-sweet chocolate. Measure and sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Cream together and gradually work in brown sugar. Add beaten egg, a little at a time, beating well after each addition. Stir in vanilla, nutmeats, and semi-sweet chocolate which should be cut up into pieces, about the size of small peas. Add the dry ingredients half at a time, working the mixture enough to blend well. Drop by spoonsful, one inch apart, on a buttered cookie sheet. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 15 or 20 minutes. More of these recipes will be given in tomorrow's paper.

Pay For Crimes

ALBANY, N.Y., Oct. 20—(AP)— Gov. Thomas E. Dewey endorsed last night a state department warning to Nazi leaders that they would "pay the penalty for their heinous crimes" if they carried out reported plans to exterminate Poles, Jews and other non-German nationals held in concentration camps.

Clergy's Quiet Day

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 20 — (ENS). — A Clergy's Quiet Day was held Tuesday at St. John the Baptist Anglican Church. The Venerable Archdeacon Sawers, the Venerable Archdeacon Simpson and other clergy attended. Holy Communion commenced at 8.30, after which followed a quiet hour. Archdeacon Sawers was the principal speaker, and the W.A. catered for breakfast and dinner.

IN MEMORIAM

PILON—In loving memory of Oliver Pilon, who passed away October 22nd, 1943.

Upright and just in all his ways,
Faithful and true to the end of his days,
In silence he suffered, in patience he bore,
'Til God called him home, to suffer no more.

—Fondly remembered by his brother, Albert Pilon and family.

HAY—In loving memory of my husband, and our father, John L. Hay, who passed away October 22nd, 1943.

If all the world, was mine to give,
I'd give it yes, and more,
To see the one I loved so well,
Come smiling through our door.

—Ever remembered by his loving wife and family.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. A. W. Millen, 175 London St., wishes to thank her friends for the flowers, good wishes, and other kindness shown during her recent illness. Appreciation is extended especially to the nurses in Nicholls Hospital and the Ladies' Aid of St. Paul's Church.

Brigade, Neighbours Save Farmer's Barn

CAVAN, Oct. 20 (ENS)—A building owned by Wilfred Reynolds, 8th Line of Cavan, which caught fire Wednesday afternoon threatened to destroy his barn as well. When the fire was noticed, Mrs. Reynolds went to the barn to help fight the blaze while her daughter, Betty, turned in the alarm. Neighbous and the Millbrook fire brigade answered the call and due to their efforts, the barn was saved. Cause of the blaze is not known.

Raisins, Nuts, On Way Here

Shelled almonds for Christmas needs are on their way to Canada from Portugal and Spain, but the supply will be limited, according to word yesterday from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Currants and raisins are also on their way from Australia and should be here within the fortnight; substantial quantities of lemon and orange peel for Christmas puddings will be brought in from the United States, but imported citron peel will be unobtainable. Candy supply will be the same as last year, allowing for the drain occassioned by the increased demands for sweets for overseas parcels.

Cattle Prices Shade Lower Calves Steady

TORONTO, Oct. 20.— (CP).—Cattle trade was very dull with prices steady to a shade lower, on the livestock market here this week. Calves were steady. Hogs were 10 cents higher. Lambs gained 25 cents and sheep held steady.

Cattle trade began with a holdover of 1,000 head from last week and this was increased to about 3,000 head. Choice weighty steers sold at $11.75 to $12 with common steers downward to $9. Common to medium butcher steers sold at $8 to $10.25. Butcher heifers were $8 to $10.50. Fed yearlings opened at $13.50 for tops and closed at a range of $11.50 to $13. Butcher cows sold slowly at $7 to $9 and a few canners as low as $5. Bulls were $6 to $7.50. Stockers sold at $5 to $9 cwt. with good stock calves up to $10. Milkers and springers were steady at $130 to $150 for tops.

Calves closed dull wtih several hundred unsold. Choice vealers were $14 to $15 with heavy western calves from $7.50 to $11. Thin grassers sold to packers at $5.50.

Lambs were $12.50 to $13 for good ewes and wethers wtih bucks at $11.50 to $12 and culls $7 to $8. Sheep were $2 to $4.25. Closing lambs trade was very dull wtih several hundred head unsold.

Hogs closed at $17.35 for grade B1, off trucks at yards and local packing plants. Grade A hogs were $$17.65 to $17.75. Sows were $13 dressed.

Japanese May Upset Plans

OTTAWA, Oct. 20.—(CP).—Authorities here warn against undue optimism pending the completion of hopeful arrangements recently made for the exchange of cabled messages between Allied prisoners of war and interned civilians in Japanese hands with their next-of-kin.

The arrangement depends on the Japanese authorities' co-operation and on facilities for transmission. It has been suggested that next-of-kin refrain from attempting to send messages to the prisoners until they have first heard from the people in the hands of the Japanese.

Under the arrangement, the messages, which are to be rationed at one sent and one received by a prisoner each year with a maximum of 10 words exclusive of address and signature, will be routed from Japan through Geneva. Red Cross organizations are paying the cost.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

A GOOD USE FOR IT

AN INADEQUATELY guarded trump honor—such as a king alone, a queen with one other card or a jack with either one or two other cards—is probably destined never to take a trump trick if the declarer has all higher honors in his own hand and the dummy. So such a card can be a trick-taker only when used for ruffing. But it may serve an equally valuable function. Ruffing a trick with it, and thereby forcing the declarer to over-ruff with a higher honor, may promote the next lower card into the rank of a trick-winner for your partner.

North: ♠ A K 9 2 ♥ 9 6 4 ♦ 10 2 ♣ 10 7 5 2
West: ♠ Q 4 ♥ K J 10 8 5 ♦ A 8 ♣ K J 4 3
East: ♠ J 3 ♥ Q 3 2 ♦ Q J 7 5 3 ♣ 9 8 6
South: ♠ 10 8 7 6 5 ♥ A 7 ♦ K 9 6 4 ♣ A Q

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1♠	2♥	2♠	Pass
4♠

West scored his diamond A and, for dislike to leading from his heart or club holdings, repeated the suit, the J forcing the K. South decided to get rid of his losing diamonds promptly, so led the 6.

Realizing that his Q would never be a regular winner of a trump trick, West, a fine defensive player, came right in with that card to force one of the dummy's top two spades. His hope was that East had the J, with at least a single guard. Sure enough, that is just what occurred. South overruffed the spade Q with the K, and then laid down the spade A, hoping he could catch the J. But he could not, as East had a guard for it. That made the J a certain trick.

Now the declarer's sole chance for his contract was that the club finesse would work. When it failed, his cause was doomed, as he had no way to avoid the loss of a heart for the fourth trick by the defenders.

If West had not sacrificed his spade Q, right under the guns of the higher honors, the declarer would have made his contract.

Of course, South might have eliminated the hostile trumps immediately after getting the lead with the diamond K—but he did not. He gave West a chance to beat him.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ 5 ♥ A 8 ♦ A K 10 9 5 3 ♣ A Q 8 4
West: ♠ A K Q 10 6 3 ♥ Q J ♦ J 8 ♣ K J 2
East: ♠ J 8 7 4 ♥ K 10 9 5 3 2 ♦ Q 7 ♣ 9
South: ♠ 9 2 ♥ 7 6 4 ♦ 6 4 2 ♣ 10 7 6 5 3

(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

If East and West bid only spades and North, besides doubling informatively, bids only diamonds, winding up in 5-Diamonds, why is the singleton club an unsound lead for East?

St. Thomas' W.A. Hears Of China

MILLBROOK, Oct. 20 (ENS) — The October meeting of the W.A. of St. Thomas' Anglican church was held at the president's home Tuesday evening, Mrs. J. W. Hilton reading the lesson, and the prayers being taken by Mrs. C. M. Westmacott and Mrs. W. E. Massey-Cooke.

The Dorcas secretary, Mrs. H. J. Russell, reported work under way for the spring bale, the list of articles required was read. From the Junior W.A. came announcement that it is having a lecture illustrated by lantern slides in the parish hall in order to raise funds, on Friday, October 20, and asking support.

The senior society decided not to hold its usual fall tea, but to have a box on the table at each meeting in which voluntary givings may be placed, hoping in this way to make up the amount needed. The Guild will hold its tea in the waiting room, with a sale of fancy articles and home baking, November 4.

Since none of the members had been able to attend the annual Deanery meeting at Blackstock, the rector's wife, Mrs. William Simpson, had kindly sent a report of the sessions which was read by the secretary, notice being given that next year's gathering will be at Christ church, Bailieboro. The new Deanery officer is Mrs. Pooley, wife of the rector of Omemee parish.

Mrs. Westmacott told of the arrival in Toronto of Rev. William Simpson and his wife, missionaries in China, after a most exciting time in making their escape from that country. They had to leave behind them all their possessions; were bombed as they were forced to walk many miles over rough roads, during which time Mr. Simpson received leg injuries, of a serious nature. Finally they reached India where they had a long wait before they could obtain passage on a boat which landed them in California. When they arrived in Toronto, a number of missionaries and theological students met them at the train and gave them quite an ovation. Archdeacon and Mrs. Simpson were also in Toronto for the arrival of their son, and his wife, their marriage having taken place in China.

Miss Rose Macnamara took up a brief study of missions in Burma, the fact that the Burmese are not very willing to accept Christianity is a challenge to more courageous endeavor, she said. Mrs. Massey-Cooke was the supper hostess.

Red Armies 12 Miles Into Germany

City Of Belgrade Cleared Of German Soldiers

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Oct. 21—(AP).—Marshal Tito's Yugoslav Partisans, freed for new actions by the capture of their capital, Belgrade, joined with the Red Army today in drives toward the Croatian puppet seat of Zagreb and Budapest, the strife-torn Hungarian capital.

Zagreb lies 225 miles northwest of Belgrade in the Sava River valley. Budapest is on the Danube 190 miles north of Belgrade.

East and southeast of Budapest, other Russian forces supplemented by Romanian units rumbled up three main highways leading to the Hungarian capital, but they encountered stiff resistance from large German tank and anti-tank forces beyond the Tisza River.

The number of German captives seized in the liberation of Belgrade swelled toward 10,000 as the Russians and Yugoslavs mopped up every corner of the broken city, digging storm troops from cellars and attics of blasted buildings. Large numbers of enemy troops were seized along the Danube and Sava, where they had run in desperation before the wildly celebrating troops of Tito.

Booty Plentiful.

A great amount of German equipment, including tanks and self-propelled guns fell to the conquering Yugoslav-Russian armies after nearly a week of fiery street fighting in the city.

Lieut. Velimir Terzich, head of Marshal Tito's military mission in the Soviet Union, called the occupation of Belgrade "a very important strategical junction for carrying the offensive into Germany."

Red Star said the city was taken with a four-column drive extending from the southeast to the southwest with a Danube flotilla coming up under the cover of darkness and pouring salvoes at the enemy from the rear. Gen. Feodor I. Tolbukhin directed the Russian attack.

Meanwhile, Marshal Stalin also has announced the capture of Hungary's third city—Debrecen—a conquest that broke the back of Ger-

Labor Congress Lashes Col. Drew

QUEBEC, Oct. 21 (CP)—The Canadian Congress of Labor last night called on Premier George Drew of Ontario to "refrain from interfering in the Dominion fields of jurisdiction" and "assume his primary responsibility of his own program."

The resolution which the fifth annual convention of the congress adopted unanimously, supported the demand of the Ontario Federation of Labor that a special session of the Ontario Legislature be called.

The resolution said in Part:

"Coming as they do from every province in the Dominion of Canada, the delegates to this convention look with serious concern at the interference of Premier Drew of Ontario in several important fields of Dominion jurisdiction.

"Such interference is typified by his attempts to set-up what is the equivalent of a special immigration policy for the province of Ontario without due consultation with the other provinces or the Federal government under whose jurisdiction immigration properly comes; his deliberate attempts at inflaming the minds of the people in trying to frustrate family allowance legislation which was passed by parliament and approved by representatives of all parties in the House of Commons, including those from the party for whom Premier Drew claims the right to speak.

"His constant campaign and advocacy of division among the several provinces notably those of Quebec and the West have been the means of developing acute tension in the minds of the people of the whole country.

"Be it therefore resolved that this congress urge Premier Drew of Ontario to refrain from interfering in the Dominion fields of jurisdiction which are beyond his scope of responsibility, and immediately proceed to assume his primary responsibility of implementing his own program in the interests of the people of Ontario whom he was elected to govern...."

War Souvenirs

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 — (AP).—William G. Lehman of the United States office of surplus war property said 25,000 pairs of officers' spurs and several hundred thousand cartridge clips had been sold to radio advertisers, presumably for souvenir distribution; smudge pots have gone to citrus growers, 4,700 klaxon horns to boat builders, and 1,200,000 cuspidors with lids removed for use as stew pots.

McNaughton Rules Out All Compulsion

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 21.—(CP).—Compulsion should hold no place in Canadian policy, Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, retired commander of the Canadian army overseas, today told a Queen's University convocation gathering.

He spoke of the need for the development of tolerant leaders who, in the hard days ahead when tough post-war problems would have to be solved, would find the solution through an unpassioned interchange of views.

He told the students they were the future leaders and he asked them that in finding solutions they listen to all the arguments and seize on those features which commend themselves to general assent. Prompt action should then be taken to give those features full effect and on other points the future leaders should agree to disagree.

"When you come, as you will, to places of authority and influence, and you face the acute issues which may divide our country part from part, may I commend this principle of action to your best thought and interest — compulsion is ruled out; we proceed by agreement, or for a time we rest content to not proceed at all," he said.

The general, whose daughter Leslie sat among the students, also spoke of the need for more widespread education among the masses and he told of the work in this direction that had been done in the active army.

Plans For Soldiers

He spoke of plans for soldier studies which would result "in tens of thousands of the best of our youth turning their attention to study while they remain in the armies of occupation, and when they come back to Canada they will be most anxious to continue."

He told of a government plan to meet tuition fees and provide allowances for everyone who could show he was capable and would benefit. The scope of this plan extended to post-graduate studies.

"I say to you that the young men and women in our armed forces today, as never before, are conscious of their need for education—they are very serious in their intent to equip themselves for their careers in the

65-Mile Advance Reported In Greece

ROME, Oct. 21 — (AP). —British patrols are closing in on the Greek town of Lamaia, about 100 miles north-west of Athens, Allied Headquarters announced to-day.

German troops are believed to have withdrawn from the town. It is 65 miles beyond Thebes, which Allied troops were reported yesterday to have occupied.

Lamia is at the head of the Gulf of Lamia and beyond the historic Thermoplyae Pass where the British fought a grim covering action for Allied troops evacuating Greece after withdrawal from the Mount Olympus sector early in 1941.

The Germans knocked out the Tommies out of the Pass late in April, 1941, but not without severe losses.

Today, the Germans were travelling at more accelerated pace in the opposite direction and the communique said British aircraft flying from newly occupied Greek airfields were harassing the retreat.

Rain-Soaked Fields Slow Canucks

Thick Minefields Add To Grief North Of Antwerp

By WILLIAM FRYE
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 21 — (AP). — The 1st Canadian Army, slugging methodically through rain-soaked fields and thickets north of Antwerp, pushed its three-pronged offensive four miles nearer Roosendaal and Breda today, while American troops hunted down remnants of the German garrison in the outskirts of captured Aachen.

British infantry and Canadian tanks entered the road-junction of Wuestwezel, 13 miles north and slightly east of Antwerp on the Antwerp-Breda highway, and sent patrols probing out a mile or two northwest of the town. Two other columns, in twin-drives along the roads to Roosendaal, seized Calmpthout and neared the Roosendaal Canal.

This offensive was the second phase of the battle to win use of Antwerp port as a supply base. The first phase was drawing to an end west of Antwerp, with Canadians steadily closing in on the German pocket around Brekens south of the Schelde Estuary.

This flat country is thinly wooded all along the front and a great deal of mopping-up had to be done as the advance continues. It's slow and difficult work but gains gradually are being extended.

The area south of the Roosendaal canal is heavily mined. The Germans are using mines which leap into the air on contact, spraying small lead pellets at waist height.

Old French and Belgian shells are being used as mines and booby traps in the villages and woods.

The Germans are doing a lot of sniping and most of the mine-fields are covered by adequate enemy machine-gun fire. However, considering the nature of the country and the bad weather overnight, the advance has gone satisfactorily.

In eastern Holland, United States forces pushed within 4,000 yards of a German communications strongpoint near the Maas River. British 2nd Army troops meanwhile consolidated positions southeast of Venray on the Netherlands battlefront.

Bitter fighting raged on the outskirts of Aachen's ruins, but supreme headquarters announced that the main part of the battered city is firmly held. American troops fought their way through the centre and ran the remnants of the enemy

Hurricane Toll Climbs To 37

RALEIGH, N.C., Oct. 21 (AP)—A death toll of 37 and great crop and property damage were counted Friday in the wake of a West Indian hurricane which swept across the interior of the Carolinas with diminishing force and headed into Virginia.

The loss of life and the bulk of the damage was confined to Cuba and Florida. No casualties and comparatively negligible damage were reported from the Carolinas although both States were drenched with heavy rains and experienced unusually high winds.

Twenty-four were known dead in Cuba, and Miami had two fatalities. Nine civilian crew members of a small tug from the New Orleans port of embarkation were reported drowned near Bradenton, Fla.

At midafternoon the Weather Bureau said the storm was in Central North Carolina, moving north-northeastward 20 to 25 miles an hour and steadily losing intensity and hurricane characteristics.

The bureau described it as "an ordinary severe storm," with winds 30 to 40 miles an hour over a 400-to-500-mile radius ahead of the storm.

Wrong Route

CHICAGO, Oct. 21—(AP).—A gunman in flight after an attempted robbery ran through a lot where schoolboys were praticing football. But before they could get close enough to tackle the man he ducked into a store—and into the arms of a city fireman who held him for police.

8th Army Units Slice Through Hun Rearguards

By LYNN HEINZERLING
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, Oct. 21 — (AP)—British 8th Army units burst through the rearguards of German parachute troops on the Adriatic sector to-day and occupied the coastal town of Vesenatico, 13 miles north of Rimini and 18 miles from Ravenna, the next coastal objective.

New Zealand and Canadian troops north-east of the fortress town and highway centre of Cesena made similar swift advances. Cesena was occupied and Allied troops were clearing one last enemy pocket on the western outskirts of the town, which is 12 miles south-east of Forli, boyhood home of Mussolini, on the Rimini-Bologna road.

"Considerable progress has been made by troops of the 8th Army in the Po Valley, north of the Rimini-Bologna road," the Allied communique said.

Rivers Uncertain.

While successes on the Adriatic sector do not mean a breakthrough of the German line, the fact that New Zealand armor has been able to thrust a little farther into the Po Valley raised the hope that the 8th Army might yet be able to bring its superior armored forces to bear in the wide plain stretching ahead. There are many river barriers in the area, however, and uncertain weather makes them formidable.

The Allied 5th Army which is driving north toward Bologna captured several high spots, but still was engaged in heavy fighting, particularly in the area north and north-east of recently-captured Livergnano. There the Germans increased their artillery fire and were

Canada Given First Cruiser

A UNITED STATES NAVY YARD, Oct. 21. — (CP) — Hon. Leighton McCarthy, Canadian ambassador to Washington, in a speech prepared for delivery today at the commissioning of Canada's first cruiser of this war—the Uganda—said this Trafalgar Day was a fitting anniversary on which to mark "the attainment of another milestone in the growth and stature" of the Canadian Navy.

He spoke of the Navy's growth—"nearly fifty-fold"—and its shift from a defensive escort fleet to the full fighting navy and said Canadian seamen now could "look forward to the waters of the South Pacific, or wherever the exigencies of war against Japan may lead them."

He accepted the modern warship from the British government and told of the Navy's debt to Britain "whose unstinted help guidance and co-operation made much of our progress possible."

He paid tribute to the work of the Navy yard for the ship's new "fighting trim" and also spoke of her Empire link with the Uganda protectorate which had equipped her and Tyneside which had built her.

Then he said:—"With such a fine ship, splendid officers and ship's company, I feel confident that His Majesty's Canadian ship Uganda will give a good account of herself and bring credit upon all those who serve in her."

Speaking of the various stages in the development of the Navy he recalled its growing responsibility in the Atlantic and added that in recent months in had "carried the whole burden almost single-handed."

Until to-day Canada's naval forces had consisted of "small ships, the fast, hard-hitting destroyer, the deadly frigate, the ubiquitous and sturdy corvette, the life-saving and courageous mine-sweeper, and all the sisterhood of fighting craft whose forte is dirty work at sea." And now a modern cruiser was added.

Invaders Near Two Airfields Making Rapid Gains 600 Ships Carried Troops

Japs Who Tortured Americans On Bataan Believed Among Defenders Total Plane Bag Exceeds 1,400 Craft

By C. Y. McDANIEL—Associated Press War Correspondent

GEN. MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Oct. 21—(AP).—The fall of two Japanese airfields appeared imminent today as well-supplied United States troops, backed by overwhelming naval and air might, drove inland on all sectors at Leyte in the central Philippines on the second day of invasion.

The 6,000-foot bomber field at Tacloban on the northeast was approached by one force. To the south, another force which advanced at such speed that Al Dopking, Associated Press war correspondent, said it was difficult to keep up with the men, was on the outskirts of an airfield near Dulag.

Japan's 16th Division, remembered for its torture of the Americans and Filipinos who surrendered at Bataan, had succeeded nowhere in mustering a large-scale counter-attack.

Pending the seize and utilization of land air bases, American planes from escort carriers swooped as flying artillery on the estimated 20,000 defenders of Leyte, blowing up pill-boxes and spewing death among motor convoys.

The enemy air force, operating from the few fields in the Philippines which could be momentarily repaired between carrier plane attacks, managed two scattered night raids against small units of the 600-ship convoy which carried the U.S. 6th Army and central Pacific units to the invasion.

A communique today acknowledged a torpedo hit on one vessel of undesignated size, while Japan belatedly acknowledged for the first time in an Imperial communique to the homeland that Allied forces have landed in the Tacloban area.

Landing Tough

Ground forces, under immediate command of Lt.-Gen. Walter Krueger, apparently encountered their most tenacious opposition just south of Cancabato Bay at Palo.

There Fred Hampson, Associated Press war correspondent, saw four of the landing ships and several smaller caft blown up by enemy shore guns.

For several hours it was touch and go with the invaders sloshing eshore through a hail of machine-gun bullets and Japanese shells.

"Our ground forces are consolidating their beachhead positions and driving inland on all sectors," said today's communique.

"Food and supplies have been landed on schedule against light opposition.

"Our ground casualties in the preliminary operation have been exceedingly light."

MacArthur, whose losing fight in 1942 was waged with a courageous but inadequately-supplied garrison, deprived in the end of all air and naval cover, brought back to the

Hitler May Sacrifice Many Cities

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

The cracking of the Siegfried Line, which now seems a certainty, poses the problem for Adolf Hitler whether to declare industrial and historical centres like Cologne, Coblenz, Mainz, Aulsburg, and Dusseldorf open cities, or whether to doom them to inevitable destruction in the pattern of Aachen.

These cities, as far as I could ascertain before I left Germany in May, 1942, are not fortified in the sense in which Aachen was a veritable citadel. The vaunted Atlantic wall was intended to be the first line of defence; the Westwall or Siegfried Line the second. Both were considered impregnable. It was a rude shock to the German people to see the Atlantic wall pierced so rapidly. They have had a little more time to accustom themselves to the fact that even the Siegfried Line is outmoded in view of the stupendous development of Allied fire-power.

It is at least doubtful whether Hitler and his general staff have prepared really effectively beyond these two fortifications systems.

18 Hun Planes Lost At Cologne

LONDON, Oct. 21 — (CP). — Eighteen German planes were shot down in two dog fights over Cologne and Coblenz yesterday by U.S. 9th Air Force fighter-bombers.

Dive-bombers claimed 226 rail-road cars destroyed or damaged, 16 locomotives disabled, two barges sunk, and 21 trucks shot up.

More than 1,100 sorties were flown on Friday by Continent-based R.A.F. and American planes. Nine American and two British fighters are missing.

One group of Thunderbolts blew a deep gap in a dam at Dieuze, 25 miles east of Nancy.

The 800-foot earthen dam was attacked by 24 Thunderbolts at 2 p.m. Each plane carried two 1,000-pound bombs and six direct hits were scored, making a breach at least 50 feet wide in the west end of the old structure, which is 50 feet thick, 20 feet high, and impounded a lake of 1,500 acres.

Aerial photographs made two hours later showed water spreading across the countryside to a depth of two feet or more as far as Dieuze, enemy supply centre two miles to the east. The attack was made through intense flak, but no planes were lost in that operation.

Planes of the 19th Tactical Air Force flew more than 240 sorties and destroyed 10 locomotives, 57 freight cars, and 28 trucks.

Dutch Elm Disease Found In Quebec

QUEBEC, Oct. 21—(CP)—Presence of the Dutch Elm disease has been found in trees of Richelieu county near Montreal, the Quebec Department of Lands and Forests reported today. The region is believed to be the first in Canada where the disease, which has caused serious ravages in New York state for the past 15 years, has broken out.

Customary tests will be taken to determine the exact nature, stage and extent of the disease after which all necessary steps will be taken to eliminate this new and deadly parasite, the department said.

Record Convoy Safely Over

Ships Cover 26 Square Miles

LONDON, Oct. 21.—(CP).—The largest ocean convoy in history—167 ships carrying more than 1,000,000 tons of food and war equipment and covering an area of nearly 26 square miles—recently arrived from North America without loss, A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, said to-day.

Royal Canadian Navy vessels commanded by Cmdr. G. H. Stephen in the frigate H.C.M.S. Dunver escorted the convoy which took 17 days to cross the Atlantic.

More than 26,000,000 tons of shipping have been convoyed since the war began across "the grey battle-ground," Mr. Alexander said.

Turning to the Pacific war the First Lord said: We hope to place in the Pacific a fleet capable in itself of fighting a general action with the Japanese navy.

"The movement of at least a part of that vast fleet and its mighty attendant train is already under way."

Urges Lifting Embargo Against Cattle

TORONTO, Oct. 21 — (CP). — Livestock interests represented by the Toronto Livestock Exchange are again appealing to the Government at Ottawa to lift the embargo against shipments to the United States as the only course by which the accumulation in the country can be cleared out without the producers suffering heavy loss.

Following a meeting of the Exchange Committee to-day the Exchange sent the following telegram to Agriculture Minister Gardner: "Ontario farmers greatly incensed over present conditions. Cannot immediate steps be taken quickly to permit Canadian cattle exports to United States? Over 2,000 cattle unsold on Toronto Market and hundreds of farmers now pressed between congested markets and immediate winter weather forcing the movement of cattle. Only quick action will avert heavy loss to Canadian farmers. Would also assist our war ally."

It is disclosed at the market that the better quality of cattle have moved out to packers and butchers at a normal tempo, but in recent weeks cows and stockers have accumulated. This week-end there are about 800 cows of the canners and cutters type held over at the market, and some of them are said to have come in three weeks ago. This accumulation is being fed hay which costs $35 a ton and therefore the loss to owners is steadily increasing. Farmers, it follows, cannot take up stockers until they get rid of the herds they now have ready for the butchers.

Fewer Purchased.

Figures given out at the stock yards indicate that packers purchased fewer cattle on the Toronto Market in September than in September, 1943, and the explanation given was that the packers were doing more buying direct from the farmers than usual. Commenting on this suggestion, J. S. McLean, president of Canada Packers said it was incorrect to assume that they were doing more buying direct from the farmers. "If we are going into the country to buy it is because the right type of cattle is not coming to the yards," said Mr. McLean. He added that good cattle are not plentiful in the farming districts.

Dealers point out that the quota of 200,000 head of cattle which Canada may ship to United States markets this year is available if the Federal Government will give its consent. Prices in the United States markets are three to four cents a pound higher than on Canadian markets with only two cents of a duty and costs of about three-quarters of a cent to surmount. Along with the extra price the shipper would receive the benefit of the exchange premium. Altogether, dealers point out, the shipper would get an average of $15 per head over the Canadian market for good beef cattle. So far the argument against removing the embargo is said to be the fear that prices would advance here to something like parity with U.S. prices and thus disturb the Canadian price ceiling.

McLean Speaks.

J. S. McLean, president of Canada Packers Limited, gives the Packers' explanation of the current situation in the following statement issued today:

"The problem of handling the Canadian cattle this fall is a very difficult one. Cattle movement is at a record high.

"However cattle of choice quality are scarce. The chief reservoir of choice cattle in the fall is the ranch area of southern Alberta. Large numbers of these cattle have been brought from that area.

"At the same time there has been a blockade of cattle at eastern markets. This is due to three facts. (1) Killing capacity of the plants has been much reduced by slowdowns. (2) Arrivals of plain cows are very heavy. The only outlet for the surplus of these is in the form of boneless beef for England. Shortage of labor for boning slows up this movement. (3) The principal block is in plain quality stocker cattle. These are not suitable for killing and farmers are not buying the bottom grades so they lie on the market. For instance the carryover at the Toronto yards this week-end is 2,300 cattle, as follows: 300 low grade steers and heifers; 700 low-grade cows and 1,300 stockers. A good many of these stockers have been on the market for two or three weeks.

"The statement in a local paper that 'Packers have not supported the market since the provincial government has assumed control' is silly. The best way to check this statement is to ask the manager or the directors of the yard.

GRAND CHAMPION REPEATS—This is Keendale Lodge Pietje Lass, who was named senior and grand champion for Stewart Nelson, Keene, at the East-Central Ontario championship Holstein show held October 11 at Warkworth. She was also grand champion at a similar show held last year at Orono and was later chosen as all-Canadian three-year-old.

Apple Prices 50-60 Cents Peck

Apples were the colorful highlight of the Farmers' Market, and prices ranged according to grades. Wealthies were 50 cents a peck, St. Lawrence 60 cents a peck, Snows 60 cents for the same measure, and Spies 75 cents a peck. A few crabapples were on sale at 30 cents a basket, and McIntosh Reds were offered at 60 cents a peck, 45 cents a basket, or $1.75 a bushel.

Eggs were slightly higher than in other weeks, with the range being from 40 cents to 50 cents a dozen, and potatoes held steady at 40 cents a peck or $1.50 a bag.

Other vegetables were in quantity and carrots sold at $1 a bushel, onions at 35 cents a basket, beets 25 cents a basket, cabbage at 5 and 10 cents each, cauliflower at 5 cents up to 25 cents each, and turnips at 5 cents each. Savoy cabbage was 10 and 15 cents.

Hubbard squash sold from 5 cents to 25 cents, pumpkins were at the same price range, parsnips were 40 cents a basket, others selling at 3 for 10 cents, and Chinese lettuce was on hand at 5 and 10 cents. Peppers were three for 10 cents, savory 10 cents a bunch, broccoli 10 cents bunch, and red cabbage sold for 5 and 10 cents.

Chickens were 35 cents a pound generally, hens 30 cents a pound, and roast chicken at 50 cents a pound. Apple cider was seen in smaller quantities at first, and this went like wildfire at 60 cents a gallon.

On both sides of Highway 65, between Florence and Bologna, British, American and South African troops nevertheless managed to capture more high ground.

British troops advanced into Cesena from the south. They captured about 150 Germans.

British forces also drove out north-west of the town and set up a bridgehead across the Savio River at the southern road bridge which was blown up by the retreating Germans. Farther south Canadian patrols found the Germans holding the river bank in strength.

Polish troops, again fighting with the 8th Army after their part in the break-through of the Gothic Line, made considerable advances in the central mountain sector, capturing Civitella Di Romagno and Galeata.

Newspapers Desire To Print True Stories

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 21 (AP)—Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, said last night that "if governments will only stand aside, allowing a truthful news exchange, a first step toward solving our war problems will be made."

Addressing the annual meeting of the Indiana Associated Press, Mr. Cooper said, "peace can be attained only by short-circuiting self-seeking governments of each nation throughout the world. Let the people know each other and how the other lives, his problems and his difficulties."

man resistance in Eastern Hungary after prolonged and furious armored battle estimated to have cost the Germans and Russians a total of 1,000 tanks.

Official Russian silence still enveloped the East Prussian front. When the news finally is released it is expected to be as sensational as the announcement of the Romanian drive in August.

(Berlin announced last night that Red Army troops had penetrated 12 miles inside East Prussia on an 80-mile front. The Germans also said the Russians in Hungary had rolled 30 miles beyond Debrecen, reaching the rail town of Tiszacsege on the Tisza River some 85 miles east of the capital.)

Would Split Line

The 4th Ukrainian army group under Col.-Gen. Ivan Petrov was pouring down the Ruthenian highlands for a concentrated drive with the right wing of Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2nd Ukraine Army in an arc north of Budapest calculated to slice in half the German line between central Hungary and southern Slovakia.

Malinovsky's left wing was embroiled in a fierce struggle with German rearguards in the vicinity of Szolnok, less than 50 miles southeast of Budapest. Chaos was reported within the city.

At Zagreb, which appeared to be the next big objective of the drive through Yugoslavia, the puppet premier of Croatia, Dr. Ante Pavelic, has been reported on the verge of flight for some time. Marshal Tito's Partisans have been camping almost on the edge of the city. Good rail routes along the north banks of the Sava from Belgrade could be exploited for a Russian advance northward to join with these Partisan troops.

Southeast of Belgrade, the Russian communique said a total of 17,147 trapped Germans were killed or captured in eliminating an enemy pocket.

Ontario To Aid In Paying Part Of Hospital Care For Indigents

TORONTO, Oct. 21 — Legislation to assure hospitals adequate financial aid for the care of indigent patients wil be introduced at the next session of the Ontario Legislature, Dr. R. P. Vivian, Minister of Health, told the closing sessions of the 21st convention of the Ontario Hospital Association here yesterday.

Frankly recognizing that an Order-in-Council of last June designed to assist hospitals in this regard had failed, he said that meantime another Order-in-Council would be passed to distribute $213,500 among Ontario hospitals.

A joint study by the Hospital Association and the Ontario Department of Health had shown the ward care for indigent patients cost more than the $2.36 a day which the Provincial and municipal Governments now jointly contribute for this purpose, he admitted.
